This city, site of the world's largest zinc-lead smelter, came by its name without effort. It is situated on Trail Creek, and no one seems to know how the name originated, beyond the fact that the creek was a natural waterway, and a trail was blazed by the prospectors along the banks. During the latter part of the century Trail was the centre of a flourishing mining boom, and the first smelter was built on the present site by a fabulous 26-year-old miner- from the U.S. named Tiffie Heinze, who sought to find a way to get the district's ore to market less expensively. The name Trail was registered as a township by Col. A. C. Topping, one of the early settlers, who was to gain a fortune because he was given 160 acres as payment of a recorder's fee for registering two of the richest claims in the district.

King Padded His Expenses

St. Thomas Times-Journal

The salesmen and other business representatives who travel around a good deal sometimes augment their incomes by padding their expense accounts with fictitious or expanded charges; many in the public know sometimes how to do the padding and make it look good. They should take a look at the revelation concerning Charles Rex Fillingharne and elect him their patron saint.

Charles was quite a playboy like his dad whose head was chopped off, and indeed his way of living caused him to live as an exile in France for a number of years. He had a wife by whom he had no children, and a host of mistresses, including the famous Nel Gwynn, by whom he had many. He ordered his sons dukes and his daughters countesses. His ladies, like Nell, were all poor but pretty, and he showed a keen sense of keeping them in a style in which they were not accustomed, quite a feat on a king's purse.

So Charles invented a career and called it Fillingharne. Travel was by horse only in those days and of official business he was riding all the way to Wales where the estate was supposed to be on the estate of Lord Fillingharne called Buckminster. Charles required 75 pounds each month for maintenance of Fillingharne estate, which was not amount to much today but was a nice sum in those days.

Charles died over a long time dead — since 1685 — but as a matter of routine whoever owns the estate of Lord Fillingharne receives an annual cheque for £75 which the present holder of the title keep of a castle that doesn't exist and never did.

You would think the owner of the estate would write and tell Chancellor of the Exchequer Amory that he doesn't want any for nothing; that this racket has been going on for 300 years.

Anyway, it's nice going if you can get away with it.

Cave Cities Suggested

Montreal Gazette

The story of Noah's ark is one which has never lost its appeal. It was in childhood that most of us learned how the animals prevailed and were increased greatly while the world and the rain went upon the face of the waters".

Now a leading geneticist comes forward with the suggestion of modern Noah's arks to furnish protection from the fallout from nuclear fallout. These arks of reinforced concrete, underground would, however, take the form of cities buried within mountains. Such cities would require supplies of radiation-free air and water, however, and would have to live there for 30 to 50 years".

According to Dr. T. M. Sonneborn, professor of zoology at the University of Indiana, those saved in the ark of the nuclear disaster would "provide the starting point for a new civilization".

Many questions occur to the mind in connection with this proposal. What would be the mental condition of the eyesight of persons condemned to such a subterranean existence, into the sun's light? Would they not revert to the habits of troglodytes of cave, unaccustomed to the sights of the upper world?

How many people could be accommodated in one of these "cities"? Would the principle of survival of the fittest apply? Would the ark be manned by the necessity of feeding large underground populations during the years of waiting incompatably longer than the "forty days and forty nights" of the Flood.

The idea may well seem to have about it something of fantasy. But the necessity of avoiding before this turned some of the fantasies of science fiction into uncomfortably sober fact.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The establishment of public camp sites along the highways is now general in all provinces and territories. Many of these are the public in three accommodations, most of which are free or at a low charge. Pollution is the subject of considerable concern by the provincial health tenders responsible for the parks.

An Ontario superintendent reports such things as a porcelain and tile lining for the walls of the wall of a comfort station and just left lying on the floor. Over 200 recently planted trees in one park were pulled out of the ground and left to die in the sun a total loss. In another site, some wit nailed 86 doors from the bathing beach, by some means not yet discovered. Apart from such instances of sheer mischief, many of the camps are left in dirty condition, trash cans ignored, fire places left filthy, bottles and broken glass strewn about.

One superintendent, on the other hand, reports that a lady, giving her husband, with a family of seven, a holiday, might be his last camping trip, leaving her camp site as follows. She cleaned the camp table, removed the garbage and burned the container, cleaned out the fireplace and laid ready a fresh pile of firewood from the wood pile at the outskirts of the site. Gathered a separate heap of kindling. And brought the camp ranger a pie she had left over from supper.

This proves that there are at least two kinds of people in the world.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

CELIAC DISEASE IS DISTURBANCE IN THE NUTRITIONAL SYSTEM

"Dear Dr. Molner: Can you give me any information about the disease called celiac? I am a grandmother of two lovely boys who have it. My daughter and I are anxious to know more about it. — Mrs. A. H."

Celiac disease is not exactly a "new" disease, it is one which in our generation is receiving more attention.

The reason for this is, no doubt, the fact that we no longer have sudden deaths from the more urgent and desperate problems like smallpox, diphtheria, typhoid fever and so on.

Celiac disease is a disturbance in the nutritional system.

Essentially, it seems to be a lack of ability to absorb fats, and to some extent carbohydrates.

Recent studies indicate that in some way this is related to the individual child's response to the presence of a certain protein — it is gluten. If the child's intolerance of gluten is present, the assimilation of the various foods is impaired. When gluten is eliminated completely, the vast majority of children will do normally thereafter.

(I will add that other factors may have some bearing on the disease. One is the hereditary tendency toward it. Another is infection.)

In any event, the disease. If it is to appear at all, usually is present by the time the child is one year old.

As with so many other conditions, it can vary in degree. In its most severe form, there will be loose, pale, bulky, frequent stools. The abdomen will become distended. Appetite will tend to waste away, growth will be halted, and the child will be irritable and his behavior will be difficult.

In mild cases there may be slight retardation of growth and chronic or intermittent diarrhea.

As I said, the known treatment is removal from the diet of gluten, which is primarily found in wheat, oats, barley, maize and rye.

OUTLOOK IS EXCELLENT

Sometimes this has to continue for some years, and sometimes for shorter periods. However, when this is accomplished, the outlook for the child is excellent, from the standpoint of complete recovery. And another comforting thought is that when the treatment is successful, there is every reason to expect him to be, in general, a healthy and happy child.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Is cureting necessary after a miscarriage? I had one at 8 months and the doctor said everything was all right. A neighbor advised me that you should always have a curetterment. Is this a fact? — Mrs. C. D."

If you and I wanted to be nitpicky, I suppose we could tell our neighbor what medical school she went to. But you'd rather have an answer than a smart retort. So: A curettement is usually wise.

Punctual Man One to Pity

Ottawa Journal

Suddenly we have discovered that we have been looking at the problem of punctuality from the wrong side. The man to be pitied is the man to whom it is not the slow-footed, the tardy, the unpunctual but the punctual man. He is the victim of the rule.

This illumination came recently upon reading a newspaper tribute to Mr. Donald Gordon in which it was explained that while in Ottawa during the war he wasted more time by being on time than any man in Canada. This is to self is fascinating intelligence. Intriguing too is it to speculate who possessed the wisdom to keep Donald Gordon waiting.

But of course his attitude toward unpunctuality is right. We have been timid too long not conscious enough of our own inconvenience. Instead of only castigating the chronically late for their weakness, we shall look to the victim also.

It is obvious that the sufferer from this disease is not the one who has called the tune and includes institutions as well as men, even the CNR. Mr. Gordon but he only stands

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

ARE WE JUSTIFIED?

We often hear it said that we are due for a great religious revival. Billy Graham and his wonderful achievements have and in other countries are cited as evidence of the coming revival. Not every right-minded person applauds, support, and pray for the success of such religious revivals. When carried on by men of Billy Graham's grace, mode, and stature, sincerity, and evangelical zeal, movements of this sort are bound to succeed and to bless whole nations.

But may we not also expect the coming of a new revelation? There was a great revelation 4000 years ago when God spoke through Abraham. There was another when God spoke through Moses. The greatest revelation humanity has ever known was, of course, the revelation which came through Jesus and the anointed shedding of God's light in the world through his saints apostles, and a Church filled with His spirit.

But today we are standing at one of the great junctures of world history, when the affairs of this world are not only starting in their significance, but when the whole human race is looking skyward and thinking in terms of space exploration.

What is up there? May not something come down again in the form of a new revelation to bless humanity and guide us through the coming centuries?

Lost Production Of Steel Now $100,000,000

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Steel production loss mounted toward $100,000,000 today in the third day of the steel strike. No end to the crippling shutdown was in sight.

Many more millions in wages have been lost by 500,000 striking United Steelworkers manning picket lines at darkened mills.

There is little optimism on the part of strikers, the steel industry or the government that the contract stalemate can be resolved quickly. Neither the industry nor the union has given any sign of retreating.

Federal conciliation efforts in the dispute will be renewed in New York Monday.

LOSE 300,000 TONS DAILY

The strike at Tuesday midnight shut off nearly 90 per cent of the steelmaking capacity of the United States, representing about 300 tons of basic steel daily.

Weekly production loss to the industry is estimated at $300,000,000. The loss to strikers in wages is calculated at $70,000,000 a week.

In addition, allied industries as coal and transportation have felt the strike keenly. About 25,000 workers have been made idle due to business cutbacks.

Joseph Finnegan, director of the federal mediation and conciliation service, has met with union and industry Monday in an effort to find a basis for resuming joint talks.

Decision Will Be Given on August 14th

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Decision was reserved Thursday until Aug. 14 in the case of Mrs. Isobel Dragonetti, who is accused of winning a bingo game with a forged card.

Mrs. Dragonetti, 30, charged with attempted fraud, was released on $2,500 bail.

Walton Rose, lawyer for Mrs Gorgenay said the cards came from a novelty company in Toronto. They are all printed with the exception of the numbers in the squares which are inserted by a printing shop here.

"There are 40 employees in the printing shop and they would have easy access to the blank cards," Mr. Rose said. "On top of that, you have 20 salesmen at the game who could be working in collusion."

Mrs. Grogensky was charged after she was presented with a $100 cheque at a Kiwanis Club bingo. The club became suspicious of the card and summoned police.

OPEN 'TEA PARTY'

retary Selwyn Lloyd of Britain found that on several points Russia and the Western powers both seemed to be approaching agreement.

NEXT DIVIDED

But Western opinion was divided on the prospects for breaking a Berlin agreement to open the way to a summit conference.

The contradictory reactions in the Western camp reflect an apparently basic split over policy. French officials say they are opposed to setting up any new machinery for work on the broad German political problems during the proposed truce period. The United States and Britain, and to some extent West Germany, seem willing to pay Russia this price in order to get a truce agreement.

SLIGHTLY ENCOURAGING

The points made by Gromyko which British and American officials found at least slightly encouraging were:

1. Russia has proposed that the ministerial meeting in Geneva should last for 18 months, but Gromyko agreed with a statement by Lloyd that Soviet government is flexible on several points of the proposal and that the point "there exist all possibilities to come to agreement."

2. The statement of the agreement Russia wants an all-German committee to try to bring to terms on German unity and a peace settlement. The West says this is a task that the Big Four powers with the Germans participating only as advisers. Gromyko said if the West does not like the all-German committee "other means" of conducting the negotiation might be found.

3. Russia once threatened to sign a separate peace treaty with East Germany — thereby endangering the security of West Berlin —if the Western powers did not agree to sign peace treaties with both Germanys. Gromyko now says Russia will not take such unilateral action.

Nurse Takes Dream Trip Around World

TROIS-RIVIERES, Que. (CP) — Maureen Malone went around the world in 73 days.

This attractive Trois - Rivieres nurse travelled over eight airlines on her dream trip to 13 countries. She visited Italy, Japan, China, Thailand, Burma, India, Egypt, Greece, Italy, France, Ireland, Scotland and England.

Maureen, who works in New York, had a year's leave granted for a travel agency. At every airport a guide met her, took her through customs and to her hotel.

Hawaii is one of the places she liked best. "It is enchanting, has a marvellous climate, flowers, gay people," she smiled.

"Tokyo is clean, modern, and beautiful," but Maureen was flabbergasted at the traffic.

CROWDED HONG KONG

Over-populated Hong Kong was Maureen's first experience with oriental poverty. Refugees from Communist China, Red Chinese, the British concession increasing unemployment to a desperate point.

"Housing is also a problem, and people build huts on the roofs of big buildings because there is no other living space," said Miss Malone.

" saw funerals in Hong Kong," she recalled. "They are rather gay; musicians, flowers, people chatting behind the hearse."

She found Thailand beautiful but "terribly poor." She saw the traditional Singing Girls of Siam, in shiny costumes, jewels, weird music and strange gestures.

From there to "suffocating" Rangoon where she could swim, golf, and ride.

In India, she found Calcutta hot, poor, and dirty, "New Delhi is much like Washington, with its modern buildings and broad avenues." she said.

STRANGE TO TOURIST

But the large crowds in the streets, the beggars, and the famished - looking sacred cows were things that came to visit first when she thought of India.

"Women are pretty, but quite small, and wear colorful saris. All these people have wonderful glowing eyes."

Before leaving India, Maureen went for a ride on an elephant. "It's slow but it's fun." She also saw the Taj Mahal, one of the wonders of the world.

Next stop was Cairo and more wonders of the world—especially the sphinx. Luxor's tombs, a mosque with 11,000 lighted lamps, the traditional ride on a camel's back.

"In Rome I felt at home," she said, "the Orient is so different." She saw Pope John twice and visited Roman ruins.

In Paris there were museums and monuments; Ireland, "the most quiet place in the world, with kind and sociable people"; Scotland, rather cold and dark; and finally London . . . without fog or rain.

Children Get Into Act in Fashion Show

NEW YORK (AP)—Fashion has three faces this fall, says designer Adele Simpson, whose collection was presented to 240 members of the national fashion group Wednesday in her 5th Ave. fete.

They are: the swagger look, the tailored look and the "precious" look, each illustrated by well-bred, easy-fitting clothes for all occasions. Swashbuckling great coats with coordinated slim wool dresses are shown for the swagger mood. Slim suits in men's-type wear worsted, with easy-fitting jackets present the tailored look. Simply-cut evening dresses and suits in rich metallic brocades, plus fur-trimmed coats achieve the precious look.

Copeland of the House of Pattullo showed a suave and elegant collection featuring mink-trimmed tuxedo dresses, silk-belted dresses under sable - collared jackets, and the sophisticated but never fuzzy evening and cocktail clothes for which he is famous.

Davidson showed abundance group of town-or-country suits in high-color tweeds, such as one in royal purple, teamed with a red fox fur handbag.

The Harvey Berin collection designed by Karen Stark, highlighted the "parachute" silhouette, a slender, belted dress in men's wear worsted—the "double entry," a wearable dress and jacket outfit sometimes collared in fur; and the "vamp" neckline, a daring plunge.

Bay of Quinte W.A. Plans Autumn Schedule at Conference

Planning for the autumn's work was the order of the day when the executive members of the Bay of Quinte Conference of the Woman's Association of the United Church of Canada met for their summer executive meeting in Bridge Street United Church parlors this week with the president, Mrs. G. E. Dobbs, in the chair.

The first importance was the planning for the fall rally to be held in Trinity United Church, Peterborough, on September 28th, Peterborough, on September 28th, with Call to Worship at 9.30 a.m. It was planned to turn the morning session over to the conference executives, who would take advantage of the well-planned facilities of Trinity Church Hall to prepare individual conference periods with the various related secretaries of Presbyteries and Local Woman's Associations, to give practical assistance and inspiration in the carrying out of their work for the autumn months and to discuss their problems. All groups would then report back to the general assembly on their discussions.

PROGRAM PLANNING

Mrs. Ralph Hill, program planning secretary, was asked to conduct a program planning session, using at least a dozen circles of the program. Mrs. Hill urges all W.A.'s to use the new study packet at their meetings, especially commenting on the use of the programs' "Inside Northern Rhodesia", and "Women in Changing Africa", for study meetings with W.M.S. groups. Such meetings would be preparation for the new women's organization which will get under way on January 1st, 1962.

MORE

An invitation was to be issued to Mrs. L. E. Halpenny, a past president of the Dominion Council, and now secretary of the Dominion council section of the Board of Christian Education of the United Church, to be the special guest speaker for the rally.

Of great interest was the careful review by Mrs. A. A. Crowle of the evaluation sheets from members attending the leadership training course at Five Oaks. Comments ranged from "A mountain-top experience," to the suggestion that more time to be given to Bible study, practical programing, leadership training, worship.

COURSES' CONSULTANT

Mrs. W. C. Ives was appointed to consult with Rev. Beverly Oaten with a view to arranging courses for the eastern and western sections of the Conference Branch this coming year.

The next executive meeting, rather than two, in order to accommodate more of those desiring to attend thereafter, will be the course for their area, and to broaden the interest.

Further discussion took place in regard to the printing and use of prayer cards. The great power of prayer and what it can do was considered, and it was decided to order sufficient cards for the use of each member of the Conference branch, to be used at 9 a.m. each morning in the interests of the work of God for His blessings; to confess wrongs and ask for pardon; for the clergy, to receive new readiness to serve God, and to listen for His leading; to pray for Church and Five Oaks, and to ask guidance for world leadership.

These cards would be distributed to the Presbyteries at the autumn Rally.

W.A. MEMBERSHIP CAMPAIGN

It was reported out by the president, Mrs. Dobbs, that 700,000 women are reported members of the W.A., while only 320,000 are on record. Every W.A. should begin a membership campaign, calling on every woman in the church to enroll as a member. Such action in the church resulted in an increase from 80 to 300 members.

The renovation and opening of the John Knox Chapel in Frankford was brought before the executive as a heritage of the church. John Knox had to flee his native land, thus established his church in Geneva; its restoration was undertaken by the World Council of Churches, and the United Church of Canada assumed $10,000. So far the 6,000 W.A. groups was given an opportunity to contribute $1 or more toward this project. Conference executives voted $25 to this fund, and requested Presbyteries to bring it before Sessions, since Christian Stewardship secretaries.

PRESBYTERIES GIVE REPORTS

Reports were given by presidents of the eight Presbyteries and autumn plans discussed.

Mrs. Ralph Hill conducted a stirrign devotional, as she urged, "Be what they seemest, live thy creed." "We can choose to be a pyramid, or a frustrum — the pyramid, a supreme divine trusting faith, can be lost by those too afraid of losing earthly comfort — losing the pyramid top — frustrated, useless, pinnacle to point in life. W.A. members may become frustrators of those looking to us for examples."

SMART ROBIN

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP)—A robin which came to the home of W.H. Martin when its broken leg was mended has won the heart of a male budgie, while the female budgie is scorned. The robin, frequently in the budgie's cage, has also won friends of the Martins' two spaniels.

The Experts Say
Counselling Service Great Help to Elderly Persons

TORONTO (CP) Blanche Stubbs has been associated with the counselling of elderly people since the program was initiated 11 years ago by the Unemployment Insurance Commission in 1948.

Miss Stubbs and Enoch Evans, who joined the program six months after it started, look back with pleasure as they remember some of the 10,000 men and women who have passed through their office on Spadina Ave. The oldest was 96 years of age and eager to work.

The counselling service was set up by Dr. W. G. Scott, consultant on special placements for the Ontario region of the National Employment Service.

ABILITY BIG FACTOR

If Mr. Evans had his way, employers would not be allowed to ask the age of those seeking employment. He said five states of the United States have passed such legislation.

"We do not consider a man or woman by age, but by what they can do," he explained.

Although the majority of those taking special help in obtaining jobs are men, there are also many older women. Many of the women have never worked. Their skills are assessed before any position is suggested.

This is an important phase of the work. Men who have done the same job all their life may not be able to continue that line of work. The counsellor re - assesses the applicant's skills then suggests a job which fits his qualifications. Both Miss Stubbs and Mr. Evans agree that sentiment is not allowed in the job requirements and their applicant's qualifications must fit perfectly.

Women usually have an idea what they would like to do, Miss Stubbs said. Often they have a friend who is doing the type of work they would like to do. Assembling is a good job for a woman whose hands are dexterous. They prefer to be receptionists or companions.

RE-TRAINING PLAN

Some years ago, the New York House and School of Industry launched a re-training program in typing and shorthand for middle-aged and elderly women wishing to re-enter the labor market. The greatest problem was to develop self-confidence in women.

In Milwaukee, one bank has found older women working on a part-time basis have less absenteism, greater security, dependability and job stability.

Both Miss Stubbs and Mr. Evans agree the greatest contribution to the older folks in counselling is given when they feel needed and appreciated. Often after counselling, they get a good enough confidence to go out and find work on their own.

Sentiment is affected greatly by older people. Mr. Evans related the case of a man who obtained employment through counselling earned $20,000 in 11 years he worked the following "retirement."

Not all counselling employment need the money. Many find the days interminably long after retirement.

As one man in his 80's said, "Find me a job, I'll die."

Club 40 Elects New Officers

On July 8th Club 40 held its last meeting of the year, in the way of a picnic supper and strawberry social, which was held on the lawn of Miss Helen Aikenhead's home, which was most graciously offered for the occasion.

After the singing of grace, 21 members sat down to a lovely supper, the tables were decorated with beautiful flowers.

At the conclusion of the supper, a meeting was held for election of officers for the coming year, starting Tuesday, September 1st, 1959, as follows: president — Miss H. Ackerman; vice-president — Mrs. M. Green; recording secretary — Miss E. Nolan; treasurer — Mr. W. Clare; sick committee— Mrs. Green; social convenors — Mrs. M. Hallam and L. Towler, Mrs. G. Robinson and Mrs. G. Wright; membership committee — Mrs. A. Exley and Mr. Buckley.

Club 40 would appreciate new members or in any way that it could help the unfortunate.

Only Used Rifle Twice In Her Life

WHITEHORSE, Y.T. (CP)— Mrs. Clive Boyd, using a rifle for the second time in her life, bagged a skulking bear that tried to steal fish from a barrel in her backyard.

Mrs. Boyd, whose husband is a construction worker, brought down the animal with two shots. She said she didn't think much about the second way to hold the gun. All she thought of was what the bear would do.

The Boyds live on the Alaska Highway, seven miles south of Whitehorse.

Designer Says Fashion Will Have 3 Faces

ROME (Reuters)—Fox fur collars for little boys were introduced Thursday on the first day of the Italian high fashion showings for autumn and winter.

Zoogone, high fashion designer of fakers, showed the most sophisticated clothes.

Wealthy and mainly tilled ladies of Zoogone modified the collections with promptings from Swiss governesses, nurses in starched white uniforms and dodging fathers.

A four - year - old girl primly modelled a green velveteen, "after-ski lounging suit"—

A blase little six-year-old boy showed a green wool overcoat with beige fox collar, under which was worn a golden corduroy suit with brown kid collar and cuffs.

Most of the styles — from breakfast to bedtime — were furred and gold-buttoned. And socks—for little girls in cobweb, nylon peignoirs and the little boys in lace-frilled pyjamas.

The accessory display for women had unusually few new, fashion ideas to offer. One was a detachable heel for women who drive cars and don't want to scuff their heels.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

Editor's Note: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a woman's editor and two workers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Marcia P. — The most important thing is to get along with others.

Howard P. — I want the children to think for themselves.

Marcia P. — My husband and I have quite different ideas about child rearing and I'm afraid we are confusing and upsetting our children because of this. We would like to know who is right.

I feel the most important thing children can learn is how to get along with others. To have good relationships with others they must be able to do the same things, share the same experiences.

My husband thinks this is "conformism" and he happens to be rigged individualist. He wants his children to be different — "Stand on their own two feet" is the way he puts it.

Howard P. — I think that the worst thing that has happened to us in the twentieth century is the collapse of all standards except one — being with the crowd.

I want my children to learn to think for themselves. I do not approve of a 15-year-old-girl wearing lipstick or going to a party at which alcoholic beverages are served. Lots of girls in our community do these things, but not my daughter. Our son, too, has twice as many responsibilities and half the privileges of the average boy of 15.

Our kids resent it, sure. But I know that someday they'll be grateful for their upbringing.

The Council: We agree with Howard that the sacrifice of personal standards and individuality is thought on the altar of "good relationships with others" has been a destructive trend in our times.

But we also believe in tempering righteousness with a little mercy.

Adolescent children are at the most conforming stage of their lives. At no other time of life does being one of the crowd seem quite so important. It is necessary for everyone in our society to pass through some such stage. It is a way of growing up — growing away from parents and forming ties with one's own generation.

We don't think it is necessary to give in to every demand of the child's at this stage simply because he says "the others are doing it." But it is necessary to make some allowance for his need to be noticed and approved in his own age group.

Howard is a little oversold on his notion that his children's resentment will automatically turn to gratitude when they get older, to become more understanding of the parental point of view and appreciative of their efforts as they mature. But we do not think it is necessary or desirable to a child to go through years of bitterness and unhappiness in order to learn Mother or Dad was right or means right.

A far better way of bringing a child forward into his own individuality would be to establish certain basic principles with great firmness, but to be understanding and open to reason on details. A child who knows that his point of view gets a fair and sympathetic hearing is far more apt to have the courage of his convictions than one who is forced to accept the law handed down by a rigid parent.

Brandon Women Better Built Than Easterners

BRANDON, Man. (CP)—Brandon women are better built than their sisters in the East and Brandon men are strong.

This bit of news comes from Sam (Poncho) Kalmen, a weight-guesser with a travelling show at the Manitoba Provincial Exhibition here, and Les Moore, owner of a muscle-testing machine.

Sam thinks the women are among the best - proportioned physical types in Canada.

"More people in this part of the country work outside," he says. "They're well put-together. Down east they believe a lot in thin slenderizing business. And in Quebec they're built like rakes."

Les says the average western Manitoban is better than his Winnipeg cousin at winning cigars by hitting the bell on his machine.

"Those Winnipeg city slickers aren't too good," he says. "They sit around in offices too much. But these fellows from the country—well, they eat four meals a day, they've got plenty of beef."

And the Brandon boys are more confident to show off in front of their girl friends, he says. "Only occasionally does a girl have to prod one of them."

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

FAMILY SHOWS FINE QUALITY IN DIFFICULT SITUATION

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

Our daughter has just broken her engagement. She wants so much to handle the situation in as dignified a manner as possible. The wedding date had not been set, but a number of showers had been given in her honor and she has also received many personal gifts. She knows, as we know, that all gifts are to be returned. She has returned the engagement ring and other finance, as well as all the presents he had given her. And she has returned to his parents and to his sister and to two devoted aunts of his the beautiful family heirlooms they had so generously given her. These could be, and were, all returned "in person."

1. But now, when she sends the other gifts, must she enclose short notes telling the givers that she and Bob (let's say that's his name) have reconciled their engagement, and then thank them for their kind thought and for their present? Or have you a better suggestion?

2. Would you advise that I write his parents a note? We have always been very fond of them, very fond of their son, and I feel that we owe them a very fairly bleak just not to say anything. We would so appreciate your point of view about this.

— Mother and Father

Dear Folks: Your evidence of your so-right and so-sound reactions and inclinations. I wish that there were more fathers like you, more daughters like your daughter, whom you have brought up to have a clear vision of right behavior, and instinctively to show good taste in a not-easy situation. Nowadays so many girls cling tenaciously to any gifts, refusing to return them, so often even refusing to return the engagement ring. And so many girls "nurse a grudge" against a cancelled — not only the ex-fiance, but his family and relatives as well. So, dear lady, my sincere salutations to you and your husband and your fine-thinking daughter.

1. There is no better suggestion than this with each gift your daughter encloses a brief, gracious note saying that "the engagement has been broken by mutual consent" (this is the time-honored phrasing), and always the best), and that since the reason for the gift no longer exists, she is returning it. And I suggest she add, for example, "With so many thanks, Dorothy dear, for the beautiful crystal plate you so generously gave me, and with deep and affectionate appreciation of your goodness and kindness to me always. I cherish your thought, I treasure your dear friendship."

2. An excellent idea . . . please to follow this gracious inclination. Of course they will welcome a note from you, telling them that you and your family regret the necessity of the broken engagement, but saying that you were and are very fond of them and their son, and adding anything else that is true and that you think will be a comfort and a source of pride to them.

BAKED CHICKEN

Have a 3 or 4 pound cut-up chicken. Sprinkle with salt, pepper and flour. Put in pan, skin side up. Dot with butter. Add 2 cups hot water. Bake at 450 deg. 15 minutes, turning once, sprinkling with salt, pepper and flour as turned pieces. Baste. Reduce heat to 350 deg. and bake until tender about 1½ to 2 hours, basting every 15 minutes and turning when underside is well browned. Make gravy with pan dripping and finely chopped giblets. A less variation in the above recipe is to use a mixture of ½ cup flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon marjoram, 1 teaspoon thyme, 1 teaspoon celery salt, ½ teaspoon pepper to sprinkle on chicken.

PICKLED BEETS

(I searched for 10 years for a beet pickle recipe and found none. I liked until I tried this one from your column.) Select small beets of uniform size, cut off tops, allowing one inch of stems to remain. Wash well and cook in water to cover until tender. Plunge into cold water and slip off skins. Pack in sterile jars. Make a vinegar syrup in proportions of 1 cup water to each 2 cups vinegar and 2 or 3 cups sugar (I use 2½ cups). Amount of sugar depends on your sweet tooth. Add to vinegar syrup 1 teaspoon cloves and 3 4" sticks of cinnamon bark. Boil syrup 5 minutes and pour over beets in jars, boiling hot, filling to overflowing. Seal at once. (This is enough syrup for 5 pints).

HISPEED BEEF CASSEROLE

One pound ground beef, 1 teaspoon salt, MSG, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ½ teaspoon pepper, 2 tablespoons chopped onion, fat, 1 tin mushroom soup, 1-1-3 cups hot water cooked rice (½ cup raw) grated cheese. Brown beef and onion in pressure cooker in a little fat, stirring continuously. Add salt, pepper and MSG and 1-3 cup water. Cook under pressure 10-12 minutes. Pile beef in centre of greased casserole. Combine soup, rice and remaining cup water and pour around beef. Cover tightly and bake 15-20 minutes at 375 deg. Remove cover and sprinkle with about ½ cup grated cheese. Heat until cheese melts and is golden. 4 servings.

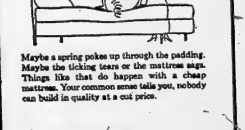
Buying a Mattress?

Puzzled which to choose?

Here are some points to consider...

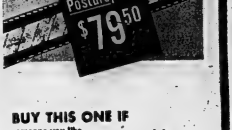
BUY THIS ONE IF you're going to put up in the guest room — and you don't like guests.



Then it won't be slept on often. Won't wear out so soon. Won't really matter if it doesn't give good support.

BUY THIS ONE IF you're single, but expect to get married. Or if you're married, but expect to get divorced. Or if you're married, but expect your husband to get divorced.

Maybe a spring pokes up through the padding. Maybe the ticking tears or the mattress sags. Things like that do happen with a cheap mattress. Your common sense tells you, nobody can build in quality at a cut price.

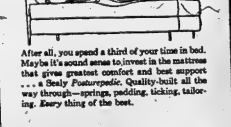


BUY THIS ONE IF you realize you'll have to replace it fairly soon.

Naturally, a mattress made to sell for so little can't be guaranteed to last. That's why buying a "bargain" is actually the expensive way to buy. In the long run it costs you considerably more in dollars—and dollars can't measure the difference in good comfortable sleep.

BUY THIS ONE IF you're sold on Sealy Posturepedic. Unlike cheap mattresses, the Posturepedic is guaranteed . . . guaranteed for at least ten years. (Twenty if you buy a matching foundation.) Still only $79.50 in spite of inflation . . . in the long run, a Posturepedic actually saves you money. Convenient credit terms are available.

BUY THIS ONE IF you want the best sleep in the world. Or if you want the best sleep in your world. Or if you want the best sleep in your bedroom. Or if you want the best sleep in your bed.



Wonderful support. Wonderful comfort. And it will last and last and last—as long as you do, most likely.

BUY THIS ONE IF you want deep sleep in really important.

After all, you spend a third of your time in bed. Maybe it's sound sense to invest in the mattress that gives greatest comfort and best support . . . a Sealy Posturepedic. Quality all the way through—springs, padding, ticking, tailoring. Every thing of the best.

BUY THIS ONE IF you'd just as soon save yourself money.

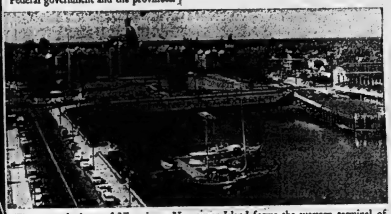
From Sea to Sea...

Trans-Canada Highway

The problem of uniting a sprawling, sparsely populated country, stretching for over 3000 miles from the Atlantic to the Pacific, with a system of high quality roadways has been pondered and planned since Confederation. Today, target date for completion of the Trans-Canada Highway is approaching and Canada's provinces are pushing ahead to meet the 1960 deadline. Above, part of the highway in Banff National Park, Alberta, with towering Mount Eisenhower as a backdrop.

Eastern terminal of the Trans-Canada Highway will be in the historic city of St. John's, Newfoundland. A view of the busy port and magnificent harbour are seen above from the height of Signal Hill. Car ferries will link the Island with the route through the mainland.



The Canso Causeway forms a spectacular link between Cape Breton Island and the Nova Scotian mainland. Completed in 1955 as a special joint Federal-Provincial project, the Causeway has since been incorporated into the Trans-Canada Highway. Under the Trans-Canada Highway Act, cost of building the highway has been shared by the Federal government and the provinces.

The Trans-Canada Highway will provide North American motorists with some of the finest scenic touring routes in the world. Canada's highway planners firmly adhere to the principle that good roads don't cost money — they make money. They do this in a wide variety of ways — such as attracting large numbers of tourists.

Total distance of the Trans-Canada Highway will be approximately 4,500 miles. This does not include some 400 miles of paved highways of good quality in Quebec.

National Film Board of Canada Photos.

The sunny harbour of Victoria on Vancouver Island forms the western terminal of the highway. Construction of the highway through the rugged terrain of the Rocky Mountains provided many challenging problems for Canada's highway builders. Route through the Rockies, some of it at a cost of $1½ million a mile, will afford travellers an endless vista of breath-taking sights.

Commandments Said Basis For Scout Laws

TORONTO (CP) — If the boy scout laws are outmoded then the 10 Commandments also are outmoded because scout law is based on them. Jack Atkinson, assistant executive scout commissioner for Ontario, said Wednesday.

Mr. Atkinson was commenting on statements by Queen Scout Robert Keikkila of Cobalt who said "scout laws created in the horse and buggy days don't always fit in today's rocket age."

"New badges are added every year and badges that are not proving popular with scouts are dropped, as part of the scouting program in keeping pace with the times," Mr. Atkinson said.

The scouts' national headquarters even now was conducting a survey to decide if change, were needed in the boy scout uniform.

Mr. Atkinson said the movement was not restricted in its work by a limit on the ways in which it can seek funds.

He added that the Cobalt youth had dropped out of scouting a year ago and had never been in a position to know fully about scout financing.

Trade Minister Says Steps Will Be Taken to Guarantee Future of Uranium Industry

OTTAWA (CP)—The government intends to take steps if possible to "guarantee the future of a stable uranium industry in Canada," Trade Minister Churchill said Thursday.

"We want to assure the people in the uranium industry," he said during a Commons discussion of the uranium industry, "that we are fully aware of the seriousness of the situation."

"We intend," he added, "to take such steps as are open to us to ameliorate the conditions if possible guarantee the future of a stable uranium industry in Canada and protect the livelihood of the people who are in these mining towns at the present time."

STUDY BEING MADE

Speaking during debate on his department's spending estimates, Mr. Churchill said "a complete economic method by which to produce electric power from uranium sources."

If this proved so, when the project got going, "then the market for Canada's nuclear reactors and the market for Canadian uranium may be assured."

NEIGHBORS PROTEST

SUDBURY (CP) — John Cherry Smith of Toronto Stanley was elected chairman of the Ontario Water Resources Commission Advisory Board Wednesday, succeeding Jesse F. Gray, Elmhurst, with five new 1959-60 directors, voted eight to seven in favor of the change.

per kilowatt hour of electricity it would cost, then other countries would go in for the small package unit from the U.S.—reactor and enriched uranium.

Mr. Churchill said there are no grounds for Mr. Peters' suggestion that the U.K. would be willing to give financial aid for Hamilton bulk power development to run an enriched uranium industry. "The thing, Mr. Peters had neglected to mention the cost was run to "hundreds of millions."

Canada was going ahead with its reactor as quickly as was scientifically feasible.

Scientists of the world were looking with great interest to development of Canada's natural-uranium reactor.

"They are in close touch with the work our scientists are doing in this country and they are looking hopefully, as our people are to the use of natural uranium and heavy water as the most economic method by which to produce electric power from uranium sources."

Believed Labor and Govt. Officers Have Patched Rift

By JOHN LeBLANC
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's two central labor bodies and the federal government have patched up their big rift over a controversial appointment to the Unemployment Insurance Commission.

The Canadian Labor Congress and the Canadian and Catholic Confederation of Labor withdrew their representations against the Unemployment Insurance Advisory Committee in April because they did not like the way the government appointed Alastair F. Fraser, MacArthur of Toronto to a $12,000-a-year post on the three-man commission.

The 1,100,000 CLC, it was learned Thursday, has told the government it wants representation on the nine-man advisory committee again and has nominated two men.

The CLC, with about 100,000 members mostly in Quebec, has announced it is nominating President Roger Mathieu of Montreal to succeed Secretary - General Jean Marchand of Quebec, who quit over the MacArthur disagreement.

ANNOUNCEMENT SOON

Informants said Labor Minister Starr has recommended to the cabinet that all three labor nominees be accepted. An announcement may be expected in the next few days.

The cabinet chose Mr. MacArthur for the labor post on the commission in preference to two others named by the congresses as possible choices. Mr. MacArthur was Canadian head of the International Office Workers' Union at the time.

The congress, while not questioning Mr. MacArthur's qualifications, objected because the government was not following past practice by naming the labor man on a short list in line with labor body recommendations.

Farley Mowat Story Praised In Parliament

OTTAWA (CP)—Northern Affairs Minister Alvin Hamilton has praised a magazine story, about an Eskimo woman's ordeal, that had almost criticized from two members of the North-west Territories Council.

It is "one of the most moving accounts of courage, skill and endurance that I have ever read," Mr. Hamilton told the Commons. "I recommend to every member of the House and to every Canadian to read and to study this story."

Mr. Hamilton commented last Friday on the story published earlier this year by Maclean's magazine and written by Farley Mowat of Palgrave, Ont., an author and naturalist dealt frequently with the north.

The story concerned Ookpik Kikik who was killed when her husband's glayer with a knife in the Kivalliq barrens north of Manitoba and then fled with her five children.

DIED IN SNOW

Two children were found buried under snow along her trail, one dead and the other living. Another was tried for murder and acquitted.

The magazine story was attacked on some of its facts when the territorial council met here. L. H. Nicholson, then RCMP commissioner, was also criticized in some references to RCMP actions.

E. C. Gould, chairman of the Canadian Maritime Commission, called Mr. Nicholson's speech open to criticism of his facts in other northern writings.

Mr. Hamilton didn't deal with the facts of the story but said:

"Here is a piece of powerful prose, an attempt is made to look into the minds of people thousands of years behind us in time in civilization. Read that story by Farley Mowat and you will get a personal needs of these old and long-overlooked Canadian citizens."

Mayor Fined For Infringing Building By-Law

BARRIE (CP)—Mayor Willard Kinzie lost Barrie's council chair for the next Thursday night and while he was gone aldermen muttered, "Aye."

The mayor returned he learned he had been fined $300 by council for infringements of a building bylaw. The mayor is president and controlling stockholder of Lakeview Dairy.

The dairy was fined for changing the plans for a structure after it received a building permit. Only 10 weeks ago council increased the penalty to $300 also.

Mayor Kinzie said he doubted the legality of council's reasons but he'd go along with it anyway.

Military Functions Dominate Queen's Program at Victoria

By DAVE McINTOSH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VICTORIA (CP) — In this garden city where flowers bang on every lamp post, the Queen and Prince Philip are being greeted mainly by military functions.

They arrived Thursday after a drive under a hot sun down Vancouver Island from Nanaimo. The path of their car was almost blocked by some 20,000 persons as they approached Government House.

An hour after the royal couple's arrival they went to the legislative building overlooking the quiet harbor to take the salute at a tri-service marchpast. The Queen took the salute on address of welcome by Premier W. A. C. Bennett and in the evening she and Philip attended a dinner dance for 100 guests.

TODAY'S ROUTINE

Today she was to present colors to the 1st Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, and the King's Own Calgary 14th Armoured Regiment in Beacon Hill Park. This was to be followed by an RCAF flypast.

The province was to give a luncheon in honor of the Queen and 4,000 guests were invited to an afternoon garden party at Government House. In the evening, a naval fireworks display was scheduled.

The Queen and Prince leave Saturday by RCAF jet liner, Sabre, then for a 2½-day journey to the Arctic and sub-Arctic communities of Whitehorse, Dawson City, Mayo and Inuvik. It will the first time a monarch has been in the Canadian Arctic.

The royal couple landed from the destroyer Assiniboine on Thursday at Nanaimo after a slow night crossing of Georgia Strait from Vancouver.

JOHN INDIAN TRIBE

At Nanaimo exhibition park the Queen became a member of the Salish Indian tribe with the name of Ah Ho Multh, meaning "respected by all, another of the people." She was not obliged to don Indian headdress.

While they were attending an evening dinner and dance at Government House, four Indian hobor women dressed in black arrived at the gate unbidden. They left after giving a handwritten note for the Queen to an RCMP officer.

The women, all from Kwawkewlth Agency, asked the Queen's intercession in their efforts to have children released from a provincial institution. The Queen were told application for an adoption had already been made to the provincial government.

An RCMP officer said the following day: "The Queen got her proper party."

The Queen danced three times during the evening — with Prince Philip, Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross and John Turner, the lieutenant governor's stepson who was a page. Princess Margaret's partner at balls here and in Montreal.

Firms Must Give Preference to Own Drivers

MONTREAL (CP) — A federal arbitration board has ruled that "long distance" trucking firms shipping goods between Montreal and Toronto must give their own truck drivers preference over the "piggyback" rail system.

The board, in a report made public Thursday, listed three conditions under which the "piggyback" system may be used. The conditions are: When the load exceeds the legal highway weight limit; when the owner's truck loading schedule would have to be interfered with, within reason, in order to accommodate the piggyback rail; holidays or adverse conditions.

The majority report, written by H. L. Hyndman, Montreal court reporter, and Ross Drouin, Quebec City, public relations director of properties, Phil Cutler, Montreal lawyer and union nominee, dissented.

The board was drawn up by Canadian Pacific Railway Co. and Kingsway Transports Limited and Smith Transport Limited. Kingsway is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Canada Steamship Lines and Smith is controlled by the CPR.

Involved were about 40 members of the Canadian Drivers' Union (CLC), which complained that both firms were making too frequent use of the "piggyback" system of moving trucks on rail flat cars.

Board Claims Rear Brakemen Not Needed

OTTAWA (CP) — The majority report of a federal conciliation board suggests that rear - end brakemen should be eliminated from the crews of ore trains hauling between North Shore and Labrador Railway.

Board chairman Norman Gentner and company representative Paul Smith, both of Montreal, report they are reasonably sure that present duties of the rear-end brakeman can be fulfilled by the conductor.

The report, released here by the labor department, recommends that a three - man crew consisting of an engineer, a conductor and a brakeman "should be tried on an experimental basis."

The third member of the board, Senator Arthur Roebuck of Ottawa, submitted a dissenting report in which he rebuked the company for what he called its "short-sighted promising insistence" on the right to dispense with rear-end brakemen.

The major report states that its recommendations should not be construed as being applicable to any railway other than the Quebec North Shore, which carries iron ore from mines in Labrador to Sept-Iles on the St. Lawrence.

Proceedings May Be Taken to N.Y. Next Week

MONTREAL (CP)—Next step in proceedings against two men charged in connection with the largest narcotics seizure in Canadian history may be taken in New York City early next week.

Crown prosecutor Jean-Paul Ste. Marie requested Thursday a postponement in Quebec that would in effect move the preliminary hearing of Giuseppe (Pepi) Colroni and Rene Robert to New York.

Object of the commission would be to obtain evidence against the two Montrealers.

Mr. Ste. Marie said he would like to go to New York Monday because "several of our witnesses are there."

Colroni, 45, a tavern and cafe owner, and Robert, 29-year-old former waiter, appeared Thursday for preliminary hearing followed with trafficking in narcotics and conspiracy to traffic following their arrest in Quebec on 600 worth of heroin.

Following their appearance on the narcotics charges, Colroni and Robert were ordered to volunteer statement July 23 on charges of possessing $9,700 worth of bonds stolen from the Belleville Trust and Savings Company May 3, 1958. Voluntary statements in Quebec have no legal procedure at which an accused may present evidence.

Colroni will be made to commit him to trial.

Luigi Belardi, an engineer, testified Colroni gave him the bonds to fulfil part of a building contract. He deposited them in his bank account, not knowing they were stolen, he said.

Two Charged With Careless Boat Operation

ELLIOT LAKE (CP)—Two Elliot Lake men were charged Thursday with careless operation of pleasure craft, a first for private accidents in which a swimmer was severely gashed by a propeller mold motor propellors and another man drowned.

Ernest Chalmers, 24, was charged after Walter Elsentraut also of this Northern Ontario uranium community, suffered an almost severed right arm and other injuries.

Police said Muller was operating the boat which struck Elzentraut as he swam in Ellio Lake Wednesday night.

Ernest Muller, 21, was charged in connection with the drowning Monday of Alphonsus Dooven, 44. Police said the victim fell from a boat operated by Chalmers and was struck by a sharp turn.

Fournier and an unidentified teen - age girl tried to save the victim, a non-swimmer, but they were unable to hold him. The body was recovered about seven hours after the accident.

An unidentified swimmer also was hit by a boat in the same area last Saturday but no charges were pressed.

Management Shows Changed Attitude to Labor Unions

By DAVID ROWNTREE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The steel strike spotlights a changed attitude towards labor union bailked at having the relief man transferred. Now both ride the cab.

This is at once the type of issue and the type of management stand-pat attitude towards labor that for too many years have been the cause of the argument over "management rights" which, even more than wages, brought on the long 500 000 steel workers.

Some number of observers say it is a fairly good bet that the steel companies would have agreed to a wage increase of about 15 cents an hour above the old $3.10 average if the men had been willing to give in on the issue of restrictive work rules.

The Wall Street Journal, in an editorial comment that appears in part below, much of the present tough bargaining attitude in the business world. After a few years of temporizing it would be worth some pain to have this issue settled.

From labor's point of view, management's case is not a bad one at a bad time. Hundreds of thousands of men recently were unemployed and the prospect of walking off the job so soon is not very attractive one. And in some industries—steel, for one — productive capacity is so great that the firm taken up by temporary shutdowns can be used to even full supply and demand.

Phillips Looks For Vice Report By End of Year

TORONTO (CP) — A plan to remedy Toronto's vice ills was introduced Thursday amid contrary opinions about a small pay of hope.

Mayor Nathan Phillips said after the first meeting of his special committee that he expects to have by the end of the year a detailed report which will suggest ways of cleaning up the Toronto vice scene and prostitution.

But, said Police Chief James Chief, it is virtually impossible to wipe out prostitution and constant police pressures to the extent that it is completely exculpated.

"In some cases they're back before the pressure is lifted," the chief said. "It has not disappeared from city police really."

Chief Mackey was appearing before the Metropolitan Toronto Licencing Commission.

Mayor Phillips said his plan would be a solution to the vice problem but only a remedy. The committee consists of representatives of major religious faiths and public welfare boards, and is specifically with the dope addiction problem. Deputy Commissioner Frederick Herbert of Ontario said 67 men have brought off the drug through help given at a Mimico Reformatory clinic.

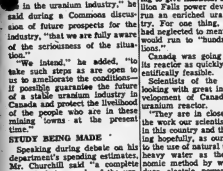
The operation for 2½ years, the clinic, which in Col. Basher's opinion has had "a far better record than we ever hoped for," has handled 324 men and has been extended from a five-day, six-week psycho-therapeutic course.

Queen's Footman Jilted by Girl Back Home

VICTORIA (CP)—A footman to the Queen, apparently jilted by a girl back home, said Thursday he doesn't believe his proposed marriage by a newspaper and British society girl is off.

"I am still engaged to the girl and I intend to marry her as soon as I get back to England," said Bill Tennant, 23-year-old footman at Buckingham Palace, who is part of the Royal entourage in Canada.

Pat Evans, 24, said in Whitburn, England Thursday: "I have decided to call it off."



Tennant met Miss Evans, daughter of a wealthy building contractor, here last year and they have been engaged seven months. Then Robson left for England to arrange for a marriage by his fiance when he returned.

Robson said Thursday:

"I haven't heard that there family will stand in the way. I have written the two letters in the last three days and she has written to me. She did not say the whole thing was off."

"Jest a Second"

"I never back up for an idiot."

"That's all right — I always do."

Fans Boo, Boot Alex Olmedo Out of Clay Tennis Tourney

CHICAGO (CP) — The great Alex Olmedo was booed and booted out of the United States clay courts tennis tournament Thursday for turning in a poor performance while losing to an unknown from South Africa.

Friends said the 23 - year - old hero of the U.S. Davis Cup team last year was under terrific strain from recent tournaments and predicted he would return to the tournament today to apologize.

Olmedo was bombed 6-2, 6-2, 6-0 in a singles match by Abe Segal, seeded third among foreign entries. Olmedo was top - seeded among domestic players.

Tournament officials defaulted Olmedo from doubles competition "in the interest of better tennis for the spectators and the players." They said a letter of complaint about his actions will be sent to the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association.

Alex said later in his hotel room, "I'm very sorry that everything happened that way. I'm going to come over there and talk to everybody."

Segal was disgusted after the match. "I don't like to play like that. I went out to play tennis. I don't know what was the matter with him."

Perry Jones, captain of the U.S. Davis Cup team, said Olmedo's sorry showing was the result of a long trip from Europe and from the tremendous public acclaim that has come to him since his rise to stardom last year.

Segal's victory earned him a meeting Saturday with defending champion Bernard (Tut) Bartzen of Dallas, Tex., in the semi-finals.

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

At long last it appears that Americans have been educated to the point where they figure that 226 pounds of muscle are not the only requirement needed to make a Canadian professional football team. Their gravy-train days are over.

This is the only conclusion that can be drawn after watching the by-plays in the Montreal Alouette camp. At last count, six Americans quietly left town without so much as a fare-thewell after knocking heads with a bundle of Canadians and Americans trying to make the Big Four club.

Only one of the departing Americans stopped off long enough to inform Alouette officials that he was on his way out of the city. His excuse was that he figured he didn't have a chance of making the team. The other five probably had the same idea.

AT HAMILTON TOO

Things were almost as rough with Hamilton Tiger-Cats. Three Americans who signed tryout contracts with the 1958 Grey Cup finalists didn't bother to show on the scene—they apparently were told the facts of life concerning Canadian pro football.

Canadian clubs still spend money as if it was going out of style. Annual budgets have increased to close to $600,000 from $40,000 10 or 15 years ago, and with this sort of money clubs are becoming choosy about the selection of imports.

MORE . . .

A youngster may be a big name in U.S. college football, but he has a lot to learn when he graduates to the pro game where regulations say that only 12 Americans may be used in any one game.

All-American this or that in the United States can be busts here. The big exodus from the Alouette camp recalled the classic remark of Mac Speedie made a few years ago when he jumped Cleveland Browns of the National Football League for Saskatchewan Roughriders, of the Western Conference.

NOT SO TOUGH

Speedie said at the time that "up in Canada the competition isn't so tough". He learned. The 35-year-old end, considered at the time as the best pass-catching end in the business, caught on with the Roughriders but he didn't do too much talking when he bumped into the West's two-game-a-week schedule. He probably was too tired to talk.

Jack Burke Jr., last year's winner, and Jerry Magee of Toronto were among a group who shot 66s. Magee had 33-33.

FRASER TO PLAY

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Australia's Neale Fraser, apparently recovered from a mild attack of appendicitis, will be sent against Antonio Palafox, the Mexican national champion, in the opening match of the American zone Davis Cup competition Saturday. Rodney Laver will meet Mexico's veteran Mario Llamas.

Rocky Marciano Opens Door To Possible Return to Ring

MONTREAL (CP) — Rocky Marciano—former world heavyweight champion—has opened the door on a possible return to the prize ring.

He said Thursday he would consider fighting again as a business proposition.

"I retired more than three years ago," Rocky said, "but I'm a businessman.

"I will listen to any business proposition about a fight."

Rocky spoke at a press reception to ballyhoo the July 29 Archie Moore-Yvon Durelle lightheavyweight title match.

Over the microphone he reiterated he won't return to the ring . . . and I haven't changed my mind."

But he told The Canadian Press later that he would consider a fight proposal as a business deal. He also indicated his most certainly be champion."

scheduled tour of Europe next month mightn't come about. He didn't say why.

There were several stipulations in a fight return. He would want several fights before meeting new heavyweight champion Ingemar Johansson and he'd like his income from any fights spaced over a period of time to lessen the tax bite.

"I weigh about 200 pounds now," he said. "I would want to weigh 190 to fight again."

Marciano declined to make any predictions on the Moore-Durelle fight. But he did have a word for Charlie Goldman, once his trainer and now handling the big New York prospect Durelle.

"Charlie is a marvelous guy," Rocky said. "... but I'd like Charlie to have a year with Durelle. Give him two years and Durelle would be just right, with in three years Durelle would as-

Bob Mathias, Olympic Great, Going to Try Acting Career

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Bob Mathias is going to try for an acting career after all.

Six months ago, the Olympic great gave up after waiting for Hollywood to use him as an actor. He took a job with a big construction firm and began a course that would train him in all phases of building.

Now he's co - starring with Keenan Wynn in a television series called The Troubleshooters. Oddly enough, it's about a pair of adventuring construction workers. But though the series is backed by United Artists and sold to a cigaret firm, Bob is coolly holding onto his non-acting job. He'll have from the firm.

Cool is the word for Mathias. That's the way he trained for and won the decathalon at London (1948) and Helsinki (1952). And that's how he has approached this business of being an actor.

"I'll either happen or it won't," he philosophizes.

Bob never had any great yen to be an actor. After graduating from Stanford, he drifted into ing with an idea for a TV series. FOOTBALL INTEREST

"But I had only six months before I was to go into the marine corps," he said. "That wasn't enough time to get a series going. So instead, we formed a company and made a feature, The Bob Mathias Story, with my wife and I playing ourselves."

The film was a creditable job, if no great moneymaker. Word got around that it and he brought Bob to the attention of his great pal, John Wayne. Now the athlete got out of the service in 1954, Wayne signed him to an exclusive contract.

But Wayne's company wasn't making movies for a year and a half, Bob played in only one film, China Doll. Most actors would find their life over under inactivity. Not Bob.

"Why should I have complained?" he said. "I was collecting a good salary, and I was allowed to do outside things."

At 28, Bob is still a fabulous figure of a man. He maintains his 215-pound Olympic weight, though he admitted "the pounds are on scene but there's not a brown a little in distribution." He gives the occasional exhibition—can high jump six feet—but his only regular exercise now is tennis.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Jim (Hitchener Record) Crewe columns in a pinch hit capacity for pair Len Taylor that the new Eastern Professional Hockey League hasn't even had its first taste of action "and already several experts are sounding its death knell. They could be right."

Writes Jim:

"The fate of the new pro circuit, made up at the moment of the Montreal Royals, Quebec Aces, Kingston Merchants, Hull-Ottawa Canadiens and Sudbury Wolves, could very well rest in the hands of two men.

One of them is Fete Palangio, the manager of the North Bay Trappers, who last week revealed that another pro club, which he declined to name, offered to send 10 players to North Bay and help pay any operational losses incurred by the club. In return, the unnamed club would want complete operation of the Trappers, leaving Palangio to manage the team.

"Taking a stab in the dark, we venture to say the unnamed club is the Springfield Indians of the American Hockey League and the guy behind the offer lay none other than the old hockey horse trader, Eddie Shore. After all, a person in Shore's position would simply have to get his hooks into another pro operation, where he can dabble in player swapping without getting his knuckles rapped by every amateur hockey organization in existence.

"Be that as it may, the decision reached by Palangio and the unnamed person who made the pitch to North Bay will likely hold the key to whether the new circuit flourishes or fizzles.

"With only five clubs in the league, places like Sudbury become pretty important cogs in the wheel. The league hasn't afford to lose even one club.

"But it's been sad ditmi more than one Sudbury hockey fan is a bit disgruntled over the present turn of events. Seems the folks from the north would rather see a good brand of amateur hockey than a "fourth rate" brand of the pro variety as one citizen reportedly put it.

"That sort of talk leads a fellow to believe the situation in Sudbury is anything but healthy. Add to that the fact that it's a long haul from there to Quebec City, and Sudbury's survival seems doubly doubtful. It's not exactly an ideal situation when four clubs have to make a long jump simply to play a single game against the Wolves.

"This means that the North Bay decision looms as an important one. With North Bay situated close to the Nickel City, it would make it a lot more feasible for pro clubs like Quebec and Eastern Ontario to make the jump to play the Wolves and Trappers.

"It boils down to this: If North Bay fails to enter, it's going to take a miracle for Sudbury to stay in the league. And if Sudbury folds, the rest of the circuit might as well pack up. Four-team hockey leagues just don't work, and if you don't believe it, ask anyone connected with the now-defunct Quebec Hockey League.

"There's another intriguing side to the coin. What if the person that made the offer to North Bay really is Shore? It means that Eddie has got himself right in the driver's seat. Whether the rest of the officials around the new circuit like it or not, the only smart move is to let North Bay into the league. Which means that a lot of pressure to accept the offer is no doubt being applied to Palangio.

"And if Palangio does enter, he'll have to take up the offer because he can't afford to go it alone.

"All of which leaves us willing to bet our pay cheque that Shore is grinning like a fat cat awaiting further developments."

Frick to Summon Conference To Detail Third Major Loop

NEW YORK (AP)—Ford Frick, commissioner of baseball, said Thursday he will call a press conference next week to give details of organized baseball's plans to help form a third league.

He said he was unable to give the date or site but did say it would be in New York and that Bill Shea, head of Mayor Robert Wagner's baseball committee, probably would be there.

Two groups are known to be interested in backing a New York team in the proposed circuits and the city has indicated a willingness to build a modern stadium on the site of the 1939 World's Fair in Flushing, Long Island.

Organized baseball has told the sponsors of the third league what various minor league cities would have to do to gain major league recognition. This included increasing the seating capacities at present parks or building new ones.

In addition to New York, Houston, the Fort Worth-Dallas area, St. Paul-Minneapolis, Montreal, Toronto, Denver, New Orleans, and Atlanta have been suggested as possible franchise holders. Shea has said the league will begin operations in 1961.

Indians Jolted to Second After Dropping Twin Bill; Antonelli Sparks Giants

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

The American League pennant race is one big if.

If Chicago White Sox can do no worse than split the four-game series they open in New York tonight, against Yankees, they might be able to do something with their reacquired lead.

If Cleveland Indians can rebound they might bounce back into first place in a four-game series at Boston opening tonight.

If Yankees can sweep White Sox, or at worse lose no more than one of the four games, then it might be all over.

White Sox moved back into first place while splitting a doubleheader at Boston Thursday, losing 5-4 after pushing their winning streak to five games with a 4-3 decision in the opener.

YANKS TAKE TWO

Indians were jolted to second a game behind after a month's stay on top when they dropped a doubleheader to Yankees, 7-5 in 10 innings and 3-0.

Kansas City Athletics defeated third-place Baltimore Orioles 4-3 and Washington's Senators swept three-game series from Detroit's sliding Tigers who have lost four in a row, 5-2.

While Sox beat Boston on Sherm Lollar's bases-loaded double in the seventh inning against loser Tom Brewer (7-6). Dick Donovan (6-5) won it.

In the second game Vic Wertz beat reliever Ray Moore (2-4) with a seventh inning single. Mike Fornieles gained his first victory in relief.

Bobby Shantz (4-3) pitched a five-hitter for his fourth straight victory, first complete game and his first shutout since 1952 in the nightcap for Yankees, home runs by Enos Slaughter and Hank Bauer backed the little lefthander.

MANTLE'S HOMER WINS

Fourth-place Athletics, 5½ games out of first place, gained a 5-5 tie on Vogt Bernd's 11th homer in the ninth inning of the first opener, then put it away on Mickey Mantle's two-run homer off loser Dick Hyde (5-5). Duke Maas (7-5) won it in relief.

Relief ace Ryne Duren of Yankees lost his shutout string at 32 innings—tops in the majors—when Indians scored twice in the eighth for a 5-4 lead.

Tom Sturdivant's four innings of hitless relief saved it for Allie Reynolds and Bud Daley (9-6) who gave up Oriole runs on homers by Walt Bond and Gus Triandos. Jerry Walker (7-4) lost it.

Senators, winning 13 of their last 28 games, beat Ray Narleski (4-3) in relief in the 10th with two runs in the second inning on Faye Throneberry's home run and a sacrifice fly by winning pitcher Bill Fischer (8-3).

Yesterday's Stars

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pitching — Johnny Antonelli, Giants, saved San Francisco's one-game lead with a three-hit, 1-0 victory over the Phillies, who had won the opener of the twinight doubleheader 6-4.

Hitting — Bill Skowron, Yankees, gained a last-chance tie with ninth-inning home run to open scored two runs in each game and had five hits in seven trips in doubleheader sweep, 7-5 in 10 innings and 3-0, that knocked Indians out of first place.

Nick Weslock Might Make It But He Has Foemen Aplenty

By DENNIS ORCHARD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — Nick Weslock, the canny old campaigner from Windsor, was hot in the running for his second successive Ontario amateur golf championship today. The early upstarts were on the outside looking in.

Weslock got through the first two rounds of match play Thursday, a bit shakily in the first one. But he could meet up with a giant-killer today.

Barring an upset in this morning's competition, Weslock was due to meet up this afternoon with Cyril Cunningham, an Englishman who came here in 1951 and threw the Toronto Golf Club galleries into consternation on Thursday on one of his few forays into Canadian tournaments.

BEATS CASTAFOR

The 39-year-old member of the host club disposed of Canadian amateur champion Bruce Castafor of Weston in the first round. Then he polished off Gordie Ball, also of Weston and Castafor's runner-up last year.

The 18 survivors of the 64 qualifiers went into another 36 holes today to trim their numbers by four for Saturday's final two rounds.

Weslock, 42, nudged out 17-year-old Bob Borthwick of Hamilton 2 and 1 and went on to 4 and 6 win over Islington's Rex MacLeod.

Gary Cowan of Kitchener, 20-year-old Canadian junior champion who blew in a two-par-par 71 in Wednesday's qualifying round and nearly lost his place on the Willingdon Cup team unless he wins this tournament, survived the first two rounds.

SUN-HARDENED COURSE

It was a different story for the only three qualifiers to beat par over the sun-hardened 6,506-yard course.

Pat Tremblay of Sudbury went out in the first round of match play 3 and 2 to Gordon Dunstall of Toronto. Bill Parkes of Woodstock, a hot prospect after equalling the competitive course record of 68, was two down to Bill Bell of Aurora in the second round. Another second-round victim was Dawn Lee of Hamilton, a 5-and-4 victim to Jim Currie of London.

Another highly rated shotmaker to bite the dust was Eric Hanson of Teronto, a Willingdon Cupper last year and finalist in both the Canadian and Ontario amateurs. He was knocked out 3 and 2 in the first round by Drew Harvie of the Toronto club.

So hard was Weslock pressed by young Borthwick that he was four under par when the match ended on the 17th hole.

That kid looks to me like the best prospect we've got on the way up," said Weslock.

Leafs Rolling At Good Clip, Whip Red Wings

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Although they've been so far down in the standings that they haven't attracted much notice, Toronto Maple Leafs have been rolling along at a good clip in International League play.

They knocked off Rochester Red Wings 5-4 Thursday night to take their series with the Wings 2-1 and make their record since June 21, 30 victories and only nine defeats.

The Leafs are sixth, seven games behind the league-leading Buffalo Bisons, who defeated Montreal Royals 7-6 in 11 innings.

Miami Marlins are four games behind the Bisons with a 1-0 victory over Richmond Virginians as Dick Brodowski limited Johnny Lipon to a tie with the seventh-place Columbus Jets on a 5-3 victory.

Toronto pitcher Pat Scantlebury has won three straight since June 21, and is 7-1 after winning Thursday night. Scantlebury has appeared in 23 of the Leafs' last 29 games, mostly as a reliever.

SCORES WINNER

He only had to face one man in 1 1-3 innings for his seventh victory. He relieved Reno Negray in the seventh after the Wings had scored twice to go ahead 4-3. He got the final out of the seventh and the middle one in the bottom of the ninth on Hec Rodriguez's one-out single.

Joe Altobelli's 11th homer, Don Wilson's 13th and Jim Thompson's ninth accounted for three Toronto runs off Bob Keegan, who was relieved by loser Joe McClain (3-8) in the ninth. Geordy Wilson broke Negray's no-hit bid with two out in the seventh with a two-run homer. Luke Easter hit a pinch homer for Rochester in the ninth.

Don Landrum's fourth hit, a single, drove in the winning Buffalo run against loser Ed Rakow (9-8) to cap a three-run 11th inning rally. Montreal had scored twice in the top of the inning. Nino Pichetti gave action for both clubs with Ken Lehman (5-6) getting the victory, Clyde Parrilla, Orlando Cepeda and Jim Beauchamp homered for Montreal and Harry Hanebrink for the Bisons.

MOFORD HOT

Herb Moford pitched a two-hit shutout for Miami, giving an infield slugfest to Mike Baxes in the fourth and a pinchhit double to Bob Martyn in the ninth that scored the only run on Baxes' homerun of the first base. Zack Monroe (4-6) lost, giving only four hits.

Home runs by Jesse Gonder, Yoyo Davalillo and Tony Gonzales in the last two innings gave the Sugar Kings their victory over Lynn Lovegrath (9-11) of Columbus. Luis Arroyo squared his record at 4-4 in relief.

LONG TEACHERS

MONTREAL (CP) — Thirty-six retiring teachers with a total of more than 1,000 years' service in the profession were honored at a dinner tendered by the Greater Montreal Protestant school board.

Trenton Rally Defeats Cobourg, Kills Merchants' Pennant Hopes

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Trenton Garretts wound up their Belleville and District softball league schedule last night by scoring a pair of ninth-inning runs to trade Cobourg 8-7, killing all Merchants' hopes for the league pennant.

Charlie Drake's hustling young squad trailed all the way in last night's close contest after Cobourg took a 3-0 lead in the third frame. They ended the season with a record of four wins and 14 losses by plating two in the bottom of the ninth with none out.

Roger Drake ignited the winning rally with a double down the right field line. Billy Mitts came through with another of the same to tie the score and he raced on to third on a bad throw from the outfield. LeRoy Wannamaker chased the deciding run across the plate as he grounded to first with the speedy Mitts beating the throw to the plate.

Trenton finished in fourth place and will meet the top club, either the Bobcats or Foley Kane, in the first round of the playoffs. Last night's win was their first over Cobourg this season.

Howie Cole, mainstay of the Trentons pitching staff, came up with his fourth victory of the season against two setbacks, in going the route. He gave up ten hits and struck out eight. He experienced trouble in finding the plate at times, walking seven times, but came through in the clutch.

A surprise starter for Cobourg was regular catcher Chub McIvor. He took the loss while pitching to all but the last batter of the game, giving up 13 Trenton hits. McIvor whiffed two while passing an equal number. Rolly Campbell pitched to Wannamaker in the ninth.

O'Brien, McCahan and Harden collected singles while Trenton doubled twice for Cobourg's first three runs, Hart and O'Brien had hits and Church drove in a run with a fielder's choice to make it 4-0. Trenton cut the margin in half on back to back doubles by LeRoy Wannamaker and Howie Cole plus a brace of errors.

Harsden, bidding for the loop batting title, slammed a bases-empty homer for Cobourg in the fourth. In the seventh Trenton threw to within one run on singles by Alexander and LeRoy Wannamaker sandwiched around Drake's two-bagger.

Turpin's double, a free pass and a costly two-out error restored Cobourg's three-run lead in the top of the eighth. Once again the never-say die Garretts struck for a pair on Don Cole's base hit and Ron Smith's circuit blast with two men out. Then came the winner in the ninth.

Doug Alexander collected three singles to spark the Trenton hitters. Roger Drake had a brace of doubles. LeRoy Wannamaker a double and single and Ron Smith a home run. Billy Mitts and Howie Cole also had doubles. Ralph Dotzeno and Doonie Cole singles.

Clarke Harsden lifted his average for Cobourg with a home run and two singles. Brian Hart and Leo O'Brien had two hits apiece while Dick Turpin doubled. Burke Clarey and Rex McGahan rounded out the attack with one-baggers.

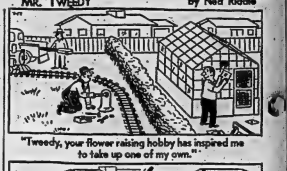
Judge Jumps As Evidence Blows Its Top

DETROIT (AP)—The judge jumped from his chair and several policemen marched for their guns when a sharp report shattered the stillness of recorder's court Wednesday.



Embarrassed grins replaced looks of alarm when a geyser of foam shooting from an open beer bottle made clear what had happened.

Pressure had popped the cork on evidence used in convicting a man accused of buying beer for a minor. Judge John P. Scallen gave John Chemeras, 47, 30 days and ordered the evidence removed.

All Have a Pride of Race

By ROY L. SMITH

Very few of us are able to determine what happens to us, but any of us can decide how we are going to let it affect us. The aged Naomi, of the book of Ruth, had been an unfortunate woman almost from the first day of her married life. On at least two occasions she had been under the necessity of breaking up her home, and moving to another land, in the hope of earning a living. She had been the mother of two sons, but both of them had married outside their own race and nationality, in time she was left a widow, without support, and again in time her two sons had died, leaving her responsible for two daughters-in-law. In her old age she was without children or descendants.

In such a circumstance help and comfort came to her from an unexpected source. One of her daughters-in-law, a girl of alien parentage, threw in her lot with that of the aged woman, and followed her back to the land of her birth where she expected to die. And when Naomi died, Ruth was to be left alone, an alien and friendless. It is one of the most beautiful stories of self-forgetfulness in all of literature.

SIGNIFICANT MESSAGE

The real message of the book of Ruth is an extremely significant one, and directly applicable to this age of ours, for it deals with one of the most difficult problems with which this modern world is confronted, and American families find themselves compelled to deal.

The book urges that stirs within all men is quite indifferent to racial, historical, and ideological lines. Hebrew youth, living in the Babylonian exile with their parents, fell in love with Babylonian young people with the inevitable result that there were many mixed marriages. Some of the stern and convicted Jews, intent on preserving the traditions of their fathers, looked with great disfavor on any crossing of the lines. And Nehemiah, to whom the nation owed an enormous debt, even demanded that the alien families should be broken up, the wives dismissed, and the children disowned.

The Uniform Sunday School Lesson for July 19: "Blessing For An Alien", Book of Ruth.

The fires of nationalism burned high, and the crisis was a severe one. The agonies that prevailed in hundreds of homes can be easily imagined. And in the midst of the uproar some one told the story of Ruth, the Moabitess, who became a forebear of David. The moral of the story is perfectly plain. If her marriage could produce the greatest hero the nation ever knew, who could say that a later mixed marriage might not produce another David.

NOT ONE-SIDED

There is something very deep, and very persistent, about the matter of race and color. The white race is apt to assume a superiority complex in the matter, and miss the point entirely. Some of us have thought that to marry into a white family another person might aspire. But other men have a different opinion.

This writer carries in vivid memory an evening spent in the home of a cultured and highly educated family in Bombay, India. In the course of the visit, the mother of the household brought out the pictures of her son and her daughter, both of whom had been educated in a great U.S. university.

"It has been the great sorrow of our lives", the mother said, with infinite sadness in her voice, "that both our son and our daughter married Americans young people. They are splendid people ,and we honor them, but they are white! Why could they not have married inside the ranks of their own people?"

There is a pride of race that is entirely legitimate and honorable, and God seems to have planted it inside us. But at the same time He planted it in us, He also planted it in other people, some of whom may be quite different from us.

THAT FOREIGN WOMAN

In all probability Ruth went through the sad hours that people of her Moabite ancestry. There were those, no doubt, who referred to her somewhat contemptuously, as "that foreign woman". And there were times when she was extremely lonely, no doubt. But in the end she was vindicated. But before "the end", she would have welcomed a bit of friendliness from the neighbor women.

It happens many times that friendliness, one o fthe rarest of virtues, is both good American-ism and good religion.

NEW LAW IN FORCES

LONDON (Reuters) — A new law aimed at driving prostitutes off the streets of Britain went into force Thursday on receiving royal assent. The act provides for tougher penalties — including imprisonment — for streetwalkers, longer terms of imprisonment for those convicted of living on immoral earnings, and heavier fines for cafe proprietors who allow prostitutes to gather on their premises.

Six Children Burned To Death In Their Sleep

N.S. Parents and Three Other Children Escape

HAVRE BOUCHER, NS (CP) — Six children were burned to death in their sleep as fire raged through a two-storey frame building in this small community, about 30 miles east of Antigonish, N.S.

The children's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Terrence Currie and three other children, escaped. One child was reported in serious condition at hospital in Antigonish.

Police have identified the victims are Marie, 10, Margaret, 9, Rose, 8, Carina, 6, David, 5, and Vincent, 2.

Old Charles, sleeping with the six victims in second-storey bedrooms, escaped with 13-year-old Terrence Jr. escaped from a downstairs bedroom. Mrs. Currie rescued Allen, 4, from a downstairs room.

The fire broke out around 5.45 a.m. and quickly spread through the home.

St. Martha's Hospital officials at Antigonish said Mr. and Mrs. Currie had been admitted with severe burns, while five-year-old Charles was in serious condition.

Mr. Currie is an employee with Imperial Oil Limited at Dartmouth, N.S.

RESCUE BY NEIGHBOR

Firemen this morning were still trying to find the bodies of the six children.

Charles had been sleeping with the six victims in the upstairs bedroom. He was grabbed by neighbors when he tumbled down a flaming stairway.

The father was driven back in attempts to climb the stairs to reach the others.

Terrence, Jr., believed the first to notice the fire, awoke his parents and ran to neighbors for help.

The cause of the fire was not known immediately.

WEST MINISTERS HOPING TO HEAL RIFT IN RANKS

Unity Seen Essential To Geneva Progress

GENEVA (AP) — The Western foreign ministers meet today in an effort to unity their ranks against heavy Soviet pressure to exact a stiff price from the West for calling off the Berlin crisis.

Western leaders said Soviet foreign minister Andrei Gromyko is trying to exploit Western differences and that the need for unity is growing more urgent daily.

Some experts believe that, until the West can present a united, front in the Big Four foreign ministers conferences, it has little prospect of achieving any of its objectives in the current phase of negotiations on Berlin.

The issue dividing Britain and the United States from France and West Germany is what kind of negotiations should be proposed to Gromyko on a German peace settlement during the period of a Berlin truce agreement.

ARRANGE STRATEGY TALKS

State Secretary Christian A. Herter U of the U.S., Selwyn Lloyd of Britain, Maurice Couve de Murville of France and West Germany's Heinrich von Brentano arranged to hold strategy talks during the weekend and lull in their sessions with Gromyko.

Before them was the record of a secret three-hour luncheon talk they had with the Soviet foreign minister Friday — a record that Herter was reported to have found discouraging because it produced no progress toward narrowing East-West differences.

The Western ministers have consulted with Gromyko on more interested in winning East-German equality with West Germany — and in forcing a Western agreement to hand over the unification problem to the Germans themselves — than he is in resolving the Berlin dispute.

Western leaders have agreed that some kind of negotiations on a German settlement would be necessary once the Berlin issue is shelved. But they have been unable to agree in what form it should be.

Iron Railing Pierces Chest

SARNIA (CP) — One man was killed today and another seriously injured when their pickup truck crashed through a bridge guard rail and landed in a creek at Courtright, about 12 miles south of here.

The dead man was identified as Gerald Germain, 44, of Sarnia. His body was found floating in the creek, his chest pierced by a piece of iron railing. Police said the driver of the pickup truck, driver, Adrian Tetreault, 33, of Sarnia was reported in critical condition in the hospital. Nature of his injuries was not determined.

Police said the truck was travelling south on Highway 401, when it veered from the right guard rail on the bridge before landing on its roof in the creek below.

Man Drowns While Others Watch, Argue

TOKYO (Reuters)—A man was swept out to sea today while five youths stood on the shore arguing over how much to charge for rescuing him.

Police said a friend of the drowning man offered the youths 1,000 yen ($14) but they refused, saying they wanted 10,000 yen.

While the haggling went on, Haruo Goto, 23, disappeared in the sea near Enoshima south of Tokyo.

CBC Notifies 107 Employees Of Layoffs

TORONTO (CP) — The CBC notified 107 Toronto television employees Friday they will be laid off within the two-week period following Aug. 1.

The employees affected are announcers, painters, stage-hands and other technical workers. The CBC has a total staff in Toronto of roughly 3,300.

A CBC spokesman said the layoffs are necessitated by improved techniques, the development of production "short-cuts" and an increasing backlog of sets.

William Dulmage, assistant director of information, said the layoffs were not made in response to recent complaints in Parliament about CBC spending.

He said they were made solely "reluctantly" and many of the employees will be recalled in the winter.

CBC officials discussed the possibility of the layoffs a year ago, he said.

In Montreal, a CBC spokesman said "approximately 45" stage workers will be laid off effective July 31. He said perhaps 10 more—most of them under contract—would be laid off later.

Canada's Atomic Energy Program Is Termed 'Pretty Small Effort'

WASHINGTON (CP)—A former member of the United States Atomic Energy Commission feels Canada's atomic energy program "is a pretty small effort."

"I think they could have done a better job," said Dr. Willard Libby in testimony before the senate congressional committee on atomic energy.

Dr. Libby resigned recently as commission member. President Eisenhower has nominated Canadian-born John Williams, the commission's research director, to succeed him.

Libby said in his testimony:

"The situation is roughly this. They (the Canadians) are trying to develop a heavy water moderated natural uranium type of power reactor. They are really in the early stages of that and just now talking about building a prototype and so on.

"It is a pretty small effort, frankly. I think it is a good quality effort but it is a pretty small effort. We are joining with them and trying to co-operate in the heavy water work."

Dr. Libby's testimony, included in a committee's report of hearings held last month, followed criticism of Canada's military atomic effort by committee member Senator Henry Dworshak, Idaho Republican.

The committee was studying seven U.S. nuclear pacts with Canada and other North Atlantic

WASHINGTON (CP) — Six weeks . . .

That's the time qualified federal authorities give the United States before the costly country-wide steel strike starts to cripple a fast - growing economy that had been spelling to boom-like proportions.

In six weeks, they say, the U.S. will have chewed up a big chunk of the steel stockpiled when the labor storm threatened. In six weeks — if the strike lasts that long — a crisis in supply may begin.

Out of this crisis, they figure, will grow a new threat — that of enlarged inflation. In the cry for steel amid a temporary scarcity, prices were bound to rise.

Among some federal economists, that appears to be the biggest fear — the inflationary push that appears inevitable.

It appeared almost inevitable on the basis of the historical trend — that management would pass any prospective wage boost to steel consumers in the United States, Canada and elsewhere.

Steel is a ribbon that ties all industry together. It is the heart of industry. To come extent the price of steel sets the price of automobiles, bridges, ships, locomotives and a thousand other steel products.

The wage concessions won by steel workers will be eyed by other unions, both in the U.S. and Canada. In some ways, the pattern of prices and wages set in steel is woven through the fabric of the entire economy.

U.S. revenue from steel sales ran to some $12,000,000,000 a year, roughly about one - third of the entire value of Canada's annual

Member Questions Right Margaret Aitken to Hold Seat

OTTAWA (CP) — Will she or won't she?

The long-winded Old Lady on the Hill, Parliament, worked overtime Friday night — hoping to finish her work tonight and start a vacation. The Commons hastened through estimates of the departments of mines, fisheries, post office and

Government and opposition arrangers were busy in the back rooms trying to reach some sort of truce agreement to finish the work still before the Commons and Senate and head for home.

The betting was that "she'll do."

The session opened January 15. Today was its 127th day of work and talk.

But near its port - midnight closing Friday night, the Commons was mined with a possible explosive by Alexis Caron (C-Huil), who raised questions of propriety about certain printing contracts let through State Secretary Courtemanche's department.

Mr. Caron asked Mr. Courtemanche to institute an inquiry into the status of Blackburn Macken (PC-York-Humber) who he said is a director of a company holding some $11,000 worth of government printing contracts.

He drew attention to legal requirements that disqualify any person who holds contracts with the government from being a Commons member.

He said shareholders of a company are exempted from this legal position, but that the position of a director of a company with government contracts is not clear.

An inquiry should be held, he said, to determine whether Miss Aiken is qualified to hold her seat. If the law were found to be unclear on this point, the government should consider amending it.

Miss Aitken was not present.

Mr. Caron said she is a director of Monitor Publishing Company of Montreal.

PM ANNOUNCES PLANS FOR WAR SUPPLIES AGENCY

Would Act in Initial Period of A-War

OTTAWA (CP) — Plans for a powerful, wide - ranging war supplies agency, capable of preserving "some degree of governmental and economic organization and continuity throughout the initial period of a nuclear war," were announced Friday night by Prime Minister Diefenbaker.

"This agency would have full responsibility and authority for all aspects of control over the production, distribution and pricing of both civil and military supplies and has provision on the farms and the watching and landing of fish, during the early part of a nuclear war at least," he told a sober Commons.

EMERGENCY HQ

Facilities now were ready for a central core of the federal government to carry on outside Ottawa under nuclear war conditions, even with serious radioactive fallout in the Ottawa area, he said.

But, he declared—in a statement that Opposition Leader Pearson supported strongly:

"I want to emphasize that the taking of steps because of action is in no way to be construed as evidence of any increase in international tension or added fears in recent months, but simply as a course of action which prudence and caution must be exercised by those with responsibilities."

It was wise and well that such precautions be taken, Mr. Pearson said, but the prime minister was well advised to point out that they do not mean any increase in tension. One could hope, at least, that the threat of war might recede.

PROVINCES CONSULTED

Mr. Diefenbaker made his announcements during brief study of the spending estimates for the Privy Council. He revealed that the previous Liberal government had taken similar preliminary steps and those he was announcing were an extension. The problem had been discussed with the provinces earlier this year.

He also referred to action by decentralize civil defence—steps becoming effective Sept. 1—with federal civil defence responsibilities, now concentrated in the national civil defence department, being spread over the national defence and health departments, the RCMP and other agencies.

In the last three days the Liberals had objected to giving the defence production department the right of seizing any war supplies agency, working with the departments of agriculture and fisheries.

The agency's powers would include the right to call conscripted the Wartime Prices and Trade Board and the munitions and supply department of the Second World War, Mr. Diefenbaker explained.

CALL ON VOLUNTEERS

The agency would require considerable local and regional organization. It would need volunteer help to be ready for an emergency call in due course, therefore, we shall have to call upon the services of many competent executives, both from private and public life, to help man elements to assume re-

Queen Will Leave B.C. for Arctic With Sunburn and Bright Memories

VICTORIA (CP) — Queen Elizabeth leaves British Columbia today with a slight sunburn, bright memories of a sometimes hectic, sometimes relaxing five-day visit.

From Victoria, she flies with her husband to Prince George, 500 miles northeast, then on to Whitehorse in the Yukon for the first visit by a reigning monarch.

She and Prince Philip went through a program of formalities in this B.C. capital Friday visiting a military hospital, presenting colors to two army units and attending a state luncheon and garden party.

It was the last of three hectic days that started with a reception and garden in the Vancouver area Wednesday. Earlier, the royal couple had whistle-stopped their way by train through the Fraser Valley, spending midway for a three-day rest in a mountain hideaway.

Wherever she went Friday, a salmon-pink sunburn showed plainly when she wore a dress more open at the neck than the one she wore Thursday when she slipped into a khaki overcoat from Nanaimo to Victoria.

But the clearly-etched sunburn caused any discomfort, the Queen didn't show it as she spent eight hours in public and several more at a dipglay in the evening.

At Beacon Hill Park the Queen presented colors to the

Urrutia Quits, Dortioos Named As New Head

Crisis Leaves Castro With Undisputed Power

HAVANA (AP) — Fidel Castro today forced out President Manuel Urrutia and touched off a mounting clamor to withdraw his own resignation as prime minister.

The 32-year-old Castro Friday began his campaign to get rid of the man he chose personally by announcing his own resignation. Osvaldo Dortioos, elected Cuba's new president, made a public appeal to Castro to stay in the government.

The cabinet pledged support to him and refused to accept his resignation.

Castro emerged triumphant in a show of strength that proved him Cuba's undisputed power. Whether he remained as prime minister clearly was his own choice.

FOUR HOURS ON TV

After a four-hour television speech accusing Urrutia of undermining the revolutionary regime, Castro was asked by American correspondents whether he would withdraw his resignation.

"I have not given that a thought at this moment," he replied.

Revolutionary organ of Castro's 26th of July movement, said Dortioos would confer with the prime minister at 10 a.m. and a special cabinet meeting had been called for 5 p.m.

The undercover feud between the premier and Urrutia, Castro's handpicked president, came to head in a fight over communism.

Feeling ran high against the deposed president and he appealed for "the most commanding" chief of the armed forces, for protection.

URRUTIA USED RUSE

Urrutia remained in the presidential palace for nearly three hours after resigning and then slipped out by using a ruse to throw off the angry crowd milling outside.

While two cars sped out of opposite palace gates to draw away the crowd, Urrutia and his family slipped into a limousine and raced through the main entrance. With him were his wife and three children, including one-year-old Libertad, who is Castro's godchild.

Castro told his TV audience Urrutia had tried to betray the revolutionary regime by posing as the champion of anti-communism.

His voice quivering, Castro said:

"I have often said I am not a Communist and neither is the revolutionary movement. Communist, but we do not have to say we are anti-communist just to fawn on foreign powers."

Children Drown In Farm Dugout

TOLSTOI, Man. (CP)—Edward Mychaiewicz, 9, and his seven-year-old sister Theresa were drowned Thursday in a farm dugout near this community, 60 miles north of Winnipeg.

The victims apparently were playing near the dugout when they fell in, police said.

Woman Unable To Tell Anything About Land Sale

TORONTO (CP) — A woman told the York Township inquiry Friday she knows nothing of a land transaction in her name and the amounts for which the land was later sold to other parties.

Mrs. Isabel Brisbois was testifying at the inquiry into the township land sales and financial deals in an attempt to establish the prices paid for the land bought from the township.

She said she was not able to verify conveyances which bore her signature. She said her father, builder Norman C. McEachren, had transacted the business in her name and she had no financial interest in the matter.

"Who can give us the information we want?" Judge Joseph Sweet asked.

"I would think my father and the auditor could," she replied.

"Your father is seriously ill?" the judge asked.

"Yes, he's the first casualty of this," she said, referring to the inquiry.

Township clerk solicitor Howard A. Hall testified that in April, 1955, council approved construction of a 10-storey apartment building on a 160-foot by 110-foot site but two months later a building permit was issued for a 12-storey structure.

He said he was quite sure there had been no amending of the resolution by council to allow the extra two storeys. The finished building had 117 suites instead of 100, he said.

Waitress Kills Young Golf Pro Who Spurned Her

WATERTOWN N.Y. (AP) — A shapely, dark-haired waitress admitted Friday night, police reported, that she shot and killed the young golf pro she loved. The shooting had an early Friday at the St. Lawrence University campus.

The 23-year-old woman, Miss Theresa de Francisco of Rochester, N.Y., the mother of one child not related to her love, District Attorney Charles D. Hetherington of Jefferson County said.

Bowers said she would be charged with first-degree murder.

The body of Richard Smith, 27, was found hanging from his car which had skidded to a stop on a road on the university campus.

UNIVERSITY GOLF COACH

Smith was golf coach at the university and a former Jefferson county club. He was divorced.

About fifty years after the birth of Christ, Pliny, the elder, warned of the danger of obtaining medicines from unreliable sources or people whose only interest in their sale was the profit to be made. There have always been some thoughtless or money-hungry people attempting to sell medicine no knowledge of the problems involved. The simplest medicine remedies, even though they quires proper cautions against possible dangerous misuse. We pharmacists have that knowledge to protect you.

Read Sidney Harris Who Pokes Holes in Our Cozy Conventions

Anything goes in a new feature to be written by Sydney Harris, beginning next Monday. Harris, a dry-wit expert on practically everything, will have a free hand in writing his "Sidney Harris" observations five days a week.

A lot of things please Harris, and still more things bother him, and his witty remarks will provoke many a stimulating conversation among readers of this newspaper.

A man who loves to poke holes in cozy conventions, Harris asks: "If the early bird gets the worm, what advice are we to give the worm?"

He tells smug parents: "It really doesn't matter what you teach a child — he's going to grow up believing what he sees, not what he hears."

Young people are warned that "One of the basic tenets of youth (and often one of the last to crumble) is the belief that you can adopt a set of mannerisms and thus achieve a character."

PERSONAL PREJUDICES

Among his "purely personal prejudices" "That every adulture contains the seeds of its own decay can be seen in the simple fact that the most pre-Christmas 'office party' is about as far from the spirit of Jesus' birthday as can be imagined."

Harris is no mealy-mouthed reformer but demands, from people who uphold religion, sincerity above all. "I have much more respect for an atheist who lives by the Golden Rule than for a believer who invokes the religious creeds but is convenient or practical to do so. All the parables can be saved, but their parables can be saved more easily than hypocrites."

Anything which is bound to make Harris bristle: "A solemn man is one who is protecting his growth from attack — activity and imagination rarely go together."

Never one to accept a proverb without question, he points out that various ones speak louder than words — often to the extent of reversing the basic idea that warn you not to take such action."

You won't agree with everything Sydney Harris says in "Strictly Personal" but you'll always find him exciting and interesting.

PM ANNOUNCES

sponsibilities on short notice should arise.

A study of the probable economic problems resulting from any nuclear attack indicated that the problem of providing the essentials would be most acute for civilians and the military would be "relatively complicated," the prime minister said.

"Decisions would have to be taken promptly and any doubt as to where authority lay could result in serious delay and confusion."

Emergency communications were established as soon would be, to keep the emergency government headquarters operable if regular facilities were broken.

Also being planned were emergency standards of price from which various federal organizations could work. Committees were being opened in Halifax, Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver. Five more—providing a headquarters for each province—would be opened as soon as possible.

Around Town With Al

TRENTON — I was standing on the corner of Dundas Street West and King Street, in front of Mark Tripp's Cigar Store, and I couldn't help but admire the ease in which the traffic flows through the town now, in comparison to what it did a year ago.

I stood there from about 4.15 p.m. to 4.45 p.m. and all the time I was at this intersection a policeman was also there helping pedestrians across the busy highway as well as to hold up the cars and the main thoroughfare to allow other motorists to come onto the street off King Street and Dundas Street without "piling up" while waiting a chance to get into the main flow of traffic.

I could look west along the street and see the same policeman on the corner of Division and Dundas Street in front of the same street where it meets Front Street another policeman stood. Every other two policemen were operating the traffic lights manually by hand while moving at a brisk pace and with little trouble or inconvenience to the motorists or the pedestrians.

The main portion of credit for the enjoyable traffic situation of course must go to the Traffic Committee of council but it is they who iron out any wrinkles and make the necessary recommendations to council.

And, I feel, credit must also be given to the town policemen who enforce the rulings after the town council has approved them.

But of all the recommendations made by the committee perhaps the most helpful to traffic was the restriction of parking on the north side of Dundas Street west between the hours of 4 p.m. and 6 p.m. This has been rigidly enforced by the police and is said to be the most effective way of keeping traffic moving along the busy street because it leaves a three - way traffic lane and allows more flexibility for the lines of vehicles during the rush hours.

WANT BAN LIFTED

But now the Retail Merchant Association wishes to change all this and have presented a petition, signed by many of them to town council asking that this parking ban be lifted to allow parking on the north side of the street. They claimed in their petition that the 401 highway has taken most of the heavy traffic away from the main street of Trenton, especially the heavy trucks.

Council they do not visualize, nor do they care to, the traffic congestion the lifting of this ban would cause. Apart from parking on the main street and see that one out of every five vehicles which pass is a large truck and with cars parked on both sides of the street and another truck to park in an empty parking space, the two narrow lines of traffic would have no chance to move around it and would come to a standstill, and it only takes a few seconds to pile it up for blocks.

The town council headed the petition to the traffic committee and these men held a special meeting recently. At this meeting they decided to recommend that the parking ban be changed from its present time to 4.30 p.m. to 6 p.m. and not to lift it entirely.

The 30 minute time concession want to take off will make very little difference as far as traffic is concerned but it will make some difference to the town's bank account. At this meeting a recommendation is approved by the council every sign which is now in every parking meter post on the main street will have to be removed and will probably cost the town more dollars than the merchants will get in extra business.

Only Complaint Philippines Are Too Hospitable

MOUNT MAKILING, Philippines (AP) — The Canadian delegation to the 10th World Scout Jamboree has one complaint about the Philippine hosts—"they spoil you."

This flattering opinion was expressed as the 91-member delegation, including 75 scouts and their leaders, hunched Friday on hot soup, Philippine hot buns and pineapples.

The Canadians were billeted for two days in the homes of families in Manila and its suburbs before coming here by special train and trucks Thursday.

All provinces except Prince Edward Island and Newfoundland are represented here and the boys range in age between 15 and 18.

William Hellyar of St. Thomas, Ont., one of the leaders, spoke for the group when he explained:

"You see, most of these boys never lived in homes with servants, and then our Philippine hosts assigned to every three of us a male servant or attendant who took care of our every need. It spoiled us.

POPULAR UNIT

The Canadians were easily one of the most popular foreign contingents with their colorful and resplendent uniforms of green shirt and cape, blue shorts and socks and black shoes.

Scouter W. Jones, of Brantford, the group's assistant public relations officer, said they experienced tropical heat for the first time when their plane touched down at Okinawa from Tokyo.

"We don't mind that too much, but we sure hate wearing our heavy shirts in this weather," he said.

Canada is one of 31 countries participating in the jamboree, the first to be held in Asia.

ONTARIO TOPS INCOME — Ontario has taken over from British Columbia as the province with the highest personal income.

Income in B.C. — averaged among every man, woman and child—fell to $1,833 last year from $1,881 in 1957. In Ontario the figure rose to $1,936 from $1,858 the year previous.

Pacific Salmon May Be Placed In Great Lakes

OTTAWA (CP)—Pacific salmon should be introduced to the upper Great Lakes to replenish dwindling fish stocks, Percy Noble (PC—Grey North) suggested Friday night.

Sea-run salmon have been deposited in Ontario's Port Credit River although they appear now to have disappeared from Lake Ontario, he said during fisheries debate in the Commons.

Georgian Bay and Lake Huron probably offered better conditions with greater depths and purer water. Transplanting experience with the Pacific salmon in New Zealand and Chile indicated it was possible.

Mr. Noble said an experimental introduction of salmon should be carried out at the earliest possible date because it seemed to have been proved that they could live with both the smelt and the sea lamprey — two scourges of fish species in the lakes.

Gives Reason For Less Thefts At Post Office

OTTAWA (CP) — Postmaster-General William Hamilton told the Commons Friday night that complaints of one kind or another about mail service declined by some 10,000 last year.

Post office critic Aurilus Denis (L — Montreal St. Denis) promptly dispatched about half that many in Mr. Hamilton's direction in a rollicking speech that at times had even the postmaster-general laughing himself.

Mr. Denis said no wonder Mr. Hamilton could report not as much money stolen from the mails as previously — people haven't as much to send through the mails under a Progressive Conservative government.

He also criticized the rate at which the post office issues new stamps.

William Benidickson (L—Kenora Rainy River) asked whether Mr. Hamilton was going to continue his practice of giving decorated Progressive Conservative candidates advance notice of local developments for announcement.

John Smith (PC—Lincoln) said he appears mail carriers lack a lightweight summer uniform, an omission that should be rectified. Police and firemen had them.

Highest Bid Does Not Always Get Cheese

STRATFORD (CP)—A buyer at the Western Ontario Cheese Exchange said Friday that cheese is not always sold to the highest bidder as required by Ontario Cheese Producers' Marketing Board regulations.

Peter Frensch, buyer for Wayte Packing Company Limited, Stratford, said on three of four previous boards his bid has been rejected although it was the highest.

Mr. Frensch suggested cheese is destined to certain buyers before it is put on the exchange to be sold.

Other buyers said that during the years certain sale practices have been built up.

"If I bid the highest can I not have the cheese?" Mr. Frensch asked. "That is up to the salesmen," replied Alex Ellis, board chairman.

Mr. Frensch bid 38 cents a pound for cheese, the highest bid on the exchange Friday. After cheese buyers had entered their bids—40 lower—Mr. Frensch said he did again on another selection, this time at 37¼ cents.

He said he bought one selection with his 38-cent bid. When it came to the second bid, he said he was told it was already shipped from the factory to a buyer.

"If that cheese was already sold, it should not have been on the board," said Mr. Frensch. "And if it was sold before, then it's illegal according to this rule," he added, holding up a copy of the cheese exchange manual.

At this point, the meeting adjourned to be continued July 31. Sold in other bidding Friday were 546 lots of special cheese, 1,850 lots of colored cheese, and 546 of white.

WINS COURT APPROVAL

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Thirteen-year-old singer Dodie Stevens Thursday won court approval of her new five-year contract with Dot Records Incorporated. Judge Ray P. Brockman ordered the young singer, whose Pink Shoe Laces is a current juke box favorite, to purchase a $100 savings bond monthly from her $1,500 monthly minimum. The contract also contains provisions for royalties.

Liver Disease Affects 2 Girls At Whytehaven

BOWMANVILLE (CP) — More than 100 children and eight adults were inoculated Friday against infectious hepatitis, a liver disease, at Mrs. Bertha (Mom) Whyte's home for children here.

The disease has affected two girls at Whytehaven Mission and at least three other children are suffering from mild attacks of stomach influenza.

Linda Marsh, 11, was taken to a Toronto isolation hospital Monday with hepatitis and Annette Gibbs, 8, recovered from the illness after 10 days in Oshawa General Hospital in June.

Other problems facing Mrs. Whyte are shortage of staff and a threat by Darlington township officials to seize furniture and household goods in lieu of back taxes amounting to about $1,000.

Eight adult staff members have left the mission since last winter leaving eight women to help the Whyte's care for about 60 children. Mrs. Whyte said more workers were coming, but registered nurses were needed.

She said the taxes built up while she was waiting for the papers registering Whytehaven as a mission. The papers were granted recently.

Civic Welcome Given Pupils From Quebec Visiting City

A grand civic welcome was given to 15 visiting students from Roberval, Quebec, as they arrived in Belleville yesterday afternoon with a like number of returning Belleville high school students. The Quebec students are here under an exchange program of the Visite Interprovinciale sponsored by the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews.

For the past two weeks the local students have been visiting in the homes of the students they have brought back with them to stay in Belleville for two weeks.

Upon arrival at the CNR station parents of the Belleville students greeted them and their guests. Then the students mounted a special bus and were given a police escort to city hall where Mayor Gerald B. Hyde officially welcomed them and conferred the title of honorary citizens of Belleville upon the visiting French-Canadian students.

In speaking to the group Mayor Hyde noted that he had received a letter from the mayor of Roberval, who expressed his delight with the local students as ambassadors of goodwill in Roberval and mentioned that they had been made honorary citizens of that city. Mayor Hyde congratulated Belleville's representatives on the distinction and honor which they had achieved. To highlight the brief ceremony His Worship officially greeted the visiting students in French.

Following this the students were released to their parents and hosts and plans were being made for the weekend. Next week there is an interesting schedule planned for the group, which will start with being the guests of the Rotary Club of Belleville. Fire Chief Gerald Vance will be the guest speaker at this dinner. The next day the Kiwanis Club will act as host to the high school students. Many other things are planned for the visitors and the agenda is under the wing of Robert Poste of the Chamber of Commerce.

The French-Canadian students are being chaperoned by Mrs. Salange Gauthier.

'Miss Omaha' Gives up Beauty Title

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Blueeyed, blonde Miss Omaha gave up her beauty title Friday rather than jeopardize her Roman Catholic college education.

Mary Jean Belitz, 18, said she had been told that if she kept the title and participated in the Miss Nebraska contest, she would be barred from re-entering Duchesne College where she'll be a sophomore in the fall.

The chief obstacle to taking part in the beauty contests, Mary Jean said she was told, is bathing suit competition.

99 AND 44/100ths PER CENT UNFIT?

According to W. Arch Bryce, executive director of the Canadian Highway Safety Conference, less than one per cent of Canadian drivers have had instruction "suitable to prepare them to drive in today's traffic." The figure, even if only an approximate one, is certainly appalling. It means that a motorist can only expect the driver of one car in a hundred which he might meet on the highway to be able to take adequate action to avoid an accident should the emergency arise. We might well ask why this should be.

Certainly the crux of the matter is in the driver himself. Perhaps he, or she, may only know how to set an automobile in motion and keep it in a reasonably straight line to his destination. One might imagine that with many miles of driving that a driver would progress beyond this point but, unfortunately, such is not always the case. Many people seem to think that as long as they maintain a forward direction at a moderate rate of speed with eyes fixed rigidly on the horizon they are adequately controlling their vehicle.

We have noted a considerable number of experiences on the highways where this type of driver has caused, or very nearly caused, an accident simply by being unaware of what is going on to his rear or to either side of him, or choosing to think that oncoming cars can see him and will automatically allow him clear passage. You will find these people everywhere. Some will suddenly pull out into traffic on a highway without regard for the proximity or speed of other motorists and calmly proceed in their own direction at their own pace. Others will travel down a highway at 10 miles an hour or more below the posted limit causing long line-ups behind them. Others will slow down to a snail's pace a great distance from their turn-off and on occasion will fail to give a proper signal, if any at all, causing great concern and aggravation to those behind them.

Traffic today moves at a fairly high rate of speed; drivers have to be able to keep up to this pace or be a menace to the normal flow of highway users. Certainly the major portion of driver responsibility today is to know his car, how it handles at speeds up to 60 or 65 miles an hour, and how it will react when suddenly required to make an unusual movement or action in order to avoid or prevent an emergency or accident.

Certainly after a few years of driving experience a driver may be expected to have improved his driving habits and increased his driving know-how. If he has not, he should either be restricted in the machinery he is allowed to handle and made to be allowed to use, or prohibited from using the highways at all.

In the United Kingdom a new system is now gaining popularity. It provides for a "senior licence" for "advanced drivers." Those persons who consider themselves suitable candidates may take very rigid examinations, most thorough on their conduct on the highway and their ability to handle their vehicle at high speeds. Upon completion of this test the successful candidate finds himself eligible for lower insurance rates and other amenities.

If our provincial government provided for such a licence classification, it would be possible to limit travel on our super-highways to those who had proven themselves capable of meeting the requirements of high-speed touring. The drivers with slower reflexes could be allocated to secondary routes where they would be less likely to become involved with the faster traffic.

The person found to be travelling fast on the highway only a few hundred yards ordinary licence could be penalized more than the person who has proven, through a rigid and thorough set of examinations and driving skill tests, that he is capable of handling his vehicle at higher speeds.

Our accidents on the highways today are caused by people exceeding their own capabilities and the capabilities of their vehicle. Realistic legislation could do much to placing the good and poor driver into their proper places in allowing them to drive according to their individual ability.

SYSTEMS COMPARED

Writing in the Christian Science Monitor recently Mr. Joseph C. Harsch recalls the observation of political scientists that in effect the U.S. is governed by an elective monarchy and Britain by a hereditary presidency. This is an amusing if possibly misleading paradox, but it offers a springboard for a discussion of the differing forms of democracy in the two countries whose heads of state together have opened our great Seaway. HISTORIC BELLEVILLE

(Article 38 contributed by members of the Hastings County Historical Society)

A VALUABLE BOOK

The third volume in the series of regional documentary histories published by the Province of Ontario and the Champlain Society is now available.

It is "Kingston Before the War of 1812" edited by Richard Preston, Professor of history at Royal Military College, Kingston.

"Kingston before the War of 1812" continues the task first undertaken set by its predecessors, "The Valley of the Trent" and "Royal Fort Frontenac".

This collection of documents, from about 1780 to 1815 is important, since, as Premier Leslie Frost points out in the foreword to this attractively produced 500 page book:

Kingston, at the turn of the nineteenth century, was the leading centre of what is now the Province of Ontario — in fact, if not in name. It was the urban centre of the Loyalist Lawrence River and Bay of Quinte settlements established by the United Empire Loyalists — valorous men and women who preferred the hardships of exile to that of creating new homes in the wilderness to a more comfortable life in revolutionary America. Kingston, in those days, was the axis upon which rotated much of the earliest social, political and economic life of the Province".

And since Kingston was the "urban focus" of the Bay of Quinte settlement in these early years, much of what is contained in this book pertains to Belleville and district.

Indeed, such local names as Capt. John Meyers and Col. William Dorland appear frequently.

So do references to the Mohawks at Tyendinaga and the Hastings Militia, etc.

Among documents pertaining especially to this county is a memorandum from John Ferguson, Lieutenant of the County of Hastings, to Capt. William Bell, issuing instructions for the "arming, clothing and disciplining for service" of his detachment of the Hastings Militia. That was in 1796 and there was the possibility of American invasion even then.

Of interest in United Empire Loyalists' descendants are the first three chapters especially, which deal with the preparations for the coming of the Loyalists.

All in all, the Ontario Government and our own Public Library are to be congratulated for publishing another valuable reference work in the history of this historic Quinte district.

His Appeal Is Costly

Fort William Times-Journal

A Frenchman has learned two valuable lessons:

It is dangerous to desecrate a revered national monument: you don't always win—or break even —on an appeal to the courts.

Jean Figon, resident of what is presumed to fry eggs in a frying pan held over the eternal flame at the tomb of France's unknown soldier, for one himself into this predicament on a frivolous New Year's bet. He was promptly apprehended by gendarmes and sentenced and given three months in jail, plus a fine of $132.

Figon thought he was hard done by. He appealed the sentence. He should have left well enough alone. The appeal court made the sentence one year in prison with the same fine.

Not a Threat To Free Press

Ottawa Journal

The House of Commons has passed a law which provides that a newspaper or radio may not publish an account of a confession made by an accused person at a trial, except being given in the purposes is to ensure that the accused receives a fair trial that he be protected from possible public prejudice and from trial by headlines.

Some newspaper men are attacking this law with the venerable and sanctified cry that it restricts "press freedom". They say that it is a step back to-ward the secret, semi-secret trials," that the public has "a right to know" and goes on to the courts," and so on and so forth.

However, there is another side to this question. The side that, while press freedom is a vital, indispensable right it is no more fundamental than the right to a fair trial by jury. We would say, and we would be inclined to agree, that the right to a fair trial is the more fundamental of the two. Therefore, if there should be a conflict between that the published confession of an accused person at a preliminary hearing jeopardize his case with a jury later on, then, in this newspaper's humble opinion, that confession should not be published.

The Journal is far from believing that courts of justice should be a private domain of judges and lawyers. But that is far different from holding that the life of an accused person should be endangered that he be deprived of the right of a fair trial by jury. Press freedom does not always mean that newspapers may barrage to some theory of press freedom.

It is being asked how, under this new law, the public can be informed of the details of exceptions being committed for trial on flimsy evidence, or, conversely, persons guilty of crime against the public who are not being discharged even when the case against them is strong?

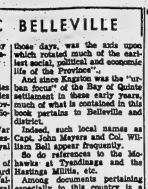
The answer is that this new law does not bar newspapers from preliminary trials; they can be there to report all that goes on, with the single exception of confession or admissions by the accused — confessions which, competent authorities hold, should later endanger fair trial.

Why should any responsible newspaper want to risk that?

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

NOT AS CRUTCHES



Thomas Carlyle more than a century ago wrote a chapter in his Sartor Resartus about the people who are always looking for a pill which they may take and thus be happy, healthy, and prosperous. The doughty old Scotsman who annoyed his generation no end by attacking their habits and slapping their faces and thinking up new ways for calling them a "passel" of fools, had supreme contempt for anyone who would go to a doc as it is and take the bitter with the sweet, the hard with the easy.

Singularly enough, we have arrived today at a drug age. It's possible to take pills now which will tranquilize, stabilize, and hypnotize. You swallow them down with a gulp of water and presto, life is rosy again, anxiety has disappeared, the world is just as lovely as anything could possibly be beyond the pearly gates. Pills for insomnia and pills for pain is two-fold. First, in order to get the same results you have to take two tablets or more next week — and on and on until you are taking them in wholesale doses. And the second catch is that every time you take them you are paying a price in pill to do what you ought to do for yourself, you become a slave to pills, your own master, less a growing purposeful person.

Pills have their place — but as medicine, not as crutches.

SELKIRK, MAN.

This town, which once dreamed of the capital of the province of Manitoba, is located 25 miles north of Winnipeg on the Red River. It owes its name to Selkirk, Scotland, which was the birthplace of Scottish settlers. They came by boat from Winnipeg, by way of Lake Nelson River and down Lake Winnipeg. They suffered terrible hardships, many died, and others made their way to Ontario to escape the long, cold winters. Lord Selkirk's name has been perpetuated as the father of the settlement, and his name may be found in many historic spots in and around Winnipeg.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

It is probable that there are still thousands or tens of thousands of old-fashioned lawnmowers in use. Not everybody can afford the new power lawnmowers. Not everybody who can afford them is prepared to jettison a perfectly good old-fashioned lawnmower. In fact, it may be that the majority who can afford power mowers are still attached to them because they have not been in the habit of throwing things away.

But it is some time now since I have heard the sweet ringing tone of an old-fashioned lawnmower. A man sitting in the shade on his verandah, or better still, lying in a hammock in the cool room for forty winks in the pleasant afternoon, the sound of the lawnmower was a curiously appealing sort of music. It implied a great sense of peace and contentment in the hearer. There was a rise and fall to it. Even in the case of a householder showing the lawnmower made short runs and long runs. Then there was in the cool, a listener could visualize the neighbor, the lawnmower clutched to his belly, bending with purpose as he made the neat lawn cuts the length of the lawn, and the short runs across the width of the lawn. Then, there were brief passages of song as the neighbor made short snipping at bits he had overlooked, or around the edges.

Today, the deep hum or snore of the power mower conveys no picture at all. It is just another of the mechanical sounds of human society in the second semester of the twentieth century.

Hearing the sound of a power mower, a man lying snoozing in the cool room for forty winks is merely reminded that this is the twentieth century, and he better get up and go to work so as to be able to buy a power mower too.

Open Justice

Vancouver Province

The public's right of access to records of our courts has been upheld by Mr. Justice Lester Greschuk in a recent Calgary case that should remind Vancouverians that inspection of court documents is one of the people's fundamental prerogatives.

Need Margin To Manoeuvre

Stratford Beacon-Herald

Speculative investors and car drivers should have plenty of margin available — far more than seems necessary for immediate needs. Otherwise, a turn can lose his entire holdings if he does not have the "margin" to carry him over a sharp dip in the market. A driver can lose his life if his margin for safety is just not sufficient to meet a sudden emergency.

Few drivers get into accidents merely through lack of skill. Most accidents, investment losses or a crash, had complete control of their cars in the situation. They simply didn't have enough margin to adjust to the unexpected events that led to the collision.

It is largely a question of maintaining a safe distance. Ontario Safety League. Few words will take more attention to avoid a thousand-to-one risk that only arises occasionally. But if that 1,000-to-1 risk is going to accept every day you drive, you can expect to be hospitalized from that risk within three years.

To take one example, if you cruise along a crowded highway at 50 m.p.h., less than 23 feet from the car ahead, you probably arrive safely, and may never realize there is any danger. But you are in danger, even though the odds are long. If the driver ahead of you has to stop for any reason (and it can and does happen), you will inevitably slam into the rear of his car. In this respect, the control of your safety has passed out of your own hands. Your margin of safety is being eaten away and you are vulnerable. You can restore your margin to a safe level by keeping 80 feet, five car lengths, from the other 50 m.p.h. cars.

The good driver doesn't attempt to beat the yellow at every stop. He gets it on his side.

Church Glass Shows Nazis

Manchester Guardian

The faces of Adolf Hitler and his two lieutenants, Hermann Goering and Josef Goebbels, have been passed down to posterity in a somewhat unusual form — on a stained-glass window of the fifteenth-century late-Gothic church of St. Martin's, in the town of Landshut. They are portrayed murdering Christian martyr Saint Castulus.

The window is the work of Karl Lechner, a member of a Roman Catholic resistance movement in the Nazis, who was condemned to death shortly before the end of the war.

He was set free in time by the advancing American troops and was commissioned in 1948 to produce a stained-glass window for St. Martin's. His work has already caused pilgrimages, and some Bavarians who have not read the motif closely consider that the Nazi leaders have been "glorified".

TODAY'S TALK

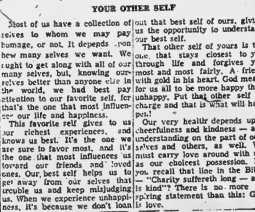
By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

YOUR OTHER SELF

Most of us have a collection of selves to whom we may pay homage, or whom we may ignore as we want. We ought to get along with all of our many selves, but, knowing ourselves better than anyone else in the world, we had best pay attention to our favorite self, for that's the one that most influences our life and happiness.

This favorite self gives to us our richest experiences, and knows how to make us happy. We are sure to favor most, and it's the one that most influences us toward our friends and loved ones. Our best self helps us to get away from our selves when trouble us and keep misjudging us. We sometimes are unhappiness. It's because we don't know and the cough is an effort to dislodge it.

Another is emphysema, or dilation of the cells of the lungs — a loss of "stretchiness" so the lung tissues do not spring back as they should when you exhale. Depending on the degree, X-rays may or may not show this clearly. In severe cases, there won't be any doubt.



Still another, and much more serious, possibility, is lung cancer, and by friends who specialize in chest surgery are very busy this time of year treating cases of lung cancer which were passed off for weeks or months as "bronchitis" or "cough." Again, X-rays are the best means of detection.

The lingering cough also may be from some infection, or from a fever left in dust or other irritants.

Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE S. POWELL

HOW SWEET THE NAME OF JESUS SOUNDS!

How sweet the Name of Jesus sounds
In a believer's ear!
It soothes his sorrows, heals his wounds,
And drives away his fear.

It makes the wounded spirit whole,
And calms the troubled breast;
'Tis manna to the hungry soul,
And to the weary rest.

Dear Name! the Rock on which I build,
My Shield and Hiding Place,
My never-failing Treasury, filled
With boundless stores of grace;

Jesus, my Shepherd, Brother, Friend,
My Prophet, Priest, and King,
My Lord, my Life, my Way, my End,
Accept the praise I bring.

The Rev. John Newton was an ardent Christian and believer when he wrote this favorite hymn, in 1779, but there were years in his earlier life when he ridiculed the church and religion.

Born in London, in 1725, he had little schooling and in his early youth he went to sea and became engaged in the African slave trade. For years he was an infidel and loved to boast about it and to blaspheme the church. But one night the slave ship on which he was returning from Africa to England was caught up in a severe storm. As disaster appeared inevitable, John Newton prayed to God for deliverance and when the storm abated the young seaman had found faith in Christ through answered prayer.

The experience completely changed his life. He married an English girl who persuaded him to become a minister of the Church of England. He was ordained and, after a course of practice and study, in 1764, at Olney, England where he served his first pastorate, he became a close friend of the eminent English poet, William Cowper. Fifteen years later, in 1779, the two men published their famous collection of "Olney Hymns".

John Newton will always be remembered for his inspiring hymns, gems like "How Sweet The Name Of Jesus Sounds", "Safely Through Another Week" and "Glorious Things Of Thee Are Spoken". But he was a devoted pastor, too, and it was his custom to assemble all of the children in his parish once a week to talk with them about the Bible. He wrote his own epitaph which included these lines:

"John Newton, clerk
once an infidel and libertine
A servant of slaves in Africa was by the rich mercy of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ
Preserved, restored, pardoned, and appointed
To preach the Faith he had long labored to destroy".

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

By WINIFRED WILSON

SWIMMING UNDERWATERS

When there is a heat wave, how we would love to be able to swim well and stay under water for a long, long time! The great swimmers of Birdland are especially equipped for this task, feet, feathers, and everything else.

Loons, though practically helpless on land and rising into the air with difficulty, are splendid divers, and expert swimmers that can stay submerged for a surprisingly long time. They have the ability to sink gradually, leaving no ripple on the surface, and it is a smart person who can foretell just when and where they will reappear.

The body plumage of loons is hard and compact, their wings pointed, short, and rather narrow. A little gland under the tails of all birds carries a supply of oil with which they preen their feathers, using their bills as brushes. Water birds, such as loons, have an inexhaustible supply of this, so that their plumage never gets wet.

USE WINGS TOO

To propel themselves under water loons use their small wings as well as their feet. Their three, forward pointing toes are joined by a web; their hind toe is very tiny. Their legs are placed at the extreme end of their long bodies, and their tails are very short. Grebes, also particularly expert at swimming under water, though otherwise rather similarly equipped, have very different feet. Each flattened toe has an individual web, giving an odd look to the whole foot.

Ducks are in many respects made on somewhat the same pattern as loons and grebes. It is interesting to note that though all ducks have their three front toes joined by webs, only the sea ducks, which go entirely under water to get their food, have a web also on the little hind toe.

Gannets and cormorants belong to quite a different group, very different from other birds in most respects. But they have this in common with the loons and grebes lastly well under the surface when pursuing fish, using both feet and wings. However, all their four toes are joined by webs.

Yet another type of bird has peculiar feet to suit its swimming habits. Phalaropes have been called "little swimming sandpipers". They do not pursue prey under water, but twirl around on the surface like tops. For this odd practice their toes are furnished with marginal webs. These small water birds often go out many miles from land, even in winter.

Interesting information on Asian Canadians. These people are greatly restricted by the immigration laws, but they have hopes that they will be improved. Families are being separated by such as the age barrier.

A Lift for Living

Destroy the Walls of Pride

By DR. RALPH W. SOCKMAN

If we could take a bird's-eye view of our world today, we would see it checkered and criss-crossed with walls — walls of houses wherein men have enclosed their loved ones and their belongings, walls around factories and fences around farms. We would behold the boundaries of nations bristling with fortifications. Man is a maker of walls.

And if we were able to take a God's-eye view of our globe and look upon the hearts of men as well as upon their surroundings, we would see walls of suspicion cutting across our most intimate groups, walls of distrust separating us into classes, walls of prejudice encircling races and walls of hatred between nations.

But Robert Frost has a poem in which he pictures a farmer rebuilding his stone fence. The frost and the years have dislodged some of the stones. And as the farmer replaces the fallen parts and contemplates the continuous care required to keep up his fences, he says to himself, "Something there is that doesn't love a wall."

It is of this we would think today. Listen to the experience of a man who began life as one of the most bigoted partisans on record and ended it as one of the most brotherly. He had confronted the walls of family pride, race prejudice and religious sectarianism. His name was Paul and as he nears the end of his career he gives the secret by which the dividing barriers had been burned away. He points to Jesus Christ and says, "He is our peace, who hath made both one, and hath broken down the middle wall of partition between us."

WALLS FORM EASILY

How easily a wall can be built between neighbors and friends. In a certain town two neighbors had a disagreement. They became feud ed, adjoining lots. The wealthier of the two decided he would not endeavor to be irritated by having to look at his neighbor's living rooms, and he would allow the other household to look into his windows. He therefore built a wall high enough to shut out the view. It was a vivid symbol of how walls can rise between friends.

A word spoken, a motive misunderstood, a rumor repeated, a reconciliation refused — such are the first stones in the separating wall, one says, "I didn't start it, and I'll not make a fool of myself by trying to make up." So, standing on pride, desiring to save face, refusing to be magnanimous, neighbor builds the walls which divide friendships and destroy the peace of communities, Thus Jesus went right at the foundation on which these walls of partition are built. And what is that foundation? Is it pride — pride of opinion, pride of possession, pride of prestige.

No person ever chokes to death swallowing his own pride; quite the reverse. Who does not know the thrill that comes from swallowing one's resentment and making up with a friend or loved one? It is a great satisfaction to make a friend; there is an even greater satisfaction in making up with a friend.

EYES OF CHRIST

Can we bring Christ into our social thinking so that He breaks down these barriers? It would mean that we would value men for their red blood of manhood, rather than for their so-called blue blood of heredity. It would mean that we would judge a man by what he is and not prejudge him by the group to which he belongs. If we would look with the eyes of Christ, we would honor a man for the service he renders and not for the number of servants he hires.

If we could catch the spirit of Christ, employer and employee would work together with confidence during the week and then feel at home worshiping together in the same church on Sunday. America's aristocracy is that of worth and character. Washington was rich, and Lincoln was poor; but who cares about that? A few years ago, of the two leading candidates for the presidency, one came from the slums of a city and the other from a blacksmith shop in the Middle West. There should be no ceiling to hold down a boy with ability and character.

We of Canada and the United States call ourselves free countries in contrast to the dictator regimes. Pride in our freedom should keep us from the pride that builds walls.

JACKSON — MAYO

Salem United Church, Minto, was the setting for a recent pretty double-ring wedding ceremony when Lillian Jean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mayo, became the bride of Mr. William Jackson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Jackson, of Toronto, and the late Mr. Jackson. The Rev. Mr. Hunt of Spring-brook, assisted by Mr. Stobbart of Irondale, officiated. The church was beautifully decorated with baskets of white gladioli, blue canterbury bells mingled with fern. The bride's pretty gown was fashioned in white satin bouvé.

The radiant bride, given in marriage by her father, was gowned in an original white imported French lace over satin featuring lily-pointed sleeves. The sweetheart neckline was accented with pearls and sequins. From the princess line bodice, the lace panel was extending into a train. She wore a three-quarter length veil of white net held by a seed pearl sequin studded crown and carried a bouquet of red roses with white satin streamers knotted with rose buds.

The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Don Seames, Toronto, who wore pastel yellow organza over taffeta fashioned in a blue ballerina-length peau de soie with white picture hat, matching gloves and shoes and carried a nosegay of pink carnations.

The bridesmaids, Mrs. Dick Goddfellow, Toronto, sister of Miss Gwen Ray, of Minto, were attired in similar gowns of pastel green and carried nosegays of pink carnations.

The flower girl, little Miss Dale Lloyd, of Belleville, niece of the bride, was dressed in a dress similar to the bridesmaids and carried a basket of pink roses.

The ring bearer, Master Billy Jackson, of Toronto, in white trousers and navy blazer, carried the wedding rings.

Mr. Bob McKee, of Toronto, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, performed the duties of groomsman. Ushers were Mr. Jackson, both of Toronto, acted as ushers.

Miss Vene Hagerman provided the wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Harry Bray, Ivanhoe, who sang "How Great Thou Art" and "Bless This House", both during the signing of the register. At the church the bride and bridegroom was presented with a Bible by Mr. Ernest Sarles on behalf of Salem congregation, of which the bride was a valued member.

The reception dinner was held in the church parlors with the ladies of Salem W.A. catering to approximately ninety guests.

The bride's table was appointed with white damask and centred by a three-tiered wedding cake on pillars and topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom. Pink tapers in crystal holders and pink carnations added a delightful nuptial accent.

After a honeymoon repast best wishes were extended to the bride and bridegroom by the officiating minister.

Mr. Bob McAfee acted as toastmaster. Telegrams were received from London, England, Swastika and also telegrams from flowers sent by the bridegroom's associated with baskets of pink gladioli, blue canterbury bells mingled with fern. The guest prize was awarded to white satin bowl.

Going Places

Travellers Need New Interests As Kids Gain Wisdom With Age

By SHIRLEY and BOB SLOANE

Of all the changes time has wrought in the problems of travelling with our children, perhaps the most significant so far stems from Claudia's graduation from first grade, but we can read.

The ramifications of this development are tremendous. Heretofore, except it is cute that she could decipher "Howard Johnson's" and "pizza" now we must cope with:

"Mommy, the speed limit says 50 and Daddy's speedometer says 52."

They don't have it on the Tommy Tucker plan but could it have his lamb curry with chutney anyway? It sounds yummy.)

"What's the matter with that motel? It says 'vacancy' and 'television'."

"Hey I have a dime to play 'Pink Shoelaces'!"

"That answers it all," we explain, "it will down."

While her capacity for recognizing words is new and exciting, learned in first grade is almost alarming. It means we can't slow down by way of translating unfamiliar ones into primer terms. Thus "Pizza" is not "pizza" but comes "speed radio chickenead." "Motel" is "motel" until it's named the Surprise.

Fortunately, this literary bent can be channelled usefully into means of keeping her and Jonathan, 5, occupied. Their days are constantly surrounded by great piles of scrap paper, on which she chronicles the events of her trip, because it is on this paper that, happily, coaches her brother on the mysteries of the three Rs.

For collection of these aget, pencils and paper seem to be the most appreciated. Also a variety of juvenile travel problems. A book brought along for the car trip were quickly read and discarded and coloring books soon colored. Jonathan's toy cars left home and stuffed toys relegated to the baby sitter and Bible and paper go on forever.

MAINTAINING ENTHUSIASM

Sights are a problem, too, still hold only spasmodic interest at these ages and boredom continues to be the greatest enemy. So was. Souvenir collecting is a partial solution. Each motor court is dangling before the children something to look forward to each day.

That tonight we will stop in a hotel instead of a motel and that we can ride up and down in the elevator and dine on room service that tomorrow we'll be at a motel with a swimming pool, that next week we'll be with our aunt and aunt in Michigan, and that it's only another month until we reach Disneyland, all work wonders in maintaining enthusiasm.

Travel continues to cultivate the child-sufficiency and confidence that has always been the greatest fruit of our travelling with the children. They're quite capable, of, and eager about, rolling down to the restaurant to get the baby's milk warmed, ordering their own dinner or attending the operation of the TV set. The normal travel patter of riding and reitring early fits in with habits at home.

Baby Hilary, 1, causes no more trouble than her sister did when they were her age. A reasonably regular change of diaper (these are much more satisfactory than they were five years ago), regular feeding from our supply of baby food warmed for her in restaurants using the sink, a chance to look around from her car seat, morning and afternoon naps stretched out on the front seat of the car, and an occasional cuddle from Mommy's arms keep her as happy as at home. So far every motel we've had has stopped at has had a crib for her. Variation in milk characteristics elsewhere have had no effect.

We did have a scare when her appetite fell off one day, but it proved only to remind us of one of the basic rules for travelling with children — don't panic.

A couple of squalls might, and indeed should, be expected at least for the first few days.

Hilary's reaction as she got her teething ad chad a slight respiratory congestion. We found that the best thing was a chance to rest up, and were merrily on our way again in two consecutive days with a day. She's got two beautiful molars to show for it.

OLDER CHILDREN HELP

The older children are a big help. They dress, wash and now bathe, feed and dress themselves. They help us set up and pack travelling easily. But one new development of travelling with older children is almost unavoidable: the need for two rooms at night.

Jonathan, 5, Claudia, 6, and Hilary, 1, have been travelling together for two years, and the dividends in quiet for Mommy and Daddy for an evening's room to accommodate five, and the dividends in quiet for Mommy and Daddy for an evening's room to accommodate five, and the dividends in quiet for Mommy and Daddy for an evening make the additional cost well worth while.

One of our preconceived notions about this first trip with all three children was how difficult it'd be. Most notable is due to an ice chest. A cool one in the car, provides a nuisance in getting our canned drinks, ice cream, ice cream and and offers less convenience in storing food than we had anticipated. It's as easy and cheap to buy picnic fixings as we go along as it is to pack them.

Instead of the obvious packing method of one suitcase per family member of the family, we've rearranged matters so that each family member has one item in each bag. This way we need to bring only one bag, in rotation, each night.

Eager to Start Second Stint In Jungle

VANCOUVER (CP)—Miss Lillian Ward of Vancouver teaches in Peru not far from the Ecuadorian border, a province where five young American missionaries were massacred by primitive Auca Indians last year.

Here visiting her mother, she said in an interview that she is eager to start her second five-year stint in the Peruvian jungle.

"Not one of our team of 200 has ever been hurt," Miss Ward said. "We have given up the idea of the Institute of Linguistics, is trying to reach primitive tribes through translation, economic, medical and religious instruction."

The institute, established 25 years ago, is interdenominational and its religious aim is to bring the Bible to natives translated in their own language.

There are more than 30 little tribes in the surrounding jungle and all have different customs and different languages, Miss Ward said.

"The children are a delight but some of the native customs are a bit of a shock. Some tribes think nothing of killing some of their children if there are too many, and head-hunting is quite acceptable to some groups."

The Muter Whisper of the Heart

By Alma Mason

Is your heart tuned in to prayer? Do you have a regular and periodic time to pray or are the petitions uttering constantly from you to your Guide and Helper as your need may arise? Jesus said, "When thou prayest, enter into thine inner chamber and having shut thy door, pray to thy Father who is in secret." Go into your own room where you can be alone and pray. What about the streets, the fields, the workaday world? Can we pray then? Does not Jesus tell us not to pray in such places? By no means. He did it Himself, in the field, on the hill side, by the seashore. We can pray anywhere effectively if we feel the urgent need of a talk with God.

How often have we wished for peace and contentment for someone! How many times have all of us said impulsively in our hearts, "Please, dear God, ease the pain for her. Make the way seem straight — the cross a little lighter." Often when we have been unable to reach out a hand in concrete help, we have asked that the comfort of God be administered to someone in trouble. The inadequacies of human help are so forcibly brought home to us at these times. Then we whisper to God a fervent petition. It is often just a muted whisper of the heart. These petitions may form and express briefly in this manner, "Please, Heavenly Father, help him find work." "Help her to regain her faith." "Help them to bear this great sorrow and sorrow." "Now, when he knows he is facing blindness, may he find the hand of his heavenly Guide." "Dear God, grant her patience and courage for this great task ahead." If we firmly believe in the enduring and elevating power of prayer, we cannot help but plead with God any hour of the day — any time — any place. We see a ragged newsboy, a neglected, and lonely old person, a hard and embittered young woman, a suffering criminal. If Christian, if tender hearted and compassionate — we cannot pass by these unfortunate people of this section of God's family, without a quickening of the finer impulses of concern and pity — without a vibrant desire that they receive sustaining spiritual help.

Prayer must be wrapped softly and firmly in many attributes. It must consist of a belief that God will listen and answer. In the words, faith must accompany it. It should be tied with a lustrous ribbon of love. It should be dipped in unselfishness and self forgetfulness. God will surely not listen to selfish prayers. If we pray for the lonely, physically handicapped, the embittered, the necessary. We must—be willing to sacrifice for them. How clearly Christ illustrated this for us when He spoke of the prayer of the Pharisee and contrasted it with the prayer of the humble publican. We must not feel superior when we pray. We must remember we are all impregnated with sin to some degree and when praying, must not be prone to sit in judgment. Prayer without human endeavor is also useless. Why pray for food for a starving family when we are unwilling to share our crust?

When we turn the switch that connects us with the great current of God's love and care—we must have absolute faith that His promises of answer to prayer will be revitalized in us. Let us then remember some of the promises of Jesus regarding prayer.

"Your Heavenly Father knoweth what things ye have need of before ye ask Him." "Ask and ye shall receive." "If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts to your children, how much more will your Father give to them that ask Him." "And all things whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer, believing, ye shall receive." These promises are so convincing, so assuring. There can be no doubt that your prayers and mine drifting to the throne of Grace every minute, every hour, could cleanse this old world of its sin, purge it of its misery and make God's face to shine on it.

What a comfort to know we have a great Power Plant to draw on every minute of the day and night! As our concern and sympathy for our neighbor grows — as our love intensifies, as our belief that God will help through prayer becomes more deeply rooted, a protective lovely green wall seems to surround us.

We are sustained, no longer afraid. We no longer stumble in the dark. We no longer feel the mountains insurmountable. Each day takes on a new lustre. Our feet become firmly planted and our eyes are lifted to the hills. Through humility and love in prayer we place our shoulders against the troubled world and our hands confidently in the hand of God.

Do you believe that every prayer
Must be in hidden, secret place
And planned with thoughtfulness and care to reach the golden shrine of grace?

Or do you think that God can hear
The muted whisper of the heart?
I feel that He is always near
To listen to a prayer in part.

There's so much sorrow all around
That I must speak with God all day
And utter my prayer with words I've found
In such a lowly way to pray.

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

This week from the Montreal Star comes the news that Mr. Marmora hundreds of thousands of people will be able to hear the sounds of birds and animals in the forests of Africa, Asia and South America while the United Nations meets.

I think it was a real departure to send out talk with a disc-recorder. Mr. Marmora has been in this industry and the opportunities of recording a lecture, a concert, a speech and a radio broadcast are endless. Recently I listened to a lecture given by Dr. Frederick Banting, recorded from a lecture tour in centuries ago, before the first Red and white were known for when Gordon supplied most of Europe's furs. Surprising conclusions were brushed aside as "I filled cassette of a reflection, such leading facts (about iron) — every more interesting than a tedious detail of misunderstate facts. The value of money has been settled by general consent" to express our worth and our property, as theories were invented to express our ideas; and both these definitions are giving more active energy to the powers and passions of mankind. The three are banked and the dexterous hand of man is idle. Money is still the most universal instrument of exchange, probably the most powerful instrument in the world today. Yet economically, the economy of a continent and the services to agriculture, of which it is a product, man will be shrunk a thousand times. Canadian life in the eighteenth centuries because our independence is the dominant theme greater. The dependence has not changed just its relative importance. Two hundred years ago man was mostly his own artisan, whereas today iron provides the basic framework to economic stability. If the capitalist system of money is still seconded by the other to create modern economic living standards, it has been largely because of the United Nations. Besides this, in her business life, Mrs. Perry is vice-president of the Arctic Projects Ltd. This sort of story is an inspiration to other women and girls in our country.

Second Glance

"Trafalgar is Civilization" — Rudyard Kipling.

But for Robert Legget's "Rideau Waterway" (University of Toronto Press), we would not have known or realized that here, and there, ghosts of the past pass through every page — ghosts of intrigue, drama, heart-break, fellowship, laughter, illness, hope, ambition, and the very magic of their secrets is reflected in the water's ripple or the flutter of fluffy leaved trees that arch the shore line.

This Canadian waterway's beauty beomes envigored in a haze of Time Past as we skim and over part of its hundred and twenty miles of lakes, blue as a sapphire necklace, made fascinating with such names as White Fish, Sand, Opinicon, Clear, Cranberry to mention a few. These are strung on silvered rivers that long have and there ever forty-seven masonry locks, at such places as Kingston Mills, Upper and Lower Brewers Mills, Chaffey's Locks, Jones' Falls, Merrickville, Harrower, Edmonds.

Poonamalie! "A name to excite the imagination", claims Mr. Legget.

How did this lock which possesses a sequestered shade of cedars, so delicately scented and so dense it screens the world away, get its name? Was it the silver tunnel become so named? When one of Col. By's military engineers, who had seen service in India observed the way the dowy rainbows shimmered as do the Tiger Rambos of India, across its cascade waters? Or promptly reminded him of the "stately official life" there, and so named it Poonamalie (Poonamalees in pronunciation).

"One might expect to find a Taj Mahal just around the curve beyond", declared one enthusiastic tourist.

Though there is no Taj Mahal just around the bend, there is however, something warm and heartening to the eyes. A spacious family home set in the midst of a large abundant vegetable garden, with a background of woods.

We stop to chat with a woman, wearing a faded blue sunbonnet, a long flowing grey gown partly covered by a scarlet gingham apron. She has been industriously hoeing a patch of peas.

"Yes, I can remember stories about the canal lock", she replied kindly in answer to our question, and rested her hand and weight on the hoe. "I've always lived here on this farm, since I came here as a bride. My husband's parents and grandparents lived there. I can remember my husband's grandmother telling many stories about this Canal.

"One, was about the days when they were building the canal back in 1826. They paid the men in money, not by check. A man was sent down from Ottawa or Bytown as it was called then, with the men's wages.

"Just as he got to Poonamalie, he fell ill. He buried the money for safe-keeping until his recovery. Some workmen found him, and tried to nurse him. However, he died within two days or so — and to this day no one has ever seen or found the money.

"Yes, its peaceful here, and being my home, it is the only place in the world where I could be happy. Here, now, let me give you some of these peas. This year the garden has been about the best we've ever had. Already I've put up twenty five quarts of peas". Her hand pushed the sunbonnet back to reveal bright metal-ching, lively eyes.

We not only accepted the generous basket of peas, but had them that evening for supper. Never had we eaten peas in a more beautiful environment!

Bellevignette: At a recent U.E.L. meeting in Belleville, Mr. Edwin Gullet, research historian of the Department of Public Records and Archives of the Province of Ontario, said that it used to be part of the British soldier's training to have painting lessons.

But, why?

"This was a means by which some visual-aid might be obtained of the topography of any new territory", he explained and added: "There are in existence several drawings made by soldiers of the Royal Engineers connected with the construction of the Rideau Canal, in the Archive's possession. Ah, such sketches by soldier artists, made fascinating scene is of great historic value today."

CALGARY (CP) — Mrs. Francis Watson, 75, met her sister at the station here for the first time in 50 years.

"I knew Bana the minute I saw her and she knew me, even after 50 years," said Mrs. Watson.

Mrs. Bana Knigge, the sister, lives in Burbank Calif. She visited Canada for the first time in July.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

"HOTSHOT" GROOM'S OUT-OF-TOWN ATTENDANTS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My fiancee and I are beginning to make plans for our wedding, which is to take place in about five months. It is the girl whose she and her family live, some distance from where I live with my family. My best man and four of my ushers (the other two ushers are brothers of my bride-to-be) live here in my city, and all are married. I'd like to talk over with my fiancee and her mother the question of making arrangements for accommodations for my attendants and their wives. But first I'd like to know if it is proper for me to accept hospitality that may possibly be offered for them by relatives or friends of my fiancee's family. I've been told that this is sometimes done.) But if hotel accommodations must be reserved, I'd like to ask your thanks for suggestions about this (her father or brother may volunteer to make these reservations, you of course making it clear to him that the bill for all these accommodations is to be charged to you). (Note: attendants pay all travelling expenses for themselves and their wives.)

BRIDE'S FATHER SHOULD STAND FIRST IN THE RECEIVING LINE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My daughter is to be married years ago, and my father and continued to live in the family home. Now I am to be married and, after the church ceremony, there will be a reception in our house. My father and I are not sure whether he should be a member of the receiving-line. (The bridegroom's father is dead, and his mother has accepted our invitation to stand in the receiving-line.) What is your advice?

Miriam

In your circumstances, it is most important that your father, as host in his home, and as sponsor of your wedding, should stand in the receiving-line . . . should stand first in the line, to greet and welcome the guests. Next to him would stand the bridegroom's mother; then you and your bridegroom, you on his right (this is very important); the maid (or matron) of honor, on your right; and last, the bridesmaids.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three lawyers, a newspaper editor, a woman's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies in Canada.

Mother G. G. — Men always talk to Sue about sex.

Sue M. — But I'm a very proper girl.

Martha G. — My friend Sue and I are both in our early 30's. We go out a lot on double dates and have had some very good times.

I think that Sue has gone out with very nice men, but she tells me they are all the same — no good. She says when they are alone they all only want to talk of sex. This, of course, is just the build-up to overtures.

I personally don't have that problem and frankly I'm beginning to worry. Do I lack sex appeal?

Sue M. — Martha's just being funny. She knows she's attractive and has always been popular.

But seriously, I don't know why it is that I run into this problem all the time and Martha doesn't. She says she steers the conversation away from sex. I have tried to do the same, but it never seems to work.

The strange part of it is that I have always been very proper in my conduct. I don't smoke, drink or indulge in heavy petting. I don't know why they talk to me like that.

The Council: It takes two to make a conversation. This is always the case — even when one of the two is simply a listener.

So sue must, therefore, consider herself equally responsible with her men friends for creating the sex talk.

It is true that the man is more likely to take the initiative in such conversations, but that does not mean the girl must go along with it.

This talk is no tribute to any girl's sex appeal, but it may be a comment on her abilities as a companion and conversationalist.

When conversation lags or is dull many men feel called upon to stir up a little interest with that popular subject — sex. If the subject is not quickly disposed of by a second party it gathers momentum, usually winding up somewhere in the more sordid.

If Sue doesn't want this kind of situation she must take steps to steer her relationships in an entirely different direction.

Sue states her good qualities from a negative point of view. She doesn't smoke, drink or pet. That's nice, but what does she do? Does she dance, play a musical instrument, sing, read, cook, play tennis or bowl. Does she have wide interests and many friends? Does she get fun out of life in a variety of ways?

Many skills and many interests will help Sue develop a well-rounded personality. And when this happens she'll find that her problem will disappear. She'll be a good talker and a good listener. Her eyes will light up when more than one subject is touched on.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

The Montreal Gazette's sports editor, Dink Carroll, interviewed former heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano following the latter's stint as a wrestling referee the other night.

Dink is of the opinion Rocky might make a comeback, although the ex-champ would not commit himself to such a statement.

Here's what Rocky told Dink during the course of the interview:

"How much do you weigh, Rocky?" another guy asked.

"I weigh about 220," he replied, pulling in his stomach. "I weighed around 187 when I was fighting."

Then he was asked the pointblank question: "Are you going to make a comeback?"

"Don't say that," he said. "Just say that I'm trying to lose some weight."

He was down ringside at the recent bout in which the Swede, Ingemar Johansson, lifted Floyd Patterson's heavyweight title by stopping him in the third round. What does he think of Johansson?

"He's a good right-hand puncher," he said. "I knew he had to be when he knocked out Eddie Machen in one round. I always thought Machen was an good fighter. He didn't throw the big right hand in his training sessions, and the word got around that he didn't have it. But I knew he had to have it to stop Machen like that. I know I picked Patterson to win, but I really wasn't surprised when Johansson beat him."

The wire service reports of the fight said that Rocky was one of the first to perceive that Johansson was trying to set Patterson up with left jabs, making him move into line to deliver the right. When Johansson carried out his plan successfully Rocky was the first to reach the new champion.

"It was beautiful," he was quoted as saying. "So quick and so deadly."

"That's right, I said that," he confirmed. "He's got a little leap to that right-hand punch and he gets his whole body into it."

One of his audience remarked that he'd heard Mrs. Marciano objected to any attempt on his part to return to the ring.

"That's right," he admitted. "Every time she hears it said or reads in the paper that I may attempt a comeback she says, 'I thought you were going to be one of the smart ones and quit while you're ahead.'

"But my home and the boxing business are two entirely different worlds. My relatives and friends think I did the smart thing when I retired. But when I get around with the boxing mob they say, 'What did you quit for? You're an athlete. You can come back and make $1,000,000.'

"When I'm in Miami with my wife I don't see the boxing mob. Willie Pastrano and a few other fighters are around. But they're busy and we just don't meet. It's when I get mixed up with the boxing mob that I hear all the talk."

A guy suggested that spending the winters in Florida could cost money.

"You're right, they can," he nodded. "That's when you start thinking about that $1,000,000 you could make if you came out of retirement."

Rocky had just come from watching Archie Moore work out in the gym. It was after he stopped Archie in the ninth round of their fight in New York in September, 1955, that he retired. Does he think Archie is in good shape for his return match with Yvon Durelle here on the 29th?

"He looked in good shape to me," he said.

Had he seen the first Moore-Durelle fight here last December?

"I saw it on television," he said. "It was a great fight. Archie came back a long way to win that one. 'I didn't think he was going to make it after that first round. I thought Sharkey helped him a little the way he stood over him and bellowed the count in his ear."

He was asked if he thought Durelle had a chance in the rematch.

"Sure he has," Rocky replied. "He came close to winning the first one, didn't he? Archie knows now that Durelle can punch."

He was told that Archie said the rematch could be another great fight if Durelle could forget how the first one ended.

"Did Archie really say that?" he laughed. "Well, Archie may be more cautious this time, and you can make the mistake of being too cautious. It shapes up like an interesting fight."

Will 'Explore' Ideas for New League

NEW YORK (AP) — A major league committee will meet with William A. Shea and other proponents of a third major league in either Boston or New York Aug. 18, commissioner Ford Frick said Friday. Previously he had indicated the meeting would be next week.

"This meeting will be entirely exploratory," Frick said, "ideas will be exchanged and there will be a discussion of detailed problems, requirements and procedures in connection with the development of additional major league baseball.

"The major league committee has been authorized to furnish certain figures and information to any major league operational committee developing the U.S. Congress doesn't stick its nose too deeply into the affairs of professional sports.

He told the Senate he hopes a third league will mean "one and perhaps two new clubs in the New York City area." But, he said very emphatically, professional sports could wreck baseball were a third league.

The New York senator appealed to sports fans to rally against "anti-trust zealots" he contends would go too far in writing federal laws to regulate professional baseball, football, basketball and hockey.

The Senate anti - trust and monopoly subcommittee plans to start public hearings July 28 on various proposed anti-trust law controls and exemptions for these sports.

Wynn Two-Hits Yankees As White Sox Retain Lead

Veteran Wins Game No. 261 In Turning Back Champions; Braves Lose Four-in-Row

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

At 39, Early Wynn is one of the winningest pitchers the majors have known. He's a hard-working, easy-to-talk-to guy off the mound—one who can laugh about his lean early years with Washington Senators.

Chicago White Sox got him from Cleveland last year as a Yankee beater. But in a poor season (14-16), Yankees were the only team he couldn't beat. The champs beat Wynn six-out-of-six, barring his 250th victory in their last meeting on Gil McDougald's eighth-inning home run.

Friday night, Wynn won his 261st, a Yankee beater once again. Backed by fine fielding he knocked them off in a double two-hit duel with young Ralph Terry as White Sox, hitless for eight innings with 2-0 in the ninth and retained their one-game lead in the American League race.

Wynn, who started in organized baseball the year after Terry was born, had given up only a disputed, sixth-inning single by the Yankee right-hander until the ninth. Then, after Norm Siebern opened with a single, Wynn clouted 'em off.

ALMOST BLEW LEAD

Second-place Cleveland nearly blew a seven-run lead before beating Boston 8-7. Third-place Baltimore handed Detroit a fifth straight loss 3-2 and Kansas City cooled Washington 7-4.

With the bases loaded in the ninth, Indians Jim Landis sliced a two-run single to right—after Vogi Berra had dropped his two-strike foul up — and it was Wynn's victory to look to. The loss left fourth-place Yanks 6½ games behind Sox.

Wynn, 12-6 and 2-0 against New York, broke a tie with Ted Lyons for the 20-30 berth among all-time winners while bagging his 12th two-hitter.

Cleveland won when reliever Gary Bell ended a second three-run Boston rally by pulling a called third strike past Bobby Avila, retiring rookie Larry Roche's first victory. Cleveland's Rocky Colavito hit his 20th homer.

Brooks Robinson's first homer and a two-run error by Rocky Bridges with the bases loaded on walks gave Orioles their three runs with which to win the second inning. Don Mossi (4-3) lost it, although allowing only three hits.

Joe Jay lost one, then Carl Willey, then Tony Burdette. How Warren Spahn, That's how the Milwaukee Braves, favored for their pitching, have lost four in a row for the first time this season and have skidded to third, three games behind in the National League race—their largest deficit in two years.

Friday night it was sixth-place St. Louis, usually a soft touch for Spahn, that beat the southpaw ace with a two-out rally in the eighth inning for a 4-3 victory.

San Francisco's first - place Giants picked up their largest lead of the year by rapping Pittsburgh's 4-1 while second-place Los Angeles beat 3-2 at Philadelphia.

CUBS KEEP WINNING

The Chicago Cubs, fresh from a 4-3 victory over Milwaukee Braves, made it four in a row with a 5-0 decision over Cincinnati on a six-hitter by Art Ceccarelli.

Spahn (11-10), who has won more games from L. Louis than any other club, gave up an unearned run on his own error in the third inning but still had a 3-2 lead into the eighth. Bob Boyer singled and scored the tying run on Joe Cunningham's double. Rookie Gene Oliver, sinister bat, hit left 11 on base.

Ceccarelli, an American League castoff after losing his 11th season decision with Kansas City and Baltimore, won his second shutout against the Cubs. The 29-year-old lefty also scored the run, coming across on a fielder's choice in the fifth against Bob Purkey (8-10).

Hec Brown (6-5) won it.

The A's broke a 3-3 tie at Washington early in the fourth and seventh. Ned Garver (7-9) was the winner, with Russ Kemmerer (5-5) suffering the loss.

Deron Johnson's baser-loaded single in the bottom of the ninth gave Reds the winning run as the Virginians edged the Jets.

SWIM RECORDS FALL

REDDING, Calif. (AP) — Two California teen - agers, Sylvia Ruuska and Chris Von Saltza, led the sensational assault on records at the U.S. Amateur Athletic Union's women's swimming championships Friday.

The 17 - year - old Sylvia from Berkeley, Calif., established a world mark in the 440-meter individual medley at five minutes 50.7 seconds.

Fifteen - year -old Chris, from Saratoga, Calif., finished to an American record in the 110-yard freestyle at 1:04.8.

Red-Hot Leafs Whip Royals In Overtime

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

How is a pennant contender built?

With a new manager, some reliable pitchers, and a slugger in the Frank Herrera fashion.

The formula is working for Buffalo Bisons, No. 1 in the International League race today after a seventh-place finish last season.

When the Bisons finished 20½ games from the top in 1958, the management scrambled into action.

Kerby Farrell was signed as manager. The pitching staff was shuffled and reshuffled. And, most important, Herrera was installed as the regular first baseman.

POTENT STICKMAN

The 26-year-old Cuban is up among the batting leaders in almost every division. He tops the loop in homers with 26, leads in runs batted in with 87 and ranks third-or-thirding at .340.

The 6-3, 200-pounder was 3-for-6 last night as the Bisons—quartered away after a long slump—swept a doubleheader from Rochester 4-1 and 5-2 to move 3½ games in front of runner-up Miami. The Marlins dropped a 5-4 decision to Havana.

Torrid Toronto continued its winning ways with a 5-4, 10-inning victory over third - place Montreal and Richmond defeated Columbus 3-2.

Henry Mason (7-2) and Warren Hacker (7-5) shared the pitching chores for the Bisons, each tossing a five-hitter against the fourth-place Red Wings. Herrera homered in the opener before a crowd of 12,453, second largest of the season.

Bernie Alvares won for the Sugar Kings with his 18th homer. The Marlins, who picked up single tallies in the first and third, had tied the game in the fourth when Leo Burke crashed his 16th four-bagger.

LEAFS STILL RACING

The red-hot Maple Leafs were presented with the winning score when Montreal reliever Marty Stabiner came on with two out and the bases loaded and walked Tim Thompson, forcing in Jim King. It was the 29th victory in 39 games for Toronto and their 11th victory in 12 one-run decisions.

Western Athlete's Nail Nine Of 15 Track, Field Titles

By AL VERKERY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP) — Western athletes nailed down nine of the 15 titles on the line Friday at the two-day Inter-Provincial track and field trials and Canada's team championships get under way here. No records were tied or broken.

A committee is to decide today on Canada's 30 representatives at the Pan American Games in Chicago next month.

Valerie Jerome, 15 - year - old Vancouver athlete, won the 100 metres and broad women's jump. Miss Jerome's wins were the policeman Stan Ralfe were the only double winners on the first day. Ralfe took the men's shot put and hammer throw.

TORONTO WINS SIX

Ralfe's double win gave the Toronto contingent six titles for the day—one more than Vancouver.

Harry Jerome of Vancouver—Valerie's 18-year-old brother — finished second behind Ralfe in the Canadian open and native record of 10.3 he set in May. He also tied three-tenths off the world record of 10.2.

Doug Kyle of Calgary raced almost shoulder - to - shoulder with Hamilton's Gordon Dickson for the 20-lap, 10,000-metre stage, and Kyle pulled away to win by about 50 yards.

Jack Smyth of Winnipeg, a student at University of Houston, won the broad jump with a leap of 22 feet 9¾ inches.

MEET HIGH JUMP

Alice Whitty Vancouver, won the women's high jump at 5 feet three inches—smaller than her Canadian native record.

Pat Dobbin of Toronto won the early victory in the women's competitions, with a heave of 35 feet 6¼ inches.

Toronto's other wins went to Sandy Mahaffy in the 1,500 metres, Bob Meldrum in the 3,000-metre steeplechase and Stan Worsfold in the 400 metres.

Britain Rallies Golfers to Beat Americans

LONDON (AP) — Britain's golf rulers, smarting under recent defeats by the United States, have called on the U.S. to play a top amateur to toughen up and develop the killer instinct of the Americans.

The call came Friday in a memorandum from the Royal and Ancient Golf Club selection committee. It followed the 9-3 victory of the United States over Britain in the Walker Cup matches two months ago and the victory of Dassie Sifford in Silver Spring, Md., in the British amateur championship.

The Walker Cup defeat was suffered despite four years of building, coaching and training by the R and A. Now Britain's top golfers admit the gap with the United States had not been closed to "any marked degree."

The memorandum, circulated to the Commonwealth's leading players, urged British golfers to make a point of starting well against an opponent and then adopting "the killer instinct" to finish the match quickly.

Grid League Rejects TV Deal Says Newspaper

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says the Big Four football union has rejected a 25-year television contract that carried a guaranteed minimum of $10,000,000.

The newspaper says the contract was offered by Sklatron TV Productions Inc., an American television company.

It says that although precise details were not given the contract the Hague was guaranteed the minimum of $10,000,000 plus an arrangement for additional revenue on a percentage basis of the number of sets subscribing.

Big Four officials were disturbed by various contractual terms of agreement, the newspaper says, but didn't close the door on further negotiations in the pay-TV field.

"Presumably they will want to take it another year," Hackett said, "but I'm not sure. I'm still undecided. I'll have to see what kind of a season we have."

Harness Racing Bits

By Phil Stewart

Belleville horses raced at Napanee at the Orange celebration last Saturday afternoon, meeting with considerable success. In the 2.25 classified, "Bud" Newtop's "Teddy Gration Royal" was twin third behind "Star Directly", with Northfield Stable, and "Mr. Bobby B. Gration" from Wellington. The winning times were identical for each heat at 2.31 for the mile.

The 2.35 classified was the best racing of the day as "Lee Mac S." owned and driven by Irvin Ness of Belleville won both heats with times of 2.30 and 2.32, which was almost caught at the wire in the second trip by Art Macdonald's "Linda MacDuff" from Kingston.

Spencer C. Hall", Mike Collins's trotter, broke in the first heat and finished 5th, but trotted very well to come home winning with a rush in the stretch to cop third place.

Ken Peters drove "John D. Kuiper" to a fourth and fifth, Macdonald's other horse starting, resulted in a horse, "Dale Vanda" as he set back out of the money.

It is good to see the judges at the races now being very reasonably strict with the rule book. So many of the races in the past few years are marred by bad driving incidents for which no penalties are imposed.

Race fans in the district will be pleased to hear Jack Jeffery's trotter, "Betty Abigail", placed second at Connaught Park, Kingston, in her last start. The mile was won by "Star Direct" in 2.14 1/4 and resulted in a $400 Quinella payoff. Mooney Fleet has done a wonderful job with "Betty" this spring.

District owned horses haven't been having too much luck at the Kingston track as the racing is awfully tough and the times fast. Last Wednesday night, July 15, Miss Reta Herrington of Belleville, driving her own mare, "Lu Attorney," in the first race and placed fourth in the heat of the mile trot 2.09. The slowest heat on the card was 2.11.0 and the winning heat was a blazing 2.03 2/5.

Paul Hebest, who trained here with Vern Waddel for part of last winter and who lives in Belleville, has been doing very well since he took over his own barn. He has added to the long list of winning drivers at the Woodbine meeting which opened the first of July. Last Wednesday he was second and third with "Lee Hanover" and "Lee Adios", "The Golden Hoddel", and was driving the 3/5 winner "Hollywood Richard."

Quinte Driving and Riding Club will race next Saturday afternoon with a fairly good entry from around the district and the three classified races should be real tough battles.

The grounds have been raised slightly from the last meet and there will be a fine track regardless of the amount of each race, that is the horse standing best in the summary in the big heats.

There will be a number of Belleville - trained horses entered, so come out to the track Saturday evening and cheer for the local horses.

Remember if you want to see races in Belleville it is entirely up to the public as we depend on gate receipts to pay the race meets and if you didn't support it last time by all means come to this meet, and if you were there last time come back and bring a friend.

The Bobcats turned back Point, Anne's bid to grab first place in the B, and D. softball league last Saturday afternoon, meeting with considerable success. In the 2.25 classified, "Bud" Newtop's "Teddy Gration Royal" was twin third behind "Star Directly", with Northfield Stable, and "Mr. Bobby B. Gration" from Wellington. The winning times were identical for each heat at 2.31 for the mile.

The 2.35 classified was the best racing of the day as "Lee Mac S." owned and driven by Irvin Ness of Belleville won both heats with times of 2.30 and 2.32, which was almost caught at the wire in the second trip by Art Macdonald's "Linda MacDuff" from Kingston.

Spencer C. Hall", Mike Collins's trotter, broke in the first heat and finished 5th, but trotted very well to come home winning with a rush in the stretch to cop third place.

Ken Peters drove "John D. Kuiper" to a fourth and fifth, Macdonald's other horse starting, resulted in a horse, "Dale Vanda" as he set back out of the money.

It is good to see the judges at the races now being very reasonably strict with the rule book. So many of the races in the past few years are marred by bad driving incidents for which no penalties are imposed.

Race fans in the district will be pleased to hear Jack Jeffery's trotter, "Betty Abigail", placed second at Connaught Park, Kingston, in her last start. The mile was won by "Star Direct" in 2.14 1/4 and resulted in a $400 Quinella payoff. Mooney Fleet has done a wonderful job with "Betty" this spring.

District owned horses haven't been having too much luck at the Kingston track as the racing is awfully tough and the times fast. Last Wednesday night, July 15, Miss Reta Herrington of Belleville, driving her own mare, "Lu Attorney," in the first race and placed fourth in the heat of the mile trot 2.09. The slowest heat on the card was 2.11.0 and the winning heat was a blazing 2.03 2/5.

Paul Hebest, who trained here with Vern Waddel for part of last winter and who lives in Belleville, has been doing very well since he took over his own barn. He has added to the long list of winning drivers at the Woodbine meeting which opened the first of July. Last Wednesday he was second and third with "Lee Hanover" and "Lee Adios", "The Golden Hoddel", and was driving the 3/5 winner "Hollywood Richard."

Quinte Driving and Riding Club will race next Saturday afternoon with a fairly good entry from around the district and the three classified races should be real tough battles.

The grounds have been raised slightly from the last meet and there will be a fine track regardless of the amount of each race, that is the horse standing best in the summary in the big heats.

There will be a number of Belleville - trained horses entered, so come out to the track Saturday evening and cheer for the local horses.

Remember if you want to see races in Belleville it is entirely up to the public as we depend on gate receipts to pay the race meets and if you didn't support it last time by all means come to this meet, and if you were there last time come back and bring a friend.

Yankees Win Over Russians; Ladies Lose

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The biggest track and field extravaganza during the Olympics, pitting the U.S. and Russia against each other, opened a two-day stand at the University of Pennsylvania's Franklin Field today. Over 70,000 packed in Monroe last year with the American men winning in turns to eight for the Russians. The Soviet women won six firsts in their section against four for the American lasses.

A full Olympic program of events will be the exception of the marathon was on the schedule. Opening event was the pole vault at 3:30 p.m.

'Hardboiled' Had the Chips But Loses to Huge Don Leo

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

The "Chips" were down last night in Memorial Arena.

They were held in the hands and secreted in the trunks of one, Hardboiled Haggerty.

"Hardboiled" apparently did some shopping previous to the main bout, for some baskets of packages of potato chips.

And he applied them quite judiciously before the referee and one Don Leo Jonathan a hulking 250 pound wrestler with the appropriate name of "The Golden Hoddel", and was rewarded with the decision.

Big Don didn't like it. Nor did Referee Jack Reddick.

But everything ended O.K. especially for the huge Monday night wrestling fan who hesitates in giving the decision. He went home right. Flipper Jonathan high in victory, apparently fed up with the hollow line of the Hardboiled one.

Local fandom knew what to expect after last Friday night's mat calisthenics. It foresaw the "Chips" going stale" and it was not disappointed.

Haggerty used his "chips" generously on the Mormon optics, especially in the first fall. Big Don Lee was in agony and more than once escaped the ring to get away from his tormentor.

Where he kept his "chips" was a source of mystery. The referee frisked Haggerty and searched but failed to locate anything that looked like a alleged. Yet "Hardboiled" produced them from somewhere whenever the urge demanded. He had Don Leo's eyeballs popping out of the back of his neck at times.

But all's well that ends well. Fandom was satisfied with the verdict when Maxwell gave the "Hardboiled" the nod.

The "Hardboiled" one took the first fall from the Mormon after he had applied "chips" to him. He roared back into the ring minutes later and evened things in the second frame. He was crazy for the "kill."

But Sonny disappointed him. He won the second fall with a flying tackle and then went through more eyeball "torture" before Maxwell decided to call it a night and gave Don the third fall and match to the Mormon.

Ralph Wally Kirkham and Jack Laskin went through 30 minutes of clean, aggressive wrestling before Referee Jack 9th rounds. They laughed in astonishment at the verdict.

The seventh was lively, as Cal boun slipped after taking a T-ler right flush in the face and staggered the limit on the floor. Both men sprawled on the canvas. Each weighed 162.

Rangers Open Summer Hockey Training School

NEW YORK (CP)—New York Rangers are opening a summer hockey training school at Kingston next interest among teen - aged players.

The National Hockey League team announced today that goaltending instructor Frank Brimsek and coach Phil Watson will serve as instructors in the school at Queen's University. Dates are July 27 to Aug. 7.

Gordon Arbuckle, Rangers Garden. Twice-daily classes begin Monday and run for three weeks.

It's the first such school organized by Rangers.

"We don't expect to develop any future Rangers," Arbuckle said, "but we know that many enthusiastic boys from the surrounding area never get either the facilities nor the opportunity for proper instruction and training. We are confident that his school will contribute materially to the development of players."

Junior Golfers Grab Spot In Ontario Amateur Tourney

By DENNIE ORCHARD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario amateur golf championship and fourth spot on the Ontario's Willingdon Cup team highlight stakes today as four top young golfers tee off in the semi-final round of the amateur tourney.

Defending champion Mick Weslock, 62, was knocked out of Saturday's quarter-final play by 22-year-old Ken Capps of Dundas, who defeated the Windsor Essex veteran 2 and 1. Capps is the eldest of the four semi-finalists.

TWO-STROKE MARGIN

Capps, the 1955 junior champ, had a two-stroke margin over Weslock after the first nine and then came back to birdie the 10th, 14th and 18th holes, finished two under the par 71. Weslock was having a rough time with his drives.

In the other three qualifying matches Cowan defeated Bill Maize of Thornhill 6 and 5; Panasiuk ourled Bill Bell of Ancaster 3 and 2, and Brownlee won 3 and 2 over fellow MacKenzie of Toronto Lambton.

In today's semi-finals Cowan faces Brownlee and Capps meets Panasiuk. Winners of the two matches tee off for the championship.

The amateur champ automatically becomes a member of the Willingdon Cup team. Brownlee must win the title or lose the fourth - place spot he holds at present, whereas Cowan must win to regain the place he once held on the team.

FIVE BIRDIES

Brownlee shot a string of five birdies from the sixth to 10th holes in his match against MacKenzie yesterday and was three under par when the contest ended at the 16th hole. MacKenzie gave him little to worry about.

Cowan's match against Maize was a one-sided affair, ending at the 15th hole with Cowan four under par. He didn't lose a hole.

Panasiuk took a five - stroke lead over Bell in the first 12 holes but dropped two holes before winning on the 16th.

Tribe Manager, Min Minoso Stage Rhubarb in Boston

By BOB HOOBING

BOSTON (AP) — Cleveland may be out of first place but not the headlines. The irate Indians today found their manager protesting a game he can't protest and an outfielder refusing to pay a fine he hasn't received.

It happened Friday night when Joe Gordon and Minnie Minoso were thrown out by plate umpire Frank Umont during Cleveland's 8-7 squeaker over Boston.

At the time umpires called interference on an eighth-inning play, manager Gordon stomped and roared. Several more loud and harsh words later he got the boot.

Against baseball's conduct rules, Gordon ruled from the dugout Saturday. His punishment to announce he would protest to Joseph Cronin.

Umont said he couldn't protest in his role of ostensible. While left fielder Minoso was out of the box scuawking. Red Sox player-coach Pumpsie Green strikes across the plate, Umont called them, signalled Minoso was out and touched off another rhubarb. The count had been 3-2.

Minoso threw his bat, which Umont had to duck, and then he charged the umpire. Teammates pulled him off but Umont said he'd have to call Portofino American League President Joseph Cronin. Minoso's standing he was bumped by Minoso.

"He no pay fine," shouted the surly Latin from the dressing room. "They fine me I write letter to president (Cronin). I no Ted Williams. I no have that kind of money. No fine. I no pay nobody but I no hit umpire. They not going to put fine on me. I no pay fine."

Minoso said he had refused to "but because coach Jo Jo White was not in his usual position at third.

Committee May Take Action On Tennis Star

CHICAGO (AP) — The clay court championships committee of the U.S. Lawn Tennis Association has called a meeting to decide what action, if any, to recommend to the national U.S. Davis Cup star Alex Olmedo.

The recommendation probably will be adopted by the group at its meeting next Sept. 4-11.

Olmedo's alleged illegal performance when he lost to Abe Segal of South Africa in the national clay court tournament quarter - finals here this week caused critics to default him from the doubles.

Olmedo was regretful, but denied he apologize to person.

JONES CRITICAL

Perry Jones, captain of the cup team, maintained officials should have allowed Olmedo to play after the match.

"It would all have blown over by now if they had let Alex come to the court, make a little speech that he was sorry, and then returned to the match," he said.

Whitney Reed defeated Larry Nagler 6-2, 6-4, 9-7 in the semi-final Friday and on Sunday will meet the winner of today's match between Dave Ragland of Pasadena, Calif. and defending champion Tut Bartzen of Dallas.

Regular Weekly Hour Shows Will Be Greatly Increased

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—"I think the trend is to hour shows in TV," says George Burns, and the networks seem to think so, too.

Recently Burns was observing the TV scene with me and remarking that he doesn't want to return to the weekly half-hour grind. He was doing an occasional show of an hour's duration.

"Most of the programming will eventually be hours," said the comedian. "It makes more sense. With an hour show, you can attract several sponsors instead of being beholden to one who wants to have his say on what goes into the show. And you lose that one, you're usually dead.

"Besides, an hour show gives you a chance to get broader scope. It's almost impossible to develop any kind of a plot in a half hour."

A glance at the fall programming shows that regular weekly hours will be greatly increased on the networks.

NBC HAS 12

NBC jumps to 12 from seven in the 60-minute programs. Last season it had Steve Allen, Perry Como, Cavalcade of Sports, Wagon Train, Dinah Shore's Show, Cimarron City and Ellery Queen. The latter two were dropped, but the others will be back.

They'll be joined by four new filmed adventurers: Riverboat, Laramie, Bonanza and Five Fingers; regular series of specials on Tuesday and Friday nights, plus the new Sunday-night three dramatic specials.

ABC, the pioneer of the filmed hours, adds its new ones in the fall: The Alaskans, Cheyenne (a new hour-long series), Bourbon Street Beat, Adventures in Paradise, Hawaiian Eye and The Untouchables. These are added to the renewed 60-minute shows: Maverick, Bronco — Sugarfoot, Wednesday night fights, Walt Disney Presents, 77 Sunset Strip, Lawrence Welk and Jubilee USA. Total: 13.

Have you ever counted the number of small tubes in your television set? There are usually about 20 but there would be many more if it weren't for the never-ending work of engineers. Through their efforts some tubes have been designed to do the work of two or three, which means that more efficiency can be built into TV sets without increasing the number of tubes.

Needless to say, multi-purpose tubes add further to the complicated nature of television sets and service technicians require long training and experience to diagnose and repair troubles. The service men at CIRCLE TV SERVICE, 304 Coleman St., have the latest equipment. For fast service call WO 8-8791. (In Trenton EX 2-7699).

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — One of those blue Mondays when you want to go off on a spending spree, you can ill afford, or invest in wildcat schemes. Take it easy and impress those to whom you have a duty that you can and will use home prudently.

Aquarius (Jan. 2 1to Feb. 19) A day when so many distinct personalities can come into your life who will keep you conversing incessantly. If you permit. Be firm, and go about your business. In particular, take those health and beauty treatments.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) You are apt to blame others now for your seeming inability to advance, but the fault lies with you. Get busy studying new systems that can spell real success, but begin operations later. P.M. help the worthy needy.

If your child is born today . . . The dear child born today will soon come to the conclusion that what is most desired, or anything wanted, should be be bought for physically. QUEEN WILL CANADA'S ATOMIC 1st Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry and a pennant to the King's Own Calgary 14th Armored Regiment.

Three of some 450 men on parade finished during the ceremony and one woman among the spectators apparently suffered a heart attack and died on the spot.

Sixteen aircraft flew overhead in an X formation and seven parachute jumpers landed off the park.

After the luncheon, where the Queen and Prince Philip received gifts of a silver-and-gold desk set and cigaret box, 383 guests turned up.

After lunch, the royal couple drove to Clover Point where they were greeted by 4,000 persons.

In late afternoon, the royal couple spent more than an hour at a Government House garden party where the Queen and Prince circulated among 4,000 guests.

In the evening, the Queen attended a private dinner with 24 guests at Government House.

She and Prince Philip watched from the royal suite as the navy staged a fireworks display in the strait.

ASKS ABOUT PROGRAM

Senator Dworshak observed that the U.S. had purchased hundreds of millions of dollars worth of Canadian uranium and wondered whether Canada was putting some of these earnings into military atomic development.

"It seems very peculiar to me if Canada has been dragging her feet intentionally," he said.

"What do we have to do, carry the entire burden for everybody?" Gen. Herbert Loper, an assistant to Defence Secretary Neil McElroy, offered assurances that the U.S. government was fully sympathetic with Canada's position.

He said the U.S. did not want Prince Albert to get into military development work in the atomic field because this would duplicate U.S. work and waste a great many Canadian resources.

THE GOLDEN YEARS

Many People Entering Retirement Show Little Savvy About Money

By THOMAS COLLINS

Many people now going into retirement aren't showing too much savvy about money. Here are areas in which this is particularly true:

1. Savings. Money in our time is not static. It is changing in value all the time. If you put your savings in a static investment, such as a savings account, where you will get back exactly what you put in, you are not letting your $10 grow into $20, which is what money has been doing in the last 10 years. On the other hand, if you put your savings into something that changes as the value of money changes, you are gambling. Because nobody knows from one day to the next whether things will go up or down.

INVESTMENTS

2. Investments. Many intelligent people believe nowadays that you can get 4 per cent on your savings, with reasonable safety, in the stock market. Say you have $20,000. If you have it in a savings account at 2½ per cent you're getting about $42 a month. In stocks at 4 per cent you'd get about $67. The $25 extra could make a difference with a pension. But if you had only $5,000, the extra would total only about $6 a month, and would be hardly enough to matter. Many of the mutual funds now deal heavily in stocks. If you want stocks, and know nothing about them, the funds are a safer bet. But whatever — you can't beat the game. You put your money where it's safe and take a chance of being hurt by inflation. Or you gamble on what the economy will do.

3. Insurance. Retired people by the thousands hold, into their 60's, the life insurance they bought to protect their children in their 40's. Most such policies can be converted by your insurance company into something far more advantageous to you.

4. Housing. Say you own a $15,000 paid-for house, and sell it to move into a city apartment. Say you pay, in round figures, $600 a year to live in it . . . divided among taxes, insurance, upkeep, heat and water (all of which you escape in most apartments). Your $15,000 in the house would be worth $600 a year if you got it out and invested it. So, in effect, your house is costing you $1,200 a year. Could you get an apartment for that?

SMART SHOPPING

5. Shopping. In the two years before retirement you should do some of the smartest shopping of your life, and a lot of it. Buy nothing but quality merchandise. So many things — shoes, clothing, refrigerator, car, furniture — will last for many years if you will stock up on them around age 64 when you're still in the money, and if you'll buy the best quality you can find.

Only rich people can afford to buy cheap merchandise . . . as I haven't you learned that yet?

Your Car

See a Mechanic If Carburetor Needs Service

By EUGENE MILMOE

What do you do about poor carburetor operation? You might first check on idle speed and mixture settings, but make no adjustments until the engine is warmed up. If this doesn't help, the trouble probably is due to an incorrect float level, dirt, gum or varnish, defective gaskets, worn parts or a faulty choke.

When it comes to rebuilding a carburetor or replacing parts, a good mechanic is definitely the best bet. In most cases, this also is true of float and choke adjustments since comparatively few car owners know how to tackle these jobs properly.

However, when dirt, gum or sludge is clogging the carburetor, you can often give it a good cleaning without calling for professional help. Easy-to-use solvents available for this purpose do not require dismantling or removing the carburetor from the engine.

F. D. writes: "The automatic top on my '57 convertible doesn't work. Any idea what may be wrong?"

(A) It could be the hydraulic pump or fluid, wiring or connections, motor, switch or relay. In other words, it may take some expert troubleshooting.

M. F. asks: "I bought a second-hand car a few weeks ago and just discovered the former owner had filled it with a very thick engine oil. Could this be done to quiet the engine?"

(A) Heavy oil may have been used to cushion a noisy engine or to slow down excessive oil burning.

From R. M.: "My engine doesn't have enough get away or high speed power and it also tends to overheat. Could these conditions stem from one trouble?"

(A) Possibly. The fan belt on your car also drives the generator. If it's slipping it can affect both ignition and engine cooling.

W. E. writes: "Please tell us why we can't get our car engine to idle. So far I've put in a new carburator, new plugs, new points, new coil, new battery and a rebuilt fuel pump."

(A) Check the manifold closely, particularly connections and gaskets. An air leak there could be your trouble.

re Two Cases f Hepatitis t Mom Whyte's

BOWMANVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Dr. Charlotte Horner of Cobourg said today there have been two cases of hepatitis among children of Mrs. Bertha (Mom) Whyte's home for children in this town near Oshawa.

Director of the Northumberland-Durham counties health unit, she said "we may have more cases."

Dr. Horner denied an earlier report in which she was quoted as saying overcrowding at the home is causing concern among doctors.

Dr. J. C. Sinclair of the Banting Institute in Toronto has been summoned here to administer gamma globulin blood extract as a precaution to stop spread of the disease to any of the other 104 children in the home.

Linda Marsh, 11, was taken to an isolation hospital in Toronto for treatment after she contracted the disease which attacks the liver and causes intense sickness. One of the most pronounced symptoms is jaundice.

Infectious hepatitis can be spread by personal contact, contamination of food and poor sanitation.

QUEEN NOW 'TREMENDOUSLY IMPROVED'

Test Ban Talks Make Progress, Berlin Stalled

West Has Counter-Plan On German Question

GENEVA (AP) — Britain and the United States offered today to let the Soviet Union provide the one-third of the technical staff to control posts in Berlin and the United States. The chief of a control post in Russia and his deputy would have to be British and American, while the chief and deputy chief of a control post in Britain and the United States would always be Russian.

The British and American delegations hitherto had insisted that not more than four of the approximately 30 technicians on a control post could be from the Soviet country. The Soviet Union, on the other hand, has thus far agreed to allow no more than six or seven of the control technicians to be foreigners, with all the remainder provided by the host country.

The new Western proposal was in the form of an amendment to the draft article of the proposed test ban treaty which provides for the staffing of 180 fixed test ban control posts to be set up around the world.

The Western proposal suggested dividing the technical staff of each control post on the territory of one of the nuclear powers into three equal parts. One-third would be nominated by the host country, a third by the other side among the three listed nuclear powers and a third by powers other than the three original parties.

GENEVA (AP)—In an effort to find a way to end the Berlin crisis, the West proposed to Russia today the creation of a continuing conference of foreign ministers, with East and West German advisers, to negotiate a German peace settlement.

U.S. State Secretary Christian A. Herter presented the Western compromise offer, after rejecting a proposal by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko for formation of an all-German committee to negotiate unification and a peace treaty during the 18-month Berlin truce.

The purpose of the Soviet plan, putting forward the proposal in all too clearly to perpetuate the division of Germany, Herter said in a speech to the big four foreign ministers.

He then made the Western counter-proposal, which would retain West Berlin's big power responsibility for German unification and a peace treaty, but would specifically provide for increasing contacts between West Germany and communist East Germany.

FRANCE RELUCTANT

The proposition, which has West Germany's full support, was reluctantly agreed to by France Saturday after a week of Western disagreement.

Under the Western plan the Big Four commission could direct the West and East Germans to form a subcommittee to discuss specific items assigned by the parent commission. But any decision still would rest with the Big Four.

The Western ministers planned a strategy session this afternoon before a working luncheon with Gromyko and a semi-public plenary counterpoise session this afternoon.

The outline of the counter-proposal was reached in a strategy session during the weekend held by U.S. State Secretary Christian Herter, British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd and French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville together with the West German foreign minister, Heinrich von Brentano.

Western officials called the counter-proposal a compromise. But few, if any, expected the Russians to accept the plan.

The Americans were talking about a fall-back position should the Russians turned down the counter-proposal. This would call for the foreign ministers to turn the entire German question over to a conference of deputies, probably at the ambassadorial level.

82 PERSONS DIE OVER WEEKEND, ONTARIO HAS 30

Fires, Traffic Take Big Toll

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two Maritime fires claiming 12 lives and a total of 17 persons killed on Ontario's roads, jammed with holiday traffic, boosted the nation's toll to 82 deaths during the weekend.

A Canadian Press survey from 6 p.m. local time Friday to midnight Sunday showed Ontario leading the provinces with 30 dead. Quebec had 19, British Columbia 14, Alberta eight, Newfoundland six, Alberta four and Prince Edward Island, Manitoba and Saskatchewan two each. New Brunswick reported no fatalities.

Fires in Newfoundland and Nova Scotia each took six lives. Seven persons were drowned in Quebec.

NINE ONT. DROWNINGS

Ontario reported nine drownings, one death by fire and three killed in other accidents.

The Ontario dead:

Susan Bortolotti, 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Bortolotti of Windsor was drowned Friday night at Colby Beach five miles south of Windsor.

Mrs. Blanche Scott, 42, and Timothy Kreik, 6, both of Lucknow, were drowned while swimming together in the Bruce River Saturday. Both are from Manotick.

Heather Le, one-year-old Peterborough girl was run over by a truck Friday, died Saturday in a Toronto hospital.

DRIVER CHARGED

Carman Theaubeau, 23, of Espanola, was killed by a car Friday night at Elliott Lake. Her mother, Mrs. Gilbert Theaubeau, and brother Gaetan, Mrs. Doris Thompson, 29, were injured. Police charged Lloyd Beange, 21, driver of the car, with criminal negligence.

Barbara Loucks, 5, of Kitchener, died Saturday after being hit by a car.

Charles Atchison, 36, is believed to have drowned Friday

Prime Minister Says

Use of Nuclear Weapons On Free Nations Possible

"OTTAWA (CP) — Use of nuclear weapons against the free world nations is a distinct possibility, Prime Minister Diefenbaker declared Saturday night, and he implied that the cost of safeguarding Canada's ability to survive any such attack will run high.

"Governments cannot adopt merely a fatalistic attitude but have a duty incumbent upon them to safeguard the ability of the nation to survive even a nuclear war," he said as the Commons debated war emergency planning and civil defence.

Defence Minister Pearkes will head the country's revised and decentralized civil defence establishment, he said. Another federal-provincial meeting on civil defence will be held in October.

Health Minister Monteith, italicizing the shifting policy in civil defence caused by possible unheralded nuclear attack, said adequate provision of relatively light and inexpensive shelters against radiation are an "increasingly urgent problem."

"I believe within the next few months we will be able to discuss with provincial authorities some proposals for establishing the appropriate shelters and evacuation and shelter, particularly shelter against fallout."

The belief that evacuation useless in today's nuclear age was advanced by Arnold Peters (CCF—Timiskaming) and Lucien Regnier (PC—St. Boniface).

Paul Martin, former Liberal health minister under whose wing civil defence came, said he was "extremely disappointed" at Mr. Macarthy's general statement. It contained no new information.

Background to the debate was Mr. Diefenbaker's announcement Friday that—purely as a precaution and in no way signalling any worsening of international relations—the government had begun planning for a powerful war supplies agency to function at the start at least of any nuclear attack.

The Saturday debate included a discussion between Mr. Diefenbaker and Opposition Leader Pearson on the constitutional procedures required to throw the nation into a state of emergency if attacked—a problem complicated by the probability that convening of Parliament would be much too slow.

Douglas Fisher (CCF — Port Arthur) asked the prime minister whether $175,000 being allocated to planning was sufficient for the purpose.

Mr. Diefenbaker replied that

Kassem Claims Suppression Of Pro-Communist Revolt

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Premier Abdel Karim Kassem's regime claims it has smashed a pro-Communist revolt and army mutiny in Ira's northern oil region, but press reports from Cairo and Damascus say clashes are continuing.

Arab dispatches said hundreds of casualties resulted from the fighting that broke out Wednesday, while Iraq was celebrating the anniversary of Kassem's 1958 overthrow of the Iraqi monarchy. The entire northeast area was reported to have been almost in a state of civil war.

The military governor, Ahmed Saleh Abdi, declared in a broadcast that the rebellion has been only been scattered clashes and that order had been restored.

Baghdad Radio said Kassem in an appeal by Kassem to "those who have strayed to go back to the right road." In the toughest tone he has yet used, Kassem declared: "We will settle accounts with any and all who attack the unity of Iraq."

Reports from Cairo and Damascus, capitals of President Nasser's United Arab Republic, gave this account of the trouble:

Leftist army and police units in Kirkuk, a city of about 70,000, 150 miles north of Baghdad, clashed with Communist demonstrators last Wednesday and 37 persons were killed and 150 injured.

The local authorities had almost restored order when the 2nd Brigade of the 2nd Army Division mutinied, killed the deputy division commander, blew up bridges and seized strategic points in and around Kirkuk.

The bodies of at least 15 persons, including the commander and local officials, were hanged or dragged through the streets.

Incidents occurred elsewhere in Iraq, including a fatal attack on one of Kassem's aides in Baghdad.

Kassem blasted the Kirkuk disorders in an anniversary speech before the altar of the Roman Catholic Church of St. Mary in Baghdad.

12-HOUR MEET CLOSES SESSION OF PARLIAMENT

Withdraw Measure Against Loss Leaders

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament has ended its 1959 session with a few newly - announced government policies to think about and some unfinished business left behind in the closing rush.

A non-stop push by the Commons Saturday ending shortly before midnight topped off the 12-day session, and weary MPs and senators stifled on until proprogation ceremonies wrote a formal finish at 12:40 p.m. Sunday after a marathon 12½-hour sitting.

When Parliament opens its new session, probably next January, it will face some government legislation that was withdrawn on Saturday, apparently in order to hurry things up.

Biggest item is Prime Minister Diefenbaker's bill of rights. In a concession to the Liberal demands, he said a Joint parliamentary committee will be set up next session to study the bill that was introduced in draft form at the close of last year's session and was never formally introduced this year.

SLASHES BILL

In the closing minutes Saturday Justice Minister Fulton slixed the bottom out of anti-combines legislation. He explained his action by saying the amendments had been received on the matter, and further study was advisable before next session. Deleted were a prohibition against minimum-resale-price and a section allowing manufacturers to withhold goods from retailers who persistently use them as loss leaders — below-cost bargains to attract customers.

The Commons approved the appointments of three heads of departments of finance and health and welfare, which after absence are the two biggest-spending departments. In less than a minute it okayed appointment of the revenue department, which had

Police Seek Men Posing as Bank Officials

CHESLEY, Ont. (CP) — Police here are looking for two men who posed as bank inspectors to rob a woman of about $2,500 last week.

Two men visited Miss Anne Agnew, who lives with her aged 16 miles southwest of Owen Sound, saying they were inspectors from the bank where she had her account and required her signature on their banking forms.

Police said the women signed two forms after being convinced house repairs she had been considering.

The forms turned out to be cheques. The first, made out for $1,800, was cashed at the bank. The men returned Friday to present the second for $700.

'Upset Stomach Pure And Simple' Quickly Passes

Indisposition Said Due To Heat and Tiredness

WHITEHORSE, Y. T. (CP)—Queen Elizabeth suffered a stomach upset Sunday but the Royal Tour of Canada continues today on schedule.

The announcement of the Queen's indisposition — officially ascribed to the heat and tiredness—brought disappointment to this Yukon capital Sunday and for a time to fears the remainder of the 45-day tour which began June 18 might be curtailed or even cancelled.

These fears, it seems clear, were groundless. It was announced Sunday night that Her Majesty was "tremendously improved" after a day of rest and that the program will be continued.

Ahead lie 13 gruelling days before the Queen and Prince Philip, bid farewell to Canada from Halifax Aug. 1.

The Queen and Prince Philip arrived in Whitehorse Saturday by plane after three days in Vancouver and Victoria during which they participated in 20 official functions.

QUEEN TIRED

Palace aides said but to reporters' questions about her health, official assurances were given that she was feeling fine though tired.

Then came the Sunday morning press - conference announcement that she was ill of a slight stomach upset.

At first it was thought officially that it might have been due to something she had eaten but after the Queen's surgeon-gynaecologist, D. G. Steele-Perkins, said he had concluded it was because of the prevailing heat and general weariness.

The temperature was 72 in Whitehorse Saturday when the royal plane arrived but dropped to a refreshing 62 Sunday.

SIMPLE CEREMONY

Saturday's welcome to the Queen and Prince of Whitehorse was simple so much so that the Queen seemed touched.

There was no red carpet—just a rug on a muddy airport tarmac and a group of children singing "God Save the Queen." There were few introductions then a drive through the town and a visit to a Yukon home.

Mayor Gordon Cameron told reporters he waited for the royal plane's arrival: "Up this time I obeyed protocol let alone protocol."

Prince Philip filled the Sunday gap between the time the Queen was forced to miss. He attended services in the Anglican Church of Canada—a log structure that is believed to be the only log cathedral in the world—and the Dance Con City, 300 miles north, for a 24-hour visit there and to fly over a short airport stop, returning to Whitehorse in the evening. 'Mommy, What Is It Like to Die?' But Tiny Girl, Family Were Saved

MOAB, Utah (AP) — Eight hundred people and one glass of water, a spoonful at a time . . . a burning sun with only a dishcloth as a sun shield . . . a little salmon-egg fish bait for food . . . and, finally, a thirsty child's question:

"Mommy, what does it feel like to die?"

That was Diane Scott, 9, trying to sleep after almost two days of hardship.

The mother, 35-year-old Laura Lee answered:

"It would be like going to sleep. You'd just go unconscious and not feel pain."

"Will I get water in heaven?"

"Yes, honey, you will get water."

Diane didn't die. Neither did her mother, 11-year-old Mary, or their five other children, ages 2 to 12. A search plane spotted them Sunday, where their car had stranded them for two days in the Colorado River canyon lands of Rocks. It is near where the Green and Colorado Rivers join in southeastern Utah.

They drove into the rugged, treeless country Friday morning, to see the breathtaking view from Dead Horse Point, a bluff that overlooks the Colorado River gorge about 35 miles northwest of Moab, the nearest community.

They took some wrong turns and got stuck in sand in a dry, red radiator burst. Then the crankcase oil pan was damaged and the car quit.

"We survived by keeping cool under the dirt," Scott said after their rescue; "drinking water a little at a time from the radiator, one spoonful every 2½ hours. All the food we had was some salmon eggs, and we tried to eat cactus but our mouths were so dry we couldn't swallow it."

"We gave the children the radiator water after trying to purify it by straining it. . . . It had a permanent type anti-freeze in it"—not the poisonous denatured alcohol type.

Scott explained that the family buried themselves in sand up to their necks, to avoid the burning rays of the sun.

They were rescued after two flyers searching for them saw the car near an S.O.S. sign made of rocks.

Shoots Merchant, Beats to Death Girl, Aged 17

QUAKER, Mo. (AP) — A 19-year-old boy described by authorities as a hard-bolled pimply adolescent Sunday shot to death and killed a country storekeeper, beat a 17-year-old girl to death and critically wounded two other persons because he and his 14-year-old bride "got married and have a big time."

The youth identified Leonard Barr, 57, and Bobbie Lou Shipp, 17, Washington county Sheriff Thomas B. Allen identified the admitted killer as John Crump and his companion as John Edward Davis.

The sheriff said Barr's wife, Vallie, 52, was cut down by two shotgun blasts and their daughter Ella Jo, 16, was severely beaten. Both were listed in critical condition.

Whitehorse Folks Hold Two Parties For Queen and Just for Hell of It

WHITEHORSE, Y. T. (CP)—Let's have a party.

That's what the subhead in the newspaper headline said and that's what Whitehorse did.

The typical northern reaction to any occasion is a party and this weekend Whitehorse had about its biggest occasion in history.

The Queen came to town with Prince Philip and the rest of the royal party. And the Whitehorse Star, this weekend there will be two celebrations: one for the Queen and one just for the hell of it."

The city, capital of the Yukon and dusty despite putting every available truck to work watering the streets, has responded with its informal and partying best.

Many residents wore dressed in costume of the 1898 era — the bowler hat, striped vest and tails of the gentleman and the calf-skirted ankle - length dress and bonnet of the town ladies.

This wasn't particularly in honor of the Royal Visit—the visit just happens to coincide with an annual wild - north celebration known as the Carcross to Dawson Trail of '98.

It starts the historic gold rush to the Yukon and the costuming of the citizenry is not the only part of the celebration.

The works of Robert Service are recalled nightly with re-enactment of his shooting of Dan McGrew in a Main street theatre named lady known as Lou.

The city's six bars do a landoffice business but little before than normal, and thus it came as no surprise to Whitehorse citizens when a drunk led the crowds viewing the Queen in three runs of police.

Some special decorations were put up for the Queen's visit and Whitehorse Star publisher Larry Boyle printed a special editorial for the occasion, entitling it "Queen, you are okay in our books."

Special badges were made for the visiting press corps following the royal party. The Queen through her press secretary, refused one.

It displayed a large pair of eyes and the inscription around them "Yukon Queen — watcher's badge."

In the front window of the Star's building on Main street, a bath tub was placed and over the front of the building was stretched this sign: "Baths 50 cents. Back in 75 cents). Royal Family free all this week."

Farmers Arrive To Support Castro Program

HAVANA (AP) — Thousands of straw-hatted, machete-carrying peasants are arriving early for a demonstration next Sunday in support for Fidel Castro and his agrarian reform program.

The revolutionary leader himself was in seclusion today, his location still not revealed. There was some speculation that he might not take back the premiership he resigned Friday, possibly he might pick someone to carry out his policies while he devotes most of his time to the land redistribution program. But in any case he clearly will continue to lead Cuba.

The farmers were spilling into Castro's capital from as far as 500 miles away, answering the call of their bearded leader for 500,000 to attend the anniversary celebration of the country's successful attack July 26, 1953, on repressive dictator Batista.

Cuba meanwhile rocked along under a standstill government, waiting for the next Castro plans to do. But the new presidential aide, Osvaldo Dorticos, told a Boston radio station by telephone that he considers Castro the premier.

The 40-year-old lawyer also said Castro's resignation Saturday Urrutia, whom Castro forced out of the presidency in a showdown in Cuba and probably will remain in the country.

Castro accused Urrutia of near treason because he had spoken out at a Commercial Club dinner after the former chief of the Cuban air force, Maj. Pedro Luis Diaz Lanz, told a U.S. congressional committee that Castro and leaders of his government were Communists.

Castro's attack on Urrutia caused strong support among the Cuban masses, but the reaction in some middle and upper class circles was adverse. The president, a former judge, was considered a moderate and the business community felt his departure had removed a brake on the revolutionary forces.

16 Basements Are Pumped Out By Works Dept.

Belleville's Public Works Department maintains a twenty - hour hour service for the benefit of local citizens, who can report problems pertaining to such problems involving the department's duties simply by phoning WO 8-7324 in the city hour. Saturday night some 16 local householders had their basements flooded by the extraordinarily heavy rainfall, pumped out by the department's personnel and equipment.

Several streets and intersections were flooded by the downpour, which overloaded the sewer system, resulting in the manhole covers at North Front and Harriet Streets and at Dundas and Pinnacle streets being carried from their positions by the surging water.

Road flooding was noticed in several parts of the city, particularly at Godfrey Gardens subdivision, where the Public Works Department, and on Bleecker at Queen street. This was due in most instances to the fact that the sewer system is not designed to handle the enormous rainfall experienced, which amounted to almost one-half inch per hour. Very few streets in the city are designed to carry such a load, advises city sewer system officials.

The ditching system in the annexed area on the west is still under construction, and will be completed in that area.

Ask Utilities To Consider Tank Erection

TRENTON—The Public Utilities Commission was requested to give serious consideration to the erection of an elevated water tank on the east side of the Trent River, in the report to report from the supervisor of water works, Cliff Gunter.

Mr. Gunter did not mention the size of the tank he would recommend or where it should be situated. However the Commission has previously discussed such a tank and at the time felt one about the same size as that on Mount Pellon would be adequate and that the tank would be best spot to place it.

No decision was made at the meeting and the matter is for discussing such a tank was to enable the commission to blend the water from the filtration plant with supplies from the newly discovered well on Sidney Street. The water in the new well is very low in iron quite hard and the commission felt that if it could be blended with the water from the filtration plant it would take out the hardness and the softener is necessary to blend the two waters.

Mr. Gunter's reason for a tank is a different one and in his report says: "I was recently my attention forcibly Monday morning when one of the pumps developed an air lock in order to remove the air we had to close down the pump which put this shut the water off, but we were fortunate that we have the pump during again in about 10 minutes. During that time we had about 20 calls at both offices. There are air compressors available which would be ruined in a short time and when we have to shut down we are in trouble for any length reason the reserve which is held in a large tank would be large enough to carry over until the pumps are working again and in no way is there would be no water shut offs as mentioned in the report and would eliminate any danger to machinery because of minor breakdowns. If it is needed the PUC members will discuss it at a future meeting.

Heavy Deluge Saturday Night Plugs Sewers

TRENTON — Lightning and thunder Saturday night broke open clouds and the heaviest for any one period this year. The Met office at the RCAF Station reports that 1.36 inches fell.

The heaviest downpour came at about midnight and was too much for many of the streets and sewers to take and water reported "knee-deep" in some places.

In some cases paper refuse on the streets was washed down to the sewers and was carried up by the pressure of water held them there. In other places the sewers backed up, being unable to handle the heavy on-rush of water and people are now in claim water was gushing out of the drains and about "two feet" in the air.

However no serious damage or casualties resulted from rain water or the bright bursts of lightning. One police constable reporting the storm and said he was on a roof top when a bolt of lightning struck something where "over by the Legion Hall." No damage is reported from this area, so it was presumed the bolt hit out in the lake.

No serious accidents were reported during the storm or on Sunday by police officials and the fire department made no calls. They did receive one call from a local resident who claimed his cellar was flooding during the heavy rain.

Man Remanded For Week in Escape Case

TRENTON — Ross Harry Fenton, 33, of Toronto (formerly Brighton) was remanded for one week last Friday when he appeared before Magistrate Ronald B. Hunter in Colborne on a charge of assisting in the escape of three prisoners from the Ontario Reformatory at Guelph.

The accused was arrested on Thursday in Brighton the day following the capture of the three escapees and after appearance in court ball was set at $1,000 which was put up by his father.

Complete details concerning the daring escape made avail able by Cpl. L. G. Lyle of the Ontario Provincial Police Detachment in Brighton who made the arrest. Harry Deyman will be heard this week.

The three captured escapees Fenton is accused of helping are Herbert Perry of Brighton, Jack Knight of Downsview and Don Bittman of Owen Sound. They had escaped from the reformatory on Saturday, July 4 during party near the prison and were captured about 18 hours later near Perry's home in Brighton by the Ontario Provincial Police there.

Arrest Driver After Crash, One Injured

TRENTON — One man was taken to the Trenton Memorial Hospital and damage was estimated at $2,000 to a car and property when one vehicle went out of control on Front Street at 7 p.m. Saturday, broke off a telephone pole, smashed a hedge and fence and slammed into a parked car.

Hector Lacey, 66 Front St., and a passenger in the car, was taken to hospital by Wesley's Ambulance where he was treated for a fractured right arm and elbow contusions of the cheek. The driver of the car, Romeo Leger, 68, of 65 Dundas Street, Trenton, was arrested and his damaged car impounded.

The parked car was owned by Douglas N. Richardson, 128 Front Street and damage to the complete front end, motor and hood was estimated at $1,000. Damage to the Leger car was estimated at $500 for the entire right side, front end, motor, radiator and hood. The pole, hedge and fence were damaged to an estimated $200.

Constable Ken Ellis in his report on the accident the parked car was completely off the travelled portion of the road and parked facing south in front of 65 Dundas.

The Leger vehicle was travelling north on Front St. when it left the road on the east side in front of house number 381, continued on a steep-sloped shoulder of the road where it hit the pole, broke off a telephone, continued on to clean out a small wire fence and a hedge, jump a driveway and come to a side-on into the parked car.

The force of the impact drove the parked car, which had its emergency brakes on, back about 25 feet and it was reported the Leger car came to a stop with its front end up on the hood of the other car.

The accident was investigated by Constable Ellis and Constable Herb Chatson of the Trenton police force.

Around Town With Al

TRENTON — Things are beginning to look rough for the Community Centre's heating system which installed last October at a cost of $4,433 and which is operated by natural gas.

The system consists of six individually operated open-flame heaters which have large fans which blow the heat down into the seats of the rink. All six were used last winter during the hockey season quite effectively.

This then last spring someone started to ask questions like: "Who issued a permit allowing the system to be installed?" and "Who gave permission to turn the gas on last fall without the system being properly inspected?"

Since then everything about the heaters and permits have been checked or less checked, ending up in the gas being turned off in the main and it has been that way ever since. This eliminates even the most remote possibility of any accident could happen.

Both good questions to ask at this time could be: "Will the gas be turned on again this fall without anyone being hurt?" This type of heater be allowed in a building such as the Community Centre?"

WANT SYSTEM REMOVED

It is understood that the Fire Marshal's office in Toronto has sent word to the town that as far as it is concerned the system is a fire hazard and should be taken out. The office has based its reason for this as reported, on two things, all joints, etc., in the pipes leading from natural gas to the heaters should be welded joints and not threaded joints; the heaters themselves should not be open flame and should be enclosed in a fireproof box capable of containing a fire for two hours. The possibility of natural gas other than actual fire would appear to be the main worry of the Fire Marshal's office.

It is not known if the Belleville office who the Fire Marshal's office on this but it is understood that they have laid claim that if they had received an application for a heating permit for a system such as this for a building such as a Community Centre they would not have issued a permit and the system would have never been installed in the first place.

Apparently the proper way to obtain a heating system in this case is for the contractor who receives the job to apply to Lake and Heating Gas Engineers and the gas company in turn applies to the Ontario Fuel Board. If the system is permissible then the Fuel Board issues the company with a "heating permit" and work can commence but nothing can be done until the actual permit is delivered.

On the local scene, John Fawcett, chairman of the Community Centre Board this year, says he has received official word on the heating system but that he has been informed three other rinks in the province of Ontario have the same type of heating system and that they have been working without any trouble.

Mr. Farrell was not on the board when the heating system was discussed, decided upon and installed.

One Board member, who was on the board last year, said either to remain unnamed, said though the contractor's Quinte Plumbing, Heating and Electrical representative claims it had received a permit before the system was installed. "No tang-

Plane Crash Kills Two Men Near Bancroft

BANCROFT — Two men were killed Sunday when their light seaplane stalled and crashed before the eyes of hundreds of swimmers at MacKenzie Lake, 30 miles northwest of here.

Dead are the pilot, Frank Grew, of Upper Canada Dr., North York, and a passenger, Kenneth C. Van Courte of Oshawa. Mr. Grew had a summer cottage at Baptiste Lake, 20 miles northwest of here.

Witnesses said the two-place Super Piper Cub was flying about 100 feet above MacKenzie Lake, and about 300 feet offshore, when it pulled up into a steep climb, stalled, and spiraled 200 feet nose first into the lake.

The impact broke off the wings and jammed the pontoons up into the fuselage.

Mr. Van Courte was still alive, but unconscious, when the first rescuers reached the crash site.

Dr. Howard McGarry of Niagara Falls, Taylor Johnson and his daughter, Sarah, 11, of Niagara Falls, N.Y., Colleen Pigeon of Ottawa, Miss Albert Deddon of Brantford, Mrs. Tom Andrews of Niagara Falls, N.Y., were treated for shock and minor injuries.

May Become Lord Thomson Of Porcupine

OTTAWA (CP) — A prediction that Roger Fisher, M.P. Thomson will become "Lord Thomson of South Porcupine" was made in the Commons Saturday by Douglas Fisher (CCF—Port Arthur).

Mr. Fisher said that public responsibility in criticizing the anti-CBC stand he said the Thomson newspapers share with those of the Sifton interests.

He follows Mr. Thomson papers carefully, Mr. Fisher said, and noted that when last week they "pour out a daily dose of poison against the CBC." He added:

Canadian Scouts Acclaimed For Rescue of 2 Filipinos

MOUNT MAKILIN, The Philippines (AP)—The 91-member Canadian contingent to the 10th world Scout jamboree is looked on here as a band of heroes.

For their heroism, they have received a written commendation from Dr. Fernando Lanzgaran of the camp director.

Lanzgaran referring to a fire incident Saturday when a fire truck delivering a tankful of water to the camp lost its brakes, turned over on its right side against a hill and pinned two Filipino Boy Scouts.

The accident was witnessed by Scout Master Howard Bailey of Scarborough, Ont., who lost no time in calling on his contingent to organize a work party. The entire delegation rushed to the truck, lifted it and freed the two Filipinos.

"SCOUTLY GESTURE"

In a letter to Dr. Eli Boyaner of Saint John, N.B., head of the delegation, and William Hellyar of St. Thomas, who looks after the Canadians' health and records, Dr. Lanzgaran expressed thanks "for this superb scoutly gesture, in the true spirit of service and camaraderie."

In an interview, the Canadians expressed embarrassment at being regarded as heroes, saying: "We just did what anyone would have done under the circumstances."

Hellyar said, however, he was glad to note a change in the morale of the camp.

"It was low (morale) at first, what with all the heat, the rain, the mud and shortage of water. But we are all glad we contributed something to make everybody feel better."

Has Private Rain Storm, No Clouds

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Charles Coval, a missile engineer, had his own private rainstorm Sunday — in a 20-foot square area without a cloud in the sky.

Scientific, said the weather bureau.

"I know it sounds screwy," said Coval, "but I can't find the source any place else. It's got to be rain."

He checked neighbors' sprinkling systems and the water company said there were no mains out in the area.

The rain began at 8 a.m. and continued most of the day.

The San Diego Union sent reporter Jim Brown to investigate. He reported back to the newspaper that it looks like rain, tastes like rain and, in his opinion, is rain.

But 20 feet away—and everyplace else in San Diego—there was no rain.

Pilot Escapes With Soaking

HAMILTON (CP) — A Toronto pilot escaped with a dunking today when his light plane crashed in a nearby marsh. The plane is used to spray insecticide over the mars his kill mosquitoes and black flies.

Douglas Pickering was taken from the water by the harbor police. Rescuers said Mr. Pickering told them he was making a low turn when a down-draft caught the plane and flipped it into the water.

The marsh is only four feet deep where the plane crashed, and Mr. Pickering stood beside his half-submerged craft until assistance arrived.

Untimely Death Of Minister 'Ends Struggle'

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Times said today the mysterious death of Dominican Minister Ramon Marrero Aristy ended a "long, lonely struggle" by the progressive minister for liberalize dictator Rafael Trujillo's regime.

Marrero and his chauffeur disappeared from death Friday night in the mysterious crash of their automobile on a mountain highway. Trujillo's government reported the minister died in the crash.

But Senile, Times correspondent who was forced out of the Dominican Republic Sunday, reported from Miami that:

Marrero, 45-year-old newspaper editor and labor specialist, was convinced Trujillo's regime could weather the crisis now facing it only by becoming more liberal and wiping out spreading corruption among high officials.

There was reason to believe Marrero may have looked on himself as a possible leader for the republic if Trujillo's regime collapsed.

UNDER STRONG PRESSURE

The Dominican regime is under strong pressure from opponents at home and in Cuba, where a number of anti-Trujillo men have taken refuge.

Senile said Marrero had remained loyal to Trujillo and had succeeded in persuading him to relax his policies a bit.

Informed sources told Senile that Marrero's car had fallen off a mountain road and that the minister and his chauffeur had been burned beyond recognition. Marrero was buried with military honors.

Senile arrived in Havana Sunday night reporting he had been served with a warrant in the United Trujillo charging him with defaming the former army chief of staff Gen. Rafael Mantno Bonetti Bogot. He said he was allowed to leave the Dominican capital only after the U.S. Embassy intervened.

CONCILIATION HEARING

SARNIA (CP) — A conciliation board Friday began hearing a dispute between Fiberglass (Canada) Limited and Local 16-351 of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union (CLC) after six months of contract negotiations failed. The union is seeking a 15 per cent wage increase and a reduction in the work week to 40 hours from 42.

Had Beer Stand At London Picnic

LONDON (CP) — Pawel Sierechon, 42, who said he set up a beer and liquor stand at a picnic in nearby Dorchester Sunday to raise money for the Lenten season, today was fined $125 and costs or two months in jail for illegal sale of liquor.

Sierechon, who pleaded guilty, said he had purchased 12 cases of beer and nine bottles of liquor and had sold a considerable quantity of it before provincial police plainclothesmen raided the township picnic grounds.

Bottles sailed through the air in all directions as the raid began.

Constable Robert Fulton later said that about half of the drinkers appeared to be teenagers.

Prince Edward Island Joins Health Plan

OTTAWA (CP) — Prince Edward Island became the ninth province to enter the National Hospital Insurance Plan. A formal agreement was signed here by Provincial Health Minister Donald Stewart and Federal Health Minister Monteith.

All provinces except Quebec now have entered the plan, under which the federal government pays half the cost of provincial hospital insurance programs. P.E.I. expects to put its plan into operation October 1st.

Fire Destroys Art Collection

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — Fire destroyed three art collections in a museum here Saturday night. The arsonists, apparently thrill-seeking vandals, left six swastikas painted on the walls as their calling cards.

Similar swastikas, symbol of Hitler's Nazi regime, have been scrawled on outer walls of seven Jewish houses of worship in this West Georgia city since Wednesday night.

Police had no definite clues.

The fire destroyed collections were valued at more than $15,000. A preliminary estimate placed damage to the two-storey Columbus Museum of Arts and Crafts at $5,000.

Seven European Powers Planning Free Trade Zone

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Ministers of seven European powers gathered today to put final touches to a plan for Western Europe's second free trade zone.

Fifteen ministers and about 100 experts and specialists from Austria, Britain, Denmark, Norway, Portugal, Sweden and Switzerland were to consider a 34-page plan worked out by experts from the participating nations, known as the "outer seven."

The plan's purpose is to remove trade barriers to catch up with the six-power common market of West Germany, France, Italy, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg.

This group, known as the "inner six," is creating a tight economic community under leadership of France and West Germany.

Derick Heathcoat Amory, British chancellor of the exchequer who heads his country's delegation, said the "outer seven" is in no sense a rival or retaliatory scheme to the common market. Swedish officials said the ultimate purpose still is to bring all 21 member countries of the Organization of European Economic Cooperation into a single free trade area.

Earlier attempts to realize European-wide free trade plans failed, largely because of French objections.

New Fishermen's Union Proposed

CORNER BROOK, Nfld. (CP) — The Newfoundland Federation of Labor today proposed to form a union to represent the province's estimated 10,000 fishermen.

Federation President Larry Daley presented the proposal to delegates and Federation of Fishermen "is being used by the union." Mr. Daley spoke at opening session of the federation's annual meeting here.

He said the great majority of the fishermen . . . are still without an effective voice, for the politically-dominated Fishermen's Union. Fishermen is really only a farce."

Texts of Mr. Daley's remarks were made available before delivery.

Italian Seamen Call off Strike

ROME (AP) — A worldwide strike of Italian seamen was called off Saturday after the government intervened in the dispute.

Shipowners estimated the 100-ship strike cost them more than $300,000 daily.

The seven Communist and non-Communist unions had not cooperated in the strike ordered their members back to work after Premier Antonio Segni and Angelo Raffaele Jervolino got a promise from inland and ship owners to resume negotiations Tuesday on the seamen's wage demands.

Leading Labor Trouble-Shooter Enters Picture

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The government's leading labor trouble-shooter, admittedly backing big odds, today attempts to break the costly steel strike deadlock.

George F. Flanagan, director of the federal mediation and conciliation service, had separate meetings scheduled in New York with contract negotiators for the basic steel industry (10 a.m. EDT) and the United Steelworkers union (2 p.m.).

Nearly 90 per cent of the steel-making capacity of the United States is shut off. Steel production loses entering the sixth day of the walkout totalled about $224,000,000.

Some 500,000 striking steelworkers cannot pay their wages amounting to some $50,000,000.

40,000 OTHERS LAID OFF

Approximately 40,000 workers in related industries, chiefly coal and transportation, have been laid off due to business slowdowns.

Under orders from President Eisenhower to press for a quick settlement, Flanagan was seeking some way to budge industry and union leaders from their entrenched positions and get joint negotiations under way again.

Flanagan has said he sees no quick or easy solution.

The Newfoundland unit refused to invoke the Taft-Hartley Labor Act to force resumption of the talks or to appoint a government fact-finding board to study the issues and make recommendations. That procedure under the Taft-Hartley Act.

Labor Head Says Smallwood Signs Death Warrant

CORNER BROOK, Nfld. (CP)—President Larry Daley of the Newfoundland Federation of Labor said here today Premier Smallwood "has signed his own death warrant."

Mr. Daley told about 100 delegates to the opening session of the federation's annual convention that labor had declared "war" on the provincial government. It is a defensive war that we shall be fighting against an aggressor that fumes and spits and froths at the mouth like a mad dog."

Text of Mr. Daley's remarks were made available before delivery.

Premier Smallwood last February raised on striking loggers to kick the International Woodworkers of America (CLC) out of Newfoundland and Labrador.

Newfoundland's two IWA locals later were decertified by the legislature.

Mr. Daley said the premier has attacked the right of organized labor in North America. "And he has failed. He has made a lot larger than he can chew . . . This is the big bite on which he is going to choke . . . and he will . . . In failing to defeat organized labor, he has signed his own death warrant."

B.C. Demands Part of N.W.

VICTORIA (CP) — Premier Bennett has proposed to the federal government that British Columbia be given part of the Northwest Territories in return for its provincial maintenance of the 600-mile Alaska Highway.

The deal would involve the part of the territories lying north of B.C.'s northern border west of the 120th meridian, which includes the power-rich and oil-rich Mackenzie River basin.

The extra territory could make British Columbia the largest province in Canada.

The premier disclosed in an exclusive interview that he has made the suggestion to Defence Minister Pearkes, who has been on the west coast for the royal visit.

Mr. Pearkes was not available for comment. But Mr. Bennett said he found the federal minister "very interested" in the proposal. It was indicated the defence minister will take the matter up with the cabinet on his return to Ottawa.

TWO DISTINCT PROBLEMS

Mayor Nathan Phillips of Toronto is reported to have been shocked by revelations of vice in the midtown Toronto area. He has established a committee to cope with the problem.

One would be happier about the prospects for effective action by this committee if one could escape the conviction that reports of the hearings of the Metropolitan Toronto Licensing Commission have hopelessly confused two separate problems. Prostitution and drug addiction have been linked so repeatedly in testimony that there is a real danger that even a committee composed of informed persons may regard them as identical problems. There are not. It is true that there are many more male drug addicts than female. It is also asserted by authorities on these two problems that few prostitutes are driven to this "oldest profession" in order to pay the exorbitant prices asked by drug "pushers" but rather that in most cases prostitution precedes drug addiction.

Bearing these two facts in mind, it is evident that we have here not one problem but two -- that every step which reduce the number of prostitutes may also reduce the number of drug addicts but not to the same degree and that steps taken to reduce the number of drug addicts will have little or no affect upon the number of prostitutes preying on their trade on Toronto's streets and in her parks, restaurants and rooming houses.

If there is one bright point in the widespread comment which has been stirred up by the Toronto hearings, it is that increasing attention is being given to the need for providing treatment for drug addicts. Sending them to prison accomplishes nothing. Federal authorities maintain that treatment for addiction is a provincial responsibility. It is said that provincial authorities hesitate to act because they fear that the first province which establishes an efficient treatment system may be called upon to treat addicts from outside its borders. If this fear is justified, it is the strongest evidence one could ask for the necessity of the setting up of such treatment centres, since it would prove that many of the addicts want to be cured and would welcome treatment.

A second interesting development is the attention which is being given to the proposal that legal doses should be provided at a reasonable cost to incurable addicts. There are many arguments against such a system, but the fact that it is in effect in British auguests that it is worth further study. If it works, the system has several obvious advantages. Addicts are likely to apply for treatment before the dosage they require gets very high and, being reached early in their addiction would stand a better chance of cure. Then, too, addicts would not be driven to crimes to obtain the price for a "fix." Though the picture painted of girls driven to prostitution because of a craving for drugs makes a strong appeal to the sense of pity in public, the truth is that, even if this picture were true which in most cases it apparently is not, the male addict is likely to be a much more dangerous enemy of society since he cannot, like the female, sell himself, but must steal from others.

WHY THIS POLICE BAN?

Billie Holiday, blues singer, drug addict and alcoholic, died in New York Friday.

Once she packed night clubs throughout the United States. But of recent years "jobs were small." "Because of her arrests," says the Associated Press story, "police had banned her from entertaining in night clubs here (New York City) in recent years."

If that is true, it is a good reason to sing the blues, for it denotes a low level of appreciation of a fundamental rule of good law -- the police have no right to ban anyone from entertaining. If they are supposed to do is to enforce laws which ban people from doing certain things. If Billie Holiday was barred from New York night club jobs by police order, we suspect it was under the guise of some licensing requirement. Licensing of places of public entertainment, or service, can be a useful protection for the general public; abused it can lead to unwarranted restrictions on personal liberty. Many a performer with low moral standards has the highest artistic standards -- and vice versa.

INTOXICATING THOUGHT

What a cockeyed life it must be for that unidentified Japanese gentleman who gets tipsy every time he eats.

Doctors found the stomach of "Mr. O." contained a yeasty substance that turned the food he consumed into alcohol.

Imagine getting spiffed on spinach, oiled on onions, blotto on beans or plastered on potatoes. (Cleveland Press.)

SALESMANSHIP

By EDGAR A. GUEST

The art of salesmanship is not Alone in pleasant ways
In urging folks to buy just what
You make or sell or press.

It's ope to cheer your fellow man
Whenever a deal is nigh,
But, oh, be just as pleasant when
The stranger doesn't buy.

For he who smiling goes away
And leaves a friend behind
May come again another day
An order big to find.

Perhaps He's a Cuspidor?

By Harold Weir in the Vancouver Sun

I wish to heaven that the astrologer who casts horoscopes for the morning paper and the astrologer who cast horoscopes for our own paper would get together on the astrological significance of my birthdate.

The one who functions for the morning paper has me floundering around in the mixed sign of Virgo. The one who pulls wool over the eyes of the celestial twins for the Sun has me bellowing under the sign of Leo.

Now obviously I cannot be both leonine and virginal at the same time since a celibate lion is practically unknown to human experience although, on the other hand, there have been instances of Leos with a fair amount of roaring.

Experts to whom I have put my problem, with some natural distress, have explained that I was born in what is called a "cusp," that is to say, at a moment when the sun was just coming out and Virgo was just coming in, or vice versa, and that I therefore am a product of both these creatures. All I can say is that I wish I had darned well been comfortable place to be and that it had known about such things much sooner than I did.

You see I was born about 11 o'clock of a fine Saturday morning in August almost a full month overdue. Clearly if this had been a week had been set explained to me, as it should have been, it would have been a simple enough matter for me to have been born a day earlier or to have been born a day longer and thus have evaded the astrological confusion that has haunted me all my days.

For this neglect I cherish a mild resentment, against my parents.

As it is, I'm in a constant state of confusion about my movements, horoscope, and its significance in terms of double astrology wise. For, like every prudent and rational person, I am constantly in doubt before undertaking any movement of significance. I rush to the door at the crack of dawn to fish in the morning paper and devour the astrological column so that I may know whether to don rubbers for the day or contemplate ablutes that very day. In the late afternoon, I peer at the floor awaiting the evening paper, to learn, similarly, whether I should retire to rest in my striped or polka dot nightshirt.

But, hell, I'm on a cusp and nothing ever gets clear and concise directions about these matters. I get nothing but conflicting gibberish. So far as I'm concerned, whether Leo or Virgo has won the stars and bad luck to them.

Aside from this unhappy "cusp" business, I've noticed in my constitution that the horoscopists for the evening and morning papers respectively don't seem to agree very wholeheartedly even on the significance of the same clear-cut zodiacal periods.

For instance, the morning horoscope will advise a person to be careful with my money on a certain date, to proceed in everything with extreme caution. The evening horoscope will advise a person born under the sign of Scorpio, on precisely the same date, to throw caution to the winds and put the whole thing on a horse.

I must confess that I've been very much impressed with my wrestles with the "cusp" to do very much research on how these things actually work. I'm both cautious and incautious on the same day and that an earnest effort to find an astrologer who tried to follow both versions would speedily find him self blowing bubbles in a straitjacket.

There's been much complaint about the manner in which the astrologers have applied their science. Well, here's the very crux of our failure in scientific astrology. We've applied too much exactness to it.

Crabs, crawfish, or as they are sometimes familiarly called in the eastern section — crawdads, have been a heavy crop this year, and many of the city's anglers have turned from the proverbial worm and bite now for bass to these widespread creepers.

Trolling in the waters of Salmon Lake near his cottage the other day, Dr. Gerald E. Morton landed an eleven-pound lake trout. The grey beauty, one of the few large ones that have been lured from the lake this season, put up a gruelled battle before being hauled into the boat.

To Your Good Health

SOME PROPRIETARY DRUGS ARE HABIT-FORMING

Today and tomorrow I will try to answer some questions that come to me rather frequently about pain-killers, laxatives "nerve medicines," and so on.

"A. M. H." asks me about a very popular and satisfactory cold and headache remedy. I am not talking about aspirin or any of the many variations of it.

"A. M. H." asks if there are any "merits or dangers in the constant daily use of this remedy, say four or five times a day, for headaches."

That particular remedy is a combination pain-killing drug and an old-fashioned sedative. I don't say that old-fashioned remedies are not often effective. They often are. But this one is known to accumulate in the system, instead of being thrown off, and it can do damage to the blood stream.

It is also a drug which, while it may for some people form a habit-forming. And anyone who takes it four or five times a day, for any length of time, will become habituated to it.

But here are things that are good or all bad -- not even arsenic, or old lace. A remedy that is bad for one person on occasions, can become harmful when used in the wrong way. At what point does good change to bad? Well, when I was a boy I had a habit of going in bathing on the 4th of July, and they never hurt me but I've seen fellows get bad burns, and worse injuries, to make me agree thoroughly with laws that prohibit fireworks.

So to get back to the problem of pain killers. I, and many others, let's put it this way: I can't say as precisely what point the excessive use of this proprietary remedy becomes harmful. But I'll say that it does come a habit. It's time to do some drastic habit-breaking.

FIND OUT THE CAUSE

Using a headache remedy four or five times a day doesn't help make sense. If the headache is real, and relief is required from pain, then it is high time to find out the cause of such innumerable headaches. And something to correct the situation.

The great majority of headaches are due to faulty living: poisons; letting your temper run away with you; getting "mad" at things; improper eating; lack of rest.

Trying to beat the simple, fundamental rules of health by the constant use of drugs it like trying to run a motor car, when you have a goat, unless you finally swim to where you want to go, and get onto solid ground. If you are only exhausting your energies and strength, and will be swept to destruction when the current overcomes you.

I haven't named the remedy that A. M. H. is using. It might be one of quite a few. A number, more common, some not so common. But if you be-

TODAY'S DAILY

DEAD ENDS

The very name — Dead End — carries a finality to it, but it needn't be so. Many a dead end has arms of flowers on both sides where a dead end street ends.

It's that way in life. We think all is over when we face a dead end sign. We would look for the. The chances are that beautiful homes and unusual beds of flowers would be found on either scatter hope all about us.

God's eye is keeping over us. If we follow it there will be no dead ends! Our footsteps will be sure, and we will always find a place which we imagined would be closed. Nothing ends. It merely changes. People take vacations to change the location of their activities, and they return home renewed and courageously alert. When we do, unknowingly, run into a dead end we soon get over it and learn from it and a new lesson from life.

We need these dead ends to clear the batteries of our soul. Often we start to do something and soon after we have planned something new. There is wisdom in this if we would look for the road least "traveled," as Robert Frost so simply and beautifully says.

There were no brave ends in Thomas Edison's mind. If one picked is head up, the great inventor walked around and went on about his appointed job. He always had a plan and always ahead, and that plan of time at dead ends. He had faith, and faith overcomes all. How important it is that we get the drift of great minds, and try to emulate them in our profit.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

HOW MUCH IS MONEY WORTH?

"Money isn't everything."

We often hear this statement. Yet, when we observe people's behavior, we are led to the conclusion that there are millions of people who actually believe that money is everything.

But the truth is equally wrong who says money is nothing. Money is a measurement. It does not measure true success, but it does measure the kind of achievement which is capable of being measured — the amount of goods sold, the success of a play or book written, the appeal of a recorded song hit, the real scoop of public interest made by a movie star. These things are measurable. If we do not put them first in life, they still have real value. But they become a defiance and a snare, they become a curse, when we put them before things that are really valuable.

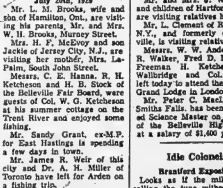
What are the most valuable things in life? An honorable name would come first. Happy relationships next. The ability to meet evil and resist its enticements. Interest in one's work. The capacity and willingness to love — first, those near and dear, then one's neighbors; then all mankind; then the God who made us.

If we put these things first and are willing to follow them with monetary success, then everything is fine. We can throw up our hands and say that real satisfaction in financial success is provided we have first loved money.

But don't let it get to the place where it can order you about — or kick you around.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK



Here I am nearly seventy years old and I have just found out about scruncheons. This is what comes of living on the mainland. I have met thousands of two islands with a mainland in between them. I have frequently visited Vancouver Island and learned many things such as the fact that it is situated on a four ounce flyrod. But for some reason I find it hard to account for now, I have only been on Newfoundland for a fortnight's stay, and the oldest boldstory of the new world, during the whole time, is the one about the scrunchions. I have just come back from a real visit, which is the only kind to pay to the Atlantic, salmon on a four ounce flyrod, and also the taste of scrunchions.

Scrunchions have no counterpart in mainland cooking, as far as my experience goes. We have crackling on pork. But the difference between scrunchions and scruncheons is the difference between sound and a sour bond and the muscle of a violin.

Okay, okay, I'll come to them in a minute. To make a dish that is called "fish and brewis with scruncheons," you proceed as follows. You get fish. (And you only cod is dignified by the name of "fish." Newfoundlanders call other finny creatures having to do with themselves by a lot of Christian names; like salmon, trout, rosefish, herring,) and soak it overnight in the brine that you get. Then you get your hard tack or hard bread or sea biscuit, break it up and soak it all night too.

Then in the morning, you cut some pork fat into squares the size of honest dice and render them gently until they are small, square and crisp, about the size of peas. And while they are rendering you boil the soaked biscuit, which is brewis, and boil or fry your fish. And if you hit it right, you lay the fish on the last hoist side of the big plate, the brewis on the centre and pour the scrunchions, hot and sizzling, over the whole.

And when you have eaten, you will find yourself pursuing the last little lone scrunchion all over the empty plate.

Permit Second TV Stations After Sept. 15

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has set Sept. 15 as the opening of a new era in television competition in Canadian cities.

But Revenue Minister Nowlan's announcement of this in the Commons Saturday was almost lost in a welter of new arguments over alleged political interference with the publicly-owned CBC.

Mr. Nowlan denied—as he has before—that there was any political pressure or influence behind the short-lived cancellation of the CBC's controversial Preview Commentary radio program.

He also specifically denied that Prime Minister Diefenbaker had a hand in it.

CHEVRIER DRAWS FIRE

This denial was prompted by a statement by Lionel Chevrier (L —Montreal Laurier), who said it is "widely reported" that it was Mr. Diefenbaker himself who said Preview would "out" if the program did not come off the air last month.

"Absolutely untrue and unwarranted," Mr. Nowlan replied heatedly.

The renewal of the "political fireworks" came over the opening meetings of the Commons broadcast a r i n g committee, provided the liveliest moments of a four-hour CBC debate.

It followed Mr. Nowlan's announcement that starting Sept. 15 "the government will receive applications for second TV stations" in Canadian cities.

Opposition Leader Pearson said the private TV licences in metropolitan centres must not be used to give "a happy hunting" ground for a favored few."

FISHER COMMENTS

Douglas Fisher (CCF — Port Arthur) said he wonders how much welcome will be shown by private stations to applications by would - be competitors. He knew of no cases where private operators had not opposed competition against themselves despite all the "yapping" about allowing competition against the CBC.

Harsh words centred around the majority finding by the Commons broadc a s t i n g committee that there was "no evidence" of political influence behind the cancellation of Preview Commentary, a political commentary program restored when a large group of senior CBC employees resigned in protest.

Mr. Chevrier called the committee report "a whitewash" and said the "real story" has not yet been told.

20 Witnesses To Be Heard at Ottawa Inquest

OTTAWA (CP) — At least 20 witnesses will be heard at Wednesday's inquest into the June 19 plastic bag death here of Joan Lindsey.

The 20-year-old model was found dead by her husband, Hubert, on his return from a trip to Toronto. A plastic bag was found over her head and knotted at the throat.

Police called the death a suicide and no inquest was ordered but persistent efforts by the girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Kincaid of Scarboro, eventually led to one being ordered.

Police say they are satisfied that the pretty brunette took her own life.

Crown Attorney Raoul Mercier said that information given by Fred Farrance, a magazine salesman who is believed to be the last person to see Miss Marcy alive, adds weight to the theory that the death was suicide.

International Con Man Held

MONTREAL (CP)—A 63-year-old man, described as an international confidence man, was picked up here last week and turned over to Kingston police for questioning.

Det.-Sgt. Paul Emile Oliver of Montreal police said Kingston police requested them to watch for the man last December after a $4,000 bank fraud.

He said the man has a record dating from 1920.

"He has done everything from switching diamonds to playing card tricks. He is one of the real old timers."

Police said he has been arrested in India, Vienna, South America. The West Indies and many North American cities. The last time he was picked up here was 1940, when he was given a two-year sentence for fraud.

Senator Says Tax Sharing Is Absurd

OTTAWA (CP)—Senator Wishart Robertson has described federal-provincial tax - sharing arrangements as "absurd and ridiculous" and a cause of friction between governments.

He made his remarks Saturday during a debate preceding Senate passage of the government's contentious Newfoundland Grants Act.

While several senators thumped their desks in approval, the Nova Scotia Liberal said:

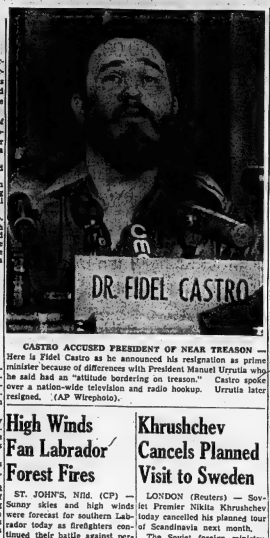
"That system has turned at least eight of the 10 provinces of Canada into suppliants, begging from the federal government a part of what that government has collected and which the provinces feel belong to them.

"The process it results is endless controversy and ill feeling and, in my judgment, it will be worse in the immediate future than it has been in the past."

Grain Storage New Policy Is Laid Down

OTTAWA (CP)—A new policy to encourage grain elevator competition and give prairie producers a more effective choice among elevators in delivering grain has been laid down for the Canadian Wheat Board.

Trade Minister Churchill announced the new policy in the Commons Saturday night. The wheat board will put it into effect with the start of the new crop year Aug. 1.



The minister's instructions to the board support the basic findings of the Bracken report on prairie boxcar distribution. The major changes:

1. The board's allotment of grain shipping orders to the prairie elevator companies shall be based on current grain receipts of each company from producers.

2. Except in certain conditions, there should be no further embargoes on shipments from full elevators at points where competitive elevators have space available for new business. The exception will be when the board, before the end of the crop year, seeks to equalize delivery quotas to give farmers equal chances of delivering grain.

High Winds Fan Labrador Forest Fires

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Gusting winds and high winds were forecast for southern Labrador today as firefighters continued their battle against persistent forest fires that have already eaten through 200 square miles of valuable woodland.

As weary volunteers prayed for rain to check the spreading fires, the weatherman said "there's not a drop in sight."

Patrol planes Sunday spotted six fires burning out of control south of Goose Bay, the big Joint United States-Canadian air base that has been threatened by fires for two months.

One of the planes, carrying Deputy Resources Minister F. J. Murray and chief forester Charles Cahill, was missing on an aerial survey. It was reported to have landed late Sunday at Fort Hope Simpson, headquarters and marshalling point for firefighters and equipment.

Resources Minister W. J. Keough said the fires "are the worst in living memory."

Mr. Keough said the biggest fire, burning behind the estuary of the Alexis and Gilbert Rivers is burning "some of the most valuable timber in Labrador."

He said the situation "is becoming so serious now that I have asked the minister of defence and the minister of northern affairs to help with men and equipment to get those fires under control."

Khrushchev Cancels Planned Visit to Sweden

LONDON (Reuters) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev today cancelled his planned tour of Scandinavia next month.

The Soviet foreign ministry, in a note to Sweden, said the visit to Stockholm was called off because of "an anti-Soviet campaign" by the Swedish press and certain political leaders.

A reliable source in London said the Russian leader had left open the possibility of visiting Norway, Sweden, Denmark and Finland later if the "atmosphere" improved.

Khrushchev's proposed trip had stirred up considerable criticism in Scandinavia.

A Norwegian newspaper reported a "giant" anti-Khrushchev demonstration was being organized to greet him.

Skating star Sonja Henie was one of several prominent Norwegians who refused Oslo government requests for use of their homes by the Russian leader.

BIG FISH

PENZANCE, England (Reuters)—A nine - foot - long make shark landed at Looe near here Thursday night was claimed today to be the largest fish ever caught on rod and line in British waters. The fish weighed 372 pounds and measured four feet, eight inches around the middle. It was caught by Albert Mellush, managing editor of a local newspaper in Berkshire.

Press Quizzes Police on Murder Suspect

LONDON (CP) — Newspapers said today that a murder suspect's removal to hospital after police questioning raises questions that demand an answer in the interests of British justice.

Guenther Podola, 36, a German who came to Britain after he was deported from Canada where he had emigrated, was arrested Thursday as a suspect in the slaying of Detective Sergeant Raymond Purdy.

Purdy—unarmed as British police usually are—was shot Monday when he went to investigate some threatening phone calls a man was making in a London model.

Since Podola's arrest, a curtain of secrecy has descended on the exact nature of his injuries.

The Daily Mail demands to know why Podola has not yet been formally charged. The News Chronicle declares: "The public has a right to more facts."

Says the Daily Sketch: "There may be a perfectly acceptable explanation why Podola lies semi-conscious in a hospital ward this morning—four days after his arrest. But let's hear it.

A Scotland Yard spokesman denied Podola came to any harm at the hands of detectives.

Podola had a police record in Canada as a pretty criminal.

Under normal British procedure a man arrested in a murder investigation must be either freed or charged with the crime and brought before a magistrate within 24 hours.

Police Scour London for Smart Robbers

LONDON (Reuters)—Detectives scoured East London today for two clever robbers who boasted "Scotland Yard's finest" cost them £7,000 and dumped his body on a lonely road.

A doctor told an inquest that "Solly"—the nickname of beloved Jewish community leader Solomon Lever, 64—died of a heart attack or coronary thrombosis after he was lured from his home by two fake detectives Sunday.

Lever's body was found in Epping Forest, northeast London, two hours later and the money was missing from a safe in his home.

Lever, former mayor of suburban Hackney, apparently died while bound and gagged. He left his house with one of the men after getting a telephone call from "the police" that there was a fire next door to his office.

The caller said a police car, actually an old panel truck, would pick him up in a few minutes and take him to the office. Lever, anxious to save the money, took his safe key with him when the men called at his home.

The money represented vacation funds for members of a sav-ings club run by the former mayor.

Lightning Kills Four on Crowded Beach

NEW YORK (AP)—Lightning—like fire from the sky"—struck a tree on a crowded Bronx beach Sunday, killing four people.

About six miles away another bolt struck near the Bronx Zoo, injuring four more.

Police estimated that 100,000 people packed Orchard Beach and the nearby picnic area Sunday, seeking relief from the heat.

Late in the afternoon the sky darkened and thunder rumbled. The crowd scattered to seek shelter.

Mrs. Carman Colon, 21, and Mrs. Antonio Moya, all of the Bronx, ran to a bus top shelter. Moya, 28, suddenly remembered he had left his guitar under a tree. He ran back to get it.

Suddenly, Mrs. Colon said later, "There was a big light, like electricity . . . it was like fire from the sky. I heard a big noise. I looked up. Then I looked down, and I saw Antonio." Lightning had struck the tree, killing Moya and three other people standing under it.

The others were Pedro Rivera, 20, Paul Saunders, 24, and his wife, Despina, 21, all of the Bronx.

been studied thoroughly by a House committee, and finally whipped through 10 minor pieces of legislation.

Opposition Leader Pearson said the national debt situation is "worrying and worsening."

Next December, he said, the government's short - term debt maturing in less than two years could rise to a record $5,800,000,000. He asked whether the government will launch another conversion loan plan.

Finance Minister Fleming made no direct reply.

But on another point by Mr. Pearson — that a rising money supply may lead to inflation—the minister made a firm reply.

The Bank of Canada has made it clear it has "no thought of embarking upon an increase of money supply under existing conditions," Mr. Fleming said.

On another point, he promised "a most intensive effort" to find a way of making federal university grants acceptable to the Quebec government. Some $24,500,000 is being held in trust for Quebec universities, who aren't touching it because of Premier Duplessis' opposition to the grants.

Mr. Pearson and Paul Martin (L—Essex East), expressing concern over what next winter will bring, called on the government to declare plans for a winter work program for unemployed.

Mr. Diefenbaker replied the government will study events of the next few weeks and make its decision. He said there has been "a tremendous economic upswing" and that 200,000 more Canadians now have jobs than ever before.

Then the session ended early Sunday after Chief Justice Patrick Kerwin, deputy governor-general, read the throne speech in a Senate ceremony.

Wedding

BEAUDRIE — STEWART

A lovely double-ring wedding was solemnized recently in the Foxboro United Church, Foxboro, Ontario, when the Rev. Wilfred R. F. Davies united in marriage Margaret Myrtle Stewart, of Corbyville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Stewart, to Clifford Phillip Beaudrie, of Carlton, son of Mrs. Pearl Beaudrie. Pink and white peonies, mingled with wild daisies, and interspersed with fern, adorned the chancel rail and white satin bows the guest pews.

Miss Shirley Fisher, of Foxboro, soloist, rendered "O Perfect Love," before the ceremony and "The Wedding Prayer" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a charming bridal gown of white brocaded satin with net overskirt. The molded bodice was accented by a matching bolero. Her headdress was a Juliet cap with matching nylon net veil. She carried a white Bible created with pink Sweetheart roses and rosebud knotted streamers. Matching gloves and a pearl necklace with matching earrings completed the nuptial costume.

Mrs. Larry LaRue attended her sister, wearing light blue brocaded satin in sheath style trimmed with chiffon, blue headdeau of blue and white feathers. She carried a nosegay and carried a basket of blue baby mums with lily-of-the-valley.

Mr. Harold Kelly of Hallowell, attended the bridegroom while Mr. Raymond Beaudrie, of Oshawa, and Mr. Larry LaRue of Plainfield, were ushers.

The reception was held in Foxboro United Church. For the bride's table, with its white damask cloth, the centrepiece of wedding cake and baskets of Sweetheart roses and orange blossoms, flanked by tall candlesticks in silver holders, beneath white streamers and white wedding bells, was a nuptial picture of lovelines.

The bride's mother, wearing a navy blue sheath dress with matching jacket embroidered in rust and white, attended the bridegroom's mother, who wore black accessories and corsage of pink carnations, received. The bridegroom's father, Mr. Percy Beaudrie, and his floral shantung with white floral shantung with white accessories, and blue carnation corsage, assisted.

For going to Rivers and Brantford, Ontario, the bride chose a white taffeta sheath dress with matching three-style jacket, pink accessories and corsage of pink Sweetheart roses.

Guests were present from Plainfield, Cannifton, Corbyville, Foxboro, Tweed, Madoc, Manitoba; Campbellford, Belleville, Crookston and Springbrook.

The bride, previous to marriage, was honored guest at the home of Miss Joan Harry to a miscellaneous shower given by the Foxboro Young People's Union.

Mr. and Mrs. Beaudrie are residing at 276 Victoria Avenue, Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Angus John Yorke are pictured following their recent marriage in Holy Name of Mary Roman Catholic Church, Marysville, Ont. The bride is the former Miss Rena "Judy" Patrick, foster daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin McKenzie, of Shannonville. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ranald Yorke, of Tamworth, Ontario.

YORKE — PATRICK

Standards of pink gladioli, white chrysanthemums, and white accessories at the altar of Holy Name of Mary Catholic Church, Marysville, Ontario, for a recent nuptial service uniting Miss Rena (Judy) Patrick, of Shannonville, foster daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin McKenzie, became the bride of Angus John Yorke, of Tamworth, Ontario, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Yorke, the Reverend I. Donoghue, P. P. officiated.

The wedding music was rendered by the Misses Rosemary and Bibiana, who accompanied the soloist, Mr. Peter Burke, who sang "Panis Angelicus," "Ave Maria" and "On This Day, O Beautiful Mother."

Given in marriage by her foster father, Mr. Alvin McKenzie, the bride was charmingly lovely in her bridal gown of floor-length net, floating over taffeta with fitted bodice of Chantilly lace over organza featuring a scalloped Sweetheart neckline accented by sequins and long, sheath-like sleeves "v" pointed over the wrists. The gracefully full skirt was enhanced by three lace, pointed panels, with side tiers of ruched organza ending in a large bow at bustle back. She wore an organza crown studded with seed pearls, and fingertip rhinestone, with elbow length tulle illusion veil embroidered with sequin flowers. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses, white stephanotis, and trailing ivy. A single strand of pearls completed her nuptial costume.

Miss Peggy Yorke, sister of the bridegroom as maid of honor was attired in a floor-length gown of silk organza over taffeta, in delicate mauve shade, fashioned with fitted bodice featuring a large back bow. She wore a large, matching picture hat and matching mitts.

The four bridesmaids, Misses Louise Patrick, Erinaville, sister of the bride; Joyce Moose, of Toronto; Helen Hanson of Shannonville and Shirley Culloden of Belleville were gowned alike in daffodil yellow taffeta, in styles similar to that of the maid of honor, with matching picture hats, and carried bouquets of summer flowers.

The little flower girl, Miss Faye McKenzie, foster sister of the bride, was demure in her floor-length frock of green organza over taffeta with back bow, and tiny picture hat, of matching shade, and carrying a nosegay of summer flowers. Each attendant wore a single strand of baby pearls, with matching earrings, and the flower girl, a sterling silver locket, gifts of the bride.

Mr. Frank Yorke of Port Credit, attended his brother, while Mr. Donald Taylor of Tamworth, Mr. Mike McDonald, of Tamworth, and Mr. Bernard Stanford of Kingston, were ushers.

The wedding dinner for eighty guests and the reception was held in Melrose Township Hall, which was prettily decorated with pink and white streamers, and flowers, for the occasion.

The bride's table was appointed with white damask, and centred by a three-tier wedding cake, decorated with tiny pale-pink roses, and topped by a miniature bride and bridegroom. Silver candelabra misted the base, and tall white candles in silver holders, and the bridal bouquets lent a pretty nuptial accent. The Melrose Women's Institute did the catering.

Guests were received by the bride's mother, who wore an apple green lace gown over champagne-beige taffeta with beige-toned accessories and yellow rose corsage. Assisting in the receiving line was the bride's groom's mother, who chose a navy blue sheer with white accessories, and corsage of feathered pink carnations.

For travelling to Ottawa, Montreal, and other eastern points, the bride donned a white linen dress with matching cotton lace jacket, white and turquoise accessories, and corsage of pink Sweetheart roses. Mr. and Mrs. Yorke are residing at 323 Charles Street, Belleville.

Guests attended from Toronto; Paris; Oakville; Kingston; Deseronto; Port Credit; Tamworth and Belleville.

Previous to her marriage, the bride was honored guest at a miscellaneous shower given by Miss Helen Houston with Mrs. William Houston, Mrs. Royce Cook, Mr. S. Bennett and Mrs. Roy Cook as co-hostesses.

The bride's gift to her bridegroom, luggage; the bridegroom's gift to the bride, a luxurious jewellery; and to his attendants, cuff links and tie bars.

Decorum Steals Spotlight in Rome Fashions

ROME (AP) — Decorum triumphed over dash Saturday as the well-bred suit stole the Rome fashion parade.

Founding members of the Rome designer group, Fontana among the foremost, showed collections of quiet refinement, guaranteed to please Mrs. Grundy. In a salute to prophety and, most viewers thought, a slap at the over-conspicuous.

Fontana's ladies with be wearing suit with refined accessories to theatre benefits as well as to lunch.

One model, nearly long enough to be a redingote, had a schoolgirl bloom to go with it in well-behaved white silk and wool. Other Fontana suits were cut with a diagonal, all of their jackets reaching down to the hip and some as long as bermuda shorts.

Also noted in Fontana's new autumn — and winter — line was demure first-dance dresses and a gown for the bride's mother with silvery ribbon and scalloped lace.

Cocktail dresses with slim lines had bouffant overskirts in petal shapes. One apricot number, more daring than the rest, had a propeller - like bodice, produced by high-flying sash.

Farm Inspires Her Painting, So Refuses $50,000 Offer

APLEY, Ont. (CP)—Amateur painter Louise Wallace is receiving letters from all over the world on her 100 - acre farm property and has refused an offer of $50,000 for the land.

The letters have been pouring in since the Toronto Star published a story reports that rich deposits of uranium may lie in the area.

"The pulpy country seems to be gold as soon as they leave the house," she said in her soft Irish brogue. "But I like painting. It gives me my greatest satisfaction in life, and this is an ideal spot for painting."

She has one of her paintings on the farm, 30 miles north of Peterborough in the Kawartha Lake district. She bought the property in 1951, but gave up trying to raise chickens and cash crops in favor of cultivating a few flowers and vegetables whenever she felt the urge.

The district's painting fever has also been a function of movies and books and once with the title "Inspiration had quotes.

Art experts in Toronto have expressed interest in her work, but she said: "Real artists have subconsciously in art today. Canadian painters with original ideas must obtain recognition abroad before he can get anywhere in Canada. Canadian art, they say, is centred in a sort of mystical semi-abstract poetry with a tinge of stuffed shirts."

Fabrics Rather Than Design Exciting Part of Style Show

LONDON (Reuters) — A silk-sweeping dress designed with the aid of mathematics and shown in one of the features of a three-day London fashion show opening Tuesday.

But on the whole, fabrics rather than design should provide the most exciting part of the fashion collections.

These collections will-set the stage for fall and winter.

Top dressmakers always work behind closed doors and no one can tell their intentions until the collections actually are opened to newspaper men. But all indications are against any startling change.

The evolution towards increased femininity after last year's figure - conscious sacks and trapezes seems likely to continue, with waists more defined, full jackets slightly flared and a full seven - eighths length, and bodices becoming more fitted, especially by those houses which did not lengthen them for the summer.

Feminine grace will be strained by fur—notorious mink, soft sable or long-haired fox, to name but a few—which wear, the long evening dress looks like returning to the popularity it has enjoyed in several seasons.

The real fashion news for the fall may be, basically, a fabric story with couturiers seeking new colors and textures.

New "mixed marriages," of two-or-more - color coat weight fabrics team with a matching one-color dress weight fabric.

Dumas and Maury, one of London's leading wool fabric firms, have a variety of these two-in-one weight combinations: a sleek-textured "pale black" flounces worsted, containing rabbit hair in its weave; a less-shiny, matching coat weight in the same pale black.

A smooth green dress fabric is matched to a plaid weave coat fabric, a black and tan coat fabric has a novelty weave tan dress fabric to go with it, and so on. Sometimes the same pair of colors to be found in the fall fabric garden.

NOVELTY

For the rest, novelty weaves such as a new curious bouclé coating with a fine green thread interwoven, reindeer hair, always a favorite, a lighter tone because it does not take the dye, and very

50 Members O.E.S. Enjoy Cottage Picnic

On Sunday afternoon July 15th Mr. and Mrs. William Barlow of Napanee, entertained nearly 50 members of the Order of the Eastern Star and their families at their cottage pool together at the Barlow cottage on Crowe Lake.

Those present were the presiding Worthy Matrons, and Worthy Patrons, of the various chapters of district No. 12.

Tables were arranged on the spacious lawn and everyone enjoyed a delicious pot-luck supper served in cafeteria style.

The Grand Conductress of the Grand Chapter of Ontario, Mrs. W. T. Elliott, and her husband, were present. Following the picnic Mrs. Elliott gave an inspiring message.

Mrs. Ruth Trenton, and Mrs. Clare McFaul, Amelisburg rendered several selections on the cornet. Mrs. Muriel Mumby, Springbrook, accompanied them on the accordion. All joined in group singing of various hymns.

A collection was taken in the form of appreciation and was received by Mrs. Ruth Trenton, Worthy Patron, Deseronto Chapter to Mrs. Elliott to go toward her Christina project in helping to educate a boy in Nigeria who is attending college there, and studying for the ministry. The student plans on coming to Canada to complete his education and be ordained here.

A vote of appreciation to all who voiced by Mrs. Mumby, Mrs. Rose Smith, Worthy Matron, Trenton, thanked those responsible for the picnic and all hoped it would be an annual get-together.

sleek, soft finishes complete the fall fabric story.

One original weave combines some dozen colors with browns, some reds and splashes of bright yellow and blue in a country tweed.

Checks are popular, ranging from tiny, almost-invisible ones for town wear to bold, plaid ones for sporting events.

Moving in the evening scene, designers in London, Rome, Florence and Paris are using fabulous silks designed by artists Graham Sutherland, Oliver Messel and Cecil Beaton.

The jungle design by Oliver Messel has been used by Hardy Amies, one of the Queen's dressmakers.

Mrs. J. Casselman Keeps Busy Except on Sunday

OTTAWA (CP) — The newest woman member of the House of Commons—Mrs. Jean Casselman—says she likes being busy.

A fundown of her weekly schedule as MP and mother of two school-age children indicates that busy is exactly what she means. Now, 10, and Claire, 8.

With Saturday mornings taken up by constituency business and Saturday evenings often occupied by some activity connected with the political career, Mrs. Casselman said the only day she has all to herself is Sunday.

"On Sunday I'm left completely alone," she said. "But I have no objections to getting only one day a week all—that's fair enough."

Monday morning she drops her children off at school and drives back to Ottawa. Through the week, they are in the care of a long-time family housekeeper.

Her father started public service in the Ontario legislature in 1923 and two years later entered the Commons. He was appointed minister without portfolio in 1935, a few months before the Bennett government was defeated. Mr. Rowe remained at Ottawa until 1940 when he resigned his seat to lead the Ontario Conservative party. He met personal defeat and his party lost the provincial election of 1937. Later that year, Mr. Rowe won the federal byelection in Dufferin-Simcoe and has represented the riding at Ottawa since.

Now 63, he is a handy "morale builder" for his daughter, among other things, when they confer over her prospective speeches. Otherwise, though, said Mrs. Casselman, "he stays out of my career."

BUSY MEMBER — Mrs. Jean Casselman, shown here with her two children; Nancy, 10, and Claire, 8—is the newest woman member of the House of Commons. Mrs. Casselman, 38, was elected Progressive Conservative member for Grenville-Dundas last September 29, filling a vacancy caused four months earlier by the death of her husband. She and her father, Hon. Earl Rowe, member for Dufferin-Simcoe, form the Commons' only father-daughter team. (CP Photo).

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a woman's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Myrna B. — Ernestine has chickened out.

Ernestine Y. — We won't be able to live with ourselves afterwards.

Myrna B. — My sister and I are women in our 50's with families and loads of responsibility. In recent years one of our biggest headaches has been our mother who is in her 80's.

Mother has lived with me and with my sister, Ernestine. But wherever mother is living she seems to want to be at the other place. At last she said she wanted to go to a home for the aged.

After a year of hard work we found what we think is a good place for her. Now mother says she doesn't want to go. I am fed up and I feel we should show a little spunk and make her go. But now Ernestine has chickened out.

Ernestine Y. — We have put up with Mom so I feel we should do it a little longer. We would never be able to forgive ourselves if we made her miserable and deserted her in her later years. I don't think we would be able to live with ourselves.

I can possibly force Mom to do anything. We can't drag her out of the house against her will. What if she absolutely refuses to go? She is staying with me just now and I have promised her I won't let anyone harm her.

I am just about worn out from this thing and I'm ready to put up with it and keep quiet. It's better than fighting mom.

The Council: Under the guise of being good to their mother, firmly on it.

both these women have been unkind to her for many years.

An elderly person who complains constantly wherever she is needs someone to make a few decisions for her and stick to them kindly but firmly. The mother in this case is really complaining about the steady waning of her strength and ability. She is dissatisfied with herself and refuses to accept life as it comes. When she can play her daughters against each other and get them to submit to her every whim she derives a false and temporary satisfaction. She imagines herself in her old position of power.

Myrna and Ernestine have probably often wished they could be free of this tyranny and feel guilty about this desire. Their mother can play on this guilt when she wants to extend her power one step further.

For their own sakes and for their mother's sake these women should come to a clear-cut decision about the best place for their mother. It will not be necessary to "drag her" anywhere by force if they are patient and use common sense, tact and moral authority. The elderly woman can be convinced that the home for the aged is the best place for her and she can be reassured that her daughters are not deserting her. They can prove this by frequent visits and remembrances of all sorts. They should accept her complaints in stride and should have convinced themselves that she is getting good care.

We do not necessarily recommend the home for the aged as the best place for the elderly woman. We recommend simply that the sisters come to their decision and then stand by it.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

"JOINT PRESENT"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

1. My mother and father, who live in the same city where my husband and I live, have just received invitations to the wedding of the daughter of very close friends of our family. We are all very fond of this girl, and happy to know of a gift which she would particularly like to have and which we four could afford to give her if (and only if) we combined our gift-budgets. But we're not at all sure that this would be proper, and wonder if, since we received separate invitations, we would be expected to give separate gifts.

2. If you tell us it would be proper for us to give a "four-some" wedding gift, will you please suggest how we might sign the card to be enclosed? Thank you. — Two Four

1. This is an entirely proper thing to do . . . and certainly makes very good sense. The fact that you received separate invitations makes no difference whatever. And I'm positive, as I am sure you are too, that the bride-to-be will appreciate your thoughtfulness and your kind and practical plan for "four" happiness.

2. You might write on the card:

Dearest love and every good wish for your happiness always.

PLACING DESSERT-SILVER ABOVE PLACE PLATE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Some time ago you made a suggestion about placing the dessert silver above the plate. This interested me extremely, and I meant to save this column to read and study your suggestion. Now I've lost the column. Would you be so kind as to repeat this suggestion, telling the circumstances when it is correct?

— Hostess

Today when practically all service is informal, and when there is little or no maid-service, this placing of the dessert silver is a great convenience: The dessert silver dessert spoon and dessert fork (or a medium-size fork) are placed above the place plate. They are placed parallel to each other, the spoon above the fork; the handle of the spoon is toward the right (as it would be taken up in the right hand), and the handle of the fork is toward the left (as it would be taken up in the left hand).

Even if the two pieces are not really necessary for the dessert course, it is best form to place both, better balance, giving the choice to the guest. (This placement of dessert silver is now extremely popular in this country . . . always been the accepted procedure in most European countries.)

TODAY'S MEMO TO SUMMER GUESTS

To be a good act, an endearing guest, a guest to be welcomed and then to be welcomed back, here are three most important hints:

1. Be constantly on the alert to show your appreciation, by what you say and by what you do. Have the grace to have your guest-attitude express to your hosts: "You are making me happy, very happy, by all the thoughtful plans you have made for my delight and comfort."

2. Be charmingly co-operative with all the plans made for you or suggested to you by the hostess or other members of the family.

3. Be a good listener . . . aware, active, responsive.

An excellent challenge for you. And good going on the Fairway to Popularity.

Be sure this is done the day before you leave, to give you a chance to check contents and perhaps slip in a small surprise (which the youngsters are asleep).

Garden Party Supper for Seventeen

by Mary Moore

While it is fresh in my mind I want to give you the tempting details of a garden supper for seventeen.

The occasion was a good-bye party for Dr. Robert Clark, and his family, who is returning to his teaching post in the Seminary affiliated with Indore Christian College in India. He is my nephew's father-in-law and has been in Canada on Sabbatical leave for the past year. He is scholarly and charming as are his lovely wife and family. He teaches his Indian students in the Hindi language. What is more, he is on the verge of having a textbook published which was written in Hindi by him for his students.

The supper my sister-in-law Wyn prepared was fitting for such rare company. It stretched too, to include two extra guests — two Scottish girls newly arrived in Canada to practise their professions — physiotherapy and nursing — Pamela Walker and Anne Betts. Their beautiful complexions and accents and summer dresses added charm and color to the group in the garden.

Wyn baked a whole loin of pork ($4.90). She boiled in a cloth a whole Pacific salmon ($8.23). She made a garlic buttered long French stick, a tossed salad in my big butter bowl, one gallon of coffee and an Angel Icebox Dessert (below). Peady made a fine cole slaw. I was given the job of glazing and decorating the fish.

The dessert I am giving you is a repeat from last June called Mary B's Angel Pie but a name which is more descriptive is

Old Dinner Gong Tolling Curfew for Fast-Fading Type of Summer Vacation

FREEHOLD, N.Y. (AP) — The way and given up the farm end old dinner gong that called the reverence to table in thousands of farm boarding houses is tolling curfew for a fast-fading type of summer vacation.

"Going to the mountains," it was called, as opposed to "going to the shore," meaning the vacationist preferred mosquitos and poison ivy to sand fleas and sunburn.

Any farmer with a spare room, a couple of cows and a two-seater outhouse could, and almost invariably did, go into the resort business.

Any unsophisticated, undemanding lot, the city dwellers asked no more than three robust meals a day, a reasonably comfortable bed and a peace of rocking chairs on the porch from which to study the view.

Viewing was the main sport. That and hiking down to the village after lunch to write postcards telling how wonderful the view was.

Occasionally the boarders might help the farmer pitch the hay or milk the cows, or at least go through the motions long enough for the box camera to record it all in hazy prints.

Or rare Saturday there might be a dance or hayride, but as a rule group activities were frowned on. Rest and relaxation were the important items.

Here in the Catskills, the 5,000-foot-acre vacationland only a two-hour drive from New York City, the mountains once bristled with such houses.

TIMES, TASTES CHANGE

But times and tastes have changed. Some farmers have gone back to milking cows instead of vacationists for a living; others have headed the opposite

The Rotterdam will be the only ship to have two full decks of public rooms — one, on the upper promenade deck, for first class use, and the other on the promenade deck, immediately below, for tourist class, on transatlantic voyages. Both decks, as will the whole ship, will be open to all passengers on cruises, where one luxury first class is carried and limited to half normal capacity.

Two dining rooms are on B deck, in the gravitational centre of the ship. Like the "secret" stairs, they will be used either individually by the two classes, or opened up on cruises for general use. This gives the first class passengers a break since, in the first class dining room is necessarily on a high deck in a less favorable location.

Placing the machinery farther towards the stern frees much desirable space for extra passenger comfort and enjoyment, releasing large areas formerly occupied by engineroom casings and so on. It also enables the Rotterdam to dispense with the conventional smokestacks, the space thus conserved being given over to observation lounges that command wide views of the sea and the adjacent sootless sports decks.

Skeleton of Woman Is Discovered Near Lovers' Lane in Kawarthas

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Part of a female skeleton, found early Saturday in bushland near Moyle Lake, 25 miles northwest of here, was to be taken to the provincial police laboratory in Toronto today for examination.

The skeleton was discovered by farmer Bill Barry in a shallow, uncovered grave near the popular local lovers parking spot, a few feet away was a plastic table cloth wrapped around a purse, compact and a pair of shoes. There was no clue to the woman's identity.

Coroner Dr. F. E. A. Griffiths of Minden said the skeleton was that of a woman aged between 40 and 45. She had been dead between five to 10 years.

The coroner said he thought "some sort of foul play" was involved although no bones were broken or bruised. The skeleton included the skull, shoulders and spine. The other bones may have been carried off by wild animals, Dr. Griffiths said.

Constable Earl Bush of the OPP said the gold fillings in the woman's teeth and partial dental plate should help identify her. He had received no reports of any local woman missing in recent years.

spending will amount "to a great deal more than that."

"The actual amounts will far exceed, even in the next few months, the actual vote here, but will be expended under other headings so as to assure that degrees of security, confidentiality and secrecy of the course being taken and the actions and constructions that will follow."

The extraordinary powers set up five years ago under the Defence Production Act are being allowed to lapse July 31. Opposed by the Progressive Conservatives in opposition, these powers are being replaced by those under the War Measures Act.

ANY SUBSTITUTE?

Mr. Pearson asked what legislative basis will replace the "coercive" measures involved.

There would be a gap, he suggested, between the attack and emergency and formal declaration of war because it was constitutional practice—although not law—that war could be declared only on approval of Parliament.

He asked Mr. Diefenbaker whether after July 31 in the event of national emergency only the cabinet could take action to the effect that a state of "apprehended" war exists.

Mr. Diefenbaker replied he wouldn't want to give an opinion. It was a legal question.

WON'T BE TIME

The whole question is academic, suggested Mr. Fisher.

"I think the tragedy or catastrophe will be upon us so quickly that there really will be no time even for us to consider the idea of calling Parliament."

Mr. Regnier suggested that Canada consider compulsory civil defence training.

Mr. Peters asked how it would be possible to evacuate a city even the size of Ottawa—population 268,000—when it took several hours to clear traffic during rush hour.

Monteith Ducks Taking Stand On Fluoridation

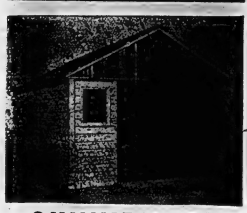
OTTAWA (CP)—Health Minister Monteith indicated Saturday he still favors fluoridation of water to cut tooth decay but declined putting himself directly on the record to that effect as health minister.

He contented himself with saying in the Commons that fluoridation is approved by the Canadian Dental Association, the Canadian Medical Association and the Canadian Health Association and that the experiment began 14 years ago at Brantford has cut tooth decay.

Mr. Monteith was pressed on the point by Dr. W. H. McMillan (L—Welland), who recalled that Mr Monteith had been all for fluoridation in his maiden Commons speech in 1953. But he hadn't approved it as minister.

CALLS FOR LEADERSHIP

Dr. McMillan, a pro-fluoridation man, said leadership should be given by the minister. The Liberal MP recalled that Ontario has announced it won't entertain any municipal proposals to implement fluoridation.



"I do not think the minister should be subservient to any provincial premier," he said.

Mr. Monteith said he isn't subservient. He referred to his 1953 maiden speech and said that "at that time I was rather boastful about the natural quality of the water at Stratford which does contain fluoride to a most acceptable degree."

"Behind a petulant remark by George Dudley that maybe Canada should drop out of international hockey competition is the sore ranking of the player-help situation surrounding the Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen," says Len Taylor, Kitchener sports editor.

"In the past the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has been criticized for failing to give adequate player help to teams competing in international tournaments.

"This year, with secretary-manager Dudley as the pilot, CAHA executives put through special legislation that teams bound for world tournaments have special draft rights to a certain number of extra players from other teams.

"The new rule permits the Dutchmen, and future clubs in a similar position, to draft not more than one player from any one club, up to a total of 15 men, who must be named early in September.

"The list must be notified to the CAHA. The Dutchmen then have until mid-November to retain a maximum of 10 of the 15 named.

"It has been the CAHA hope that the club then assembled would play together all the time up to the tournament and no further strengthening would be required.

"The Dutchmen have found, however, that it isn't that simple. Some of the players they would most like to have aren't there in the Twin City all winter. But they are willing, and their clubs are prepared to let them go, to join the Dutchies in January and play to the end of the tournament.

"In this category are most of the calibre of Bobby Attersley and Harry Sinden of Whitby.

"The CAHA would like to have the original idea followed this year and isn't happy with a K-W suggestion that some of the players will have to be added later on a temporary basis.

"Complicating things a bit more is the Dutchie decision to seek entry to the OHA playoffs, if they are qualified, when they return from the Olympics.

"The CAHA didn't want this to happen fearing that some clubs might complain about a loaded team being permitted to compete.

"But the Dutchmen find that it may be difficult to finance the year if they cannot play when they return, which could mean that their financial season, as far as revenue is concerned, would be over about January 31.

"Another sufferer would be the Kitchener Auditorium which would be without a major attraction. With two or three most profitable months of the hockey winter.

"Actually there is nothing in the CAHA rule book to bar the Dutchmen from competing in the playoffs when they return. The majority of clubs in the new OHA group want them to play Hockey (a) that they may be ready to beat Ottawa a letdown that usually follows a major effort like playing in the Olympics and (b) that the Dutchmen are one of the best draws in senior hockey, anywhere and any time."

The following letter speaks for itself:

Sports editor,

Enclosed please find a five dollar bill which I hope you will put in the proper hands for "Herbie" Hann. It was with great regret that I heard of his serious ailment in your column the other night.

I played shortstop alongside Herbie for two and a half years on the Aaiama Club, Provincial Stores and Corbin Lock teams. A finer and more likeable boy I never played with and "Herbie" was one of the leaders of that championship OASA Provincial Store team. He was always in the "Batting Rallies" or helping us out with fine fielding plays.

So please see that this small amount gets into the hands of "Big Shad" Either, who also was on those good teams.

Hoping that this will help some and if you can possibly extend my sympathies to Herbie and congratulations to "Shad" Either and Al Kelleher for trying to help a great guy.

Thank you.

Giants, Dodgers Renew Fued; Yankees Back In Fight

Clash in Two-Game Series As Braves Continue to Skid; Tribe Regains American Top

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Staff Writer

It is just like old times for the Dodgers. Duke Snider and Gil Hodges are hitting home runs. Glenn Labine is pitching in relief. And an important series with the Giants is coming up next.

The old rivalry that flourished in Brooklyn and New York seems to have lost little of its vigor transplanted 3,000 miles west to Los Angeles and San Francisco.

The Giants' National League lead measured 2½ games with the second-place Dodgers coming to town today for a two-game series.

Pittsburgh shaved the Giants' lead half a game Friday when Bill Virdon's eight - inning home run beat the pace-setters 3-2 in the first game of a scheduled doubleheader. The second game went only two innings before it was postponed (not suspended) because of Sunday curfew.

LEADING GROUND

Los Angeles gained ground while splitting at Philadelphia. Hodges's three-run homer and Snider's blast helped the Dodgers win the opener 8-4 behind Labine's relief work. Eddie Bouchee's two-run double gave the Phils a 2-1 nightcap win, only to 5½ innings by rain.

Milwaukee's woes kept its tailspin, losing its sixth straight as St. Louis mounted a 16-hit attack for a 9-3 victory. Curt Flood drove in three runs with a homer and double. Joe Adcock hit his 18th homer, Don Blasingame had four hits and Bill White drove in two runs with doubles.

Cincinnati's two games at Chicago were postponed because of rain.

Saturday, Willie Mays had three straight hits, including a two-run homer, to lead the Giants to a 6-3 victory over the Phillies. Philadelphia beat the Dodgers 5-3. Cincinnati downed Chicago 5-1 and St. Louis edged the staggering Braves 6-5.

MARATHON GAME

It took 3½ hours to play the first game at Pittsburgh Sunday with three rain delays interrupting the long battle between Vern Law and Stu Miller. Pittsburgh led 1-0 after two innings of the second game, which must be replayed.

Hodges's 17th homer clinched the first game for the Dodgers as it came with Jim Gilliam and Snider on base. The Dodgers started strong in the second game, but the Phils got to Johnny Podres for three big runs while Taylor Phillips pitched effectively in relief.

Vinegar-Bend Mizell won his 11th at the Braves' expense but had to leave the game after seven innings because of a pulled back muscle. Marshall Bridges held the fort although touched for homers by Frank Thomas and Joe Adcock in the ninth.

Just when you get ready to count Yankees out, they pop right back into the thick of the American League fight.

A 4-week ago, after losing a five-game series in Boston, they were dead. Friday morning they were very much alive with a series sweep over Cleveland.

The magic of Early Wynn and Bob Shaw gave Chicago the first two games of an important weekend series.

But Yanks knocked the lid off the coffin Sunday by sweeping two from Chicago. The explosion knocked White Sox out of first place. Cleveland Indians regained "control" by .001 percentage. New York is 3½ back.

UNEXPECTED HELP

Stengel found help from unexpected sources in his Sunday sweep, moving ahead of slightly slumping Baltimore by one game. Ryne Duren helped out both Ford and Grba, but it was Ford who saved an earned run all day.

Boston Red Sox nipped Indians in the opener 6-5 on Frank Malzone's double. Cleveland grabbed the second 5-3, a game interrupted and finally called because of rain.

Washington's Camilo Pascual won his seventh straight in the first game but Athletics took the second 6-5 in 10 innings on Elmin Rinilla's double. Detroit's Killebrew (32) and Bob Allison (31) hit Senator homers in the second.

ORIOLES OVER TIGERS

Baltimore got three-hit pitching from Billy Loes and Chuck Loes for a 2-1 decision over Detroit. It was Tigers' Jim Bunning in their last 11 games despite Charlie Maxwell's 21st homer.

In Saturday's action, Cleveland got tight pitching in their game against Yankees to beat the world champions 2-1 while Indians were downing Boston 7-5 in 11 innings.

Detroit got only two hits—both singles—from Frank Sullens, but beat Baltimore 2-0 in the second game of a doubleheader. Orioles won the opener 3-2.

Ray Herbert, once a relief pitching specialist, won his fourth straight start as Kansas City thumped Washington 10-3.

Aussies Win Over Mexico

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Wimbledon champions Neale Fraser and Roy Emerson crushed Mexico's Gustavo Palafox and Rafael Llamas 6-3, 6-2, 7-5 in the doubles Sunday and sent favored Australia into a tie for the Americas zone Davis Cup tennis match.

The Mexican veterans—Palafox is 36 and Llamas 31—gever were a match for the two rocket-hitting young Aussies.

Now the issue goes into today's final singles for the decision. Rod Laver, Australia's 20-year - old Wimbledon runner-up, meets Mexican champion Antonio Palafox in the opening match, with Fraser playing Llamas in the finale of the best-of-five series.

Llamas scored a 6-4, 6-4, 6-3 upset over Australia's Bob Howe to give Mexico an opening 1-1 split after Fraser and Emerson beat younger Palafox, 8-6, 6-0, 2-6, 4-6, 6-3.

Tribe Manager, Minoso Fined And Suspended

BOSTON (AP) — Cleveland Indians said Saturday manager Joe Gordon and leftfielder Minnie Minoso have been suspended for three days and fined $200 each by the American League for their part in Friday night's rhubarb at Fenway Park.

Gordon said he and Minoso had received telegrams from American League president Joe Cronin. It was the first time in their careers that Gordon and Minoso received suspensions.

Both were ejected from the game by Umpire Frank Umont. The Indians beat Boston Red Sox 8-7.

Boston Red Kress and Jojo White will run the club during Gordon's absence.

Ontario Junior Panasiuk Wins Provincial Golf Title

TORONTO (CP) — Bob Panasiuk climaxed Ontario golf's explosive youth movement Saturday by winning the provincial amateur championship.

The slim six-footer from Windsor, at 17, was the youngest player ever to capture the title. Of the four semi - finalists, only one was old enough to vote.

The dedicated Panasiuk has been golfing since he was eight and admits he got a good deal of coping the amateur crown before he got out of his teens.

Professional ambitions?

NON - COMMITTAL

"It's too soon to say yet. I have no idea." He hopes to take the winter off from high school, next south "and improve my nail."

For Panasiuk, that's almost like gilding the lily. After a shaky start in the last round, he adopted the poise of a veteran and closed out the 127 holes with an approximate medal score of six under par.

His final victim was Gary Cowan, Kitchener's 20-year-old whiz kid.

The match was decided on the 222 - yard 17th hole, Panasiuk faded his iron shot around a string of traps to within 20 feet of the pin and got down in par three. Cowan, less accurate on his approach, missed par to go one down and that's the way the match ended after both parred the 18th in five.

Panasiuk got into the final by downing Don Capp of Hamilton, a venerable 22, 4 and 2. Capp was Ontario's 1953 junior champion.

Cowan beat Phil Brownlee of Scarborough, the 18-year-old current junior champ, 3 and 2 in the other semi-final.

Falling to the wayside as the determined youngsters advanced were such formidable golfers as Nick Weslock of Windsor, the defending champion; Bruce Castator of Weston, Canadian amateur titlist; and Gordie Ball of Weston, Castator's runner-up in last year's Dominion championships.

Panasiuk's victory earned him a place on Ontario's Willingdon Cup squad for the interprovincial team championships. The amateur champion automatically gets a berth on the four-man team and Panasiuk ousted Brownlee, low man in the point standings based on the 54 holes of the Ontario Open and the qualifying round of the amateur.

Weslock, Castator and Bill Parkes of Westclock, who shot a record-equalling 68 in the amateur's qualifying round Wednesday, round out the team.

'Red' Puts On Brave Uniform

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Red Schoendienst, recovering from tuberculosis, put on a Milwaukee Brave uniform Saturday for the first time this season and went through a light workout in Busch Stadium.

The former second baseman spent a few minutes in the batting cage and ran a little.

Schoendienst is recovering from an attack of tuberculosis which put him in a hospital bed for four months in 1958 during lung surgery. He became ill shortly after last year's baseball series. He was injured brilliantly.

Also working out was Brave catcher Del Rice, recovering from a broken ankle.

Rochester Boats Seek Trophy

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (CP)—The Alarm Trophy six-metre yacht racing series, which will be decided Monday, could turn out to be a fight between two Rochester yacht club boats, Why Not and Stork.

Mrs. Helen Ingerson won Sunday's 12-mile race with Why Not to lead in the three-day annual event with 18½ points after two days racing, while Earle Castle's Stork is second with 18 points.

Buzzy H., skippered by Tim Bechter, of the National Yacht Club of Toronto, barely missed getting a second place, being out by three or four seconds to Stork.

The National Yacht Club entry is fourth with 15 points. ¼ of a point behind Skip Dent's of Youngstown Yacht Club's Fun. Doyle, who won Saturday's race, finished sixth.

Jim Crang, pilot of Elsie, Royal Canadian Yacht Club entry, defending champion, tied for fifth place with Wes Wiley of Youngstown Yacht Club's Shallow.

American Track Supremacy Is in Jeopardy Says Coach After Victory Over Russia

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—American track and field supremacy is in jeopardy, veteran coach Frank Potts charged today.

Potts, coach of the triumphant men's team in the past weekend's big international meet against Russia, tempered victory with these words:

"We must improve in distance running and the walking event also or the same the Russians have been improving in field events and sprints or we'll be 35 trouble.

"The time is coming when we are really going to have to improve our overall program. We are strong in the field events and runs up to and including 1,500 meters. We need walkers and distance men."

The University of Colorado coach was pleased with the team's 127½0 victory over the Russian men, but said he couldn't help but think in terms of the future rather than deeds past.

The American women's team was trounced by the Russian gals 46-40. The Soviet distaff athletes made off with 6 out of 10 possible firsts.

On the Russian side, coach Gavriel Korobkov was pleased with the result as the total score gave Russia a 172-167 decision.

Tiers were two world records—both in the shot put. Parry O'Brien, the huge Californian, hurled the shot placing in with a 60 foot, 8¼ inch performance. Teammate Bill Nieder, Kansas sophomore student, took the woman's shot with a 55 - 6¾ inches.

Excitement was caused Saturday in the 10,000 meter run when three of the four competitors passed out. This was topped off by a mistake in the placing in which America's Max Truex, Buffalo, California graduate, wound up third and a Russian second. After considerable checking and rechecking it was admitted by the meet officials that Truex should have been second but it was too late under the rules to make the change.

All three runners came out of the hospital pronounced fit.

Vasily Kuznetsov turned in a sensational performance for the Russians in the 10-meter decathlon. Currently holder of the unofficial decathlon world record of 7,887 points, Kuznetsov's 7,812 effort star compiled 8,350—seven points shy of the record—and beat out Dave Edstrom, 20-year-old one man track team from the University of Oregon.

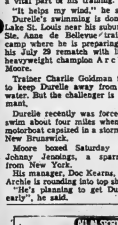
Yvon Durelle Takes Swims, 'Helps Wind'

MONTREAL (CP) — Yvon Durelle, like world heavyweight boxing champion Ingemar Johansson, has his own unorthodox training methods. Durelle firmly believes in a daily swim.

The fighting fisherman from Baie Ste. Anne, N.S., considers an hour-long session in the water a vital part of his training.



"It helps my wind," he says. Durelle's swimming is done in Lake St. Louis near his suburban Ste. Anne, a short distance from camp where he is preparing for his July 29 rematch with light-heavyweight champion Archie Moore.

Trainer Charlie Goldman tries to keep Durelle away from the water. But the challenger is adamant.

Durelle recently was forced to swim about four miles when his motorboat capsized in a storm off New Brunswick.

Moore boxed Saturday with Johnny Jennings, a spar mate from New York.

His manager, Doc Kearns, said Archie is rounding into top shape. "He's planning to get Durelle early", he said.

"I think Jerome took up figuring mostly because trout streams keep the beer cooler."

Leafs Split With Royals; Bisons Divide

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Buffalo Bisons are relaxing with a lavish (for them) 5½-game lead in the International League today as a reward for being opportunists.

A week ago the Bisons were sweating out a 3½-game advantage over Miami after losing 12 games, more than the Seminoles did on about four. Buffalo stumbled seven of 10 and Miami losing six of eight.

Buffalo split a doubleheader with Rochester Sunday, winning 9-0 in the first and losing the second 10-1. Miami lost two to Havana, 4-3 and 6-1.

Third - place Montreal split a twin bill with Toronto, losing the opener 4-3 and taking the second 9-1. Richmond fell two shut out for the fifth time in eight games, 9-0, to Cincinnati.

SIBONS CLEAR FENCES

Rochester, which had a 2-9 record for the week, was the victim of two Buffalo home runs in the first game, and came back with three in the nightcap. Frank Herrera, Harry Hanebrink, Bob Skinner and Eric Schaffer also clouted circuit blows.

Mickey Harrington homered for the Bisons as Don Erickson (4-4) won the second game against Browning (11-5).

Gene Conley, who had four hits and four RBIs, led the Wings in the nightcap. Bowie Nunn (4-3) won over Dick Hall.

Jess Gonder's two-out single in the eighth inning of the scheduled seven - inning opener got Havana's Ted Wieand (3-0) the victory in relief of Vince Amoros. Mickey McDermott (3-5), who hit a two-bagger during the contest, also in relief.

Jack Sanford (5-3) pitched a three-hitter in the nightcap and Bunky Stewart (3-8) lost.

LENNOX HOLDS LEAD

Bob Lennox hit his 31st and 32nd homers of the season as Montreal's runs in the second game as Paul Lapalme upped his record to 9-6. Joe Amalfitano hit a home run for Toronto. George Susce (2-2) got credit.

Bob Wilson drove in the go-ahead run with a sacrifice fly in the 8th inning as Miami ran for the Leafs in the first game as Bob Chakales won his 11th in 15 decisions. Angel Scull, for Montreal, and Joe Altobelli, Toronto, also homered. John Gray lost his fifth without a victory.

Curt Simmons (14-9) gave Richmond only four hits in seven innings before rain ended play, giving way to Fred Green. The Jets' Julien Javier hit a three-run homer in the fourth inning off loser Jim Brosnan. Topher had solo shots to head Ed Sukla's hit seventh loss in 12 decisions.

Injured Star's Hockey Days Are Finished

KIRKLAND LAKE (CP)—Jack McMaster is resigned as last, to the idea that his hockey playing days are over.

McMaster, 21, was paralyzed from the neck down last Dec. 1 while playing for Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen. He crashed into the boards at Sudbury arena, cracking a vertebra and suffering injury to his spine.

Despite the belief of doctors that he would never walk again, McMaster made a speedy recovery in the early stages. He expressed the determination to try to join the Dutchmen in time for their trip to the 1960 Olympics.

Since leaving hospital confined to a wheel chair, McMaster has found his recovery slower. He gets about with a cane now, but tires easily. Sunday was the day with John McNeil and Rev. Les Costello, a former Toronto Maple Leaf, McMaster said he would never play hockey again. He manages golf, and has recorded a 102 score.

McMaster plans to get married in September.

JUNIOR REGATTA

PORT DALHOUSIE (CP)—St. Catharines Rowing Club's junior Central Ontario Rowing Association senior record holder Saturday, winning five of 11 events rowed on the Welland River for the best showing of four clubs competing in the junior regatta.

St. Catharines won the heavy four and eight, the 145-pound and 175-pound eight and the quarter-mile dash for eights.

Hamilton Leanders placed second in four events and third in two. Toronto Argonauts and Toronto Dons had one win each.

Storm Halts Cobourg, Cats Game Saturday

A quick and heavy rainfall swirled in from Lake Ontario and washed out what was shaping up to be another terrific baseball battle in Cobourg Saturday night between the Belleville Bobcats and Cobourg Merchants.

The clubs had just completed four scoreless innings when the rains and wind hit the ball park, chasing the crowd and players to safety in cars. The coaches and umpires agreed to call the game, although the storm lasted for only a short while.

Rolly Campbell and Bobby Green, who had thrown a four-hit 1-0 shutout over Point Anne earlier in the week, were hooked up in a pitching duel.

Campbell retired the first 11 batters before Green walked the next two, and retired the next two to have a no-hitter going when the game was called. He had fanned four.

Green was great in the clutch once again. He gave up singles to Carlos Herndon and Jerry McSporran and walked O'Brien in the bottom of the fourth with only one out but left all three stranded by whiffing McGahan and getting McIver on a popup. A terrific running catch and throw by Bert Faulkner had robbed Campbell of an extra - base blow after Herndon's hit.

Cobourg had earlier singles by Bryan Hart and Rex McGahan. Green had three strikeouts and one walk.

Saturday night's game was the last scheduled tilt of the schedule. Four postponed games remain to be played and the three top positions are still to be decided. Bobcats or Point Anne should take third while Cobourg could claim second or third.

The 'Cats go back to Cobourg Tuesday night for one postponed game. On Thursday they play a two-game series with Bobcats at Point Anne and Point Anne at Cobourg.

Excited Crowd Pushes Away Man Trying to Breathe Life Into Drowned Boy, Who Dies

STOUFFVILLE, Ont. (CP)—An excited crowd, anxious to help save the life of a boy after he was pulled from a nearby lake Sunday, pushed away a man trying to breathe life into the boy and hampered the efforts of a young lifeguard.

While the crowd milled and argued over the best method of artificial respiration, David Laur, 8, of Toronto, died on the shore of Shadow Lake six miles north of this village and 14 north of Toronto.

Frank Samon jr. of Toronto, who tried breathing into David's mouth before him, said, "It was an awful mess. I started to use the mouth-to-mouth method and the kid seemed to come around a bit.

"Then 15 or 20 people started pushing me away. They were pulling the boy's arms and legs and everything."

Emmett Shundoff of Toronto, 19-year-old lifeguard at the privately-owned Shadow Lake Park, said it was "like a backyard roughhouse with everybody pulling at the boy and arguing about the best method to use."

MEDALLION WINNER

It was the third Sunday on the job here for Shundoff who was awarded a bronze medallion last month by the Royal Life Saving Society.

He said, "I started the Holger-Nielsen method — applying pressure to the boy's back—as soon as I got him out of the water. I called to the man I saw coming as Frank to kneel beside me to get the motion so he could take over when I got tired.

"But people kept milling around saying I wasn't doing the right thing and pulling at the boy's legs. After about five minutes I got off and told Frank to continue the way I had shown him."

The crowd kept yelling at Mr. Samon to "blow in the boy's mouth and started grabbing at his legs and arms trying to stimulate circulation. Finally Frank started to blow into the boy's mouth."

KEPT TURNING BOY

The lifeguard said "I told them not to leave him in one position but they were shaking him up and down. They had him on his back then his stomach and his back again."

He said that eventually "people had to form a human wall by holding hands to keep the others back."

When Mr. Samon began breathing in the boy's mouth, Shundoff said, "his eyes opened once and he seemed to be moving and water was coming out of his nose and mouth."

Mr. Samon said, "I guess there were just too many people who wanted to help. One woman told me to get lost. I just couldn't do any good."

TURNED BLUE AGAIN

He said: "The little boy started to turn blue again after I stopped. They wasted too much time right at the start arguing."

Shundoff said he was told to leave the rescue scene and watch the other swimmers by the lifeguard on duty because the area was so large that one more pair of lifeguards could have kept a check on the swimmers.

Fire Trapped Hundreds in Subway Trains

NEW YORK (AP) — Four hundred passengers faced the mounting threat of panic for 30 minutes Sunday before they trapped two subway trains in a tunnel under the East River in Manhattan.

Sixty-three passengers were treated at hospitals for smoke poisoning. None was reported in serious condition.

The fire started around a section of the electrified rail. "A subway spokesman said later that sparks apparently ignited grease and dust.

The cars began filling with smoke.

"Women and children were screaming," said John Kulas, 57, a shipping clerk.

KNELT AND PRAYED

People were coughing. Older people were down on their knees praying. Some passengers lay on the floor, where the smoke was not so thick.

The lights went out when the power was shut off, leaving only the dull glow of the emergency lights.

Several passengers got out and walked back to a station, about a 15-minute trek on foot. The hazard of passing trains and the electrified third rail probably kept more people from trying to walk out of the tunnel.

Finally the trains started to move. The next three people knew they were being helped off at Grand Central Station, the next stop. Police with portable oxygen units gave first aid to the coughing passengers, many of whom collapsed on the subway platform.

Doctor Opposes Telling Public Of Treatment

EDINBURGH (CP) — Don't always tell patients the truth, says a British doctor.

"Where ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise," applies to medical education, said Dr. Robert Asher of London in a paper prepared for a discussion of public health education today.

He contended that it is wrong for the public to learn from any source about new treatments. Dr. Asher was participating in an examination of health education in the first day of the week-long annual meeting of the Canadian and British medical associations.

The conference of 1,000 Canadian doctors and 2,000 of their British counterparts is the biggest in the history of the two groups.

WOULD GIVE DATA

Dr. C. M. Fletcher of London disagreed with Dr. Asher. He urged doctors to encourage adoption of general and special measures to prevent disease.

He said television provides the most effective means of achieving these ends.

Dr. Asher said the public always thinks any new treatment reported in newspapers or magazines is bound to be effective. This created problems for the doctors and sometimes resulted in a loss of confidence in the practitioner.

But he conceded that public demand makes some sort of public health education necessary. This should be confined to information that is "helpful or cheering."

SHORT OF TARGET

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canadian wheat exports are expected to pass the 290,000,000-bushel mark but fall short of the 300,000,000-bushel target for the 1958-59 crop year, a board spokesman said Friday in an interview. He said the carryover into the 1958-60 crop year probably will be about 317,000,000 bushels, a drop of about 100,000,000 bushels from July 31, 1958.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

Tuesday, July 21

Aries (March 21 to April 19) — You are troubled because work or a pressing obligation holds you back from pursuing an outlet more to your liking and intellectually more lucrative. Be patient. Do required research work and you can soon go after your major ambition.

Taurus (April 20 to May 20) — Take care you do not enter into any argument; ensuing behavior, as executive and a partner, or you get deeply involved unnecessarily. Be absolutely neutral and tend to own knitting. P. M. take treatments that will improve health.

Gemini (May 21 to June 21) — Get routine work done quickly in A. M. Later, impress others with true spirit of greatness by not arguing over a small point. Although you are in the right, any fuss would simply take away from own stature and make you look small.

Moon Children (June 22 to July 21) — Be sure this is not temptation to splurge on something that is not truly worthwhile and which could deplete much of your hard - earned savings, as well as make you lose before loved one who has trusted you implicitly.

Leo (July 22 to Aug. 21) — A dynamic family tie is today at sword's point with one whom you admire in outside world, so it behooves you to be highly diplomatic in order to retain harmony at home as well as not take away own security which both mean to you.

Virgo (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — Regular routine of work may appear very boring today, but if you will get out and shop, do other errands in between, this makes the day pass quickly and you get a great deal accomplished. Plan the future. Drive carefully.

Libra (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Think carefully before you purchase those expensive things you have your heart set on. You will find that less costly ones bring equal pleasure, and true friends in P. M. bring solace and comfort, too.

Scorpio (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) — You are being very stubborn with a loved one who has so determined a will as your own. Be the first to make the move toward better co-operation and reconciliation. This will break the ice and true harmony can be reached.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) — Steer clear of whatever is not entirely ethical and high-minded. Also, do not permit that secret worry to deter you from advancing your career. Look into latest methods for the key to earlier success.

Capricorn (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Gambling with funds in any way throughout this day could leave you with an empty pocketbook quickly. Also, use will power to keep from following the advice of misinformed friend, Temptress. Use own judgment.

Aquarius (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) — Quietly sit back now and try to figure out from the way others are acting just what is in back of their minds. In this way, you will get the right picture and can cement better relations; work together harmoniously.

Pisces (Feb. 20 to March 20) — It would be wisest not to blow your top concerning some secret worry which you never thought would come into the open as it has, or be so irritating. P. M. plan future activity intelligently and build up your health.

If your child is born today — The remarkable child born today will early have an appetite for the finest things that life can offer, and a zest for going after them personally and working hard. This is very fine provided you early inculcate the highest moral and spiritual stables so that the great potential in this chart can be realized to the full. The philanthropist is here, too, if properly trained.

REDS REJECT DEMAND

TRIVANDRUM, India (Reuters) — The national council of the Indian Communist party said Friday that a demand by the Congress party for mid - term elections in Kerala state was "unwarranted." The council proposed instead that talks be held in an attempt to solve the crisis in the state where opposition parties have been supporting agitation to oust the Communist government.

Six Children Perish in Fiery Bungalow

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) Six children died in a flaming three-room bungalow at Baulline about 10 miles from here early Sunday.

The victims are Wayne King 8, Hazel 7, George 4, Norman 4, Lorraine 3, and three-months-old Mark.

Their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell King, were believed visiting in St. John's when fire broke out. Ten-year-old Charles King was reported the only occupant of the dwelling to escape.

Two other King children were visiting their grandparents at the time.

Fire department officials said the blaze may have started from an exploding gas lamp.

British Writer Advises Queen To Go Home

LONDON (Reuters) — The news that the Queen is ill with an upset stomach and cancelled Sunday's activities was given considerable prominence in the morning Daily Herald. It declared in a front-page headline: "The Queen Is Ill—Bring Her Home."

The newspaper's correspondent, Peter Moorhead, in a dispatch from Whitehorse, Yukon, declared:

"Twenty-nine hot, hectic days and a gingling 10,000 mile coast-to-coast tour have brought her almost to exhaustion.

"I am no doctor, but I would suggest that the Queen is heading for complete breakdown if the tour continues at its present murderous pace.

"My advice to the four planners is this: call the whole thing off and bring the Queen home — or she could well be a sick woman long before she reaches the end of the tour at Halifax in a fortnight.

"The Queen, I understand, is determined the tour should continue. But I repeat: Make her go home."

The Queen spent the day "up and about" in the luxurious guest house at the airport which had been assigned to the royal couple for their stay. She ate lightly and by evening was so much recovered that her physician said he could see "no reason why the progam cannot continue as scheduled."

To a press-coference question as to whether the Queen were pregnant, Esmond Butler, the

It Takes A TOTAL Selling Medium To Push A Sales Curve UP! . . .

Today's market for almost anything you can name is rich, responsive, rewarding . . . BUT highly competitive! To keep sales mounting under such conditions calls for a TOTAL selling effort. In particular, it calls for the use of the TOTAL selling medium, the newspaper.

No other medium covers the advertiser's TOTAL market so thoroughly . . . no other medium delivers his message with such powerful selling impact as the newspaper. Most shoppers check the ads in their newspaper, last thing before setting forth to buy. This gives the newspaper advertiser the opportunity to put in that all-important last word for himself, the word that pays off so handsomely in SALES.

Whatever make of car you drive-you'll excel with Shell!

These 2 gasolines with TCP give you new power, more mileage and a smoother-running engine

If the manufacturer recommends "premium"
Super Shell with TCP
You get the most mileage, a smoother-running engine, from the most powerful gasoline your car can use

Super Shell's superior road performance—the actual power delivered to the wheels of your car—now means more power-per-gallon than ever before. When cruising, Super Shell's new extra power converts to give you increased mileage and lower running costs. But—Super Shell's price has not been raised! And Super Shell has TCP* to neutralize harmful engine deposits that can rob your car of its peak performance.

If the manufacturer recommends "regular"
Shell Gasoline with TCP
It's loaded with premium features, but sells for the price of regular gasoline

Shell Gasoline is a quality gasoline with better performance than the very top premiums of only a short time ago . . . designed to give top performance in all cars except those with a very high compression ratio. And Shell has TCP* that helps smooth out engine "roughness" and spark plug "miss" . . . gives you all the power and mileage you pay for. And, with all these added benefits, Shell Gasoline still sells at the price of regular gasoline.

*Shell's Trade Mark for this unique gasoline additive developed by Shell Research. Patented 1955

Result In Doubt As Reds In Iraq Battle Kassem

Russia Will 'Consider' Any Plea for A-Bombs

CAIRO (Reuters) — Fighting continued today in the Kirkuk oil area of northern Iraq, reports reaching here indicated.

Fuyad Sammarai, a former Iraqi diplomat now in Cairo, told reporters that reports reaching him called the situation in Iraq "explosive." He added that "the Communists are struggling against the nationalists," with the outcome of the fight in doubt.

Other reports said the week-long violence around Kirkuk was sparked by a revolt among Kurdish army units there. Cairo newspapers called the revolt "part of a Communist plan to spread chaos in Iraq."

BOMB REBEL POSITIONS

The Egyptian-controlled Middle East news agency said Iraqi air force planes had bombed rebel positions. Other reports said the Baghdad government had sent reinforcements into the Kirkuk area.

The continued violence was reported 10 days after the Baghdad government claimed the situation in Kirkuk had returned to normal after the death of "many people" in fighting last week. The clashes broke out during celebrations on the first anniversary of the republican revolution led by Premier Abdel Karim Kassem.

Unconfirmed reports from Lebanon put the death toll in the week of violence at 1,000. Other estimates, regarded as more reliable, said it was 20 to 60.

KILL ARMY COMMANDER

Kirkuk dispatches were reported to have killed the deputy commander of the 2nd Army Corps, Wahab Shawaf and dragged his body through the streets.

Reports also said members of the Communist-led popular resistance group, ostensibly under army control, occupied a police station in a Kirkuk suburb and raided the armory.

Cairo press sources Monday night quoted what they called the clandestine free Iraq radio as saying Iraqi army units had clashed with groups of Communists at Anah township west of Kirkuk.

BAGHDAD, Iraq (Reuters)—Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vassili Kuznetsov said today that Russia's policy is based on banning nuclear weapons but the Soviet government would consider any request from Iraq for nuclear arms.

Kuznetsov is on a visit to Iraq to take part in celebrations marking the first anniversary of last July's revolt against the monarchy.

He told a press conference if a request for nuclear arms was made the Soviet government would consider it but he was not empowered to say what the decision would be.

Iraq already has Russian tanks, jet fighters, armored troop carriers, guns and other weapons.

Col. Fadhal Abbas Mahiawi, the outspoken president of the Iraqi people's peace unit last month that Iraq already had nuclear weapons but America and British quarters expressed open doubt about the claim.

Steel Union Head Tries to Settle Aluminum Pay

NEW YORK (AP)—Steelworkers Union President David J. McDonald will personally take a hand in talks with aluminum companies' labor negotiators if there might shorten the steel strike.

McDonald's attempt to win settlements in the aluminum was considered an unusual step. Aluminum industry settlements usually follow the pattern set by steel.

Contracts with three big Aluminum companies—Alcoa, Reynolds and Kaiser—expire July 31, the first company about the production workers. The steel union represents about 30,500 of them. A strike would shut down about 90 per cent of U.S. aluminum production.

MANY LAID OFF

The strike that began a week ago in the basic steel industry has made idle 500,000 workers and shut down about 90 per cent of the steel output in the U.S. It has brought unemployment to more than 400,000 workers in allied fields—coal, trucking and railways.

Joseph P. Finnegan, head of the federal mediation service, talked with both sides but said he saw no early solution. More progress talks were set for today.

McDonald said he would step into the aluminum talks—perhaps today.

The union's aluminum strategy apparently is to try to win a wage increase in aluminum, consider this gain as a wedge to end the resistance of the steel companies to any increase in their pay.

The steelworkers seek the same annual "productivity, wage increase in aluminum that they seek in steel.

In Six Years Canadian Surgeons Leave 76 Articles Inside Patients

EDINBURGH (Reuters) — A Canadian doctor said today that a "staggering number" of instruments and other articles are left in patients' bodies after operations.

Dr. H. B. Hilton, associate secretary of the Canadian Medical Protective Association, said that in the last six years in Canada alone surgeons had left 19 needles, 35 sponges, five pairs of forceps and 17 miscellaneous objects in the bodies of patients during operations.

Air travel's fast action will be told a joint meeting of the Canadian and British Medical Associations here.

The layman finds it hard to understand how nurses could fail to show up on X-rays.

Road Minister Gets Lost on Own Highways

BARRIE (CP) — Ontario Highways Minister Cass experienced a "shocking thing to happen to a minister on highways," Monday. He got lost on his own road.

Mr. Cass related the story when he was officially arrived for the official opening of a new bridge which carries Highway 400 over the Nottawasaga River some 10 miles southwest of here.

The minister was unable to find signs for the cutoff from Highway 400 to the bridge's service station attendant.

"That's what they all ask," said the attendant.

"I wouldn't be surprised to see some signs up here very soon indeed," commented Mr. Cass.

Castro Refuses to Commit Self on Premiership

Betting Split On Withdrawal

HAVANA (AP)—Fidel Castro had a midnight snack with a group of his pistol supporters in the kitchen of the Havana Hilton Monday night and refused to say whether he will become Cuba's prime minister again.

The bearded revolutionary leader made an unannounced visit with a group of machine-gun-bearing guards. He refused to discuss the premiership, which he resigned Friday in a Moscow-type move to force President Manuel Urrutia out of office.

Betting was split evenly whether Castro would withdraw his resignation today or announce his decision Sunday to a vast throng of cheering supporters at the celebration of the anniversary of his revolution.

"I am sorry for the United States," he told a reporter, commenting on the U.S. Senate committee which has been hearing testimony by his former air force chief, Maj. Pedro Diaz Lanz, who accused Castro of being a Communist.

"I am tired of explaining things," the revolutionary chief added. "Please tell the American people the truth."

Castro returned Monday from a weekend at the Isle of Pines, the Cuba's southern coast, and held a discussion of the prospects for the Pan American Sugar Kings, international League baseball team with the club's president, Bobby Maduro.

A survey of government ministries indicated routine operations going smoothly in Castro's absence. Any major policy changes apparently awaited his decision to return to office or name someone to front for him at the head of the cabinet.

Half Newfoundland 4-Man PC Opposition Quits Party

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Premier Smallwood was expected to fail today to get unanimous legislature support for a resolution condemning the federal government's handling of financial agreements with Newfoundland.

The Progressive Conservative Opposition was split Monday when St. John's members A. M. (Gus) Duffy and James D. Higgins resigned from their party and announced formation of a third political party.

The Newfoundland Grant Act gives Newfoundland $36,500,000 over a five-year period ending March 31, 1962. The premier said in his resolution that the federal government is obligated under terms of union to help pay for the development of Newfoundland's public services at the 1957 level "and this is to be done without qualification and without limit of time."

When the emergency session of the House opened Monday the premier asked if rules governing notice of motion couldn't be waived to allow immediate introduction of the bill. Such a motion requires the full consent of the House.

"It is not agreed", said Opposition Leader Malcolm Hollett, who explained later that Rex Rector, Conservative member for St. John's South, was unavoidably absent from his seat until today.

Mr. Renouf and Mr. Hollett had said earlier they would support the federal Newfoundland grant but their support was not lead Mr. Smallwood to call an election.

Mr. Higgins said "talk and rationale as they will, the legislators at Ottawa and those who support this legislation passed last week in the House of Commons cannot alter the fact that Newfoundland has been betrayed."

He said he and Mr. Duffy will be the first representatives of a new party "which is not bound by any policies of any national party.

Neither he nor Mr. Duffy gave details of the Newfoundland party.

There now are 31 Liberals, two Progressive Conservatives and two Independents and one vacancy in the 36-seat house.

Finance Minister Fleming sent $17,200,000 in federal government payments to Newfoundland Monday as payment of amounts due under the Newfoundland grants legislation.

Summit Conference Chances Becoming Dimmer, Says Ike

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower believes the chances for a summit conference have become steadily dimmer in the last 10 days, the White House aide's attitude regarding Berlin now is tougher than ever.

This Eisenhower pessimism—based on confidential reports from the Geneva foreign ministers meeting—is known on excellent authority. It embraces his view that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev may not even want a summit meeting.

It also is known on high authority that Eisenhower still is willing to attend a summit meeting, provided there is progress at Geneva. That means Soviet recognition of Western rights and responsibilities in West Berlin.

2. He thinks the real Russian objective may be a split in the Western allies, particularly the United States and Britain.

Eisenhower believes French President Charles de Gaulle shares his reluctance about summit talks. Britain, in the president's opinion, is much more eager for such talks because she is convinced it is pointless to deal with anyone other than Khrushchev.

Eisenhower remains adamant that he never will go to the summit under circumstances that would be a personal triumph for

West to End Talks if Reds Insist Two Germanys Equal

GENEVA (AP)—The Western Allies have warned Russia they will break off the Big Four conference if the Soviet Union continues to insist that East and West Germany negotiate on reunification as equals as the price for a Berlin truce.

U.S. State Secretary Christian Herter gave the Western warning to Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko during a private luncheon meeting Monday.

Gromyko did not at that time say the Soviet demand for an all-German committee on reunification was unalterable. But subsequently he gave a preliminary rejection to a new Western proposal for reunification negotiations by the Big Four and said Russia would not agree to any plan that barred direct negotiations between the two Germanys.

The Western plan called for the East and West Germans to serve as advisers to the Big Four negotiators, with direct negotiations taking place only after the four German governments only when the Big Four considered them necessary.

The West today looked to Gromyko for a new proposal that might break the stalemate and say the conferences from failure. Gromyko was assumed to be seeking instructions from Premier Nikita Krushchev.

Some Western officials said Krushchev's cancellation of his Scandinavian tour amid new Soviet accusations against the West-ern alliance suggested he might be in no mood to seek a compromise at Geneva. A hardening trend in Soviet policy would not be surprising, there authorities said.

Record Number Canadians Held Jobs in June

Unemployment Falls Under Recovery

OTTAWA (CP)—A record 6,033,000 Canadians held jobs at mid-June, the bureau of statistics reported today. The unemployment fell sharply under the impetus of "fairly widespread" recovery.

The bureau said its labor force survey found 234,000 persons without jobs and seeking work in the week ended June 20. This marked a drop in unemployment of 100,000 from mid-May and of 90,000 from a year earlier.

Those without jobs and seeking work made up 3.7 per cent of the labor force, compared with 5.2 per cent in June, 1958.

Meanwhile, the labor department said it issued another set of figures on the labor situation showing $20,927 unfilled job registrations on June 18 at National Employment Service offices across Canada. This was a rise of nearly 265,000 from 585,489 on May 21 and was some 293,000 lower than the 326,480 unfilled registrations in mid-June last year.

The government says these figures, however, do not represent absolute unemployment since an unknown number of registrations are from persons wanting to change jobs.

The bureau's survey figure showing 6,033,000 job-holders at mid-June compared with last year's peak of 6,025,000 reached

Prince Philip Picks Eskimo Art After Lone Flight to Yellowknife

EDMONTON (CP) — Prince Philip picked up a collection of Eskimo art work Monday as he flew alone to carry out royal visit assignments in Yellowknife, in the Northwest Territories, and in Uranium City, Sask.

The Queen rested most of the day in Yellowknife before she did greetly from the Yukon capital to Edmonton where she was expected to resume the full schedule today after a two-day bout with influenza.

Information officer Rod Macdonald said that the Queen had people's party through the day, with crowds obviously were also appointed that the Queen had been unable to come. Most had learned that she would not be along before the prince arrived.

Philip flew from here in a marvellous job and he talked to more people today than I've ever seen him speak to," Mr. Macdonnes said.

Prince Philip left Whitehorse at 10 a.m. Yukon time and dropped in for two-hour visits to Yellowknife — where the turnout of Eskimos and the presentation of three gifts stole the show — and Uranium City.

In Yellowknife, which he visited without any of the 50 members of the travelling press and photo corps, Prince Philip was presented with four gifts.

Life-size dolls of a boy and a girl in full Blackfoot costume were presenteil for Princess Anne. There is a harpoon and a bird spear of walrus and walrus tusk for Prince Charles.

A skinning knife was given by Eskimo loyals of Cape Dorset, Baffin Island, was presented to the Queen.

The gift for the Queen was an unusual stone carving of Philip carved as a statuette to represent the Queen. The statuette was of rare green serpentine rock with head and hands of soapstone.

Kenny Pelloolookok who presented the gifts and spoke to Philip in Eskimo language, said the feet of the 1½-foot statuette were bare because the Queen always lives in southern climates so her feet will never get cold.

In Uranium City, the prince visited the Eldorado uranium mine. He was presented there with a gold nugget and a gold cigaret lighter.

Queen Will Fly Straight Home At End Of Tour

Her Majesty Resumes Schedule in Edmonton

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth will fly straight home at the end of her Canadian tour instead of returning in the royal yacht Britannia, Buckingham Palace reported today.

The announcement followed the Queen's round of medical consultations. She has suffered an upset stomach and British newspapers are expressing anxiety that the 15,000-mile tour is undermining her health.

The palace said the decision to get home earlier was taken in Canada and royal aides in London did not know the exact reason.

"I should think she would like to get things arranged for her summer holiday and get a chance to see the children earlier," a palace spokesman said.

ENDS TOUR AT HALIFAX

Under the present program the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh would have embarked on Britannia at Halifax Aug. 4.

The original Royal Tour itinerary issued in January called for the Queen and her husband to return to Britain by air, but this was later revised to provide for the sea voyage.

Forty Tourists Safely Removed From River Boat

GANANOQUE (CP) — Forty American and Canadian tourists were safely removed Monday night from the fully-loaded Thousand Island tour boat Island Wanderer II which partially sank after striking a Sugar Island shoal three miles south of here in the St. Lawrence River.

Some of the passengers who crowded to the damaged stern section of the 41-foot craft stood in the water for about an hour before Gananoque Boat Line skiper Captain Joseph Lawless Island Wanderer III, which was following with a load of 12, returned to assist those in Gananoque.

A spokesman for the boat line said the passengers were excited but did not panic. Life jackets were available but were not used. They were taken back the short school 300 yards from the island shoal. The craft was shoved through the bottom. The craft took three feet of water and a special crew was being sent to it.

Captain of the tour boat is Arthur Russell, a former deep sea skipper.

Ottawa Youths Are Flown Home To Face Charges

OTTAWA (CP) — Richard Stedman and Gerald Andersen, both 19, were charged today with theft of $73,264 from an Ottawa bank and were remanded a week for plea.

The two are from nearby Eastview; Ont., were apprehended at the Mexican border and flown back to Ottawa Monday night.

The banker vanished July 10 —the bank didn't miss it for two days—and the boys were arrested July 17 while trying to cross from San Diego, Calif., into Mexico.

A California border patrol, not satisfied with identification papers the boys produced, said they searched their luggage and found $73,256.

American police quoted Boudreau, a teller at the bank for two years, as saying he had left the bank at closing time Friday with $73,256 in a suit box he had obtained from the clothing store during his lunch hour.

HITCH-HIKED TO U.S.

He and Stedman, an apprentice electrician, drove to Smith's Falls, then started hitch-hiking. From there they said they travelled unlimited motorist $100 to take them across the Canada-U.S. border in the trunk of his car. Then they flew to California.

When arrested the boys were wearing wide-brimmed cowboy hats and carrying boots bought in a drug store. On arrival here each was spruced up in a suit, shirt and tie.

They were taken to a police car from the plane ramp where they waited about seven minutes for two police cars to proceed. During that time, photographers took pictures from all angles.

Only a few curious teen-agers and the parents of the family-lies were not there to greet them.

Retired Naval Commander Searches for Former Home

A retired Naval Commander from Youngstown, N.Y., is conducting a private investigation in the city in hopes of finding that first home he ever remembers.

Commander Watson Dodds, who is taking time out from a vacation trip to conduct the search, is trying to find the home, (if it is still standing), he lived in as a small child with his parents, Sir and Mrs. Frank R. Dodds, between the years 1905 and 1908.

"My first recollection of my life on earth is Belleville," he related.

Commander Dodds, accompanied by his wife Betty, and three sons, David, John, and James, arrived in the city yesterday aboard their 38-foot cabin cruiser, "Gold Star".

Their first stop was the Corby Public Library in hopes of obtaining a 1906 - 1908 city directory, but were told all the old records, directories, and such, had been packed into new premises.

Second stop was the Ontario Reference office where they related his story.

"I remember our house was built on a hill behind the old Rolling Steel Mill, and I remember we had a bridge we used to get to town," he said.

Ice-boating on the bay, the sight of a ship sticking up through the ice, and the drilling of rock-cuts are also fond remembrances of his early childhood in Belleville.

Commander Dodds related his parents came to this city from Napanee, and lived somewhere. They stayed about two or three years, then moved to Seattle, Washington.

"I would like to find the house, but if it's still standing on the site on which it stood," he said.

According to the description given by the Commander and his remembrance of "Rolling Mill Timers" at the office, the old Rolling Mill was situated in the area on St. Paul Street, near where Stephens-Adamson Ltd. is now located. The hill on which the house was situated might be the Church Street hill at the corner of Church and Bridge Streets.

The Commander, a World War II veteran with 22 years of service, is now in what credits is spending his vacation cruising Ontario waterways. He retired with his present rank at the full U.S. Naval Reserve Supply Corps.

He is employed with the engineering firm of Uhlich and Company, which is currently building the N.Y. power project at Niagara Falls, N.Y.

After spending a day and a night in fruitless search, the Commander dropped in at the office this morning to say he has decided to "give up as a bad loss."

He and his family will board their Nova Scotia-built yacht, named for the original U.S.S. "Gold Star" in which Commander Dodds was serving in the Philippines when World War II erupted, to continue their trip. They plan to "go sailing down the St. Lawrence", then, Mrs. Ethel Cooke of Toronto, and three brothers, Walter, Edward and Harold Baker, all of Toronto.

Firemen's Jobs Today Compared With Twenties

A full house was on hand at yesterday afternoon's Rotary Club meeting to hear Fire Chief Gerald Vance, the guest speaker, give an address on the history of the local fire department and to outline the workings of the department both within the City of Belleville and as a member of the Mutual Aid system in Hastings and Prince Edward counties.

In his talk Fire Chief Vance gave a comparison of the organization, equipment, personnel, working conditions, and range of service of the fire department as it was in the early 20's and as it is today. In 1910, the first year the department was organized as a paid service, there were ten men, two pieces of equipment, horse-drawn, and they were worked on a 24-hour day throughout the week. Today there are 21 men working a 56-hour week with eight pieces of equipment with radio control.

The occupational hazards of a firefighter, which includes suffocation, burns, falls, injuries from excessive smoke, were mentioned and the chief stated that he was glad to be able to say that he had never seen a fireman shirk his duty when called to the fire alarm. Commenting on the fact that general optimism seemed to be in the air, he had nothing to do between fires, the speaker outlined the many and varied duties to be performed outside of fighting fires, including fire prevention, drills, and instruction, several community projects, the operation of the emergency unit for life-saving, accidents, etc., and the maintenance of all the equipment in top condition.

Chief Vance said that there was a definite manpower shortage in the local department, and that he had served the activity for 1921, when 18 alarms were handled by a department of 18 men, with that for 1958, when the present department of 21 men handled 600 calls, over 13 times the number of calls with less than three times the number of men. The local Fire Chief strongly recommended an local expansion in the present strength. He was thanked by Don McKinnon on behalf of the club, and by Fireman Bill Gurney.

Special guests of the Rotarians were the Belleville and Trenton Air Cadets who participating in this year's Visit Interprovincial program. Each Aircadet preached sport on behalf of the Quebec students in Hamilton and responsible for the fine welcome he and his fellow students had received there. Bellevillians and expressed the feeling that the students were receiving a worthwhile experience. Ed Purdy spoke for the Trenton Air Cadets and gave a brief account of their trip to Roberval.

Visiting Rotary members honored W. J. "Bill" Morrison as their guest speaker, and Joe Demeza outlined the contributions which the former head of the Canadian Institute for the Deaf has made to his profession, and his contributions. Mr. Morrison spent just over a half-century as an educator and still maintains an active interest in this field, being a member of the board of Directors of Alberta College. He is also an elder in his church, a former president of the Edmonton Concrete Association and president of the Edmonton Council of the Crippled Children's Society.

George MacIlwee introduced the guests and Ben Lowen of St. Boniface, Manitoba, was welcomed as a Rotarian visitor. Birthdays were celebrated by Doug Courtney, Norm Lanning and Don Turner. A rousing sing song, during which the Aloueties seemed to get on a rampage, was conducted by Ernie Curnett with Erwin Buchanan at the piano. Mac Haig introduced Fire Chief Vance and Club President Fred Wilson was chairman of the meeting.

Drury Denyes Requests Copy Auditors' Report

In a letter to Mayor Gerald R. Hyndman, suspended City Manager Drury Denyes advised The Ontario Intelligencer this morning that he had requested a copy of the special auditor's report. Mr. Denyes indicated that once he had a chance to examine the report he would be ready to attend any special meeting of city council to explain this report and the auditor's report for 1958.

He would also explain he stated, certain comments which have been made about the city's finances since his suspension as city manager and would answer any questions which council would care to ask. His appearance before council in this respect, said Mr. Denyes, has been delayed because of the special audit, which he wished to examine so that he could know why points he would have to explain.

Mayor Gerald R. Hyndman indicated at noon today that a copy of the special audit would certainly be available to council as soon as available. The special report is to be in the hands of Municipal Affairs Minister Wm. K. Warrender today so that a recommendation as to what action should be taken before the summer's final cabinet meeting, which is being held Wednesday.

Work Piles Up For New National Energy Board

BY DON PEACOCK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP)—Work is piling up for the new National Energy Board.

The finishing touches were put to the legislation as Parliament completed its business in a final rush before prorogation. It will be up to the board's personnel to put it in business.

The government is expected to name the board's membership within the next week or two.

Trade Minister Churchill said in the Commons Saturday that the intention is to proceed as rapidly as possible with the appointment of the energy board.

FOUR APPLICATIONS

There now are four applications before the government for licences to export natural gas to the United States. They are from Alberta and Southern Gas Company, Westcoast Transmission, Canada-Montana Company and Trans-Canada Pipe Lines Limited.

The board is empowered to deal with applications for gas licences and exports. It also is empowered to handle exports and imports of electricity.

The Senate amended the bill relating to the board to provide that only power lines specifically designed for exporting power come under its regulation.

The change, approved by the Senate Saturday without debate, had in view arrangements like Ontario Hydro has in Canada, for power centres such as Niagara Falls. Power is exchanged across the border at certain peak periods on either side in reciprocal arrangements for mutual convenience.

FIVE BOARD JOBS

Jobs to be filled on the board are the $20,000-a-year chairmanship, the vice-chairman's job worth $18,000 and three $16,000 memberships.

Ian N. McKinnon of Calgary, head of the Alberta Oil and Gas Conservation Board, is understood to be the favorite of the industry and a leading candidate for the chairmanship.

U.S. Deficit Record

WASHINGTON (AP)—The government announced Monday that expenditures for the fiscal year 1959, which ended June 30, was $12,500,000,000. This is a peacetime record.

Treasury Secretary Robert B. Anderson said that preliminary totals at the fiscal year-end showed receipts of $83,158,000,000 and expenditures of $96,699,000,000.

Income was $158,000,000 greater than had been foreseen six months ago, and expenditures were $172,000,000 less.

Strike Poses New Danger For Province

VANCOUVER (CP)—With forest industries deserted and the fire hazard rising, British Columbia's costly woodworkers strike moved into its third week Monday without a new danger for the province.

The 27,000-man strike is estimated to have cost more than $15,000,000 in lost production, $8,250,000 in lost wages and $45,000,000 in loss to the province's economy. No talks have been held for the last week and none is scheduled.

Fire service officials fear continued warm weather might cause a substantial increase in the 33 fires burning in the forests.

The International Woodworkers of America (CLC) has an agreement with lumber operators which expires Aug. 31 and calls for a 10-cent-an-hour increase over two years with an extra six cents for tradesmen. Present basic rate is $2.172 an hour.

One of the province's several other problems ended Monday when there was no general improvement in the labor situation.

Some 1,000 seamen went back to work after a nine-day walkout. Another strike began and three others were threatened.

Seventy floorlayers went on strike against nine tile and carpet firms here to back up demands for a 35-cent increase in their hourly basic rate of $2.20.

STRIKE DEADLINE JULY 25

A strike of 10,000 workers in the fishing industry appears certain. The United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union has set a strike deadline for July 25 to back up demands for higher prices and wages.

James Sinclair, president of the fishermen's association of B.C., said Sunday that last-minute attempts to avert a tieup in the $98,000,000-a-year industry had failed.

The Plasterers' and Cement Masons' International Association received a 26-cent increase spread over two years to raise their basic hourly rate up to $3.50.

Still on strike besides the coast woodworkers are 300 sheet metal mechanics, who have refused to go back to work until the employers' fire fee was also refused to obey strike orders, and members of the International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Ironworkers, who have been picketing the construction of Vancouver's $23,000,000 Second Narrows Bridge and other major projects in the province since they went out June 22.

Study Skeleton Found in Bush

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial police crime laboratory technicians started work Monday on the skeleton of a woman found by a Maple Lake area farmer Saturday in a shallow grave near a gravel lover's parking spot.

Police hope the laboratory will be able, to provide some clue to the woman's identity and how she met her death.

Farmer Bill Barry found the body in bushland near Maple Lake, 30 miles northwest of Peterborough, while inspecting a fence. The skeleton was incomplete, however, for the head, shoulders and spine. Coroner Dr. F. A. Griffiths said the woman was aged between 40 and 45 and that she had been dead between five and 10 years.

The coroner said he thought "some sort of foul play" was involved. Police reported more than $130 in cash and a nurse's registration card with the remains. The money was badly chewed by animals.

MASS KILLING

DURBAN, South Africa (AP)—Police said they are holding Zisa Dikamini, an African woman, for killing her husband and six children. Police said she first killed her husband and five of her children while they were sleeping. Then, police said, she went to fetch the slain child, visiting relatives in Dundee village. She brought it home and killed it too.

Around Town
With Al

TRENTON — Never was so much heat endured by so few for so many. They slightly changed and famous Churchill phrase could well be applied to Trenton's town councillors last night when they met in the council chambers for their regular session.

And I'm not referring to the "heat" of an argument but just plain summer heat. No one had a thermometer but it is quite willing to estimate it was very close to 90 degrees even with the tiny air conditioner which has been in the board rooms for the past number of years.

It is hard to understand how the town fathers can think clearly with sweat bubbling out of every pore and their clothing sticking to their bodies making it most uncomfortable for the three hours they attended to town business.

Slight, and only slight relief was enjoyed by all when tax collector R. G. Alan Weaver brought in two fans and put them in operation.

All 12 spectators or councillors will not forget last night for some time to come.

Last year's council had made a step towards buying a new air conditioner for the board room but after much debate the matter was dropped for some unknown reason and it has hardly been mentioned since although the need for one has certainly been evident. Even Trenton which Mayor Ross Burtt once referred to as "a suburb of Turkish bath".

But with money as short as it is this year in the town coffers the councillors probably feel they would rather "endure" the heat for the remainder of the summer than to spend the few hundred dollars on the conditioner they would cost.

It's a admirable thought but maybe in the cool of next spring at budget time those left on the council will remember the heat of this summer and make allowances for the air conditioner as dcomfort that surely the taxpayer in town would begrudge their business managers.

Children Set Fire to House Curtains

TRENTON — The town's fire department received a call yesterday afternoon but neither fire caused much damage.

The first call came in at 12.15 p.m. from 242 Sidney Street where children set fire to curtains on fire in the home of Jim Whitley. They had been playing in the bedroom and the fire burned the curtains off the widows and had caught a blanket and mattress on fire.

In the excitement at the time the person phoning in the call gave the firemen the address of 442 Sidney Street and as a result the fire trucks went rushing right past the house. When no such number could be found Chief Ellis phoned the hall and is meaning a woman had called in again giving the correct address.

The firemen checked to make sure all was well when they arrived on the scene and had the mattress removed from the house to make sure it was out.

The second call came in at 2 p.m. from Jack Zigman's junk yard which is the location of a large truck loaded with auto parts that caught fire.

The tractor had just hooked onto the trailer and was pulling away when the fire was noticed and the firemen called. The driver was quickly "unhooked" and the firemen put the fire out.

It is understood old car seats in the truck had been caught on fire but no great damage was reported.

The first call came only minutes after the firemen had returned to the fire hall store where they had undergone a two-hour and six minute run on their aerial ladder truck. A general alarm was rung for this fire.

Council Prepared to Issue $100,000 in Debentures for 70-Bed Hospital Addition

TRENTON — Town councillors backed the Trenton Hospital Board last night in a bid to build an addition to the present hospital, in passing a resolution to endorse an issue of debentures to cover the town's share $100,000 of the total cost, $587,000, of the proposed addition.

The resolution read: "That this council endorse the issue of debentures up to $100,000 for the construction of a 70-bed addition to the Trenton Memorial Hospital subject to the approval of the Ontario Municipal Board and that this work be undertaken this fall if it will assist in alleviating the potential unemployment problem during the forthcoming winter."

The resolution was passed unanimously by a full council following an address by the chairman of the board, S. O. Graham.

Following is the brief presented to the council by the Hospital Board:

"For the past three years the Board of the Trenton Memorial Hospital has been laboring under a most difficult situation regarding accommodation for patients in our hospital and at the same time giving service to the best possible point.

"In the seven years of operation the hospital, which has a rated bed capacity of 68 beds and 18 bassinettes, has provided for 115 to 125 per cent, most of the time, of this capacity and at peak periods up to nearly 170 per cent by making semi-private rooms out of private rooms, standard wards out of semi-private rooms and having patients in the halls.

PATIENTS SUFFER

"The patient suffers because of this overcrowding situation. Aside from the physical illness and mental strain, the nursing services are handicapped and the services in general become lessened and appreciated.

"In cases in the halls the patient has a screen around his bed for her and becomes a target for the curious eyes of passers-by. At the best a patient entering hospital is deprived of much of his or her privacy and the full support of personal and family services.

"In the main the patient pays a reasonable sum for his or her accommodation and is entitled to reasonable services and privacy and the best of care.

"Because of the above and the present hospitalization plan now in operation your board has for 1½ years been very cognizant of the situation as it progressed and along with a consulting hospital engineer, Mr. Fraser Armstrong, formerly of Kingston General Hospital and hospital architect, Mr. Chester Wood of Toronto, developed plans for extended bed services and such other services as would be required for a hospital of the proposed size and for a population of 10 years.

PROPOSED SERVICES

These services include:

1, 70 more beds; 2, 6 more nursery cots; 3, a new X-ray diagnostic department of 29 beds (present department set up for 5 beds with 10 beds in the same room.

Extra beds have to be used in wards; 4, a new cystoscopic department; 5, enlarged laboratory (4 times); 6, enlarged O.P.D. department; 7, enlarged physiotherapy; 8, enlargement of surgery, new arrangement of office for better efficiency; 10, more kitchen and dining space.

In preparing the plans for the extra bed accommodation and other extra services required we realized we are situated in a growing town and district and that in the not too far future, further accommodation will be required and so the plans are so laid out that it could be done with a minimum of expense at that time.

These present plans have been approved by the Hospitalization Commission and now stand until the Board produces satisfactory financial arrangements to approve commencing the building proper.

"If, as and when this is done Trenton will have a required size hospital, fully equipped for its accreditation; B, large enough for a School of Nursing and desirable in any time; C, a hospital which will ensure more medical people to practice in and, above all, excellent in medicine and its care. D, facilitet to cope with almost all emergencies or epidemic, and, or, civilian defence for the community; E, a payroll of $100,000 at least more per year than now being spent, and excellent paying services which extra would be equal to a fair sized industry coming to Trenton.

COST $587,000

"We contemplate the addition of two wings to our hospital and equip it as above mentioned it will accommodate a new $587,000.

Of this the Provincial Government and the Government of Canada will contribute in the neighborhood of $340,000 to $40,000 or other words $4,000 per bed plus $8.66 per square foot of interest space or 50 percent of cost, which ever is less.

Your Board through its thriftiness over 7 years of operation has laid by and has on hand $75,000, which leaves approximately $175,000 to raise.

We suggest, we as a Board, can raise the $72,000 or thereabouts. The balance of $160,000 we suggest and expect the Government of Trenton deserve or raise over a period of two years, which would complete our financing for building and equipping of the two wings.

Your Board are much elated over the fact that it is only called upon to contribute one sixth of the cost for this service that the people of this community should not be asked to be without.

This financing must be accepted and have the approval of the Hospital Commission before we will be given a starting date. We suggest if we may have your approval and a by-law covering same, set up at an early date, we could alleviate some unemployment in Trenton in the fall and winter months by having an early fall starting date of the project.

An early approval of up to $100,000 would assist your Hospital Board very materially in giving Government approval of the project at an early date and thereby create the capacity of the Hospital services and give a greater measure of medical care and definite security than heretofore.

British Papers Say Queen's Illness More Serious Than Canadians Admit

LONDON (CP)—British newspapers expressed anxiety today that the Queen's Canadian tour is undermining her health.

"Save the Queen," "The Queen Exhausted—Resting Per Horse," were two headlines.

The Queen cancelled appearances Sunday and Monday because of a stomach upset, and British reporters said the Royal tour cabled that the Queen's illness was more serious than Canadian officials cared to admit.

The coast-to - coast tour has brought her "almost to exhaustion," Peter Moorhead said in a dispatch to The Daily Herald.

"I am no doctor," Moorhead continued, "but I would suggest that the Queen is heading for a complete breakdown if the tour continues at its present murderous pace."

Prime Philip was reported by the British press to be greatly concerned about his wife's health. Several newspapers blamed the bleeding with her to cut short the tour and fly back to England.

Doo iddon of The Daily Mail said that the Queen is "desperately tired" and added that "politics are playing a considerable part in this extraordinary drama of a sick Queen and blundering Canadian politicians."

Iddon said Prime Minister Diefenbaker is anxious not to have the Yukon blamed for the Queen's illness because he has grandiose plans for it after the tour.

In a full-page article, the tabloid Daily Sketch asked: "Do we value our Queen's health or do we think that she should go on waving and smiling until she drops?"

The Sketch estimated that by the time the leaves Canada the Queen will have shaken 5,000 hands, made two TV broadcasts and 50 speeches, will have visited 136 places, attended 61 formal presentations and 31 informal functions.

"Endless handshaking isn't the answer to better understanding," said The Sketch.

"Very much better though the Canadian tour is proving too much for the Queen.

Trade Minister Defends Atomic Energy Program

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Churchill has stoutly defended Canada's atomic energy program in the wake of criticism by an American official.

"We think we're doing pretty well in Canada," Mr. Churchill said Monday night.

"Our atomic energy program is being worked out according to a plan devised several years ago and is coming to fruition very rapidly."

He was commenting on a Washington report Saturday quoting Dr. Willard Libby, who resigned recently as a member of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, as telling a joint congressional committee that Canada's program "is a pretty small effort."

"I think Libby could have done a better job," Dr. Libby testified.

Mr. Churchill said Dr. Libby is not known here, and as far as he could learn has never visited Canada in his capacity as an AEC member. The U.S. official had never toured the Canadian atomic plant at Chalk River.

Dr. Libby's remark before the congressional committee was a "casual comment," said Mr. Churchill.

TRAGIC INTERFERENCE

It is ironic that the recent discovery of scientific basis for belief in the effectiveness of one of the oldest known methods of artificial respiration should have been, in some measure at least, responsible for the death of an eight-year-old boy at Stouffville, Ont., on Sunday.

David Laur was pulled unconscious from a lake by a 18-year-old lifeguard, who holds a bronze medallion awarded by the Royal Life Saving Society. The young lifeguard started to apply the Holger-Nielson method of resuscitation, applying pressure to the boy's back, but, sensing that he would get tired, asked a man, Frank Samon, Jr., of Toronto, to stand by ready to relieve him. The crowd kept criticising the lifeguard and pulling at the boy's legs. Finally the lifeguard left the task of applying respiration over to Samon. The crowd kept yelling at him to blow in the boy's mouth, some members evidently having read that this method of artificial respiration, as old as time, had just recently had its effectiveness confirmed by scientific research. So Samon tried the method — and, when apparently tacked faith in it, for Samon was pushed away. The boy died. Whether he could have been saved had the lifeguard's method been continued, or had Samon been allowed to continue the breathing method, is something we certainly do not know and which may never be known. The fact is, though, that the boy never had a fighting chance — because the crowd people were sure that they and they alone knew what should be done.

Sometimes people at the scene of a drowning or water accident may be prone to think that the lifeguard does not know his job because he may be young. This is certainly weak thinking. Granted many of our lifeguards are young, they are usually high school or university students who are holding down a summer job. This, however, does not mean that they are irresponsible or ignorant when it comes to performing their duties.

Before they become lifeguards they almost certainly have gone through a series of exhaustive swimming, first aid, and artificial respiration tests. There can be no doubt that once they are qualified by the YMCA, the Red Cross, or the Royal Life Saving Society, these people are quite acceptable as lifeguards.

The person present at the scene of a water accident who feels that he knows more about what is going on and attempts to interfere should, in our estimation, face a criminal charge. There is no room for arguing or fooling around when someone's life is at stake.

A little knowledge can be a dangerous thing.

MORE ABOUT INFLATION

Returning to the problem of inflation, which we mentioned in these columns a day or two ago, we started pondering about the terms "creeping inflation" and "runaway inflation" and started wondering what precisely, were the limits for each.

We have no answer for that, but in the course of our musing we think we came up with a fool-proof method of determining when runaway inflation arrives — if it ever does. It will be here the day that the finance ministers refuse to loan money, because they are afraid that by the time they get their dollars back the dollars will not buy as much as they would have when they were loaned to you.

This line of reasoning, though, led us into trouble. Logical deduction from our conclusion regarding finance ministers would indicate that interest rates are likely to rise when the threat of inflation increases, since financial institutions would require more and more interest to offset the fall in the purchasing value of the dollar. But high interest rates are supposed to be one of the ways to check the inflationary trend. Everything seems to be self-qualification of theories here, but if we accept both, then we must come to the conclusion that the body economic has a tendency to manufacture antitoxins against the disease inflation, that there is a kind of built-in brake, with inflationary pressures producing high interest rates and with these high interest rates reducing the danger of inflation. This is a very comfortable theory and the only trouble is that there are a number of countries whose people can testify that it does not seem to work out that way, or at least that the brake is not powerful enough to stop the inflationary chariot once it really starts rolling.

So many fence posts, railings, chairs, desks and tables are made out of metal these days, it's hard to see what good it does an oldtimer to carry a jackknife. — (Vancouver Province.)

MAN'S EXPERIENCE

By EDGAR A. GUEST

A scramble for gold,
And a scurry for place,
A brief pause for loving,
A kiss, an embrace,
A ring; then the altar,
A vow to be true,
Then back to turmoil
To scramble for two.

For man's the provider,
And ever he strives
To care for his loved ones
And brighten their lives.

A year or so passes;
Still toiling is he;
"A boy!" says the doctor;
Now scramble for three.

For this is the common
Experience of man,
A scramble for money
Comes now and then.
But ever we hurry
And scramble by day,
For the family incomes
As fast as our pay.

Effects of Radiation

By Richie Calder in INCROD Feature

Mr. Stephen Taylor, editor of the Witney Gazette, England, says that there has been a complete lull in the correspondence columns of his paper concerning the effects of radiation other than those produced by "the modern medium."

"Some correspondents," he writes, "claim that both supersonic vibrations from jet-aircraft and ultra-short waves used in radar transmissions are harmful and capable of producing serious physical disturbance in people exposed to them."

Maybe we had better be clear, first, what we are talking about "supersonic" or "ultrasonic". Let us define our terms.

"Sonic" means "sound" and sound-waves travel through the atmosphere at about 760 miles an hour. (The speed varies with height and temperature.) An aircraft travelling at 800 m.p.h. or more at 40,000 ft. is said to be "subsonic"; at between 600 m.p.h. and 800 m.p.h. it is "transonic"; and above that, "supersonic".

Somewhere between 684 m.p.h. and 1,040 m.p.h. (depending on the density of the atmosphere) is the "sound barrier". When an aircraft reaches it, it appears to "crash the sound barrier" and it really is a crash because the invisible sound barrier is as physical as a man.

The explanation is that below the speed of sound the aircraft is preceded by sound-waves which act like the outriders (or siren escort) of a procession. Like outriders, they clear the way which is coming. But when the aircraft is travelling at the speed of sound it is overtaking the sound waves which it has been able to clear. It is like a battering-ram before its time. Nothing goes so great that it is travelling faster than its own sound waves. When the aircraft crashed the shock reaching the ground shatters windows, and people's nerves. But "sound," here, is like a physical blow.

"Ultrasonic" therefore means the speed of the machine relative to the speed of sound.

"Ultrasonic" is something different. It means "beyond the threshold of hearing". The ear, or a microphone, picks up sound waves are vibrations of air beating on the ear-drum, or diaphragm, and which are converted into nerve-impulses, or electric signals. In the human ear the range of identity of sound-waves of certain frequencies, which we call "hearing," from the "silent" whistle) and other creatures, is how every [illegible] human range. But there are other frequencies which are not heard by any ear, CCC stands for Civil Conservation Corp. [illegible] ...ments are well-known. [illegible] ...ery are of such [illegible] ...ds. Bats make ultra-squeaks of different [illegible] and so can be [illegible] ...ency sonic or sound-[illegible] in metal or split seeing [illegible] ...ibrations would be harmful if human beings were exposed to them. [illegible] ...would "avoid" the pencil-sharp beamr, at [illegible] ...ferent altitudes [illegible] ...ones would not have the [illegible] ...ect upon them. It is, however, one qualification: [illegible] ...ears of some people. Like the [illegible] ...ears are sensitive to vibrations beyond the ordinary [illegible] ...hearing scale or beyond hearing in the ordinary sense. [illegible] ...ultrasonics emotionally disturbing.

Now about radar: Radiowaves [illegible] ...ers from kilometres ("long waves") to millimetres ("short waves") in length. Very short waves (or very high frequencies) are used in radio-[illegible] ...effects. They can melt metal or cook food. High frequency currents are used in refining metals. High frequency waves are used in "inside-out" cooking, which means that the food is penetrated inside the steak, whereas, in grilling, the heat goes from the outside inwards. The explanation is that the high-frequencies agitate the molecules in the metal or the meat and molecules when agitated generate heat.

One can put one's hand in a high-frequency furnace or oven and feel no sensation of heat—but not for long, because the molecules in the tissues of the hand will begin to heat-up. And if one is silly enough to put in a hand with a ring on it, the results will be very unpleasant because metal, being a better conductor than flesh, will melt quickly.

So ultra-short waves can produce physical effects on the living body, but they have to be ultra-short — not those used in television or so-called "VHF" (very high frequency) radio transmissions. But ultra-short waves or ultra-high frequencies are used in certain forms of transmissions, and, in Britain, there have been protests about such stations in areas where bedding might be exposed to them. Probably the official reassurances have a measure of truth and the public fear is slight. But, however slight, they are undesirable.

There is a subtle generalization — that all excessive, or ludicrous, reactions indicate that [illegible] of the burning, by overstatement. (Think, or maybe you would rather not, of the social values in a cocktail party of modern man); ultra-short radio-waves, X-rays or cosmic rays are harmful. Some are infinitely worse than others.

Other correspondents, writes Mr. Taylor, "say that radar transmissions are heard as a constant low-toned humming sound that appears to be coming from no particular direction, and some have stated that it is 'loud enough to cause them a certain amount of distress'".

I have had many complaints of this kind and have had them medically, scientifically and instrumentally investigated. They have never been confirmed, although one must admit that the subjective can never be convinced "by expert assurances. I have, for example, had assurances which the scientists may say are imaginary and good enough in those in whom they persist. If, as many scientists say, it is impossible for the capacity of some people to receive thought-transmissions from us, we cannot exclude other forms of "extrasensory perception" which might be transmitted by waves. All that scientists can say is that we cannot measure what cannot measure."

Give Restless Teenage Boys Work in Camps

By Sidney J. Harris

In past ages, when boys in their late teens were restless, resentful and unwilling to confine their activities to home, they went to the frontier towns or ran off to sea.

Today, a large part of what he call the "delinquency problem" is aggravated by the fact that troubled young boys in big cities have such limited outlets for their energies.

When a boy is bored with school, and feels confined by a routine job, he has little to do except hang around street corners and make life miserable for the adults and [illegible] in the neighborhood. Putting him in a reform school is more likely to deform than straighten him out.

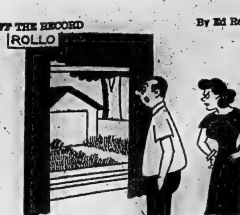
I think the government should investigate the possibility of CCC camps which, in the U.S. accepted so many thousands of transient boys during the depression. They were not [illegible] ...ps, CCC stood for Civil Conservation Corp.

[illegible] ...ervised [illegible] ...ded a way of helping [illegible] ...ers during a time of crisis. Many of them found, to their intense surprise, that it was the first time in their lives they had done anything useful.

Physical labor, in an outdoor setting, is often an effective discharge for all their pent-up emotions.

The city could treat these days are cluttered with [illegible] ...who have no love or understanding, and from neighborhoods which offer no recreation, or opportunity in no way out except in [illegible] ...jail.

After all, a troubled boy from a prosperous family is sent to a psychiatrist; a troubled boy from a slum family is sent to a correctional institution. Both are generally only makes him worse.



Many of these boys should be forest rangers, or workers on the land, but they have never had the chance to find their proper niche. Thousands could be saved from the otherwise inevitable prison life, if we discover, it would rid the schools of elements which create havoc, fear and lower standards of education.

Instead of appropriating more money for defensive purposes, legislatures should study the toxic possibilities of a few years' idleness for boys off the street and putting them in the forests, where a knife can do some good.

Waning Classics

Victoria Times

The classical student seeking to gain a measure of Greek and Latin in British Columbia schools is finding the way of the whooping crane. Only one school in the province (a private school in Victoria) offers Greek and there is just one young Latin teacher on the Victoria school staff. Classical and senior classics teachers are inevitably discouraged. Senior students are vanishing.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

It was lately announced that last year 37,000 people were killed in traffic accidents in America, a figure so huge as to believe, and maybe some safety evangelist has exaggerated. But if it is true of any where near true, it gives us at last the right to refer to the Traffic War.

In the second world war, Canada lost 40,000 men, and in the first, 58,000. The casualties in the Korean war, the various diseases run up sixty-odd totals. But, you might say are more or less beyond human control.

Is war beyond human control? Is the Traffic War beyond human control?

Traffic War is a good name for it. What is the conflict of countless thousands of cars on our highways and city streets but a small war of competing, aggressive and often hostile individuals? For one driver who wants nothing more than to convey himself at his usual pace to his usual destination there are two or five or ten drivers who have no other desire but to get there first, regardless of who or "there" is. They are warmongers of the Traffic War.

Perhaps we could not to dignify it with the name of war. No conquests are made, no peoples are hung in honor of the fallen in an annual battle that is a ten day time, will soon run up a total far exceeding that of all the battles since Julius Caesar.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

SEDATIVES AND NARCOTICS ARE NOT FOR DAILY USE

Yesterday I discussed questions about drugs that are "safe" enough, sufficiently used — to be available without a prescription. Alcohol is one without prescription, but you know its dangers. You can buy gasoline without a prescription, but sometimes a small child drinks some and dies. What I'm pleading for is public realization that laws alone can't guarantee safety.

But we were going to talk about non-prescription drugs, and I have a letter from a woman who describes herself as "hyperexcitable," without trouble, and a very weak stomach," who has been using codeine tablet a day following an operation. This was on prescription.

Now a year has passed and I get the need of it every evening to get rest and sleep and ease of pain."

Her husband thinks she should stop; she says she will abide by my decision.

Let my talk turkey. Maybe she won't like what I say, but I am not going to dodge. This sounds like a habit! Neither pain nor "weak stomach" is something that occurs just once a day! Nor is it likely that a person will whatever its strength, will last for a year. That's why it sounds like a habit.

Codeine, while not as strong as morphine and some other opium derivatives, is nonetheless a habit forming drug. Narcotics is dangerous to the unsuspecting taker, which is why, for many years, physicians' preparations for menstrual pain.

The narcotic addict has a sad place in treatment. There are many instances in which nothing else we know of can help as well. But only for the brief emergency, not for recurrent pain.

ANOTHER REAL DANGER

The habit-forming (phenobarbital, or many other derivatives of barbituric acid) tablets are dished out too freely for "nerves" and sleeplessness. Again, there are cases in which they need to be used, but again habituation comes very easily, and barbiturate poisoning is a real danger and causes too many deaths.

It is easier to take a pill than to mend our ways!

In the last several years the tranquilizers have become very popular, and while they appear to be less dangerous than the barbiturates, they are not without risk, and habituation has been reported in some studies.

They aren't perfect. They aren't "foolproof." And they are needed as often as people insist.

I recently refused a request from a woman for a prescription for tranquilizers. I asked why she felt she needed them and she said it was "because all my friends are taking them."

Drugs are drugs. Forget names. As a doctor, I know that at times people can be made better, can be made more comfortable, can be helped over a crisis with such sedatives and narcotics.

But these are not for daily use. It takes its toll and the price can be high. Remember my friends and readers, don't let yourself ever reach the point at which you say you "need" a drug every day. Because that is the point at which you have already gone too far, and the road back to normal, while not impossible, is not easy.

"Doris": This fear of going out — and remember that you didn't always have it is one of the "nervous" symptoms, but it isn't at all. UNEXPECTED TREASURE

A few evenings ago I went to hear a well-known soprano. She had gone to a music school some years before to be trained in instrumental music. There she discovered — and she had a voice. She had never suspected it before. Her teacher led her the way to becoming a famous singer.

How often this thing has happened. And in the case of all of us, it can with confidence be said that we have been tucked away in our nature which we do not suspect. Every one of us is familiar with somebody who made a success in a field where he or she had no idea that any success lay. An opportunity, a circumstance, sometimes even a tragedy occurred and the mind of the person was turned in a new direction — and toward a new and shining light.

We need all to remind ourselves that great talents we are so not only not known to the world, but not known to us ourselves. Accordingly, we should never lose hope. Because away down in our hearts may be the centre of our minds are resources that are unexplored.

Abraham Lincoln said he simply intended to go along doing what he could and that time would come when he might be President.

There are treasures in our nature the existence of which we do not suspect. Believe in them.

THE FAMILY

The family is the corner stone of any great nation. The Bible says: If a child is brought up in the right path he will not depart from them. The greatest men and women have been those brought up in a religious family. Our great men and women have been those who learned early to fear the Creator and guardian of the home.

Religious training is what the world most needs. It must be started in the home in a free world it is religion that best, most to keep freedom alive. It is in the home, as a family, that the habits and ideas of those within the family grow and become respected. Leaders develop in a home where there is freedom in the family home.

There is no organization greater than that of the family. And it was called family because it started taking place at home. Juniors Whip Foxboro 15-2 For Ninth Win

Belleville Juniors exploded for ten runs in the fourth inning on their way to a 15-2 victory over Foxboro last night in a South Hastings baseball league fixture that was postponed from Saturday night.

The Juniors also registered an 11-1 exhibition victory over Desoronto on the weekend.

The Noakes-Morris crew took a 5-2 lead in the first three frames last night as Pat Asselstine hurled fine ball against Foxboro. Then in the fourth they rapped seven hits, two each by Gary Goyer and Bill Moxon and singletons by Clarke, Asselstine and Mavety. This combined with walks and errors to make the score 15-2.

Asselstine fired four-hit ball the winners, giving up all the hits in the second frame when Foxboro plated both runs. He slipped a pair on third strikes while walking another couple.

Jack Stewart started and lost on the home club's hill. Robinson came in briefly in the fourth, Stewart returned and once again was relieved, this time by Pat Marcle. They were tagged for 18 hits, claimed one strikeout and passed five.

Glen Clarke collected three singles to spearhead the Belleville offense. Gary Goyer and Bill Moxon banged a triple and single each, all four hits coming in the fourth frame. Duff Fellwell, Moe Hunter, Dick Morris, Asselstine and Larry Mavety had two hits apiece, Jack Elliott completed the 18-hit attack with a single.

Jack Stewart doubled for Foxboro while Howard Skelly, Skinner and Ralph Plane had one-baggers. Other than in the second inning the Foxboro batters were unable to solve Asselstine's slants.

The victory was number nine for the city club, against three defeats and two ties, in the South Hastings League schedule.

Plans are being made for the Juniors to play a Herbie Henn benefit game here in the near future against an all - star club from the remaining teams in the league. The date will be announced shortly.

Two Men Rob Hamilton Bank, Suspect Held

HAMILTON (CP) — Two men escaped with about $2,000 after holding up the Maccab-Merrick Streets branch of the Royal Bank of Canada Monday.

One suspect was captured after a two-block foot chase by the bank manager and an accountant. Constable Garry King arrested the man after bank manager Bert Spritzer yelled:

"Get that man. He just held up our bank."

Police said a young man walked into the downtown bank at 2:10 p.m., and handed Elizabeth Szilagyi a note which read: "Hand over fives, tens, twenties and hundreds."

"I didn't see a gun," said Miss Szilagyi, who has been teller at the bank for one year.

The bandit motioned toward a man standing nearby. "There's another fellow back here with a gun."

"I handed him some money," the teller said.

Miss Szilagyi waved a signal to two other tellers, Gail Purnal and Mary Lou Martin. They gave the alarm.

Mr. Springer and accountant Thomas Bell went into action as the two men fled.

A man about 30 years old, was held for questioning. Police said no money has been recovered.

Stabs Husband, Feeds Him Rat Poison

HARRISON, N.J. (AP) — Police say a 21-year-old blonde fed her husband rat poison in soup she said would heal a stab wound — a wound she had inflicted.

Here is what happened as related by police:

Provine had been locked out of the apartment overnight on Sunday.

When his wife let him in they argued. She said she loved someone else.

They fought and she stabbed him in the shoulder with a bread knife.

After she tried to stop the bleeding, he pleaded with her to call a doctor. She refused and went out to get something for the wound.

She returned minutes later carrying a druggist had given her some mustard seed. If she put it in soup, she said, it would stop the bleeding. Provine took eight spoonsful.

Just then Provine's mother-in-law, Mrs. Helen Vecchio, entered and called police.

Provine was taken to hospital where his stomach was pumped and the wound dressed. He was listed in fair condition.

Cafe Brawl Turns Into Street Riot

JERUSALEM (AP) — A cafe brawl turned into a street riot in Beersheba Monday night. The mob was scattered after 30 minutes, but vilence broke out again after midnight.

Police claimed that agitators from outside the town had inflamed the crowd, but it was not clear what they were objecting to.

In the first outbreak the mob stormed through Beersheba's main street, smashed shop windows and tried unsuccessfully to burn down the tax office. Six policemen and a civilian were hurt by stones and 26 persons were arrested.

Later in the night the mob reformed, set fire to a police truck and tried to attack security guards patrolling the streets. The disturbance was reported quelled with no one hurt.

Pediatric Meet Helps to Reduce World Tension

MONTREAL (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said Monday that scientific meetings such as the ninth International Congress of Pediatrics help reduce world tension.

He said they offer proof the East-West gap can be narrowed "provided the free world does not weary in negotiation."

The congress has brought together 1,600 child care specialists from 63 countries.

Mr. Diefenbaker said "in the field of international relations many nations of the world have not yet learned the need for world co-operation to the end that war shall be prevented and peace assured."

CONTINUING EFFORT

"The Canadian government has repeatedly emphasized the importance of continuing negotiations between East and West and in the value of the most searching joint examination of major issues which separate them."

He endorsed a recent statement by British Prime Minister Macmillan that the road toward solution of world problems is long and there must be infinite patiences and faith.

The doctors swung into their five-day program with a welter of reports on a wide range of children's ailments.

GENETICS ADVANCE

Dr. David M. Bonner of Yale Medical School reported that success may be near in preventing some of the abnormalities passed on to children by parents with genetic defects.

Biochemists had made discoveries which may enable man to alter his genetic heritage.

Dr. Sidney Farber of Harvard Medical School said aged parents could now be offered hope in cares of childhood cancer and leukemia.

Leukemia, while still incurable, could be arrested up to six years.

Durelle Wants Fight Video'd In Canada

MONTREAL (CP)—Yvon Durelle says he wishes his forthcoming light heavyweight title fight with champion Archie Moore was being televised for people who cannot afford to buy tickets.

"I wish the CBC would televise the fight for people who cannot afford to see it," he told an audience of 300 Little League baseball players and adults attending an "Yvonn Durelle rally" Monday night.

Montreal promoter Eddie Quinn announced Monday he has rejected a final CBC offer of $50,000 for Canadian television rights to the fight, scheduled for July 29.

The fight is being televised in the United States, with border stations close to Montreal blacked out.

Normal Silhouette Stays With Classic Simplicity

PARIS (Reuters)—The normal silhouette, with emphasis on classic simplicity, will continue into the winter season if French ready-to-wear collections are an indication of future trends.

While there is, always the chance that the haute couture designers' collections to be shown shortly may change the fashion picture again, recent showings of couture models, destined for shops and boutiques in Paris as well as for export, suggest that winter clothes will be subdued and elegant.

All exaggeration in manner of dress seems out of place today. Women are buying the simplest clothes, and this mood established itself throughout the collections presented by top-ranking ready-to-wear manufacturers who have shown their fall models in recent weeks.

CLASSIC STYLES

Shirtwaist and princess-styled dresses are the favorites, designed with easy width in the skirt, natural waistline, and important collar or scarf necklines. Coats are roomy and comfortable, ranging from bell - shaped effects for wear over wide skirts, to belted trenchcoats and tailored adaptations of a man's topcoat.

The muted costume look also is destined to play an important role next season, with pretty novelty fabrics like checks and plaids or fluffy surfaced mohairs, paired in sheath dress and coat ensembles.

BROWN HUES

Colors for winter include a new range of off - tone shades, highlighting cinnamon and leafy browns, charcoal gray, which replaced black to a great extent, and light, basic shades of soft ivory and sand. Olive green will continue, and several tones of soft, greyish blue.

Novelty weaves appear in every collection, including the ready-to-wear showings of such couture houses as Jacques Heim, Nina Ricci, Lanvin - Castillo, Dereux, de Rauch, Griffe, Laroche, Gres and Carven. There are many Prince of Wales checks and shadow plaids, heather mixture tweeds, and numerous textured dubbed, and brushed wool fabrics.

Fabric contrasts are strong, featured in matching heavy and lightweight versions, or woolen models with collars of contrasting velvet or silk.

Front Rd. W.A. Holds Picnic On Bay Shore

The bright sunshine and the blue skies formed an ideal setting for the Front Road W. A. picnic on Thursday afternoon held at the summer cottage of Mrs. Kenneth Greatrix, along the Bay of Quinte shore.

Owing to the busy season, there were not too many present. However, the true picnic spirit prevailed, and it was a gala day for both and old.

At noon all sat down to tables well laden with delicious food, and ample justice was done to the sumptuous repast.

The dinner over, social get-together was enjoyed for a time, then the president, Mrs. Hugh McMullen called the group to order welcoming all present and also welcoming Mrs. Geddes of Deseronto, a former member.

Some necessary business was transacted after which Mrs. Roy Clasie conducted three contests which afforded lots of fun, and some hard thinking. The winners were: Mrs. Kenneth Greatrix and Mrs. Clifford Reid, consolation prizes went to Mrs. T. Brown, Mrs. McMullen and Rev. W. E. G. Sowerby. Suitable prizes were donated.

The children rushed into their bathing suits and out into the water for swimming and bathing. There was a peanut scramble for the wee tots.

Ice cream was in great demand during the day.

Mrs. McMullen thanked the hostess for her kindness entertaining the W.A. and all departed home stated had happy, after a day well spent.

OUTLINE FOR THANK-YOU NOTES FOR WEDDING GIFTS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please give me a general outline of how to write thank-you notes for my wedding presents? — Frances

A general outline for a thank-you note for a wedding present is: (1) thank first for the kind thought . . . this makes a graceful beginning, at once emphasizes the thought behind the gift; (2) express your and your fiance's appreciation of the present; and (3) mention the gift specifically (don't refer to it vaguely as "your gift"), and make enthusiastic comments about special features of the gift (color, perhaps, and or design, and so forth). If possible, as an extra touch, tell the gift how you are planning to use it in your home-to-be. For example:

Dear Joan,

How very like you and Peter to have such a kind and generous thought and plan for our happiness. Phil and I are enchanted with the delightfully beautiful lamp, the graceful and distinguished design of its base, and the perfectly-tailored shade. It is just the kind of lamp we dreamed of having, needed very much, and it will shed its light happily in our living-room-to-be. We hope you two dear friends will be the first to see it "on location"! A world of thanks to both of you from both of us for your friendship and goodness to us.

We'll be seeing you soon — on "the" day.

Lovingly,
Frances

WHEN SHE WANTS TO SKIP A COURSE . . . AND HE DOESN'T

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a girl has a date with a man to dine with him in a restaurant where the service is mainly table d'hote, and she wishes to skip a certain course (soup, for example, or salad or dessert), must he skip that course also, to be polite? This question is to settle a discussion we are having. — Bill R.

No sir, certainly not. When a guest wishes to omit a certain course or courses, on a table d'hote dinner, it is correct, certainly makes sense for her (or him) to say so, with no apology or to-do. And it makes sense also that the host accept the course. It's simple form to just say, "I like very much a special soup they serve here. Do you mind if I take the soup course?"

LITTLE GIRL'S NAME ON CARD OR ENVELOPE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I have several very young nieces, and we are planning to send each one of them several postcards of places we will be visiting on our vacation soon. How should we address the card to such a little girl — say as young as five or six years old — with or without "Miss" before the name?

— Aunt and Uncle

With the "Miss" before the name. No matter how young the young lady, always write "Miss" before the name on the card or envelope:

Miss Joan Hill
77 Park Street
Haven 3
Ontario

O PLACE CARDS AT HOSTS' PLACES

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I have planned to have a Parents' Table at our daughter's wedding reception, and I have bought what I think are particularly lovely place cards to use on this table. Is it true (as I was told yesterday) that place cards are not put at my place and my husband's place? — Bride's Mother

This is true . . . it is never correct to put place cards at the places of the hostess and the host.

ADVICE TO NEWLYWEDS OR - - YOU?

This is the last
Of our Dinnerware verse,
It could have been better
It might have been worse;

There was a lot of it
Just nothing but chaff,
But it's to be hoped
You got the odd laugh;

Like this bit of corn
To make you froth,
Coup Soups and Chickens
Are related by broth;

Yet many as well
Who saw the light,
Now buy better dishes
Where prices are right;

"Old Mill" and others
Are treasures to own,
And now another choice
The lovely "Road Home";

Remember this
Better than all,
Prices are going up
Along about Fall;

And though your cooking
Makes you tear your hair,
You'll feel much better
With our Dinnerware there;

The larger the set
The more you can show,
The larger the set
The more to throw;

Maybe you won't
'Cause you're shy,
Still the larger set
Makes the Best Buy;

So join the rest
Who have seen the light,
Buy Better Dinnerware
Where prices are right!

Wardrobe Wonder

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

A good friend to any wardrobe is this jacket of cotton lace, simply designed to wear over many things. The white lace is edged with white organdy. It can be worn with a blouse and skirt, or with a dress, and also team up with any simple dress, light or dark, and is a good notion for air-conditioned restaurants or for coolish evenings.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a woman's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counselors.

Rosemary R. — Mable won't accept the verdict.

Mabel D. — I'm going to appeal to the highest court!

Rosemary R. — My older brother died last year after a brief illness and left a widow and four young children.

Shortly afterward the widow, Mabel, accused my younger brother of concealing some money her husband had turned over to him for investment. My younger brother denied this and there was a lawsuit which he won.

Mabel, however, has refused to accept the judge's verdict and accuses our family of trying to steal money from her and the children. We are deeply hurt by these accusations, but we feel sad mostly for the children's sake. I have tried to patch things up because I want my nieces and nephews to know they have loyal relatives, but Mabel has been terribly stubborn.

Mabel D. — Loyal relatives! That's a laugh. I know for a fact that this money was turned over by my husband. I'm going to appeal the case to the highest court! Nobody can discourage me. My lawyer had advised me against it, but I'm going to find another lawyer and I'll follow this thing through to the end.

These "loyal" relatives have all banded together to keep this money that belongs to my children. My husband was not heavily insured and life is going to be hard for all of us. I'm going to have to go to work as soon as I can find some reliable help in my home.

My husband did a lot for his sisters and brother, but they show no gratitude.

The Council: Possibly Mabel is right in her idea about the money that is being withheld from her. We believe, however, that she should make an attempt to be more honest with herself on this score. It is most unlikely that she was not given a fair trial. Her own lawyer is evidently satisfied on this score. Her case must be a poor one and she should recognize that she may have built it up too much in her own mind.

Outside of the legal questions Mabel should recognize that she may be harming her children if more than money by pursuing further battle with the people who represent their closest ties with their deceased father.

Having brought up without one parent feel their loss very deeply, they cherish remembrances, anecdotes, mementoes, anything that keeps that parent alive in their hearts.

Close ties with their father's family can mean a great deal to the children in the case and Mabel is robbing them of something irreplaceable if she persists in keeping alive a bitter feud. The fact that this family is trying to "patch things up" indicates that Mabel is wrong in her charges that they do not consider her children. They are among the best kind of friendship to them and that will mean more and more as the years go on.

If Mabel is sincere in her belief about the money and is not totally trying to provoke a feud, she will somehow manage to keep the legal dispute separate from her personal relationships with her husband's family. It is possible to have a difference of opinion without making enemies.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Another monkey wrench flew into the Archie Moore - Yvon Durelle fight today. Old Arch had heel trouble a couple of weeks ago forcing a postponement, now he has wife trouble. Mrs. Moore is said to be critically ill, necessitating Archie to fly home to San Diego.

Now the fight plans, seconded for July 29, are up in the air again. Doc Kearns, the wily old manager of Moore said he hopes there will be no further postponement of the once-postponed fight.

And here is Chris Shabon speaking without tongue in cheek. "There hadn't better be," snarled Chris, "otherwise I plan to claim the crown for Durelle if Moore wants another delay."

It was expected today after Moore gets more information about the operation on his wife, there would be definite word on whether another postponement will be sought.

Mrs. Moore, it was stated, underwent surgery for a mastoid infection. The ear operation is delicate because surgeons work near the brain. Kearns said a tumor is involved.

He said, but can you believe the guy, after all Ole Arch has been having trouble getting that weight down, he had planned to give Moore a layoff anyway. He expected Archie to return soon.

Durelle's manager was duly sympathetic, but after all, he cannot afford another postponement. "We sympathize with Archie and all that," he said, "but we just cannot do it."

"I'm going to fight at postponement all the way," he growled, "because we do not think it is fair to ask for another layoff. I'm gonna lay claim to the title if Moore doesn't want to fight for it. If Archie wants another delay, let him do it as a leading contender and Durelle as the champion."

After all it's not fair to the New Brunswick fisherman.

Charlies Goldman, his veteran trainer, said Durelle is being carefully groomed to reach his peak for a certain date and "we'll have to stick all over again."

A San Diego sports editor says Mrs. Moore's life is at stake and a doctor had been telling Archie to "sit tight" for the past five days, but now I'm advising him to come home."

The sports editor quoted Moore as saying, "This is the worst thing that ever happened to me. I've got a huge claim for me to make. I must do right by my wife. I must be at her side."

There has been a lot of complaints over the non-television but promoter Eddie Quinn of Montreal is a little light on the subject. He said the CBC offered so little for the fight that the promotion would have lost money.

He said the July 29 fight for Moore's light heavyweight title costs $250,000 to produce with Old Archie alone getting a guarantee of $125,000.

He added the "CBC offered me $50,000, exactly half of what a United States sponsor is paying for the right to televise the bouts to all parts of the United States. He said the CBC stated it regretted that he is deprived the Canadian viewing public of the fight."

Now, isn't that too bad. And the taxpayers pay the shot, over here, that is.

Quinn said the U.S. sponsors had agreed to black out television stations near the U.S. - Canada border, but the CBC would have no part of it. No sir.

A CBC official said that although the offer of $50,000 was half that paid by the American sponsor, the American network had a potential audience ten times that available in Canada.

Harness Racing

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Haughton, leading harness racing driver in the United States for seven years, said Monday he was certain that Trader Horn would be able to go the 1½ miles against foreign champions in the $50,000 International Trot Aug. 1 at Roosevelt Raceway.

Trader Horn is the American selection to race against the leading trotters from Norway, Germany, Sweden, Italy, France and Canada in the inaugural of the international race.

Roger White will drive Canada's entry, Philip Frost.

Trader Horn has defeated the best U.S. trotters this season, and will enter the $50,000 national championship trot at one mile Thursday night at Yonkers (N.Y.) Raceway.

After viewers noted that the foreign horses are used to the 1½ miles route, whereas American races are usually at one mile, Haughton said: "Trader Horn has won at a mile and a quarter, going away, and I'd have to think he'll be able to go another quarter mile okay."

TORONTO (CP) — Jiggs McCadden, the redhead who toys leads all the drivers at Old Woodbine this year, finally got on winning effort out of the four-year-old Stormy Volo Monday night after five fruitless trips.

The pacer, owned by Mrs. A. Leverington of St. Thomas, came here with four wins in six starts this season but McFadden was unable to coax anything better than a second out of him in his first four outings.

But at odds of 4 to 1 Monday night Stormy Volo came storming in the stretch to catch A. W. Chief and win by a quarter of a length.

First winner to be set back at Old Woodbine this season was Miss April Gunner, owned by I. M. Cochrane of Nestleton Station, Ont., and driven by Howard Hampton. The six-year-old mare came on in the stretch to catch the faltering leader, Ginger Lee.

Thus Simcoe Ada, a filly owned by Mrs. H. McManus of Strathroy, which also had overtaken Ginger Lee, was moved into the winner's enclosure and returned an outsider's $35.50.

Drysdale Pushes Dodgers Closer To Enemy Giants

Shades Old Gotham Foe 3-2 In Double Four-Hit Duel; Cardinals Blank Chicubs 2-0

By ED WILKES
Associated Press Staff Writer

That's a pretty snappy formula the Los Angeles Dodgers have come up with in their run for the National League pennant—pitch Don Drysdale, score three and they're home free.

Any club that scores twice against the big, cross - firing righthander has had it.

It was Drysdale who got the Dodgers started on their jump from fifth place when he blanked Milwaukee 4-0 June 13. In the five weeks since, the Dodgers have won 21, lost but 13. Drysdale has a 7-1 record for that spurt—and not once has he given up more than two runs in a game.

CUT GIANTS' LEAD

He won his 12th with the help of home runs from Gil Hodges and Charlie Neal Monday, pitching the Dodgers to a 3-2 victory in the opener of a two-game set with San Francisco that pushed Los Angeles within 1½ games of the first-place Giants. The victory ended Johnny Antonelli's win streak at four in a double four-hit duel.

Only one other game was scheduled in the National League. St. Louis gained a fifth place tie with Chicago by beating the Cubs 2-0 on a night belting the nine-hit pitching of Ernie Broglio.

Hodges 18th home run, with one on in the first inning, and Neal's solo blast, leading off the ninth, gave Drysdale a 3-1 season record against the Giants. They scored their pair, one unearned, in the second inning on three singles, an error and an infield out.

STRIKEOUT KING

Drysdale walked six and struck out seven, boosting his league-leading strikeout total to 154.

Antonelli (4-5) pitched a dandy to defeat. He was touched for a pretty triple by Joe Pignatano in the second, but then retired 11 in a row until Neal swung in the ninth.

The Cardinals broke a shutout duel between Broglio and Glen Hobbie in the seventh inning—with both runs unearned. Broglio got things rolling when his grounder got through second baseman Tony Taylor. Curt Flood and White, Ken Boyer and Gino Cimoli put it away with two-out singles.

Broglio walked only two, struck out seven and left 11 men on base for a 6-6 record. Hobbie (10-8) gave up eight hits, walked four and struck out four.

10 High-Powered Speedboats Seek Duke of York Trophy

HUNTSVILLE (CP)—Ten high-powered hydroplanes from Canada and the United States will cut the waters of nearby Fairy Lake this weekend in competition for the Duke of York International Challenge Trophy.

Canadian entries will race Saturday morning in eliminations trials to choose the five - boat Canadian team. One heat Saturday afternoon and two on Sunday will determine the winner in Canadian-U.S. competition.

With the Canadian entries is Art Ashurst, a former world speed hydroplane record holder and inboard director of the Canadian Boating Federation who will drive either Bill Hodgson's Miss Canadiana or Miss Muskoka, winner of the La Presse endurance race in Montreal last year.

Bud Saxender, of Niagara Falls, N.Y., will head the U.S. team with his racer, Suddenly.

STARTED IN 1924

The Duke of York Trophy, valued at $10,000, was established in England in 1924 and was first won by a Canadian, Art Hatch of Hamilton, in 1951. Last year the Canadian Boating Federation was granted permission to hold the race in Canada.

The 1958 race was halted by the accidental death of William Braden of Waterdown, one of Canada's top racing boat drivers. He was awarded the trophy posthumously.

After this year's race the trophy will be returned to England but the annual event will continue here for the Braden Trophy, memorial to the Waterdown driver.

Canadian boats and drivers seeking team berths include John Hainault, Cornwall, with Hey Jo; Charles Hutchinson, Penetanguishene, with Cheetah and Bob Carter, Nobleton, with Doo-De-Do.

Park Disgrace Says Antonelli After Defeat

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—"Worst ball park in America," declared pitcher Johnny Antonelli of San Francisco Giants Monday, speaking of the Giants' temporary home, Seals Stadium.

Antonelli was bitter because Los Angeles Dodgers had just beaten him 3-2 in Seals Stadium on two unearned runs.

"This park is a disgrace," the lefthander exploded in the dressing room. "Two high fly balls and they're carried right over the screen."

"Gil Hodges' two-run homer and Charley Neal's game-winning homer barely cleared the left field screen of the stadium, home field of the Giants until their new Candlestick Park is completed late this season.

"I put only two lousy fly balls. A pitcher should be paid double for working here. Worst ball park in America. Every time you stand up there you've got to beat the hitter and a 30-mile wind."

Antonelli gave credit to his mound rival, Don Drysdale, for "making the batters hit the ball into the ground."

Leafs Shade Dutchies 7-5 In Exhibition

KITCHENER (CP) — Toronto Maple Leafs and Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen dodged their way through showers here Monday night for a exhibition baseball game that Leafs won 7-5.

A crowd of 3,200, largest to see a baseball game here in six or seven seasons, sat through a steady soaking to help the Waterloo County Shrine Club raise a substantial sum for their crippled children's annex.

A heavy downpour began just as the game started, and another later on, delayed the finish.

Joe Hannah pitched six innings for the International League Leafs. Bat boy John Dutchies got three runs off the Toronto minor league southpaw, finished up.

Dutchies got three runs off Hannah on four hits in the second inning and held their lead for a couple of innings. Buchowski yielded the final two runs in the eighth.

Righthander Richard Jack of Hamilton Beavers pitched 6 1-3 innings for the Inter-County team which was strengthened by players from that city and Listowel.

Jack was replaced by Al Koch, Dutchie righthander from the University of Michigan.

The Leafs, held in submission for three innings, found the homecoming pitcher a bit four-base wallops from Dave Pope, Arch Wilson, Joe Amalfitano and Larry Raines.

There were five double plays, three of them by Leafs.

Storey Might Ref. Football Hockey? No! He's Through

By W. R. WHEATLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — Red Storey, whose resignation as a National Hockey League referee last spring set off a whirlwind of excitement, is not resuming the role—in football.

"Don't misunderstand me," said the big redhead Monday. "I'm not saying it isn't a good thing. No football people have approached me and I haven't approached them."

"You asked the question. I'm interested in all sports and if I were offered a football job I'd consider it. But I imagine it's a little late to speculate on that; I'd think the football people are all set up for the season."

What about hockey?

THROUGH WITH HOCKEY

"As far as I am concerned, I'm definitely finished. I'm not going to be led into any suppositions about hockey.

"I have done nothing myself. Things aren't going to change in the NHL administration. I imagine they can be as bulheaded as I am.

"I have resigned myself to the fact that I'm through as a hockey referee."

Storey quit the NHL suddenly during the Toronto-Boston Stanley Cup final. But NHL president Clarence Campbell had publicity criticized him for his work in the Montreal - Chicago semifinal. Red said he wasn't going to take it and within a few hours flew back home to Montreal from Boston.

HAS REFEREED FOOTBALL

Storey formerly worked as football referee in early-season games, then switched to hockey. Three years ago he gave up football work altogether.

"I'd like to see the redhead out there again", said one highly placed football official Monday. "He was a capable man."

Storey was a football star with Toronto Argos and scored three touchdowns in the 1938 Grey Cup game.

"Hockey takes more out of an official than football," said Red. "Of course, I'd guess it's about 10 times as tough, racing around the ice for 60 minutes.

"I know I wouldn't try to make a comeback in hockey if I were out of it a year. It would be like a fighter trying to stage a comeback. The body can take just so much."

Storey handled the post-season European exhibition series between Boston Bruins and New York Rangers.

HOME ESTABLISHED

Storey isn't interested in a slightest in offers from the Western Hockey League and the American Hockey League either as referee or referee-in-chief.

"I have no intention of breaking up my home here," said Red. Mr. and Mrs. Storey have two sons, aged 13 and 12.

Red works with a distillery firm—a year-round job.

Says 'Lift' Trials Unfair

MONTREAL (CP)—Lionel St. Jean, president of the Province of Quebec Weight-Lifters Association, has condemned the selection of Canada's three - man weight-lifting team for the Pan-American Games.

Holding the weight-lifting trials in Winnipeg was unfair to Quebec, Ontario and B.C. lifters, St. Jean told The Canadian Press Monday. These provinces had always provided the bulk of Canada's top teams.

Because of the Winnipeg trials St. Jean said, Canada's team will have two men who couldn't make Pan-American Games standards while at least four men who could better the standards will remain at home.

He blamed Ken Yost of Winnipeg, national secretary of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, for having assigned the trials to Winnipeg and being responsible for a single trial instead of zone trials.

The team selected is composed of heavyweight Bill Dewaide of the RCAF, St. Hubert, Que., middleheavyweight Marshall Quelch of Winnipeg, and lightweight Joe Stockinger of Medicine Hat, Alta.

Swiniak, only Quebec representative, was flown to the trials by the RCAF. He was the only one to better games standards.

Braves Defeat Red Sox 7-2

BOSTON (AP) — Milwaukee Braves capitalized on errors to defeat Boston Red Sox 7-2 Monday night in an exhibition game called after five innings because of rain.

The big blow in the Braves triumphant return to this city was a three-run homer by Del Crandall which broke a scoreless deadlock in the fourth inning.

Gomez Would Like to Meet Foeman Again

PROVIDENCE, R. I. (AP)—Courageous Harold Gomez said Monday he would like a neutral-site rematch with Paul Jorgenson whom he beat for the world junior lightweight championship.

Gomez knocked down four times Monday night by his Port Arthur, Tex., opponent, rallied to gain a unanimous 15-round decision.

"I'd be glad to fight him again anywhere but in Texas," the wrinkly Gomez said afterward. "I would prefer a neutral site, not in Rhode Island," added the 25-year-old Providence battler who was carried in the dressing room from low blows.

It was apparent to the fans who heaved the threatening weather that a rematch would be a natural.

UPSET ANXIOUS

Gomez blamed his overanxiousness for the knockdowns which brought exams in the first heetic 15th round and one in the 15th.

"I wants to win big, because it was so mad about the low blows," Gomez said. "I deserved to get hit with those shots that put me down because I lost my head."

Jorgenson explained he is a counter-puncher and that his left hook is his best punch.

"After the referee warned me so many times, I couldn't effectively use the left hook after the first few rounds," Jorgenson said. "I'm not saying I didn't hit him low but I certainly didn't do it intentionally. I never was warned before in 80 fights."

Referee Sharkey Bozzuto took two rounds from Jorgenson on the low blows and warned him in three other rounds.

Eskys, Stamps Clash Again In Exhibition

EDMONTON (CP) — Rookie coach Eagle Keys sends his Edmonton Eskimos against the perpetually Calgary Stampeders today for their second exhibition meeting of the 1959 Western Interprovincial Football Union season.

Both clubs looked sharp last Wednesday in Calgary as Esks won 15-10 in a hard-fought game. Edmonton's smooth backfield, using the traditional double - full-back formation, proved the difference.

"If they play the same offence, we'll do pretty well," said the cautious Keys, hired in late May. Keys voiced respect for Calgary's big line and flashy new quarterback—Joe Kapp, a 22-year-old University of California import.

"We'll be better for this game although we'll still be experimenting," said Calgary coach Otis Douglas. Substitutions were rife in the opener as both coaches took hard looks at new imports and Canadians.

Larks Welcome New Import

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes welcomed a new import Monday, on the eve of their intra-squad game, and at the same time were still hopeful of making some Canadian-talent swaps.

Managing director Gordon Kennedy didn't disclose what players or positions are involved —except in one instance—and indicated readiness to talk business with any club in the east or west.

"We have been negotiating with Ottawa, Hamilton, Toronto, Edmonton and the Saskatchewan Roughriders," said Kennedy.

One of his prime targets has been quarterback Gerry Doucette of Toronto Argos. So far he has been unsuccessful.

Outside of the great Sam Etcheverry, the Als are in a precarious position so far as quarterbacks are concerned. They'd like to have a top - flight Canadian. A couple of young home - brews, George Thonos and Ed Marcyniuk—the latter brought here by ex-boss Hap Moore—have been given a chance.

The import is Tackle Bill Crabtree, 22, a 240-pounder who played on University of North Carolina's freshman team last season.

Bisons Could Help Nail Flag Against Kings

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Buffalo Bisons can go a long way in nailing down their first International League title in 10 years during the next three days against Rochester Kings.

The Bisons are in Havana today to open a series with the seventh-place Kings over whom they hold a 9-4 season record. Buffalo, Miami, 1½ games behind the Bisons, plays a doubleheader at home against Rochester.

Toronto is at Columbus and Montreal at Richmond in other games tonight. Monday night's games between Columbus and Richmond was rained out in the Virginia city. It was the only game on the schedule.

Just how Buffalo and Miami will fare depends to a great deal on two men — Frank (Pancho) Herrara of the Bisons and Foster Castleman of the Marlins, the team's leading batsmen.

Herrara is third in the batting race with a .338 average while Castleman is a notch higher with .342. But the Miami infielder has been seeing limited action because of a bad knee.

Castleman has a .400 average with 12 hits in 30 at-bats in the eight games he has played against Rochester.

In addition to his No. 3 batting position, Herrara leads the league in homers with 27 and RBI with 84. Buffalo just can't do without that.

Clair Thinks Rough Riders 'Best Team We've Ever Had'

OTTAWA (CP)—Coach Frank Clair allowed himself a little pre-season optimism Monday night and said Ottawa Rough Riders' squad is "the best we've ever had."

Following an inter-squad game at Lansdowne Park, a balanced game with outstanding passing by the early in the year, Clair said:

"They're looking good. They were moving fast out there. They're sure a lot better than at this time last year."

He tempered his praise with a fast phrase of criticism.

"Defence smelled pretty bad," he said.

ONE-POINT EDGE

Standouts were all three quarterbacks.

Former WIFU star Frank Tripucka completed 18 of 34 pass attempts for two touchdowns and the Reds 16-15.

Boston College import Don Allard completed nine of 14 and hometrewn Russ Jackson, who played with the Ottawa Junior six of 10 for the Reds.

Jackson impressed particularly with handling of ground plays as Whites.

Argonauts Have Injury Troubles

AURORA (CP)—Toronto Argonauts saw the departure from their camp Monday of Larry Cowart and heard an optimistic report on Dick Shatto.

Cowart, standout tackle from Baylor, was back in the Big Four camp with orders to train with ground a bit. His damaged knee is in fair condition but examination disclosed no tears and no operation will be needed.

Shatto, all - star halfback, began taking cortisone treatment in hospital for a pinched nerve in groin injury. Doctors hope the medication will clear up the problem.

Bill Sheehy, seeking an end position, underwent repairs for a broken nose but the damage to his cheekbone was found to be a fracture, bruise, not a fracture as at first feared.

Darkest spot in the picture appeared to be the torn knee ligaments of Paul Fedor, who was expected to undergo an operation last night.

The Toronto-born end and former Queen's University star may be capable of working late in the season, but he'll be finished for such a brilliant prospect there for some guessing the Argos might give him a full year to convalesce rather than risk further hurts.

Maris Reduces Kuenn's Lead; Aaron Slips

NEW YORK (AP) — Roger Maris of the Detroit Tigers, who missed a month of the season because of an appendectomy, and Harvey Kuenn's former American-League batting lead to five points with a spurt that carried him from sixth place back to fifth for the runner-up position.

Maris gained 11 points last week with 13 hits in 32 tries and showed a .333 average through games of Sunday, July 19. He was deadlocked for second place with Baltimore's Jim Gentile, who advanced from the No. 5 spot. Wooding collected seven hits in 19 times at bat and climbed two points.

Kuenn dropped 14 points to .333 with only four hits in 25 attempts during the Detroit outfielder led by 17 points last Tuesday.

In the National League, the batting title battle between Hank Aaron of Milwaukee also was resolved. The Braves' slugger lost five more points last week and his percentage tailed off to .330. Meanwhile, Bill White of St. Louis moved up one notch to second crown Monday by whipping Willie Mays, Alameda, Calif., 6-0, 6-4, 7-5. Sally Moore of Bakersfield, Calif., seeded fourth, won at the women's singles champion-ship with a 6-2, 2-6, 6-3 victory over Sandra Reynolds of South Africa.

New Zealand Protests Firing Of Canadian

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP)—New Zealand ski organizations have protested strongly the recent dismissal from the instruct of Canadian Harvey Clifford as director of New Zealand's largest ski school.

The contract was ended in mid-season following differences between Ottawa-born Clifford and the government - owned Tourist Hotel Corporation which controls the Mount Ruapehu school.

The Ruapehu Mountain Clubs Association, representing 20 clubs has sent a strongly worded protest resolution to the hotel corporation, the prime minister and other political leaders.

The resolution says the successful ski-training organization built up by Clifford in the last eight years is in danger of collapsing.

It says the hotel corporation appears to have acted on biased, inaccurate advice and calls for reconsiderations and an inquiry.

Five-Petes Lead Loop

TORONTO (CP) —Take a look at the leading scorers in the Ontario Lacrosse Association senior A series and you see why Peterborough Mercuries are in first place.

Of the 10 leading scorers in the series, five are Peterborough players.

Mercuries' Bob Allan leads the pack with 67 points—36 goals and 31 assists. Teammate Bob Curtis, second with 53 points, has 21 goals and 17 assists.

Ron Roy of Welland Switsocs is in third place with 42 points while Larry Ferguson and Lou Gigon of Peterborough hold on to the fourth and fifth place spots.

Owner Offers Boat for Sale; Driver Injured

COEUR D'ALENE, Idaho (AP) — "for sale" sign was hung on the world's champion hydroplane Miss Bardahl Monday in the aftermath of Sunday's accident-filled Diamond Jubilee race.

Owner Ole Bardahl, Seattle oil producer, said he'll be getting out of the sport—because of the accident in which driver, Jack Regas, was severely injured.

Regas, 1957 national champion driver, suffered a skull fracture, three broken ribs, a severe chest injury and twisted leg when Miss Bardahl apparently hit a wave, dug in her nose and flipped over a stop.

Regas was reported semi-conscious and a little improved Monday.

Queen's Team Wins Game

MONTREAL (CP) — A field hockey team composed of brew employees of the royal yacht Britannia won 3-0 Monday in an exhibition game.

Their opposition was a pickup team of technicians from the Montreal Rolls-Royce aircraft engine plant and various players from the Montreal Field Hockey Association. The Britannia crew is to play a cricket match Wednesday against a group of Montreal players.

RECORD NUMBER

in mid-August when farm employment normally is heaviest, the previous record was 4,067,000 persons with jobs in August, 1957.

This year's main rise occurred despite a slight decline from last year in the number of farm workers—781,000 compared with 790,000. Non-farm employment jumped to 3,322,000 from 3,136,000 at mid-June last year.

The bureau said the largest employment gains were in construction, logging and domestic trade.

Employment recovery in the second quarter of the year was "fairly widespread," it said, and affected most industry groups. In manufacturing the main growth came from durable goods, particularly the manufacture of motor vehicles, steel, household appliances, wood products and railway rolling stock.

TEMPORARY LAYOFFS

Besides the 400,000 persons without jobs and seeking work at mid-June, another 14,000 were not at work on a temporary layoff—about the same number as a year earlier. But 56,000 worked less than 35 hours in the survey week because of short-time and other factors.

Ontario registered a greater than seasonal rise in unemployment.

The bureau said the labor market in British Columbia was booming during the first half of June, but the upward trend was interrupted by the forestry strike.

grounds for feeling the Allies had surrendered to Soviet pressure regarding Berlin.

3. Eisenhower is convinced the Soviet leaders do not want a nuclear war. But he is fearful that Soviet miscalculation or some series of developments could touch off a conflict.

If war should come, the Western Allies would have to decide whether to use nuclear weapons. As far as the United States is concerned, it would depend on what is best for the security of the country.

5. The greatest fear of the Soviet leaders, Eisenhower believes, is a resurgent Germany and a growing Communist China.

6. In event of any new Berlin blockade, Eisenhower believes the tactical military position of the Western Allies would be just about as poor as possible. He feels that even passive resistance on the part of the Communists would jeopardize the Allies' land routes into Berlin and that Red jamming of Western radar could make a mass airlift operation difficult.

TOUGHER TO CRACK

Eisenhower's view is that a new blockade would be much tougher to crack than the one 10 years ago. He feels the Allies could not supply West Berlin with enough of the raw materials which its economy needs.

7. As for Vice-President Richard Nixon's forthcoming visit to Russia, he will carry no important new messages, nor will he be empowered to negotiate, the top West differences.

Eisenhower believes that Khrushchev, in talks with Nixon, may make some proposal of substance regarding East-West differences. If that should happen Nixon has been instructed to tell Mr. Eisenhower immediately for word on how he should react. The vice-president leaves Wednesday for Moscow.

Despite the deadlock, at the foreign ministers talks in Geneva, Eisenhower is opposed to letting against the idea of telling Soviet officials the Western delegation will stay in Geneva only so long and then call it quits. He was definite thoughts on how long fruitless talks should continue, but wants no part of any ultimatum to the Russians.

Indians Block Access Roads To Seaway Jobs

CORNWALL (CP) — Mohawk Indians of the Six Nations confederacy on Cornwall Island today blocked off access roads to St. Lawrence Seaway jobs on the island in protest over what they term gerrymandering in payments for right of way over Indian property.

Tribe officials said no money has been paid them by the seaway authority since March. The total amount was not clear since varying amounts are owed by various Indians.

Negotiations, are under way in Ottawa between seaway authority legal officials and the department of Indian affairs to settle the dispute.

About 25 men today were kept from their jobs, which include channel improvement work on the island a short distance out in the St. Lawrence River from Cornwall. They are mostly machine operators.

Seven Churches Found in Prague Ruins

PRAGUE (Reuters) — Seven churches, including some dating back to early in the ninth century, have been found during archeological excavations on the fortification near Mikulcice, in southern Moravia, the Czechoslovak news agency Ceteka reported.

Jewels and gold and silver ornaments were found together with pottery for melting gold.

Also found on the site were nine graves of chieftains with horses.

The fortification at Mikulcice, which fell into decay in the first half of the 10th century, was built in the ninth century. It was an important centre during the period of the great Moravian empire.

Pearson to Take European Holiday

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Pearson is heading for a holiday in Europe following a visit to Europe, CCF House Leader Hazen Argue already has left with his family for a visit to his home at Kayville, Sask. But Prime Minister Diefenbaker has no immediate plans for holidays.

That was the situation Monday for political party heads in the wake of the weekend completion of the parliamentary session.

Mr. Pearson's office said the Liberal party leader and his wife will visit the English Lake. He is scheduled to attend a seminar of the Atlantic Treaty Association at Oxford in early August. He is his chairman.

A spokesman in the prime minister's office said Mr. Diefenbaker will be staying in Ottawa for a while yet, partly to let other cabinet ministers get away on holiday. He may make a vacation trip to Saskatchewan later.

Will Keep Track of Ontario Pupils Starting Secondary School Studies This Fall

By GENE McCARTHY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—If you are a boy or girl entering an Ontario high school in September, it's likely the card you will fill out with the stranger pencil may not mean much to you.

But to members of the department of educational research at the Ontario College of Education, the card, along with 125,000 others, will mark the start of the most extensive educational research project ever undertaken in the province.

Known as the Carnegie study—it is being made with the aid of a $600,000 grant from the Carnegie Foundation of New York — the project will keep track of all students who begin high school this year until one year after completion of their course.

DUAL PURPOSE

Basic purpose of the survey, which in most cases will take from five to six years, is to identify and utilize talents of gifted students and study reasons why intellectually - capable students leave school early.

Research authorities hope that from the results, means can be taken to encourage high school students to complete their education.

First step will be taken in the last week of September when Grade 9 students will be asked to complete a questionnaire on a special card.

Infomation will be written on the card with special electric pencils which will record the answers.

"The cards will be returned to Toronto where they will be run through a processing machine ordered for the project," says Dr. R. W. B. Jackson, director of the education research department.

STUDENT CHECKS

During the school year, two sets of aptitude tests and one "interest inventory" questionnaire will be completed by the students, while teachers will complete a questionnaire on the student's progress.

Throughout his high school years, the student will continue to record data for the experiment.

A similar project is being conducted by the University of Pittsburg research department. Known as the Flanagan study, it will examine 500,000 students over a 20-year period.

"We feel the Ontario one will turn out to be much better than the Flanagan study," said Dr. Jackson, "because we're examining everyone and not just taking random samples."

Under the Ontario project, students who drop out of high school while the survey is being conducted will be traced for one year. If they enter employment they will be judged on the degree of occupational success they attain.

Those who leave high school at any level, including Grade 13, to attend other educational institutions will be followed up for one year.

ATKINSON STUDY

Dr. Jackson and his associate Dr. W. G. Fleming hope the Carnegie study will be "hooked on to" the Atkinson study which the department began in 1950-51 and the first results of which will be known this fall.

The Atkinson study followed the Grade 13 students who completed their courses in the spring of 1956 and either continued their education or entered an occupation.

The project was designed to iron out some of the problems encountered by the students at universities or at work.

Dr. Jackson admits the Carnegie and Atkinson surveys are being conducted in reverse order but said "we couldn't give the universities the information they wanted" if normal order was followed.

He said that if by the spring of 1964, circumstances surrounding the Grade 13s have changed considerably since the Atkinson study was inaugurated, the latter project may have to be repeated.

Canada Wants To Build Atomic Sub

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canada wants to build an atomic submarine, says Commander V. A. Lascara, head of the naval reactors division in the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission.

In testimony before the joint congressional committee on atomic energy, Cmdr. Lascara said of Canada:

"Their intention, as we have learned it going through the feasibility study with them, is that they want to build a submarine hull in Canada."

His testimony was included in a report just made public of committee hearings held last month. The committee was studying new U.S. nuclear agreements with Canada and six other North Atlantic partners.

WANT MATERIALS

The agreements would allow the transfer to Canada of certain non-weapon nuclear information and materials which could, among other things, help in the development of military reactors.

Cmdr. Lascara said Canada wanted the information and materials in connection with plans for a possible submarine atomic power plant.

Asked whether Canada intended to build this submarine hull in Canada or Britain, Cmdr. Lascara said Canada wants to build it in its own shipyards.

"And they have visited some of our shipbuilding activities to learn what they would have to have to get into this type of construction."

STRIKE ENDS

COLOMBO, Ceylon (AP) — A strike that began 26 days ago in the port of Colombo ended today. Employees in 97 mercantile firms also went back to work after a 10 - day stoppage. Meanwhile, some 600 installation workers of the Caltex Petroleum Company struck in protest against what they called "the company's practice of allowing private contractors to transport oil."

Labor Criticism Of Colonial Rule In Africa Likely

EDINBURGH, Scotland (CP)—Canadians who have panned the current Royal Tour of Canada were criticized Monday night by a world-famed Montreal neurosurgeon attending the joint meeting of the Canadian and British Medical Associations.

Dr. Wilder Penfield told the 2,000 delegates at the convention in one of the keynote addresses:

"I speak for Canada and Canadians when I tell you how highly we prize the long and arduous visit of Her Majesty. We like the rugged contribution made by Prince Philip."

He said "much nonsense" has been noised" about the tour but "it comes from little folk who like to sneer at what is good in life."

LAUDS PRINCE'S REMARK

Earlier, Dr. A. D. Kelly of Toronto, CMA general secretary, echoed a recent remark by Prince Philip that Canadians aren't as fit as they might be.

"It is quite true that the people of the younger generation in Canada are not as fit as their parents," Kelly told delegates, and the CMA "fears no resentment" over what the prince said.

"We took the prince's remark as a well-meant stimulus. This was just the thing to provide that little spark which was necessary to make us face up to the matter."

The prince meanwhile sent a message to the doctors, saying they demonstrated the value of a Commonwealth connection in achieving practical results.

SENDS REGRETS

He said he regretted not being able to attend the convention, but he was in Canada "due to circumstances quite beyond my control."

INDIAN SCOUT

CAMPBELLFORD — Eleven members of one family, comprising four generations, paraded in the Orangemen's Parade in Campbellford on July 11th. The family was that of the past district Master, Joseph Dickinson of Campbellford, who is 80 years of age. The four generations were made up of Mr. Dickinson, his daughter, Mrs. Fred Skinkle of Warkworth, her daughter, Mrs. Arlene Greenley, and her son, and daughter, who are twins, Douglas and Diana Greenley of Warkworth.

Sealskin Prints Eskimo Art Form

OTTAWA (CP)—Sealskin prints as a "new expression" of Eskimo art may soon rival stone carving in popularity, the northern affairs department said today.

One such print, depicting six Canada geese taking flight, was among Eskimo gifts presented to the Queen and Prince Philip at Yellowknife today.

This particular picture is a print off a stencil cut in the skin of a silver Jar seal. It was done in the Eskimo craft centre at Cape Dorset on Baffin Island.

The print method involves the use of paints made from pigments hand-mixed with seal oil, and brushes made from the hair of a polar bear.

The design is cut from the sealskin and transferred to paper by hand coloring.

Two Women Die As Rail Pierces Passenger Coach

Chicago-Toronto Train Derailed Near Hamilton

HAMILTON (CP) — A CNR passenger express bound from Chicago to Toronto jumped the tracks 11 miles east of here on Tuesday, upending a coach in a rail which pierced a coach and killed two women.

At least 20 of the 213 passengers were injured but only two were detained in hospital. The women who died were seated beside each other in the fifth car from the coaches in the 11-car train.

The dead were identified as Mrs. Lillian Moore, about 65, of Acton, Ont., and Mrs. Gertrude Deras of North Bay.

Police were unable to identify Mrs. Moore until noon today. She carried no baggage or identification but a fellow passenger remembered that she had mentioned being from Acton. A check there today resulted in the identification.

A CNR investigation team moved into the area within an hour after the accident happened, about 6 before 4 p.m.

Investigators declined comment on earlier reports from the scene which said a split switch caused the derailment.

Ronald Bryant of Hamilton, a CNR freight clerk who was also a passenger in the third coach, said the train "seemed to jump and suddenly there was a jiggling jumble."

"I saw some trackmen running back from the track," he said. "They looked as if the coach seemed to get more wobbly."

Then there was a crunching, grinding noise and the coach started to tip. None of the coaches overturned, however.

The derailment occurred only about 500 yards from a trestle above Twelve Mile Creek, near Beamsville. Ten of the 11 cars jumped, but the trestle was clear by the last one remaining.

DERAILED OVER TRESTLE

The train's two diesel engines stayed on the tracks and pulled the first baggage cars across the trestle, gouging the thick bridge timbers.

A coupling snapped behind the third car and the other eight cars stopped with the front part short of the trestle. Rails were twisted badly for almost half a mile.

The train had travelled about 483 miles after leaving Chicago and was only 30 miles from its Toronto destination.

Most seriously injured in the accident were Mrs. Mary Dubrick of Sarnia, who was reported in critical condition in St. Joseph Hospital with shock and internal injuries, and Louisa Pearl of Toronto, confined to Oakville-Trafalgar Memorial Hospital with forehead lacerations.

Among those injured who were released after receiving treatment were Mrs. Robert Hiese, Brockville, wife and mother of twins, and Mrs. Mary Stenson, Kingston, left ankle and finger injured.

Monks Object To Plane Being Fixed

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. AP — An American International Airlines plane, carrying 1,800 rhesus monkeys to New York for polio vaccine research, developed engine trouble over Albuquerque and made an emergency landing Tuesday night.

The weather sensitive monkeys were moved inside a heated section of a cool dust laden wind.

The monks set up such a howl that mechanics working on the plane moved themselves and the plane outside to work on it.

The plane was repaired and took off shortly after midnight.

Govt. to Resume Loans to Housebuilders

OTTAWA (CP) — The government will resume making direct loans to Canadian housebuilders in September, Finance Minister Diefenbaker said today.

He told reporters as he entered a morning cabinet meeting that details will be announced shortly. The government had decided to make the resumption known at this time so builders could begin planning fall construction.

The government provided loans of $6 billion last year but halted the program at the end of December.

The government went into the business of lending money directly through its own agency, Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, in 1954. Before that it had previously provided public funds to private lending agencies to place with borrowers.

Under the direct lending by CMHC last year, a total of $100,000 was loaned for mortgage purposes and went for construction of 14,781 housing units.

Later, in a statement issued by his office, Mr. Diefenbaker said a total of 15 direct government loans will be made available to each qualified builder starting Sept. 1. The program will run through December.

Applications for direct assistance will be accepted by CMHC after July 27.

"Under these arrangements, applications will be processed at once and builders will be able to begin construction immediately the effective date has been reached."

He said mortgage loans for small homes will be available to builders who are in business last year and who are unable to obtain the assistance they require under the usual CMHC insured mortgage loan arrangements.

"In the main, these will be small homes no more than five unsold houses at 90 per cent completion or more which have been financed with either agency or direct loans."

WON'T AFFECT

Resumption of the direct loans to builders would in no way affect the present policy of loans by CMHC to prospective home owners.

Direct loans to individual borrowers will still be available in centres of less than 55,000 population under the terms and conditions as the usual government-insured mortgage loan plan in centres of more than 55,000 population for housing coming under the special small rooms category.

NIXON STARTS TRIP THAT COULD SHAPE FUTURE

U.S. Vice-President Off to Visit Russia

WASHINGTON (CP) — Vice-President Richard Nixon starts off today on the greatest trip of his political career—an odyssey that could be used by Red rule to shape the cold war and set his star in the fight for the presidency in 1960.

Undoubtedly, the political clock of the ambitious Californian will be set back as he talks with Nikita Khrushchev bear fruit and he returns home with Russian diplomatic concessions and agreement on a summit conference on West-ern terms.

Thus, in a way, the political fortunes of the United Republicas—the personal emissary of President Eisenhower — could well lie in the hands of Russia's premier.

THE BOGGING DOWN?

Underlying the importance of Nixon's 13-day trip is Eisenhower's view that East-West negotiations at Geneva are bogging down and prospects for a summit conference are bleak.

Nixon will be the highest-rank-ing American to visit Russia since the revolution. His prestige may be enhanced by reporting-back sessions with Premier Gerhardt Averell Harriman of New York and Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn) thinks Nixon may be the next U.S. president.

Both Russian sides — perhaps over conscious of the political significance of the visit — began flop-keep throwing cold water on any speculation that Nixon will be able to do anything constructive with Khrushchev.

They say his main job will be to open the American Exhibition in Moscow, make a tour of Soviet centres and tell Khrushchev the U.S. will remain firm in its determination to keep West Berlin free.

They emphasize that he will take care not to pull the rug from under State Secretary Christian Herter if Geneva can engage in secret Soviet-American negotiating that could produce the desires and advice of other Western powers.

A year ago it would have been a good bet that Nixon would be the Republican party's choice to succeed Eisenhower. But that was before Nelson Rockefeller announced New York governorship. It didn't help any when Rockefeller got divorced last year and he was spat on by Latins during his Venezuelan trip. The significant fact is that Eisenhower consigns both Nixon and Rockefeller equally to oblivion for president. It is clear Nixon needs a boost to put him in the Republican lead.

Bullet Fired At London Man

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — John Bald, of London escaped death early today when a bullet shattered the window of a car in which he was riding. Bald named a man who, he said, had threatened "to get him." Police are investigating.

Cockatoo With Yen to Be an Eagle Conquers Gales in Manhattan Peaks

NEW YORK (AP) — A cockatoo is a stiff sort of bird, a crested parrot that usually lives in a cage. An eagle, on the other hand, is a glorious bird, a symbol of reckless courage.

Thus it isn't hard to visualize how a yearning to be an eagle became an obsession with Albert, the cockatoo.

His saga began when Stewart Alsop, author and yachtsman, left him, left on a vacation. Damon, vice-president of an importing firm here, entrusted Albert and his cage to a secretary, Jeanne Fisher.

Now in all his six years, Albert had known good, life as a cockatoo should. So Miss Fisher gave him the run of her 10th-floor apartment.

But in Sunday night's violent thunderstorm something stirred Albert's mind. It was a night when only an eagle would take wing — a wild, thundering, lightning, rainy night of wind and darkness.

Off went Albert, through a window and into the storm.

Police couldn't find him. The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals couldn't find him. So Miss Fisher put an ad in "The Times."

If Sunday night was made for eagles, Monday night was for the birds. A new storm spent its fury upon the city. In the midst, somewhere, somehow, Albert pitied his strength and the elements that eagle could have asked for greater strength.

By dawn Tuesday, Miss Fisher was ready to give up on Albert.

"I was really sick about it," she said.

Early Tuesday afternoon, a white bird with gold crest appeared swaggering on a 23rd-floor window ledge on a Madison Avenue apartment house.

Early Tuesday afternoon, a white bird with gold crest appeared swaggering on a 23rd-floor window ledge on a Madison Avenue apartment house.

The bird was Albert, who flew from Miss Fisher's apartment. It was Albert, vanquisher of storms, taking his ease while awaiting a new challenge.

Albert is the best-adjusted bird at home while the office help is raising down his master.

For Albert, master of the elements and part-time eagle, the cage of glory were at an end. A cockatoo once more, he was returned to Miss Fisher's hotel and ignobly clapped into his cage. The door was wired shut.

"He doesn't like it and he's fussing," Miss Fisher reported. "But he's not getting out of the cage again. A little bit of freedom, you know, can be a dangerous thing."

Britain May Scrap 'ZETA', New System Being Readied

LONDON (AP) — Britain said step toward harnessing the power of the hydrogen bomb appeared to have ended, but it hasn't lived up to expectations and may be scrapped.

The atomic energy authority said designs are being prepared for a new system.

The authority's annual report blamed ZETA's falldown on an energy leak that has baffled British scientists.

"It was rather like trying to pump up a tire with a punctured tire," the report said.

ZETA was unveiled at Britain's atomic research centre at Harwell 18 months ago. Sir John Cockcroft, who directed the experiment, said at that time he was "99 per cent certain" the scientific team had controlled thermonuclear fusion — the so-called H-bomb reaction. But he emphasized it would take two decades, maybe longer, to translate this into everyday use.

Since then British scientists have admitted their claims were overoptimistic.

In announcing ZETA, Cockcroft in January, 1958, said Temperatures of 5,000,000 degrees—"higher than the measure surface of the sun"—already had been produced for brief periods.

The idea was to-beat the heavy isotopes of hydrogen known as deuterium until they fused, form helium and release energy. Heavy hydrogen is not too difficult or too expensive to get from sea water, so the supply would be inexhaustible.

ZETA was a doughnut - shape tube containing deuterium through which electric jolts were passed. Cockcroft said an excessive amount of energy was lost in the tube and as a result not enough energy was available to raise the temperature for a sustained period to the high levels required.

The report said, however, that "designs are being prepared for a system which will enable heated gas to be maintained at 5,000,000 degrees and after mechanical current to be fed into the gas at a much faster rate."

Temperatures of 100,000,000 to 500,000,000 degrees are believed necessary and would have to be found to retain them for an appreciable period.

Ministers of Seven Nations Approve Free-Trade Scheme

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (Reuter) — A ministerial meeting of seven European nations Tuesday night recommended establishment of a European Free Trade Association over Averell Harriman of New York and Sen. Hubert Humphrey thinks Nixon may be the next U.S. president.

Both Russian sides — perhaps over conscious of the political significance of the visit — began flop-keep throwing cold water on any speculation that Nixon will be able to do anything constructive with Khrushchev.

They say his main job will be to open the American Exhibition in Moscow, make a tour of Soviet centres and tell Khrushchev the U.S. will remain firm in its determination to keep West Berlin free.

They emphasize that he will take care not to pull the rug from under State Secretary Christian Herter if Geneva can engage in secret Soviet-American negotiating that could produce the desires and advice of other Western powers.

A year ago it would have been a good bet that Nixon would be the Republican party's choice to succeed Eisenhower. But that was before Nelson Rockefeller announced New York governorship. It didn't help any when Rockefeller got divorced last year and he was spat on by Latins during his Venezuelan trip. The significant fact is that Eisenhower consigns both Nixon and Rockefeller equally to oblivion for president. It is clear Nixon needs a boost to put him in the Republican lead.

Canadian Mine-Mill Locals Favor CLC Reaffiliation

TORONTO (CP) — The International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers Ind. announced today that a Canadian autonomy drive has resulted in four-to-one in favor of seeking reaffiliation with the Canadian Labor Congress.

Preliminary figures compiled here early today showed every Mine-Mill local "solidly" in favor of the reaffiliation move, union secretary. It didn't help any when Rockefeller got divorced last year and he was spat on by Latins during his Venezuelan trip. The significant fact is that Eisenhower consigns both Nixon and Rockefeller equally to oblivion for president. It is clear Nixon needs a boost to put him in the Republican lead.

A union spokesman said the vote approved the terms for seeking affiliation. Results were tallied down several months ago by the national executive.

There was fear that Mine-Mill affiliate intact with the national body. Only two locals included; that all present constitutional rights of the union membership be maintained and that each Canadian local have the right to vote on any obligations or enjoy the same rights as any other CLC affiliate.

Prior to calling the national executive distributed 35,000 leaflets calling for a referendum vote on the union's national publications strongly endorsed the affiliation move.

'Winnie' Dunks a Cigar Before Boarding Plane

LONDON (AP) — Sir Winston Churchill observed the no smoking rule today on boarding a plane for the French Riviera. Usually he ignores it.

The elder statesman's car drove him and Lady Churchill to within a few yards of the plane. He got down while Churchill put out his cigar before boarding.

"As far as I know nobody has dropped a hint," said a spokesman for the Churchills in various ways. "We would never stop him. He has been travelling with us a long time and is certainly a very special passenger."

Accompanied by their daughter Diana, Mrs. Duncan Sandys, and her daughter Celia, the Churchills will cruise the Greek islands for three weeks aboard shipping magnate Aristotle Onassis' yacht. Also along will be soprano Maria Callas and her husband.

Seven Airmen Die in Crash

ANDOVER, N.H. (AP)—A U.S. Air Force plane crashed in flames early today and all seven of the persons aboard died.

The craft was identified as a huge propeller-driven tanker plane.

The plane went down near a hilltop.

The crew of a second KC — 97 said they were flying at 15,000 feet altitude when they saw flames burst out on the left wing of the plane about a mile ahead of them. The burning plane took a left dip and then plunged through an overcast.

State police said at least one crew member tried to parachute but was caught by the flames. Both his body and the parachute burned.

KASSEM ORDERS DISARMING OF BAGHDAD TROOPS

Cairo Paper States He Feared Revolt

CAIRO (Reuters) — Iraqi Premier Abdel Karim Kassem has ordered the disarming of army units around Baghdad to prevent them from revolting against his government, a Cairo newspaper said today.

Abdel Karim ran the story as other Egyptian papers quoted unconfirmed reports that fighting still was going on in northern Iraq.

There was no immediate support for the Al Akhbar story but it was noted that Iraq's Defence Minister was swept into power in Baghdad a year ago by an army revolt.

Egyptian papers have been playing up the Iraqi unrest as part of a Communist plot to spread chaos throughout the country.

An Iraqi army brigade was reported battling in northern Iraq on Tuesday — two days after the Baghdad government claimed the situation there was under control.

Egyptian newspapers today reported reports that 3,000 persons have been killed or hurt in the north Iraq trouble area, embracing the cities of Kirkuk and Mosul and six other cities. Other reports have put the death toll as low as 20.

"Today's press reports said the Kirkuk revolution" was more serious than the uprising at Mosul in March.

Suddenly the engine exploded, throwing the cover over. A fire started in the hold, but was extinguished by Grand Bend fire department.

Khrushchev Dishes Out Crackling Comment on Spit and Horses' Heads

WARSAW (AP) — "When they spit in my face, a guest, why should I go?"

That Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev explained the sudden cancellation of his August visit to Scandinavia.

Khrushchev went to go to places where my message can be helpful," Khrushchev told reporters at a Soviet Embassy reception Tuesday night celebrating his tour of Poland.

"Maybe I will go later," he added.

The visit to Scandinavia would not have been a step to peace, but would have led to sharpened tensions."

Asked what he thought about the Geneva conference, Khrushchev replied:

"Only an idiot would feel ill when our plan is being fulfilled 105 per cent. Even the dead would stand up at such wonderful work."

Russian Answer To West Demand Expected Today

Reply Could Decide Fate of Conference

GENEVA (AP) — Andrei A. Gromyko is expected to give Russia's answer today to the Western demand that he set a date for a truce over Berlin. His speech could decide the fate of the Big Four conference.

Some Communist informants hinted that the Soviet foreign minister might back down slightly on his insistence that the Western great East-German security with West Germany by creating an Austrian committee to negotiate on unification.

Alternatively he might try to stave off a final showdown by suggesting some new approach to the whole problem and calling for a further study of the possibilities of a peaceful settlement.

WOULDN'T BUDGE

Western officials said they had no indication that any Soviet concession was in the making. In a 90-minute secret talk Tuesday with the three Western foreign ministers, Gromyko refused to budge from the Soviet insistence on giving the East German regime status with the West Germans.

U.S. Secretary of State Christian A. Herter, British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd and French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville pressed Gromyko repeatedly for a date for the East-German security with West Germany by creating an Austrian committee to negotiate on unification. Gromyko rejected the proposal, calling it an attempt to "whitewash" the Bonn regime.

Gromyko ended the session with East German Communist Foreign Minister Otto Winzer sitting in as adviser.

They also tried to find out whether Gromyko would be willing to let his own committee proposal, made at the first meeting of the Big Four agreement to remove the Communist threat to West Berlin.

Western diplomats said Gromyko dodged and avoided direct answers, saying, "You know my position." Lloyd was reported to have denounced Gromyko's tactics in a heated clash.

Reuters news agency quoted Communist sources as saying in Paris that next week Gromyko would choose the plenary session today to launch new proposals. They predicted a new move "within the next few days."

All the indications were that Gromyko they intend to break off the conference unless key issues begin to make progress toward an agreement. Heffer had given him a similar warning Monday.

Police Chief Says 'Bobbies' Healthy as Ever

LONDON (Reuters)—The chief of London police said today that the conduct of police is as fit and healthy as it has ever been" despite the recent increase in "irregular procedure."

Sir Joseph Simpson, metropolitan police commissioner, complained in his annual report that the modern press often accuses the police of misconduct.

"Sometimes perhaps after a thorough education," Simpson said, "the criminal finds his reading public is not entirely shocked: He often accuses the police, without any justification, of irregular procedure and even corruption."

Simpson's report, which also reviewed crime in London, first came on the heels of widespread allegations that police beat up a suspect after he was arrested on charges of killing a detective.

Gordon Hoda, a Negro who emigrated to Canada and was deported several months ago, was admitted to hospital after his arrest Thursday on suspicion of killing Detective Sergeant Cock. Cody three days earlier. He was helped to court though no charges were formally.

Simpson's report recorded t a "most disturbing" jump in juvenile crime and said crime of all kinds increased by one-third in 1958.

Total indictable offences numbered 151,796 compared to 126,754 in 1957—a 20-per-cent increase.

French Students Hear Address By Principal

Students should attend school to foster their natural curiosity . . . and their capacity for enjoyment."

This is the opinion put forth by newly appointed principal of the new Moira Secondary School, Jim Masgrove, when he addressed 30 local students and their French-Canadian guests from Rochester, Quebec, Tuesday.

The students, who are participating in the two week provincial student visit program sponsored by the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews, were guests of the Belleville Kiwanis Club during the weekly dinner meeting at the Kiwanis Centre.

In an address entitled "Why You Should Go To School", Mr. Musgrove emphasized that students should feel school provided an opportunity for satisfying youthful curiosity and developing skills for future success in life.

"They should not look on school as a necessary evil they have to pass through", he said.

On the negative side, he said students should not attend institutions of learning for the purpose of securing their parents force them to, or because they think that nothing better to do, or because they want to get an education so they can get a good job and make a great deal of money.

Such attitudes are responsible for lack of enthusiasm for learning and the large number of drop-outs, he added.

Mr. Musgrove said students should realize the school they are preparing themselves to be good airline pilots, nurses or housewives, for example.

"You should go to school to foster your natural curiosity—so by exploring the accumulated knowledge of the past, you will go on to future achievement," he said.

"Another reason you should go to school is to have fun . . . the fun you get out of making a dress, or making a well-executed forward pass", he added, in emphasizing the element of enjoyment a person receives from an activity if he is comfortable to the amount of knowledge he has of that activity.

Mr. Masgrove was introduced by Ron Keel, and thanked, in French, by Everett Fairman. Members of the club were added by president Gerry Wishart.

Prior to the address, Robert Post, city industrial commissioner, and Chamber of Commerce manager, introduced each of the students who was asked to rise as his name was called to receive the plaudits of the club.

Ed Purdy, one of the local students, gave a brief report from a two-week visit to Rochereval, in the area, a brief address telling of the group's visit to Rochereval and the hospitality shown them by Art Bergeron and Claude Morin. Germain Bourchard spoke on behalf of the Rochereval students expressing their appreciation of the welcome received in Belleville and those responsible for it, particularly Mayor Gerald Hyde and Mr. Robert Post.

Long-distance Kiwanian this week was Art Bergeron of Trenton. A special welcome was given Mr. L. L. Moore by president Gerry Wishart.

Thinks 'Missing' Home Located On Dundas St.

The story of a Youngstown, N. Y., Navel Academy looking for the home he lived in as a child away back in 1905 carried in yesterday's issue of this week's paper, has jogged the phenomenal memory of a Belleville man.

He phoned this morning to say he thinks the house Commander Wille was looking for was the situated along the south side of Dundas Street, somewhere where the Deacon Shirt Company is located.

The caller, who prefers to remain anonymous cites as evidence "Palmer's Block of Rolling Steel Mills were located on the property now occupied by the Deacon Co. at 71 St. John Street — not on the property now occupied by Woolworth's and Dundas Street — 30 Franklin St. as stated in Tuesday's story.

Therefore Commander Dodds couldn't see Rolling Mills from the back door of the house on corner of Church and Bridge Streets, but he could if he lived on the south side of "Dundas Street", he explained.

His long distance call of Belleville the septuagenarian recalled a creek running east of the Allen Gardens through what is the Bridge Street playgrounds, are located. Crossing Dundas Street between Charles and Albert Streets.

At that time, (around 1905) there was a wooden bridge on Dundas Street crossing the creek somewhere near the present Clark's Service Station, 144 Dundas Street East, now stands, he said. The caller said he believes the bridge the Commander referred to when he said he remembers crossing a bridge to get to town, the oldster stated.—The creek of course, has since been filled in.

The caller, who can remember most of the residents of Dundas Street at that time, also recalled the prow of the ship Commander Dodds commanded could be seen at the ice in the Bay was that of the Schooner Lumber Jack which had been sunk many years prior to 1906. It was situated in the Bay directly opposite the foot of Front Street, he said.

He also recalls iceboating was a popular winter sport in those days, and that, he, himself, used to iceboat on the Bay.

He added, when he went down the Yacht Club yesterday he intends to impart this information to the Commander, Dodds and his family, he had already left on the continuation of their vacation voyage.

Cornwall Road Still Closed By Mohawks

CORNWALL (CP) — An eastwest road on Cornwall Island remained blocked to traffic today after a meeting Tuesday night failed to get a quitpaw over land rental payments to Indians of the St. Regis reserve.

Mohawk Indians of the Six Nations Confederacy established the guard which Tuesday prevented some workers from getting to their jobs on a $1,000,000 highway project.

The dispute concerns land rented to the Seaway Authority for access to a work site and temporary storage. Indian officials claim the agreement over the land renewed on March 31 and the authority has not paid for the land since then.

The Indians involved bargained for higher rentals when the original agreement expired but the authority refused to pay more. The amount of money was not known since various sums are owed to different Indians.

Officials of the general contracting company which is working on channel improvement work on the south side of the island have threatened to pull out unless the Indians stop interfering.

Another meeting is scheduled for today between Seaway Authority officials, reserve officials and those who own the land.

Nuclear Energy Plant Hazards Are Said Small

EDINBURGH (Reuters) — A British doctor said today no accidents at nuclear energy establishments should not seriously endanger the public.

He said that at Chalk River, Canada's nuclear research headquarters, hundreds of thousands of times the radioactivity of all the radium refined in the world so far has been handled in the last 10 years without a single lost-time accident.

Charge Students After Theft Of Exam Paper

WINNIPEG (CP)—Eight Winnipeg high school students will appear in court Aug. 6 in connection with theft of an examination paper before the June departmental examinations, city detectives said Tuesday.

Another juvenile, a non-student, is charged with theft of the grade 12 chemistry paper from a Winnipeg printing company. He and two of the students were arrested over the week-end, police said, but no longer are in custody.

Insp. James Ross said the 16-year-old delivery boy was in the printing firm's premises the first week in July. He reportedly found a misplaced paper and stole it.

Recognizing it as a June examination paper he gave it to two students at Daniel McIntyre Collegiate Institute, police said. The paper was returned to the school Monday.

The department has said all students involved will write the exam again.

East Trenton Guides Enjoy Week at Camp

TRENTON—Girl Guides from East Trenton enjoyed a week's camp at the Trenton district campsite the week under the leadership of Camp Commandant Mrs. J. Emory.

During this period, the Guides worked for first and second class badges, and practised camp crafts. On Wednesday, Mrs. Emory took them to Cedardale beach, where several of them passed their swimming tests.

Highlight of the week's camp was Thursday, when the Guides held a campfire singsong, which was also enjoyed by their parents and friends who came out to the campsite.

Recent well drilling at the Trenton district campsite, which is jointly used by Girl Guides and West Trenton Guides, revealed the presence of water at about 90 feet. This was felt by Guide leaders and Local Association committee members that the present campsite is an almost ideal one for the Guides, it was decided to go ahead and have the necessary work performed to make the water available if and when funds permit. Guides are not allowed to appeal for funds, or engage in fund-raising tag days.

Mrs. Emory took her 15th East Trenton pack of Brownies on a day trip to the cottage at Roblin Lake, owned by Trenton District Commissioner Mrs. W. Ferguson. The Brownies enjoyed a campfire sing-song.

Mrs. J. Ritchie, Brown Owl of East Trenton Brownies, took her pack to Cedardale beach on Thursday, where the girls made most of the sunny weather.

Members of West Trenton 13 Company, under their lieutenant, Miss Marcia Langdon, were guests of Air Force Guides at their camp on the Trent River last week. They were in charge of Camp Commandant Mrs. Wm. Smith, and the girls practised their camp crafts, which included tent pitching, open air cookery, and swimming. A general downpour the first night under canvas only served to illustrate the excellent workmanship of the tent-pitching Guides, most of whom had done the job for the first time.

Council Briefs

TRENTON — Mayor Aylsworth presided before council to protest the use of Bayview Park as a garbage dump, and he headed to the town with understanding it would be used for nothing but that. The parking lot or a "green strip" was all that was to be built. He did not correct this situation then he would take definite steps to see that it was. He was yesterday informed that an infringement on the agreement had been made and the matter is being looked into.

Councillor Vegso informed Mr. Alyea he was not prepared to discuss the matter further, but that he had applied to the town for permission to lease a piece of this land and it was rejected with the understanding that it would be used for parking. Councillor Vagn Lange said it was his opinion that if it was decided that parking meters would be put there this year if needed that the money could be found to fix it up.

Councillors passed a recommendation by the Traffic Committee to change the no parking ban on Dundas Street East to "no parking from 4.30 to 6 p.m., 11 is believed it will be done for a trial period and ended a lengthy discussion on the parking in traffic problem. Most councillors and the mayor felt the traffic situation in the area was the best it has ever been but some councillors felt the ban should be changed more and read from 4.30 p.m. to 5.30 p.m. On a polled vote Councillors Lloyd Weese, Lloyd Worrall and William Bradshaw voted in favour of the Traffic Committee's recommendation and all other councillors voted against. Mayor Ross Burk broke the tie by voting in favor of the committee's recommendation. It is understood permission will have to be obtained from the Department of Highways before it can become effective.

Fire Chief Answers Critics At Meeting

TRENTON — "I can't understand why some people are trying to make me responsible for their mistakes", Fire Chief Cecil Ellis said this morning. The Chief made the remark in answer to criticism a member of the Community Centre Board made last night at the board's regular meeting.

"The Fire Chief before me, Mr. Ellis said, "would have had the heaters investigated if the matter had been brought to him or if he had been asked to assist, but at no time had the former Chief been made aware of the installation.

"Nor was I consulted about it until recently, and after the present dispute had started, and after going down to the rink to examine the heaters I called the Fire Marshal in Toronto.

"He instructed me by letter, which I have turned over to the town office, on my position in the issue and that I am required to act under the direction of the Fire Marshal in all fire prevention matters."

The letter from the Fire Marshal's office also informs the Trenton Fire Chief that he is not to assume on his shoulders the legal and moral responsibilities for any loss of life that might result from the installation which might prove unsafe."

Last night the Community Centre Board was informed by the town clerk - treasurer O. W. Ellis has written a letter to the Ontario Fuel Board and the wording of the letter is as follows: (the board decided to leave the matter in abeyance until an answer is received from the fuel board):

"Further to our telephone conversation of Friday, July 17th, concerning the use of Gas-Fired Heaters in the Trenton Community Gardens.

"As discussed, I am sending herewith a (a) Letter from the Fuel Board to N. H. Banfield, Secretary, Trenton Community Gardens, (b) Report of the Trenton Fire Chief to the Councillor Co-ordinating this section to persons and property, (c) Letter from the Fire Marshal's Office and technical information Bulletin No. 12. It is interesting to note that the bulletin is dated November 1958, and the heaters were in the Trenton Community Gardens was made in October, 1958. This installation was done without the undertaken and completed prior to the rules and bulletin and therefore the Gardens acted in good faith and probably, in view of the circumstances are the victims of circumstances.

"The Trenton Fire Chief the Fire Marshal's Office does not exactly confirm the report of the Fire Chief to Council, but the Electrical Control Board Inspection staff is satisfied that the Local Board is left at an impasse.

"I think you will agree that we aren't getting very far with what we can't do, but rather how can we properly and safely see what has already been installed at considerable cost in a non-profit enterprise. May we have a positive directive from the Fuel Board on this matter."

Expect Shelter And Evacuation Will Be Policy

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal government is expected to propose a double-pronged policy of shelter and evacuation for civil defence at a fall conference with the provinces, it was learned today.

Government sources said that Health Minister Monteith and Prime Minister Diefenbaker in statements just before Parliament prorogued outlined the basic policy for providing fallout shelters will figure largely in the fall conference on civil defence. It is understood the provinces for comment.

At the same time, it is understood that the shelter plan does not involve scrapping all plans for evacuation of centres of population in the event of nuclear attack.

Since about 1953, the emphasis for civil defence has been on evacuation, with the idea of development of the intercontinental ballistic missile — and the consequent lack of warning of an attack — evacuation has been viewed as largely ineffective.

However, Mr. Monteith told the Commons last week that it is not planned to abandon the evacuation policy entirely.

He also said then that the emphasis will be placed on providing shelter against radioactive fallout.

This is understood to stem from the belief that in the event of nuclear war Canada would not be a primary target for missile-armed Russia but the more populous southern sections of the country would be threatened by widespread fallout resulting from nuclear explosions over distant targets.

Hamilton Gang Beat Yachtsmen, Seen as Mistake

HAMILTON (CP)—Police said Tuesday they are printing a gun which attacked and beat several yachtsmen during the weekend, apparently in the belief they were crew members of a late supply ship.

The attacks are believed to be linked to efforts being made to organize all ship crews on the Great Lakes, a police spokesman said. Authorities indicated they were deeply concerned.

One of the beaten men told a reporter:

"These fellows mean business. I have a wife and family and I don't want anything to happen to them.

"How did you find out our names? The police advised us to keep the whole thing hush-hush. Please don't print my name. I mean it when I say something might happen to my family."

Another man said the boat in which he and two others were riding was circled by another craft. Two men jumped aboard.

"They just started swinging," the informant said. One of the three finally managed to convince the assailants that they were members of a yacht club and had nothing to do with working ships.

One of the victims of the attack was reported to have suffered two black eyes and a slash across his face.

Took a Gamble In Buying Land Builder States

TORONTO (CP)—A suburban North York builder testified Tuesday before an inquiry into the township's land deals that when he paid $10,500 for a parcel of township land in order to build an apartment he took an "out-and-out gamble."

Morton Mercur, president of Oaklyn Investments Limited, was replying to a question from Judge Joseph Sweet as to why he would buy filled-in land with a soil test.

The judge said he got the impression that there was either not much security left in the land or that it was so cheap the builder did not care what condition it was in.

NO ANSWER

When questioning switched to the building from a scow and using a ramp for parking on 44 feet of township property next to the apartment block, Mr. Merkur said he could not say when approval was given for the project.

Crown counsel T. Kelso Creighton persisted in his questioning but Mr. Merkur's counsel objected.

My client's inability to answer these questions are reflected in the evidence," Mr. McCaffrey stated.

"It's surprising that he doesn't know the answers, though quite possible," said Judge Sweet. "But somebody must know something about it."

"Somebody made this deal someone had to," he said. "If he didn't, then I would like to see someone who did."

Following a consultation with Mr. McCaffrey's associates, Mr. McCallum said he could produce a witness who could answer the questions.

Says Injunctions May Affect Strike Laws

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Federation of Labor told the provincial government Tuesday that court injunctions issued under the province's new labor legislation may prevent return to work following solution of current strike disputes.

In a telegram to Attorney General Robert Bonner and Labor Minister Lyle Wicks, federation Secretary Pat O'Neal called for a meeting by union and government leaders to discuss the matter.

The telegram said more injunctions have been granted against labor in B.C. since passage of the new Trades Labor Act four months ago than in all other provinces combined.

"The wholesale use of injunctions by employer groups, the damage suits against unions, the prosecution and imprisonment of union officers, cap lead only to the conclusion by all fair-minded citizens that the legislation is being used by employers to serve their ends.

"Should settlement be reached by some of the parties in dispute, return to work would be impossible until the injunctions are withdrawn.

"The "extreme natufe" of many of the injunctions would legally bind the executive and legal work in these cases, the telegram said.

The Labor Act makes unions liable for civil suit and prohibits its executive from taking action as sympathy picketing and publication of lists of companies whose goods and services trade unionists are advised not to patronize.

United States Cost of Living Takes Big Jump

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States cost of living rose four-tenths of one per cent from June to a record high.

It was the largest monthly increase in 14 months.

Announcing the rise, as measured by its consumer price index, the labor department said today all major items in the living costs of a typical family advanced. It added the increase was largely caused by a sharp advance in foods, chiefly fresh fruits and vegetables.

The rise took the price index to 124.5 per cent of the 1947-49 average. This is 1.9 tenths of one per cent higher than a year ago.

A LONELY DOZEN

The Canadian Senate recently debated, and passed, the bill designed to control published obscenity. Senator Davies, a publisher, backed by Senator Roebuck, attempted to amend the bill so that a publisher, author, or editor might appear before a judge to show why a publication should not be seized prior to an order for same to be issued by a judge (the bill provides for the author, editor, or publisher to be summonsed after a publication has been seized and to show why it should not be forfeited to the Crown).

We certainly feel that Senator Davies' suggestion had considerable merit especially when considering the fundamental principles of English common law, but the fact which really shocked us in the report of the passage of the bill (in its original form) was that it was passed by a vote of nine to three.

In short, this bill, which concerned a very vital point of law, was heard before only 12 of Canada's 96 Senators (19 Conservatives, 74 Liberals, two Independents, one Independent Liberal, with six vacancies). The attendance of the members of the Upper House for the discussion of an important piece of legislation was appallingly small, to say the least. If this is indicative of the interest which the senior members of government take in the nation's business something certainly should be done.

A senator receives an annual income of $8,000 with an allowance of $2,000 for expenses. To be appointed a senator a person must show a relatively substantial degree of financial independence. We therefore conclude that senators are not absent because they have to work during the sessions of Parliament in order to earn a living.

If the rate of remuneration for a senator is not sufficient then the necessary action to remedy the situation should be taken by the government, although we feel that $10,000 should be a living salary for most. If the rate of remuneration is not the problem, as we suspect it is not, why were almost 88 per cent of the members of the Canadian Senate absent? Is it because they are appointed for life and so consider themselves responsible to no one for their actions or their attendance? If they have any sense of moral obligation or duty there should be no reason for their absence except for ill health or unusual circumstances.

If the position of senator is to be treated as a mere political sinecure rather than a responsible position of trust in the interests of the Canadian people, steps should be taken to remedy such an attitude. We would suggest that a senator be allotted his full salary and expense account only if he has attended the sessions of the Senate regularly or explained his respect only by virtue of sickness or unusual circumstances.

If old age is a dominant factor behind the poor attendance in the Senate then older people should not be appointed to the Senate. A retirement scheme could be instituted, similar to that for members of the House of Commons, so that senators might retire after a period of years of good service.

Certainly the deplorable lack of interest as displayed in the reading given the above-mentioned piece of legislation should not be allowed to continue.

COURAGEOUS MINISTER

Hon. Alvin Hamilton, the Federal Minister for Northern Affairs, has such a predilection for sometimes saying the wrong thing, that we think it only fair that everybody should join in giving him a hearty pat on the back whenever such action is justified.

Mr. Hamilton deserves the heartiest commendation for his latest sally, a round of cheers for a story written by Farley Mowat which appear in Maclean's Magazine. The story dealt with an Eskimo woman's ordeal with hunger after her husband's murder, an ordeal which saw her bury her two children in the snow along her trail and which later led to her trial, and acquittal, on a charge of murder.

The story has been strongly criticised by two members of the Northwest Territories Council and by H. Nicholson, then RCMP Commissioner, said the story erred in some references to RCMP actions.

Mr .Hamilton, though, did not deal with the facts of the story - - he merely referred to it as "in clear and powerful prose, an attempt . . . to look into the minds of people thousands of years removed from us in civilization."

Those who read Mr. Mowat's story will almost certainly agree with Mr. Hamilton's judgment. If some facts were in error, that is to be regretted but it in no way lessens the truth of Mr. Mowat's theme that the white man should learn to understand the Eskimo's thought processes before he endeavors to judge his motives.

Physicians Should Know Psychiatry

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Last spring I was asked to contribute an article on psychiatry to the Manitoba Tuberculosis Medical Review, which was planning a special psychiatric issue.

Pressure of time prevented me from accepting this flattering offer, but when I picked up a copy of the issue recently, I saw that there had been no need for my contribution. Dr. Edward T. Sheehan, associate professor and psychiatry at the Yale School of Medicine, had written pretty much what I would have said in my piece.

"Sociologic studies," he wrote, "indicate that the incidence of maladjustment and emotional disease in our society approaches 10 per cent. . . . This figure cannot be exceeded without the danger of a breakdown in our society." Medicine can no longer avoid the primary responsibility in the solution of the problems involved."

Dr. Sheehan goes on to say that a minimum of 50 per cent of patients who seek medical attention have some social or psychologic worry with them. Thus, general practitioners spend about one quarter of their time dealing with psychic complaints. They are forced to be psychotherapists, though they are ignorant in this field.

"The teaching of basic psychiatry in our medical schools has been essentially neglected," he says. "Specialized medical training has been devoted essentially to the physical, despite the incorporation of emotional ill, and emotional factors in sickness. . . . The physician is called upon to treat."

His plan is not for psychiatrists to be made, but for increased training and competence in psychiatric technique of the physician in every area of practice — most particularly of the family doctor.

"It is here that efforts toward prophylaxis and prevention are needed," he stresses. "It is an area that in general is not being explored to the current levels of medical attention."

Then Dr. Sheehan courageously stated what few doctors are willing to say publicly — and what medical societies have upbraided me for writing:

"There are indications that the undoubted loss of prestige of medicine as a profession, the ever-accelerating tempo of damage and malpractice suits, and the demands for socialized medicine are, in part at least, reflections of the deep dissatisfactions many patients feel and act upon."

This ministry sentence should be clipped out and posted above the desk of every physician practising in the United States today.

Persian Rugs Are In Demand

From Facts About Iran.

A well-designed Persian rug is a thing of beauty and its intricate pattern and color harmony please the eye of today's decorator much the same as the predecessors through the centuries. Today, as in the past, Persian carpets and rugs are great source of income to Iran. Thousands of Iranians are engaged in the profitable, world-famous rug industry. Through their skill, industry, dexterity and tedious work, some 15 to 20 million dollars annually flows into Iran in exchange for the beautiful, multi-colored, artistically designed Persian carpets that grace homes the world over.

New rugs have lovelably brought about new designs, new colors and new tastes, but the methods of manufacturing have remained the same for centuries through the years. Good handwoven carpets are still in great preference to those made by machinery.

Traditional designs such as Abasi, Eslami and Shah Safi are the favorites. Nevertheless, each year the Persian weaver creates his own distinctive patterns as Arak, Kerman, Khorassan, Ispahan, Azerbaijan, Khorassan, Hamadan, Turkeman, Sahra, Feyra, Saloochestan and many others . . . each with a large following of its own.

Common to all rug-makers in Iran is the importance placed on the fineness of knots in the precise knotting of the wool. The usual knot is from one-fifth to one-tirth colors is the use of age-old colorants . . . indigo, madder, cochineal, safflower, pomegranates, walnuts and pomegranates.

The knotted wool pile superimposed on the cotton warp is the part which the designer has sketched beforehand and the weaver must follow. Ordinarily from two months to two years to finish a carpet depending, of course, on the size and quality of the product. Progress on each carpet is a laborious undertaking because the slightest error that might twist a design or destroy the symmetry of the carpet's value to a considerable degree. The world is in no danger of the perfection of the Persian rugs which have been so painstakingly created.

Some Worry Good for Us

Vancouver Province

Some worry is good for you. The chief of the mental health section of the World Health Organization says so.

This will come as a relief to a lot of people who have been tranquilizers and happiness pills, they were beginning to feel like dopes.

But worry is one of the differences between man and an animal.

An animal can't worry about what his or his love affairs or about the price of groceries or about what the neighbors are saying. He must take life as it comes. This preserves him from a lot of grief, but it also deprives him from planning and progress and the fruits of civilization.

Man has worried himself into and luxuries and health and securities and the like. And he will worry about this latest product of his worrying only if he does a whole lot more worrying.

To Your Good Health

PERIODIC PHYSICAL EXAMINATION URGED FOR ALL

"Dear Dr. Molner: How often should a woman part 35 go to her doctor for a pelvic examination and general checkup? Should it be twice a year, or how often is enough? I mean if she is perfectly well and wants to remain that way, I feel silly when I go every six, seven or eight months, as though I were looking for trouble. Still, I'm afraid to stay away.—Mrs. M. F.

You aren't alone, Mrs. M. R. How many times have I heard someone say, "I don't know. What I'm here; I feel perfectly well!" I don't know that I can speak for all doctors, but I can promise you this: There are a good many who welcome a reason from the grinding pressure of tricky problems of diagnosis and treatment, and like to be reminded that, after all, most people are symptomless. When you're a doctor, sometimes you forget that. And I'm glad that everybody has a problem!

But let's not talk too much about how the doctor feels. It's the patient who is important.

Generally speaking, after the age of 45 or 50 any person, male or female, should be checked at least once a year. Infantry is finding the wisdom of that! An efficient executive knows that is "too busy" to go to his doctor. So industry is finding it smart business to have a check-up. The investment in time and money is small. The benefits are tremendous. Apart from letting small problems grow into serious ones, they may real.

A PAINLESS SIGNS

At around 50 the so-called "diseases of degeneration" begin to appear — blood pressure may be rising, albumin or sugar may be present in the urine. With women many carry a mild degree of uterine displacement which can be detected (and therefore treated early) by the presence of pus.

Cancer in any form is most successfully checked for nodules (lumps).

As for the pelvic examination, this is important and useful but not especially unpleasant. Any change in the cervix (which needs watching) can be checked early. A polyp may be removed. These and other changes, caught early, are easily treated.

Another matter — simple but very common — is excess weight. While may start to accumulate when you are fiftyish, whether a man or woman, a simple reminder from your doctor may well be all that's necessary. Moreover, because it's so much easier to start watching your weight if you don't have to take off 15 or 20 or 30 pounds.

As to whether you ought to go once a year or twice, I'll leave that to you and your doctor to decide; some gynecologists think twice a year is preferable for your age group. But don't think it's "silly" to go to your doctor often you feel perfectly well. The purpose a to stay that way.

"Dear Dr. Molner: What would cause the ears to plug up, or close up, usually just one at a time? — S. C."

I'll give you five answers: Wax, nose and throat. Middle ear infection. Disease of the ear canal, such as fungus infection.

"Dear Dr. Molner: When a woman has her tubes tied, what is this operation called? And what is usually its age to? And what is usually the age to start menopause? Is it months in the 40's or when? — Mrs. C. R."

(1) It's called a tubal ligation, "ligation" meaning "tying". (2) The average is 45 to 46. There may be considerable variation. Many go to 50. Very few go past that.

Leg cramps and foot pains? Both can be stopped! To learn how, write to me in care of The Intelligencer, Belleville, Ont., enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope and 5c in coin to cover handling.

Disciplined Cows Pay Off

Brockville Recorder and Times

The most vital quality in a soldier is discipline, the quality that supports him in the face of the enemy and helps his unit to stand fast. Army training inculcates discipline by habit from exercises and drill and the leadership of officers.

Habit is often a compelling thing it affects all our actions for good or ill. Even the creatures of the animal kingdom respond to impulses that have become habitual. The pigeon which frequent the terrace at the rear of the hotel at Glengarry when they know the breadcrumbs are due.

So it is with cows, amiable creatures but with little up top. That cows can respond though not intelligently to habit formation stated by a former British army officer, Major Anthony Bramley. The Major has been applying science and army discipline to cows since he retired from active service nine years ago. The results, he claims, are remarkable. The milk yield from his 130-acre dairy farm in Oxfordshire is five times the national average.

However, the soldier-farmer's latest disciplinary measure is far from being a harsh one. His scheme is the luxury of plastic foam mattresses. The cows love it; hence the excellent milk yield.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

PROOF OF LOVE

"There was a great catastrophe in a section of our country a few years ago and a frail young mother picked up her husky three year old boy and fled with her child thirteen miles. We do not know whether she had time to carry the child; love carried the child.

The Bible tells us that God is love. The very essence of the God has given us love although we have love we have love everything; when we lack love we are hopelessly stricken as to be short of every thing excepting that love is everything.

We all agree with this sentiment — but we agree with it as a sentiment. For how many is it a principle of life? How many of it were your child or mine in the same danger we could do as well as that mother and flee with our thirteen miles. But why do we not? Why do we have to love? Why do we have to love truth knocked into our heads? Why can we not love and learn through love?

The love of the universe is love — sacrificing, self-forgetting love.

HELPFUL BOOKS

With so many thousands of books being printed and scattered to the four winds, in book shops, and many another spot, where they may be found, there can be no excused for being ignorant.

There is always a needing one of the most practical and inspiring books I have discovered in a long time. It bulges with centers of ideas and new viewpoints. Its title is "All the Time You Need" and the author is Robert R. Updegraff. He refers to that famous little book of Benjamin Franklin's, written in 1810. It was called "How to Live On 24 Hours a Day."

This new Updegraff book is patterned on some 200 ideas that are bound to stimulate new come a modern classic in suggesting ideas that have often changed the thought of thousands, and here they are — new and for today.

One of the best anthologies I have found in a long time is that one by Ralph L. Woods. The great thinkers of the world are represented in this book, and we can make it a companion in your daily life. That's what any worthwhile book should be. This book fits in fine with the Author's other books.

Another stimulating book is "The Wisdom of James Gale" and the editor, Elizabeth Perkins Aldrich, has done a fine job in selecting the wisdom sayings of a very great man. Some of the greatest say-

Fire towers are located at strategic positions across the Tweed Division of the Lands and Forests Department. There are a total of 23 for this area, ranging between 80 and 100 feet in height. Forest rangers keep watch in these towers during the daylight hours.

Here a sighting is taken on a "smoke" and its position is noted by a bearing read off the circular scale surrounding the edge of the map which forms the base of the instrument. The ranger then radios this information to the nearest chief ranger office.

At the chief ranger's office calls are received and the direction of the "smoke" is plotted on a master map of the area. As soon as bearings are received from two fire towers the exact location of the fire is located at the intersection of lines along these bearings.

Radio calls are received through control centres such as this one at Tweed. Once the location of a fire has been determined instructions are radioed to the deputy ranger office closest to the scene. Men and equipment are dispatched to the scene by truck, boat, aircraft, or foot.

Efficiently Organized Force Ready to Fight Bush Fires

People Start Four of Five Forest Fires

What causes a forest fire? The answer is only too painfully clear. Almost 80 per cent of all forest fires are started by two-legged animals known as humans or people. One might wonder why a person would start a fire which could cause thousands upon millions of dollars damage or could ruin the use and advantage of millions of acres of forests and natural resources for the 40 to 90 years it may take for the area to grow in again.

Carelessness is the reason. People casually tossing a cigaret butt out of a car window or flicking it into the brush at the side of a campsite or trail; failure to properly douse a campfire with sand and water; sparks resulting from too large a fire — these can all be the unwitting causes of a raging forest fire.

The map of the Tweed fire district clearly indicates the locations of previous fires. The colored tacks cluster about camping areas and along the sides of highways or railway lines. It should be noted, however, that the railway companies have taken steps in recent years to curb careless practices and very few fires are now found near their right-of-way.

The Tweed fire district's personnel have achieved a very high degree of efficiency and this area has experienced very few fires which have damaged more than a few acres of forest. There are 68 persons on fire protection duty in this district, with Chief Rangers' offices at Tweed, Bancroft, and Deseronto. Deputy Chief Rangers' stations are located at Gilmour, Palmer Rapids, Flinton and White Lake. Trucks and equipment are stored at all of these stations ready to go into action within very short notice.

Most fires in the Tweed district are reached within an hour, with a few places which require up to about four hours for men to arrive. A Beaver airplane is stationed at Tweed for use in the entire area. But despite the best efforts and efficiency of the Lands and Forests people, the basic danger of forest fires still lies in the unpredictable — and liable who make use of Ontario's 119 million acres of forestland for pleasure or profit.

Operating with all the efficiency and organization which might characterize a modern army, the Fire Protection Service of the Department of Lands and Forests maintains a constant vigilance over the vast forest areas of Ontario. Over 300 fire watch towers are spotted across Ontario's fire zones, manned by Forest Rangers keeping a sharp vigilance for the earliest possible sign of a forest fire.

Once a fire is detected an extensive and intricate system to halt the fire's progress is put into immediate action. During times when fire conditions are extremely high there are standby crews available at the Chief Ranger's stations across the province. As soon as an alarm comes in these crews and their equipment are immediately dispatched to the area. Speed is of the essence at all times.

Beaver or Otter aircraft or helicopters are used to bring men as close to a fire as possible. If the location will not allow aircraft to get near to it trucks or railway gasoline cars may be used to take advantage of roads, logging trails, or railway lines into the danger area. Or canoes or outboard motorboats may be sent. In the last resort the men may have to blaze a trail into the fire area on foot, carrying their equipment with them.

FIGHT FLAMES FROM AIR

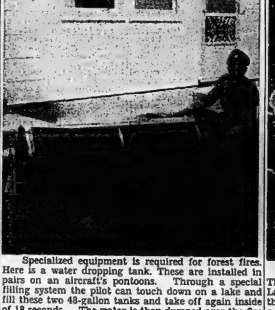
Meanwhile other facets of forest fire fighting are being utilized. Planes or helicopters may be dropping water bombs or utilizing airborne fire hoses to contain the fire to as small an area as possible. Pictures of the scene are made and all possible information concerning the extent, direction, and nature of the blaze are relayed to the Forest Ranger's station in the district.

At this office an assessment is made of the fire and if it appears to be a major one all available men and equipment are sent to the fire. Sometimes the fire may be short, a matter of only a few hours to extinguish it, other times it may be a lengthy proposition requiring the men to spend many hours on it.

They may have to spend endless hours fighting the flames and smoke without rest or food, although every effort is made to have food, shelter, and relief crews available as speedily as possible.

Many different pieces of equipment may be utilized in fighting a blaze, from small handtools such as picks, shovels, hand-operated back pumps, axes and rakes up to heavy mechanized equipment such as bulldozers, fireline-building plowing, tank pumpers, motors, portable generators, and portable fire pumps.

LAKES HELPFUL



If the fire is by a lake, relatively quick action can be taken with easy access and a ready supply of water. If the fire is inland, however, difficulties are present besides the mere problem of getting the men and equipment into the area. A water line has to be established to the scene of the fire. This can be done by the use of portable pumpers, canoes and lots of fire hose set up in a sequence to bring water through a forest or over a hill from the nearest lake.

When the worst comes to the worst comes to the fire with fire. This is done by plotting the fire's course, then setting up fire lines to contain a fire at a distance in front of the main fire. Then the surrounding area of the area to be sacrificed. A "backfire" is then started and it is drawn to the main fire. When they meet there is no more fuel for the flame to feed on and it burns out.

Once the fire is over, the work of the Lands and Forests personnel is not over. A survey is made of the damaged area to determine what timber might be salvaged for pulp or sawlogs. The value of the destroyed forest is also determined at this time. The timber management unit is also determined at this forester takes care of this job. As much use as possible is made of the salvageable material in the area. It won't be making of the area — it won't be good for much else for a long time.

At the nearest ranger station equipment is sent to the scene of the fire. Here some Lands and Forests personnel load a portable fire pump into a canister for dropping by air. Racks of hose, parachutes, hand pumps, and portable gas-powered pumps may be noticed on the racks in the background.

Specialized equipment is required for forest fires. Here is a water dropping tank. These are installed in pairs on an aircraft's pontoons. Through a special filling system the pilot can touch down on a lake and fill these two 48-gallon tanks and take off again inside of 18 seconds. The water is then dumped over the fire area.

No fire gets by without some damage being done. The fire even burns into the earth. Above, Mac Wilson, Lands and Forests officer in charge of fire fighting in the Tweed District, points to where the burning roots of a tree have been dug up in order to stop the spread of the fire.

Geneva Gloom Illuminated By Sudden Shafts of Wit

GENEVA (AP)—Life is grim, life is earnest at the Big Four conference. But occasionally the stuffy, often tense sessions are lightened by sudden shafts of wit that pinpoint the rival East-West positions better than thousands of words of speeches.

This sort of thing goes on:

A Western official was stressing to a Soviet representative the need for a "gentleman's agreement" that Russia would not seek to change the Allied position in Berlin.

"Yes," the Russian interrupted testily, "but what is a 'gentleman's agreement?' "

"Why, any gentleman will tell you that," the Westerner retorted.

Last week Jakob A. Malik, the Soviet ambassador to Britain, was chatting with Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd about the slow progress the Big Four were making toward any long-term or temporary arrangements in Berlin.

Suddenly Malik sang out, "It's a long, long way to temporary," and Lloyd dissolved into laughter.

After demanding that East and West German delegates be allowed to join secret Big Four sessions, Russia's Andrei A. Gromyko relented last week. He agreed they could be excluded from "social occasions." He added:

"Just put a bottle of whisky on the table and that'll make our meetings social."

SLY, DRY HUMOR

Gromyko has long been noted for fast diplomatic footwork and a sour face at international parleys. But more than once at these talks he has shown flashes of a sly, dry humor.

There was the time U.S. State Secretary Christian Herter referred to the East German regime as the "so-called German Democratic Republic." Gromyko then spoke of the East German foreign minister as "the so-called Dr. Bolz."

Car Fails To Make Turn, Several Hurt

DESERONTO — When turning from the highway down Second Street on Sunday afternoon, Mrs. Helen Wager failed to properly negotiate the turn. She travelled across the sidewalk and onto the lawn of her own property and into a tree head-on. The car was considerably damaged and the occupants suffered severe bruises and lacerations. Mrs. Wager had one arm considerably bruised and receiving a cut that required four stitches. She was removed to hospital by ambulance but was allowed to return home after examination.

Mr. Roebuck and Mrs. Roebuck, passengers, received lacerations, and Mrs. Roebuck received a cut that required eight stitches. Mrs. Wager had been travelling west and was attempting to make a left hand turn when the accident occurred.

Education Bd. Reports Two P.S. Resignations

DESERONTO — Conditions at the two schools of the town are well in hand according to the Board of Education. There were only two resignations at the public school — Mr. Runnalls, the principal, who has been replaced by Mr. Hesch, former vice-principal, and Mrs. R. Bennett. Mr. Ronald Leonard has been accepted as vice-principal and the board reports it has a suitable applicant to replace Mr. Kimmett.

At the high school Mr. William Houle, a Deseronto boy, who was teaching in Ajax, has been hired and Val Zelinski, who was supplying at Dryden last year has been added to the staff to complete the requirements of that school.

There are some repairs and improvements being made at the high school, a new tile floor being installed in the principal's office, and the building is to have a new coat of paint on the outside. According to reports the number of pupils attending both schools will be the same as last year.

PEMBERTON — CAMPBELL

The wedding took place Saturday in Centreville Presbyterian Church, of Lois Marilyn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry R. Campbell of Bailieboro, to Harvey Pemberton, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Pemberton of Port Hope.

The Rev. G. Graham officiated. The wedding music was played by Mrs. Grace Murpratt. Mervyn Lawson sang "The Wedding Prayer" before the ceremony and "Because" during the signing of the registry.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a street length dress of Swiss organdy taffeta and net, styled with a rounded front neckline and "vee" in back. A fullet headpiece scattered with seed pearls held her veil of tulle illusion. She carried a cascade of pink Sweetheart roses, and pink roses interlaced the white streamers.

The matron of honor Mrs. Claire Hill, sister of the bride, chose a street-length dress of pale green nylon over taffeta and net and wore white hat and gloves. She carried a nosegay of white and pink 'mums with matching streamers.

A charming little flower girl was Janice Bisland, of Belleville, niece of the bridegroom, who was wearing a short dress of pale green nylon over taffeta and net with matching hat and gloves. She carried a basket of white and pink 'mums.

The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Gordon Pemberton, of Port Hope. Ushers were Messrs. Morris Lord and Fred Pemberton.

The bride's mother wore a dress of periwinkle blue with lace inserts, white accessories and a corsage of white and blue 'mums. The bridegroom's mother chose a dress in champagne shade with matching accessories and her corsage was of white 'mums with a bronze tint.

The reception, following the ceremony was held at the bride's home, with friends present from Cobourg; Port Hope; Bellerville; Peterborough; Toronto and Bailieboro.

For travelling to points east, the bride donned a pale green sheath dress and white accessories. Her corsage when going away was of pink Sweetheart roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Pemberton will make their home at 49 Sherborne St., in Port Hope.

This - - - and That

By HARRIET STEVENS

Going shopping?

When we were speaking of shopping last week, we wondered what our local corn would appear. We did not have long to wait, for there it was almost immediately. Whenever this vegetable, freshly - ripened, appears on the market, there is always an enthusiastic buying splurge, for corn is eaten with relish everywhere on the continent.

The sweet corn that provides us with our corn - on - the - cob and also our corn syrup, corn meal, johnny cake and justlish canned corn is a true native of America. It developed long ago in Central and North America and is known throughout the rest of the world as maize. The word "corn" actually means grain of any kind, except here and in the United States.

Indian corn, or maize, was cultivated in Canada and northern New York state by the Iroquois. Even today, those who follow the old tribal "Long House" religion still use corn dishes in their traditional feasts.

There was little interest in corn among the non-Indian population until about a hundred years ago. A few varieties were known and farmed by the time of the American Civil War, and from them on its popularity has increased steadily. Newcomers to this continent still eye and taste it warily and receive judgment.

The market is beginning to look like summer, bountiful and beautiful. Cut flowers have appeared as a decorative garnish to the piles of fresh vegetables and the baskets and boxes of fruit. Raspberries look better this year than last year and they say it should be a good blueberry year, too. July is the traditional cherry month and the height of the season in Ontario is fast approaching. The cherries on the market are largely sweet ones, since most of the sour cherry crop goes to commercial freezing and canning companies.

With holiday season in full swing, there are many kinds of shopping to be thought of, including where to go on holiday and where to stay. It is good to see whole families touring our city and district and this is multiplied many times over in the communities of our country. We see groups taking pictures outside a motel after breakfast and whole families sightseeing, with everybody talking at once.

Speaking of motels, we are told that that institution has done more to change driving habits than anything else in the last 30 years. Hundreds have been built and more are on the way. Now we take it for granted that we can hit the road any time of the day or night, travel in any direction, and know that we can find comfortable, reasonably - priced accommodations en route. But here is where shopping comes in and here are some good tips on selecting a good motel: Make one MLS located in a quiet spot. Try to find one set back from the highway. There's noise is usually heavier on hills or near intersections where trucks change gears or apply brakes. If you are not following a set schedule and reservations ahead of time, try to stop fairly early in the afternoon to select accommodations. You will have a greater choice. And don't hesitate to shop around for a motel. When you are driving, they are like buses — another will be along in a few minutes. And remember, you can get reliable leads as you go along by visiting automobile club offices, local chambers of commerce and service stations.

Did you know that you can keep your car cool on a hot, sunny day, by closing all the windows and placing a bucket filled with ice below the dashboard and directly underneath the air vent. If you still mind the heat, you can try tying a wet handkerchief around your wrists. A wicker back rest, which allows the air to circulate behind you, will help keep you cool.

And speaking of vacationers, we just had a card from fellow-columnist Viva Graham, who said she had just washed her gloves in a boiling geyser in Yellowstone National Park.

Good shopping and good vacationing!

That summer suit or skirt would like a new cotton eyelet blouse to give it a fresh, new look. Sams goes for some of the lats spring holdovers on the summer scene. Here is a charmer that'll easy to care for, since all it needs is a quick iron before it's to work again. As a change from the current plunging neckllnes, this blouse has a boat neckline. The pleated peplum is newsy, as is the diamond-shaped trim.

Genuine German Cooking

by Mary Moore

One thing I 'know for sure is that after our readers hear I have taken off to visit Marianne in Germany I receive requests for German dishes.

At the Maple Leaf Service store, I bought lovely Danish sour cream and made a casserole dish with veal. This suited our particular purpose here because I usually take my two grandsons for a long walk in the afternoon after their naps. When we return they are so hungry I have to feed them their suppers at once or loud confusion reigns.

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

WEDNESDAY

Calves' Liver and Bacon with Old-Fashioned Milk Sauce; Pan Fried Tiny New Potatoes; Cauliflower; Perfection Salad; Cherry Cobbler with Pouring Cream; Iced Coffee.

To be able to take a one-dish meal from the oven at once is ideal. I am sure too that it will suit to a T some of you who have impatient hungry small fry or others who are career girls coming home with hungry husbands.

This dish is something like the Wiener Schnitzel so popular with tourists all over Germany.

VEALS SCHNITZEL CASSEROLE:

1 lb. stewing veal, cut up 1 1-2 cups hot water, 1-4 to 1-3 teaspoon salt, 1-3 bay leaf, 1-3 cup commercial sour cream, 6 each small carrots, onions and potatoes, 1-8 teaspoon pepper.

Arrange meat (here ii cost me 4 shillings and 9 pence) in a medium-sized baking dish that has a cover. Add sour cream, hot water and then vegetables. Add seasonings. Cover and place in oven at 325 deg. Fahr. and bake for 3 1-2 to 4 hours. We served this with crusty fresh German bread, Bibb lettuce and tomato salad. The meat is as tender as breast of chicken. My two little grandsons enjoyed it so much they came back for second helpings.

My next offering is from the German chef at the Canadian Legion in Soest.

Officers' Club in Soest.

FASTNACHS:

These basically are nearly the same as the batter for cream puffs as well as. But instead of baking them as we do in Canada and filling them with whipped cream, these are fried in deep very hot fat then rolled in sugar. They are like very airy doughnuts.

1 pint (2 1-2 cups) water, 1 teaspoon sugar, 12 eggs, 2 cups (3-4 cup) butter, 10 oz. (2 1-2 cups, approximately) flour.

Boil together in rather a large saucepan the water, butter and sugar. When boiling add the flour all at once and stir over very low heat (or remove from heat) for 1 1-2 to 2 minutes until pasta comes away from sides and forms a large mass which clings together. Remove from heat and beat eggs in one at a time. Mixture is finished when all eggs are in and it is soft and smooth. Take about 1-2 tablespoons at a time on a greased spoon and drop into extremely hot fat at 450 deg. Fahr., turning over when bottom is golden brown and finish- in the other side. Remove to paper towel to drain and dry. While still a little warm, carefully roll in sugar. If desired a little cinnamon may be added to sugar.

I purposely left some space here at the bottom for since trying the above Herbie and I and the two boys have driven to Iserlohn (roughly 200 miles Northwest of Berlin) to fetch home Marianne and Susan. Never was there a happier carload on a return trip. Never did one little two-week-old girl get so many cuddles and gifts and attention. Gary gave her his favorite dinky toy transport truck and asked her if she liked him about ten times. Davey pointed a little finger at her ears and nose and squeaked and squealed "Susan-beebee". We sang and grinned and momentarily caught one another's eyes as the novelty was being absorbed.

I think the Europeans have originality in their family tradition of young married couples coming in with the old folks. It isn't so much that they are helping the young people get a start, I don't buy that. It is because they want the priceless privilege of holding and loving new babies. I ought to know. Only here there is a switch. I am the old folk.

GOOD MANNERS

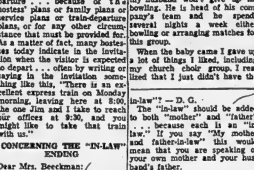
By Mrs. Beekman

MAY HOSTESS PROPERLY SUGGEST GUEST'S DEPARTURE-TIME?

Dear Mrs. Beekman:

"A" says a hostess should never even suggest the time of departure to a visitor, that this is discourteous and inhospitable. "B" insists that today this is "progressive," and that it is always sensible, and often very necessary, for the hostess to suggest the time of the guest's departure. Who is right about this? (Your answer to this question is very important to us.)—A. and B.

"B is entirely right about this. Today it is indeed very often necessary for the hostess to suggest the time of the guest's departure . . . because of the hostess' plans or family plans or service plans of train-departure plans, or for any other circumstance that must be provided for. As a matter of fact, many hostesses today indicate in the invitation the writer is expected to depart . . . often by writing or saying in the invitation something like this, "There is an excellent express train on Monday at 5:00, leaving here at 4:00, the one Jim and I take to reach our office at 9:30, and you might like to take that train with us."



CONCERNING THE "IN-LAW" ENDING

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When a wife is speaking of her husband's parents or a husband is speaking of his wife's parents, should they say, for example, "My mother and father-in-law" or "my mother-in-law and father-in-law"? — D. G.

The "in-law" should be added to both "mother" and "father" . . . because each is an "in-law." If you say "My mother and father-in-law" this would mean that you are speaking of your own mother and your husband's father.

Suggestion: Instead of either "in-law" ending, a husband or wife may well consider saying either more gracious "Mary's mother and father" or "John's mother and father."

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, a lone clergyman, a newspaper editor, a woman's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Martha G. — His should sacrifices his bowling.

Arnold G. — When I am home she doesn't know I'm there.

Martha G. — My husband and I are in our early 30's and have been married two years. We have a baby son.

We have been having a lot of fights recently over the fact that my husband won't give up his bowling. He is head of his company's team and he spends several nights a week either bowling or arranging matches for this group.

When the baby came I gave up a lot of things I liked, including my church choir group. I realized that I just didn't have the time any more. You have to make sacrifices for children but the man should make them too.

Arnold G. — When we are home together all we do is fight anyway, so what's the sense of being home every night?

The rest of the time she keeps watching TV or calling up her friends. I don't think she even knows I am around unless we're fighting. The baby is fast asleep so he doesn't know I'm there anyway.

When I bowl I really know I'm alive. I have trained some top-notch bowlers and our team has broken records. Our work with the team is appreciated by everyone. My boss even shows me some special consideration because of it.

The Council: Martha seems to have some mistaken ideas about marriage and child rearing and is driving her husband away from her because of them.

It is not at all necessary or desirable to make great sacrifices of personal interests for the sake of a mate or of children. Certainly it is important to take care of the house, bring home the pay check and keep the family fed. These are basic, but we all need much more in order to experience a full life.

Husbands and wives appreciate one another more when each makes a contribution that enlarges the other's life. Children get much more from a home in which each parent is alive with interest. Family tensions may become easily dissolved when each person has a way of becoming absorbed in things outside himself.

Should Arnold go out bowling several nights a week and leave Martha home alone with the baby? No, we don't think so. We think she should get out at least once a week by herself to pursue her own interests, and once a week with her husband, if this is possible.

This will cut down Arnold's bowling a bit, but we don't think he'll mind it very much when he sees that his wife can be sensible, enthusiastic and as much fun as when they dated. She won't need to call her friends when her husband is home because she'll have been away from her chores in other ways. And there won't be so many fights because Martha will treat herself to enough enjoyment to prevent boredom and resentment.

SCOTTISH SITE

Oldest house in Glasgow, Scotland Provand's Lordship was built about 1471 for a canon of Glasgow Cathedral.

WINNIPEG (CP) — A 12-year-old girl's tiny pet poses a problem. Her parents are afraid of it.

The pet is a plump, yellow bumble-bee with part of its rear feet missing and one wing slightly tattered. But its stinger is intact.

Bonnie Stack found "Ginger" under the paws of a neighbor hood pup. She rescued it in a bruised condition and set out to speed its recovery.

Part of the therapy the bee has received in Bonnie's care includes frequent strolls along the hands, forearms and shoulders of its fearless mistress. It was given a special treat recently when Bonnie allowed it to pollinate the family cherry tree. When the young girl lifted Ginger from a blossom, the bee hummed angrily in its first show of temper in five weeks, and nipped at Bonnie's finger.

The pet moves along well on its four remaining legs and has recovered to the point where it can fly for short hops. Honey and other sugar syrups have formed its diet.

But Ginger is grateful for the care only to its mistress. When Mrs. Stack approaches her daughter's bedside table, the unruly pet reacts with a warning drone.

Mr. and Mrs. Danny Stack, not as heroic as their daughter, refused to keep Ginger when Bonnie left for camp a short while ago and no veterinarian in the city was known to board bees.

So Bonnie had to take the insect with her in a box covered with fine wire screening.

Despite her menagerie of pets that includes snails, turtles and a Siamese cat, Bonnie admits her favorite school subject is not science, but art.

SNAKE FIGHT AN OMEN?

SINGAPORE (Reuters)—More than 100 writhing pythons, each eight to 10 feet long, fought a four-hour battle here recently, leaving 60 of the giant snakes dead or dying. The fight was reported by Malay villagers in the Singapore district of Tampines. The Malays predict a snake battle is the omen of a great clash between human beings.

BONNIE AND FRIEND — Ginger the Bee sits quite contentedly on the hand of 12-year-old Bonnie Stack, a Winnipeg youngster with a penchant for adopting strange pets. They became friends when Bonnie rescued Ginger from a mauling by a dog. Though capable of stinging, Ginger is quite docile as far as Bonnie is concerned. (C.P. Photo).

Four Artists Term Toronto Exhibit Disgrace

TORONTO (CP)—Four artists have criticized a current exhibition of paintings at the Toronto Art Gallery as "disgraceful and appalling."

In a letter published in The Star Tuesday, Archibald Barnes, Allan Barr, Kenneth Forbes, and George Broomfield ask:

"How much longer can the directors of the Toronto Art Gallery flout the public in this way . . . ? Is it not time for some courageous individual to clean out this Augean stable? Is the Toronto Art Gallery being publicly supported for the benefit of incompetence, fashion - mongers and novelty-seekers?"

The four add that to call the room described as "contemporary Canadian painting" represents a situation of Canadian artists is "nothing short of travesty."

An art gallery official said in an interview that Mr. Forbes "thinks abstract art is useless." "Tastes are different," she added. "Frankly, three people just don't move with the times. They have their own opinions." Artists represented in the exhibition include Alex Colville, Sackville, N.B.; Jean Paul Riopelle, now living in Paris; Borduas, of St. Hilaire Est, Que.; B. C. Binning, Vancouver; Roloff Beny, New York; William Ronald, New York.

Balloon Tires Make Northern Mapping Easier

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal government geologists mapping the Arctic Islands have struck on a new and faster way to do the job. They use an airplane.

Not new? This airplane is. It's a light, low-speed Piper Super Cub, specially fitted with big low-pressure tires that smooth out the bumps in landing.

With this simple innovation, the mines department reported today, the geologists are able to touch down without aircraft damage on rough and rocky barren-land which even the most seasoned bush pilot would avoid in an ordinary plane.

The oversize balloon-type tires were tested last year by the Geological Survey of Canada. Using them, survey scientists made 249 landings at points through the Arctic Archipelago, all without mishap, and were never more than a 20-minute walk from the spot they wished to explore.

FORMER WAY HARDIER

Until now, geological mapping of the northern islands—as well as some mainland Arctic areas—has been done largely by ground parties who were flown to the nearest airstrip, then travelled by foot, canoe or dogsled.

The new plane's big tires have sidestepped more costly helicopter operations which still are necessary in the mountainous and bush regions.

Virtues of this survey method were extolled today in a mines department outline of field work now under way by the geological survey.

The geological survey this summer has 76 parties in the field.

U.S. Navy Planes Ordered to Have Guns Ready

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U.S. Navy has ordered all its planes patrolling a wide range of Communist shores to have all of their guns in place and ready to operate.

The navy position was set forth in papers reporting on the attack of a patrol plane over the Sea of Japan June 16.

A navy investigation board was unable to identify positively the nationality of the two attacking jet fighters. Both jets, with Communist-type markings, were said to have left from and returned to Communist North Korea.

Two of the U.S. plane's four engines were disabled and other damage was done to the plane, but it was landed in Japan safely.

TWO MORE POLIO CASES

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Three children suffering from polio were admitted to hospital here Tuesday, bringing the total cases this year in Newfoundland to 19.

U.S. May Station Grain Inspectors At Montreal

WASHINGTON (CP)—The U.S. agriculture department is considering the appointment of American grain inspectors to elevators at Montreal and other Canadian seaway ports.

The inspectors would check Canadian elevators and regrade them when shipped abroad under American export contracts.

Currently, Canadian inspectors are doing the inspection job for the U.S. but with expansion of seaway grain business, the U.S. has been informed the Canadians no longer want to take the responsibility of certifying American grain for quality and grades.

U.S. growers are concerned that without such inspection, low-grade American grain could be mixed with top - quality stocks, reducing the quality reaching foreign markets and giving U.S. growers a black eye.

Escapee Caught When Police Nab Stolen Car

SUTTON (CP) — A 25-year-old Toronto man who escaped from Joyceville Prison Farm at Kingston two weeks ago was recaptured Tuesday near this Lake Simcoe town.

Ontario Provincial Police constable Robert Hart said he approached a car which had been reported stolen on Highway 48.

The driver attempted to flee, but was tackled by the officer. He later was identified as Kenneth Chapman, who escaped with Ronald Watts, killed last Thursday in a holdup attempt at a Toronto waterfront diner.

Constable Hart said he fired one shot over Chapman's head and then grabbed him.

Jap Importer To Recommend Canadian Bulls

BRANTFORD (CP)—A Japanese importer, after touring a dairy farm near here Tuesday, said he will recommend to his government the purchase of Canadian holstein bulls.

Kazuo Kase, touring Ontario's dairy farm land with representatives of the Holstein Cattle Association of Japan, said cattlemen in his country had always thought Canadian holsteins were inferior to those of the United States.

The men visited the farm of John Malcolm at nearby St. George. Mr. Kase said he was impressed with the livestock on the farm.

28 CONVICTED

DURBAN, South Africa (CP)—Twenty - eight African women were found guilty Tuesday of public violence in connection with an attack on a beer hall in the Durban outskirts June 19. Sentencing is expected today.

Forest Fires Being Kept Under Control

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Despite recent periods of warm dry weather most forest fires in Canadian Press survey shows.

kept under control.

Provincial forest service officials attribute this to high humidity and occasional showers, a Canadian Press survey shows.

One of the country's largest forest fires has been burning for two weeks in northeastern Alberta. Some 200 men have been fighting the blaze which so far has destroyed 22,000 acres in the Birch Mountains area northwest of McMurray.

DANFY INDEX HIGH

Smaller fires have been burning in other parts of Alberta. In the Banff National Park area the burning index is high to extreme.

Sixteen days of warm weather in British Columbia have created a high fire hazard in that province. No large fires now are burning.

Saskatchewan has 12 fires burning but all are under control and none is in a commercial timber area. Losses this year are considered light compared with previous years.

FIRE DANGER LOW

In Manitoba and Quebec no important forest fires have been reported. Manitoba forest officials say the fire danger is below normal this year. Heavy rains in the northern areas have been given reasons for the good conditions.

Thirty forest fires — all under control — were reported burning Tuesday in Ontario. The burning index was medium to high with the exception of the Chapleau and Gogama districts where the rating is extreme.

The Atlantic Provinces have been reported free of forest fires except for five burning in Labrador in that section owned by Newfoundland. Four of these fires are out of control.

Planting Can Set Stage for Enjoyable Outdoor Living

The chief reason for the current vogue for outdoor living is the "making of friends" amidst the relaxed atmosphere of beautiful gardens, terraces or patios. Outdoor living is conducive to neighborhood friendliness. The housewife can relax while entertaining and yet express her individuality in her choice of lovely shrubs, trees and other plants with which she "furnishes" the outdoor living area.

"Furnishing" the outdoor living room with lovely plants is still a bargain for the home owner who carefully selects and plans what he or she wishes to achieve.

Once the living area is planned it will be beautiful for many years if properly cared for. One may plant for permanence; or plant for semi-permanence by changing the smaller shrubs after three to five years in order to achieve new effects of color or shrub form.

Costs depend upon the elaborateness of the planting and other structures and furnishings that may be desired. A dozen attractive shrubs and a few trees may suffice for a small outdoor living area at a cost well under $100.

The home owner planning an outdoor living area is strongly urged to plan it thoroughly, or have it professionally planned, if possible. Thorough planning will save time and money.

Here are some things to think about:

1. Locate the outdoor living area properly. Notice the position of the sun with respect to the area, as well as the direction of the prevailing winds. Select a comfortable spot.

2. If you plan the picnic type of dining and entertaining, the area may be at some distance from the house, the back of the lot, for example. If there is considerable entertaining of neighbors and friends, it should be located near the house, preferably near he kitchen or off the dining room.

3. Notice the direction from which the sun shines in the months and during the time of day you use the outdoor area the most; and then plant trees, or use existing trees to provide shade where you want it.

Royal Gala Performance Enjoyed By Belleville Visitor at Vancouver

By ROBERT TANNER

It was a particularly happy choice that over half of the program of the Vancouver Festival's gala performance, which Her Majesty the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh attended last Wednesday evening, was devoted to the works of Handel. In spite of the fact that this year marks the bi-centenary of his death, this composer has been receiving less attention recently than he deserves, and Wednesday's concert provided in addition a reminder of the close though sometimes stormy relations between Handel and the British throne. The concert, too, was notable for its high Canadian content, with native-born Lois Marshall and Betty-Jean Hagen as soloists, and Canadians-by-choice Sir Ernest MacMillan and Nicholas Goldschmidt as conductors.

Apart from the orchestral suite, soprano arias and Coronation anthem (sung by the Festival chorus) by Handel the program included a Rondo by Mozart and a Gloria by Vivaldi, separated by a rather bizarre but colorful interlude of Spanish dancing by members of the Nimenco-Vargas troupe which is currently appearing as one of the Festival attractions. The arrival of the Royal Party was heralded by a brass fanfare specially written by Sir Ernest MacMillan and a spirited rendering of the National Anthem as the audience of 2,800 joined with the chorus and orchestra on the stage.

Meanwhile, preparations are proceeding for the other major events such as Gluck's opera "Orpheus and Eurydice" which is already in dress rehearsal, with a most interesting stage setting and very exciting lighting effects and the play "Mary Stuart" by Schiller, starring Vivien Lindgar, Eva la Gallienne and Lloyd Bochner. Both of these productions are scheduled to open within the next two weeks. Other attractions forming part of the Festival include a troupe of Japanese dancers, open air chamber music concerts on the U.B.C. campus, and lectures by Lister Sinclair on every aspect of the theatre.

The sparkling new auditorium which on Wednesday night was named the Queen Elizabeth Theatre by the Queen herself, continues as a subject for animated discussion all over Vancouver. A trip "back stage" to see the many production facilities available, including a very fully-equipped fly gallery, the latest in electronic lighting control and extensive sound system (designed and manufactured in Belleville), strengthens the impression that Vancouver can be as proud of its new theatre as it should be of its international Festival.

ELECTRIFY RAIL LINES

Labor Criticism Of Colonial Rule In Africa Likely

LONDON (AP)—Storm clouds gathered around Colonial Secretary Alan Lennox-Boyd Monday as the Opposition drew a bead on his policies in troubled African territories.

Prime Minister Macmillan held a cabinet meeting to draw up strategy to meet the Labor party attack expected this week.

The attack is likely to centre on three points:

1. A judicial committee report Thursday, it is reported, will criticize Lennox-Boyd's handling of the nationalist uprising in the central African protectorate of Nyasaland last February and March. The report is expected to say that the colonial secretary exaggerated allegations that Africans were planning a massacre in Nyasaland.

2. The government will be asked this week to say what it is doing about an incident at the Hola detention camp in Kenya, where 11 members of the terrorist Mau Mau organization were beaten to death by guards.

3. The government will be asked to detail its views on the proposed commission to consider constitutional changes in the Central African Federation of Southern and Northern Rhodesia with Nyasaland.

The Labor party likely will ask that Dr. Hastings Banda, Scottish-educated leader of African nationalists in Nyasaland, be a member of the commission.

But Dr. Banda is not acceptable to Sir Roy Welensky, prime minister of the Central African Federation.

Canada's Well-Baby Clinics

The Right To Health

Advances in medicine and development of health services have contributed to a marked improvement in health of Canadians in recent years. While improvements in health conditions have affected people of all age groups, greatest impact has been on the health of infants and children.

More than 80% of Canada's population are covered by preventive health services, of which "well-baby clinics" are a part. The philosophy of preventive medicine gained general acceptance in many parts of Canada during the 1920's. The past 3 decades has witnessed the spread of its practical application both in the larger cities and out into rural areas.

At one of several "well-baby clinics" in Canada's national capital, a volunteer assists by checking baby's weight before thorough check-up by nursing staff and doctor on duty.

Services at "well-baby clinics" throughout Canada are rendered completely free of charge to everyone; were set up in keeping with the conviction that every child born in Canada has an inalienable right to good health.

Canada's birth rate is foremost among those of major industrial nations of the world. To keep these babies (almost 470,000 in 1957) alive and well during the first critical year of life is one of the major concerns of health units dotted across the country in all 10 provinces as well as in Canada's remote northern areas.

Mothers bring their children to baby clinics for periodic check-ups, receive advice and guidance for protecting their child's health.

National Film Board of Canada Photos by Ted Grant.

Immunization against diphtheria, whooping cough, smallpox and tetanus is part of continuing health program. With the advent of polio vaccine, hundreds of thousands of youngsters have been inoculated against the crippling disease.

Canada May Receive Dummy Atomic Weapons to Enable Her to Train Men in Use

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canada may get dummy atomic weapons before she gets the real ones.

The way now has been cleared in Congress for Canada to get hitherto secret American information and equipment to help in the training and use of nuclear weapons.

But while Canada will be able to get the electronics and metallurgy to shoot an atom bomb, say from a Bomarc missile or aircraft, the United States will still maintain custody and control over all nuclear weapons moved into Canada.

How, then, will Canadian forces be able to train to fire the atomic weapon when the U.S. has these weapons under lock and key?

SAME CIRCUITS

No trouble at all, says the U. S. defence department. Dummy bombs have been devised with the same electronic circuits as in the real weapons.

"It is a dummy but it has internally the circuitry of a real bomb," says General Herbert Loper, assistant to defence secretary Neil McElroy. He gave evidence to this effect before the joint congressional committee on atomic energy.

These dummies not only can be used to test equipment to be used in firing atomic weapons but also in the training of men who will fire the weapons.

"It does not require training in the operation of the checkout equipment to have the actual bomb in your possession," says Gen. Loper.

He gave evidence before the committee studying new U. S. agreements to increase sharing of atomic secrets with friendly powers, including Canada and Britain.

"An artillery man does not need to know the formula for gunpowder or how to make it in order to use an artillery shell effectively," Gen. Loper continued.

SET A FUSE

"He does need to know how to set a fuse and how to load and fire a projectile as well as what it will do when it detonates."

He described proposed stockpiling of atomic weapons in Canada and other north Atlantic countries as "essentially ammunition depots under the full control of the United States."

"They will contain tactical or air defence atomic weapons suitable for delivery by the trained nuclear - capable forces of the countries concerned and will be of such types and in such numbers as will enable those forces to carry out their NATO assigned defensive missions in the event of attack."

While Canada will not be able to buy these bombs or get exact information on how to make them, she will be able to acquire the so-called non-nuclear parts of the weapons systems.

WEAPONS ACCESSORIZES

These, explained Gen. Loper, are: "Those accessories for handling the weapons, for attaching weapons to delivery vehicles and for monitoring, and checking of the bomb or warhead to ensure that it is in a safe and operating condition prior to actual use."

"Non-nuclear parts of the system include the control mechanisms which are parts of aircraft or missile - launching devices associated with the warhead; lugs, pylon and other devices for attaching the missile or bomb to its carrier and the like.

"They do not include any part of the bomb or warhead itself."

OIL TO AUSTRALIA

Australia's imports of crude oil in 1958 reached $175,500,000, compared with $141,750,000 in 1957.

U.S. Will Lease Heavy Water To Indian Govt.

BOMBAY, India (CP) — The government of India and the United States Atomic Energy Commission have signed a contract for the lease of 15 tons of heavy water for use in India's atomic energy program.

It is the first time the U.S. commission has leased heavy water to a foreign government.

India is currently engaged in expanding her atomic energy program. The country's first nuclear power station is being planned at the textile city of Ahmedabad in Western India.

The heavy water will be used as an initial inventory for Zerlina, India's second research reactor at nearby Trombay, where Canada is helping to build the other reactor, Zerlina will be used by India for research into the peaceful uses of atomic energy. Heavy water is one of the most efficient materials available for moderating atomic reactions under controlled conditions in an atomic reactor.

India's program to harness the atom to peaceful uses has been receiving assistance from both Canada and the U.S. The Canada-India $18,500,000 reactor, due to go into operation in mid-1960, is the showpiece of Canada's Colombo plan projects in terms of international prestige.

The U.S. government has promised an entire library of research reports and scientific abstracts on atomic energy developments to the Atomic Energy Establishment at Trombay. To date, 21 leading Indian nuclear scientists have been sent for advanced training in America under the U.S. Technical Co-operation Mission's program. Fourteen more Indians are preparing to proceed to the U.S.

Three of India's leading industries engaged in agricultural, scientific and medical research have received isotope tracer equipment from the U.S.

Have Your Babies at Home, It Is Safer Than Hospital Boston Pediatrician States

MONTREAL (CP) — Complete new research work into congenital mental deficiency in children was described here Tuesday at the International Pediatrics Congress.

Dr. Murray L. Barr of London, Ont., and Dr. C. E. Ford of London, England, reported on work indicating abnormality in the number of chromosomes in the cells of the body may be a cause.

Their research could give rise to the reproductive mechanism resulting in mongolism and other forms of mental retardation.

The extra chromosome is associated with mongolism comes to the child from the parent. Dr. Barr said, but this is because some "accident" has happened to the parent's reproductive cells.

This accident "can happen to anybody; it has nothing to do with heredity," he said.

The Royal Family's pediatrician, Sir Wilfrid Sheldon, said Prince Charles and Princess Anne are "splendid patients."

He said looking after them was made easy "because their parents, the Queen and Prince Philip are the sort of parents who make the work of a doctor very smooth by being so natural, easy and understanding."

Expectant mothers would be better off if their doctors stopped belying them, Dr. Clement Smith of Boston's Lying-in Hospital said during a panel discussion.

He also declared 90 per cent of babies should be born at home rather than in the hospital.

"It's safer," he said.

At home there were fewer people, especially sick people, and less chance of infection.

Dr. Smith said doctors should keep expectant mothers walking around leading a normal routine, and should give them more attention as individuals.

Dr. Donald Pinckl of Buffalo told of the discovery of a drug which has been used to shrink cancer growths to a size where they can be surgically removed.

He warned that use of the drug, methotrexate, is still experimental.

"There are about 15 main types of solid cancer in children and we've found actinomycin only useful in two types," he said.

Canadian Vets Learn About Trinidad's Vampire Bat War

GUELPH (CP) — Vampire bats, favorite topics for horror movie producers, are a subject closer to home in Trinidad where a campaign is on to rid the West Indian island of the species.

Dr. H. E. Williams, an Ontario Veterinary College graduate now on the staff of the department of agriculture in Trinidad, outlined both the dangers of vampires and methods to exterminate them to a session of the Canadian Veterinary Medical Association Tuesday.

Dr. Williams said that in fact the vampire is not a blood-sucker, but a blood-lapper. It attacks both man and beast and is dangerous not because of its ability to drain their blood but because certain carries paralytic rabies virus.

Dr. Williams said there had not been a human victim of paralytic rabies in Trinidad for 20 years but cattle and other animals are killed.

Livestock are vaccinated under the present program and stables are equipped with wire netting and lights in order to trap the vampires out. Strychnine is used for extermination.

At least 82 persons were nibbled by vampires in 1955 and 1956 and the average is 11 a year. fly were attacked 11 times in a few weeks.

Dr. Williams said that while 1,000 vampires are killed each month, the real problem is what concerned the bat control program is inadequate.

Dr. J. R. Crowley, head of the veterinary section of Connaught Medical Research Laboratories, said in another session that vetinarians should adopt mass vaccination to wipe out animal diseases.

Hundreds of diseases in animals and humans would become a formidable problem if biological warfare was used in an attack on Canada, said Dr. F. C. Pace of the Canadian defence health service at Ottawa. He said veterinarians would play an important part in civil defence work in this event.

Britain Is in First Place Among Shipbuilding Nations

LONDON (Reuters) — Britain was in first place among shipbuilding nations at the end of June on the basis of figures released Tuesday, although tonnage under construction here was down by 215,000 tons from the first quarter.

The United States was in seventh place, behind Sweden, West Germany, Italy, The Netherlands and Sweden. U.S. yards were working on 648,000 tons, a decrease of 97,967 tons from the first part of the year.

British yards were working on 3,033,745 tons of orders. Japan had 1,169,000, a drop of 38,678 tons and West Germany had 990,454 tons, a decline of 71,361 tons. Lloyd's Register of Shipbuilding said.

About 31 per cent of total tonnage under construction — 300 ships totalling 5,076,893 tons-was in Britain.

Italian yards were working on 902,425 tons, although contracts had orders totalling 790,877 tons.

The Lloyd's report said Japan launched 820,000 tons in the first six months of this year, a decrease of 187,067,000 tons the whole of last year.

West Germany had 714,435 tons under construction for export, or 72.1 per cent of total tonnage being. Japan's export orders totalled 39.5 per cent of tonnage building.

Britain is making the largest addition to its existing fleet, the register said, totalling 2,227,546 tons. Norway is next with 980,432 tons.

U.S. and Russian Academies To Exchange Research Facts

WASHINGTON (AP)—The top science academies of the United States and Russia have announced a new agreement for expanded exchange of knowledge on developments in their research laboratories.

The agreement—whose signing was announced Tuesday night by the National Academy of Sciences and the state department—is between the academy and the Academy of Sciences of the U.S.S.R.

It provides for exchange visits of scientists of each country for periods up to one year, with the visiting scientist being able to observe or conduct research within the host country.

The agreement also lists various fields of specialized scientific inquiry in which Russia wants to find out what the United States is doing—and vice versa.

WHAT THEY'LL STUDY

The list shows Russia is keen on getting the low-down on such things as U.S. efforts in the field of steroids, such as cortisone; metallurgical processes; biochemistry; automation; radio-astronomy; and plant growth stimulants.

The Americans want a close-band look at Soviet work in such things as celestial mechanics; cosmic rays; low temperature physics; weather prediction; and the manufacturing of organ antibiruses.

The agreement is an outgrowth of a program of cultural, technical and educational exchanges between the two countries provided for under an agreement signed in January, 1958.

Test Planned For Nike-Zeus

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The U.S. Army Tuesday announced plans for a full-scale test of its Nike-Zeus anti-missile missile.

The test probably will be staged within the next 40 days at White Sands proving ground in New Mexico. The Los Angeles Times said if the test is satisfactory, the Zeus will be hurled later from mid-Pacific island launchers against long-range ballistic missiles from California's Vandenberg Air Force Base.

Acheson Recalls Day U.S. Feared Bombers on Way

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former state secretary Dean Acheson related Tuesday that during the early part of the Korean War Washington thought for a short time that Russian bombers were on their way to attack the United States.

Acheson said defence secretary Robert Lovett telephoned him an alarm shortly before British prime minister Clement Attlee was to confer at the White House with president Harry Truman. The Korean War began in June, 1950, and Attlee came to Washington for conferences the following December.

Acheson said Lovett informed him that all aircraft in the United States had been placed on an immediate alert and that American fighter planes in Canada had been sent aloft.

Acheson told the story of the false alarm in an address to a strategy seminar under way here for a group of reserve officers.

He said that the incident brought out the imperturbability of the British. The former secretary of state recalled that he immediately telephone the British ambassador, Sir Oliver Franks, who replied: "You don't say so." Acheson devoted most of his review of U.S. policy and strategy to a re-examination of the need for rebuilding the solidarity of North America and Western Europe. He said the Eisenhower administration destroyed confidence in this alliance during the Suez crisis. This marked a low point in American diplomacy, he said, because the United States "managed very nearly to lose" supporting its enemies against the forces of friends," Britain and France.

Swedish Vessel, U.S. Freighter In Collision

DETROIT (CP)—United States salvage representatives from Cleveland are investigating a collision in Lake Erie Tuesday between a Swedish freighter vessel and an American lake freighter.

The collision occurred in Canadian waters near Pelee Island about 45 miles south-east of here. Most seriously damaged was the Swedish Signeborg, which suffered a 30-foot gash in her port side. Neither vessel required aid.

The American boat, the Charles Hubbard, continued on her way to Cleveland, where the salvage officials will gather testimony from the crew today.

The Signeborg limped into port here. Its skipper declined to comment on the collision other than to say it had occurred in Canadian waters.

The salvage representatives are conducting the inquiry on behalf of insurance underwriters. U.S. Coast Guard and RCMP officials here and in Windsor said they plan no investigation.

HELPFUL SALMON

ALDEBURGH, Eng. (CP) — A 10-pound salmon leaped into a fisherman's boat moored in the Alde River in this Suffolk town. He sold it for £3.

HELPED FROM CANYON — Mrs. Norma Briggs, 34, is helped up the side of a canyon from the wrecked auto (background) in the Santa Monica Mountains. Police said Mrs. Briggs told them her husband, Robert, 39, sent the auto containing wife and her 65-year-old mother—over a cliff in a lonely canyon road. She said Briggs then came down the canyon and beat the two women as they tried to scramble to safety. Briggs has been booked on suspicion of assault with intent to commit murder. (AP Wirephoto).

Queen, Prince Philip Begin 2-Day Saskatchewan Tour In Land of Huge Elevators

SASKATOON (CP)—The omnipresent grain elevators of the Saskatchewan prairies lay before Queen Elizabeth today.

Like sentinels, the frame structures pierced the horizon as the Queen and her consort began a two-day tour of Saskatchewan.

On the program today, 35th day of the 45-day tour of Canada, are visits to Saskatoon and Moose Jaw and a rail-doesn small towns in between—250 miles of dusty prairie once which the grain elevator holds away. Thursday brings Regina and then Manitoba before the Royal Tour swings back to the East.

The Queen and Prince Philip today will speed almost two hours in Saskatoon, the city that was founded by John N. Lake, head of a temperance society, in Lake named the settlement after the Indian name for a brackish-red berry common to the prairie.

WHISTLE STOP DAY

From here to Moose Jaw it's a whistle-stop day of touring, the kind of day the Queen likes best. Dundurn, Hanley, Davidson, Craik, Chamberlain . . . 10-minute station stops in each of those small towns before the royal couple hit Moose Jaw in the early evening.

Tuesday was spent in Edmonton where the decision was announced that no further changes in the royal schedule are contemplated. This has been of prime concern to tour planners since Sunday when the Queen, in Whitehorse, Y.T., suffered a stomach upset and was forced to cancel her participation in part of the northland tour.

In 4½ hours in Alberta's capital, tire Queen and Prince saw the city's new city hall, visited a new park on the outskirts, stopped at a veterans' hospital and had luncheon on the grass of the legislature ground. The day officially was termed "pleasant," and so it was. The Queen had no speeches to make, no strenuous ceremonial to sit through.

20 MINUTES IN BIGGAR

Later, the royal couple paused in Wainwright, army base 160 miles east of Edmonton, stopped for 17 minutes in Unity, a typical farming community of Western Saskatchewan, and spent 20 minutes in Biggar before retiring for the night at a rural spot.

The official arrival in Saskatoon was scheduled for 10 a.m. MDT (noon EDT).

An estimated 15,000 persons were in Biggar to welcome the royal couple. The normal population of the town is 2,000. Only a 10-minute station stop was scheduled but the royal couple spent 20 minutes, driving up and down Eighth Avenue, the main street.

What was hoped to be the final word on the state of the Queen's health was issued from the royal train Tuesday night. Press Secretary Esmond Butler said in a statement:

"The Queen's doctor reports that the Queen enjoyed her visit in Edmonton today and appears to have recovered from her indisposition. It is safe to say that the Queen now is fit. Her health is back to normal."

Pleads Innocent To Charges Over Bank Robberies

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—Francesco Ferraro II, pleaded not guilty Tuesday to charges arising from two Canadian bank robberies involving more than $10,000,000.

He appeared in United States district court and entered the plea to charges of conspiring to transport stolen securities across state lines.

Ferraro, formerly of Boston, was arrested in Miami, Fla., April 16. He had been indicted by a federal grand jury here last January. The indictments accused Ferraro of handling $76,000 of the money taken in the two robberies.

At Tuesday's appearance, Ferraro's counsel were given one month in which to file motions. Ferraro's bail was continued at $100,000.

The two robberies were at La Societe Nationale de Fiducie, Montreal, Jan. 23, 1958, and at the Rockville Trust and Savings Company May 3-4, 1958.

British Papers' Reports Annoy Diefenbaker

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Diefenbaker is disturbed by reports in British and U.S. newspapers about the Queen's tactics, brief illness in the course of her tour of Canada.

He left no doubt of this in talking to reporters Tuesday about stories in some British papers to the effect that illness of the Queen was seriously ill. Mr. Diefenbaker was insisting she go through to the end.

A couple of the British papers claimed the prime minister was taking this view for one political reason or another.

Mr. Diefenbaker described these reports as without any foundation whatever.

He is understood to be disturbed especially about the possible effect on Canada's reputation in British by these apparently unfounded, or at least exaggerated, stories.

He pointed out to reporters that every detail of the tour Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip are making was worked out and agreed upon with Buckingham Palace.

Metro Opposes Enlarging Area

TORONTO (CP)—Metropolitan Toronto council voted Tuesday not to try to incorporate the townships of Toronto Gore, Toronto, Vaughan, Markham and Pickering into Metro Toronto.

Frederick G. Gardiner, Metro chairman, said the incorporation of the fringe-area municipalities would result in a financial responsibility impossible for Metro to meet.

The township of North York, one of the 13 municipalities which now comprise Metrop, had suggested consideration of the incorporation.

2 Progressive Conservative Members to Oppose Motion Condemning Cutting Grants

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—Opposition members open the legislature debate today on a resolution Premier Smallwood wants approved so badly he may call an election if he doesn't get his way.

The resolution condemns the federal government for a recent decision to cut special grants to Newfoundland after 1962. Mr. Smallwood appears to have the support of all-House members except Progressive Conservative Opposition Leader Malcolm Hollett and Rex Renout (PC—St. John's South).

It is 21½-hour speech Tuesday, the peppery premier urged the two Tory members to quit the PC party and support the resolution.

But Mr. Hollett and Mr. Renout both said outside the House they would support the federal government's stand.

The decision says that the federal government "without the consent of this house or the people of this province, decided that the sacred rights provided by the confederation should become null and id."

The grants, given the province $36,500,000 during a five-year period ending March 31, 1962. Mr. Smallwood said the cutoff is a betrayal of term 29. The premier said the province had has become an obsession to Prime Minister Diefenbaker because it was the only province that didn't swing sharply toward the Progressive Conservatives in the last election.

"We are paying for it now," Mr. Smallwood said.

The liberal chief said federal Finance Minister Fleming's announcement that he had mailed $17,200,000 in cheques to Newfoundland as first payment under the Newfoundland Grant Act was part of a clever campaign to mislead the public.

"You see to the use of the $36,200,000 figure," Mr. Smallwood said.

Many people didn't realize the smaller sum was part of the larger sum, he said. "They think Newfoundland is getting two separate grants."

He said also that the $17,500,000 is not payment for one year. "It is part payment for this year, full payment for 1958 and 1967."

ASKED TO RESIGN

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—The Progressive Conservative Association of Newfoundland has asked two members of the newly-formed Newfoundland party to resign from the legislature.

James Higgins and A. M. Duffy, members of the provincial Conservative party to protest the federal government's Newfoundland Grants Act, and this week announced formation of the new party with themselves as the first two elected members.

The PC association said the executive feels the men resigned from the Conservative party because of "personal patriotism" and had become "unwilling instruments in the incessant battle waged in recent months by the Smallwood government against the federal government."

An association statement said it has been "elected immediately and let the people, decide."

Gas Price War Seems Ending Toronto Prices up 7 Cents

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A gasoline price war which has seen prices drop as much as 15 cents below normal in some parts of Ontario in the last month appears to be drawing to an end. In Toronto prices moved up seven cents a gallon Tuesday. Regular gasoline sold for 35.9 cents a gallon and premium grades for 44.9 cents.

Authorized service stations offered gas at the same prices, still three cents under prices prevailing prior to the war.

Four stations at Whitby, 25 miles east of Toronto, struck a discordant note as they entered the price war with the first three days. They dropped regular grade gas seven cents a gallon to 36.9.

An Imperial Oil spokesman in Toronto said the decision to raise prices was made after a "realistic assessment" of the situation.

Shell stations increased prices because their dealers operated by Imperial but a company official said "our prices depend on the competitive situation in a particular area" and added that not all Shell dealers had gone up.

Spokesmen for other major companies felt the war was coming to a close.

A Brantford Retail Gasoline Operators Association spokesman said the association would probably call a meeting to set a minimum price. This would take at least a week to arrange.

No Beer but Girl Every 5 Weeks Promised Film Star, Chimp Jimmy

DARWIN, Australia Reuters — The boss of the Sydney zoo blew into town Tuesday with good and bad news for chimp Jimmy and girls.

Jimmy, one-time second male lead in Tarzan movies, elder nasty shadowed and smiled at the pronouncements of Taronga Park Zoo director Colin Hallstrom.

Hallstrom, outlining the terms of the chimpanzee's lease of a cage at the zoo, said Jimmy will not get beer with his bad habits, like drinking beer.

"But", said Hallstrom, "we shall give him a ration of cigarets — and a girl friend for company every five weeks or so."

Jimmy's temporary home is one at Elcho Island off Northern Australia said he brightened up visibly at this last piece of information.

And, after all, they said, the chimp has beaten the death sentence.

Jimmy belonged to Hollywood actor - manager John Calvert who planned to take the animal to the island after running into trouble on a Darwin-Sydney voyage. Calvert went on to Sydney but had to leave Jimmy behind as Elcho Island Australian animal quarantine laws would have decreed the chimp's destruction upon arrival.

A public rumpus followed. The government gave in, providing Jimmy got a home at Taronga Park Zoo. Hallstrom came up from Sydney to collect the chimp's trip to his new, alcohol-free home.

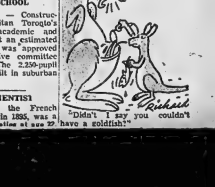
Trailer Owners Warned of Fires

HAMILTON (CP)—Two separate notices were served on trailer camp owners in this district in the city's east end today warning them they were liable to maximum fines of $50 a day for each day they remained on the site.

The notices were a first move to implement an Ontario Supreme Court order closing the camp.



A committee formed by ca..p residents has said owners will stay in the camp grounds until a new site is found.

The court order a week ago told the camp owners to stop operating the camp on the grounds that inadequate sanitation facilities formed a health hazard.

Four Ships Search for Site For Mohole at Bottom of Sea To Get Under Earth's Crust

By LEONARD ENGEL
Copyright, 1959
BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ABOARD RESEARCH VESSEL CHAIN (AP)—Four United States research vessels have just completed the first survey for what promises to be one of the great science adventures of the century.

A hundred and fifty miles out in the Atlantic Ocean north of Puerto Rico, they have been looking for a place to drill a hole through the earth's crust.

The hole is expected to answer such age-old questions as what the inside of the earth is really made of. It will go all the way down to the mantle, the thick band of rock surrounding the earth's molten inner core.

The drilling scheme has been dubbed the Mohole project because the hole is to pierce a layer within the earth called the Mohic. The Mohole will be bored beneath the sea since the earth's crust is thinner below the ocean than on land.

MILES DEEP

Still, the hole will have to be several miles deep. And it will have to be drilled beneath miles-deep water — a feat never attempted before.

For several weeks, I have been aboard the "flagship" of the survey research ship Vema. I came on Vema not only to report the start of the history-making Mohole project. I wanted a firsthand look at life on an ocean research vessel and at a vital, little-known sector of science—the exploration of the ocean depths.

The survey was directed by Vema's chief scientist, Dr. John E. Nafe. The other research ships taking part were Gibbs, from Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution, and Hidalgo, from Texas A. and M. College.

The four ships employed all the devices of modern oceanography for studying the ocean bottom. There was no drilling gear for drilling in deep ocean water does not yet exist.

The survey covered an area of the Atlantic known as the outer ridge, where the water is 3½ miles deep and the earth's crust is nearly three miles thick. A possible drilling site in the Pacific off the west coast is also being surveyed.

A final decision on just where the Mohole will be drilled will be made after data from both the Atlantic and Pacific surveys have been analyzed — a matter of six months' study.

Oceanographers work chiefly from small, rough - riding vessels; big ships cost too much. Quarters are cramped. Heavy gear must be put over the side and retrieved, and high explosives are handled on pitching, heaving, slippery decks in all sorts of weather at any hour of the day or night.

Vema, somewhat larger than 200-foot three-masted iron auxiliary schooner built as a yacht in 1923, Columbia University's oceanographic research unit, the Lamont Geological Observatory, bought her in 1953.

Vema carries a party of 11 to 18 scientists and technicians plus a crew of 19. Most of the scientists sleep in narrow bunks, installed when Vema was a merchant marine training ship during the Second World War.

For entertainment the ship has "sailor's TV" — watching cloud shapes drive across the sky at sunset. Good food is Vema's only creature comfort.

Canadian Garden Service

GARDEN SOIL BUILDING

Lucky indeed is the gardener who discovers that he has perfect soil. But such finds are rare, especially where the actual soil from the basement of the new house has been dumped over the front and rear of the lot. Good garden soil, however, is not difficult to make, though it does take a bit of time. Even the hardest clay can be opened up and made rich and friable as the experts say, and the poorest and driest sand can be improved even more easily.

For both types, clay or sand, the same general treatment is necessary. We must add humus. This is simply vegetable material like manure, grass and weed clippings, straw, peat moss, leaves, compost or anything else that will rot. Dug in well this will soon open up clay or bind sand and make it more retentive of moisture. Regular cultivation too will help. It lets in air and breaks up the heavy lumps. But the main thing is to dig in all the vegetable material or humus we can get our hands on. Nothing should be thrown away or burned that will rot down with and mix with the soil.

For very heavy soil, tile drainage, either surface or tile, will help immensely and also the application of special soil conditioners. A few loads of sand or even ashes in the small garden will prove a short-cut in soil building.

Instead of just another toy, of which he has probably more than enough already, why not give the child a tree, or a special perennial plant on his birthday? That suggestion comes from an American garden writer. It looks like an excellent idea and one that need not be confined to children. Planting a shrub or a rose or even a special flower or vegetable garden is a splendid way to mark any occasion, the birthday or visit of a friend or relative, or just as a mark of appreciation by a guest. Trees are always more interesting and intimate where certain trees or shrubs are not just say a sugar maple or a lilac, but so and so's maple or lilac. Some very practical owners of country places, of course, go even further. They expect their weekend guests to plant a whole garden or an acre or so of forest trees. Within reason there will be no harm and more good in this conscription of free labor, if it can be worked.

WINDOW BOXES

Nothing will brighten a bare wall or add more gaiety to a house front or verandah than a window box filled with bright flowers. These are very interesting sorts of gardens, with little soil and a lot of bloom expected. Therefore the soil must be fine and very rich and there will have to be drainage in the form of coarse gravel or broken pottery in the bottom of each box or hanging pot.

The boxes or pots are usually filled closely with quick and steady flowering things such as petunias, petunias, nasturtiums, geraniums, lobelias, alyssum, ageratums and special foliage plants. Some of the flowers should be of a semi-trailing type so that they will overflow the edge and hang down. Needless to say the boxes, especially if made of wood, must be strongly built with the corners preferably reinforced and they must be well supported as they will be heavy when filled with moist soil. And one should bear in mind that word "moist" because hanging pots and boxes being exposed more to air, sun and wind will dry out quickly. They require frequent watering.

Next week it will be time to look into garden tools and other equipment which make gardening even more pleasant and interesting.

Two B.C. University Crews Favorites in Pan-American

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two rugged University of British Columbia crews head the B.C. entries who leave today for St. Catharines and the Canadian-American rowing trials.

UBC has dominated Canadian rowing during the last few years and will enter the competition as favorites. Yet neither has ever faced competition.

Coach Dave Hellewell, 34, a member of fours which captured a silver medal in the British Empire Games at Cardiff, Wales

"Our eights could become the finest ever formed in Canada.

"They cover the 2,000 - metre course consistently under 6:10 and on one occasion this week rimmed six minutes—comparable to a four-minute mile—by half a second.

EXPECTS LITTLE TROUBLE

"During the last 10 days they've really come along and unless Eastern Canadian standards have radically improved they should have no trouble winning the trials."

UBC won the 1954 B.E.G. trials by six lengths, the 1956 Olympic trials by 4½ and the 1958 B.E.G. trials by nine.

"The fours will have plenty of competition," says Hellewell. "They were formed only two weeks ago but have come along rapidly."

UBC has been dogged with obstacles this season.

Uncertainty of finding employment during the summer months, resignation of coach Jim Warren and university examinations cut the training period to a bare minimum.

When Hellewell stepped into the coaching job in May only three experienced rowers remained. The others left Vancouver to get employment.

HANDS BLISTERED

Severe blistering of hands and feet plagued the first few weeks. Several rowers suffered infection.

"Lack of funds forced us to drop all competitions and aim for the trails. Our crews are hungry, they want to win. I think they can."

The UBC eights average six feet, one inch and 180 pounds, 183 pounds.

On the eight-man crew are: Peter Robbin, 21 Mission, B.C. (stroke); John Madden, 19, Vancouver; Glen Mervyn, Kelowna, B.C.; Rod Stapleton 21, Vancouver (captain); Dave Anderson, 21, Victoria; Dave Park, 20, Vancouver; Ian Reeves, 20, Vancouver; John Cartmel, Vancouver and Tom Bile, 21, (cox).

The fours: Paul Bernard, 22, Vancouver (stroke); Malcolm Turnbull, 21, Vancouver; Vic Grochak, 20, Abbotsford, B.C.; Mark Lemieux, 20, White Rock, B.C. and Al Fraser, 22, Vancouver (cox).

For the first time B.C. has entered a high school eight in the Canadian Henley high school championship at Port Dalhousie. The crew, from Shawnigan Lake High School near Nanaimo, B.C., will enter the high school mile, the junior and senior mile.

Singles specialist Tommy Gray of Vancouver Rowing Club also entered in the Henley, Gray, 21, is making his third bid for the singles title.

Record Field Indicated for Pro Tournament

HULL, Que. (CP)—A record field of at least 105 is indicated for the Canadian Professional Golfers Association championship being played Thursday to Saturday over the Rivermead course across the Ottawa River from the capital.

The turnout — about half the CPGA membership—cracks the previous record of 70 posted three years ago at Toronto Downsview.

said CPGA secretary - manager Marsh Marshall.

The 54-hole event over the par-72 course is worth $5,500. There is to be 11 former champions on hand for this 47th contest, including Stan Leonard of Vancouver, who with six wins tops them all.

At Balding of Markham and Henry Martell of Edmonton, defending champion, are expected with Leonard to provide the chief threats. Willie Lamb of Toronto Lambton, a five-times winner, is also entered.

Olmedo Wins Straight Sets

HAVERFORD, Pa. (AP)—Alex Olmedo, Wimbledon titleholder from Peru set out in quest of the Pennsylvania lawn tennis championship Tuesday with a 6-1, 6-1 victory over Mac White of Austin, Tex.

It was the first competition for the top-seeded Davis Cup star since he was charged with throwing his match last week in the Canadian Championships at Chicago.

Two other Davis Cup teammates, Barry MacKay, Dayton, Ohio, and Earl Buchholz jr, St. Louis, also advanced. MacKay, defending champion seeded second, blasted through Don Ralph Bethesda, Md., 6-2, 6-2. Buchholz, 18, scored 6-0, 6-3 over Robert Fothiast, Waukesha, Wis.

Abe Segal, the South African who was the victor over Olmedo in last week's much -discussed match, scored by 6-0, 6-0 over Leif Beck, Philadelphia.

Lawn Bowlers Here Today for Zone Playdowns

Some forty lawn bowlers, representing twelves from Toronto to Ottawa, gathered at the Belleville Lawn Bowling Club's greens on Yeomans street this morning for the zone playdowns in the Ontario Lawn Bowling Association championships.

Four districts in Eastern Ontario had earlier declared winners in singles, doubles, rinks or "colts" rinks, for players with less than five years' experience. These district winners started playing here at 9.30 a.m. to decide the zone representatives who will later compete with other zone winners for the provincial titles. Belleville has one entry, Gord Walker and Bruce Miller having won the right to represent this district in the doubles competition. It is expected the winners in the various events will be declared about 7.30 p.m. this evening.

Bosox Recall 'Pumpsie' Green

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Red Sox Tuesday announced they are recalling Elijah (Pumpsie) Green, a Negro infielder, from the Minneapolis farm club.

Green, with the Sox in spring training before being farmed to Minneapolis, will be the first Negro ever to play for Boston.

When Green was assigned to the farm club at the start of the season, the Sox were subjected to a storm of protest from several groups charging discrimination.

The 24-year-old shortstop currently is hitting .320 through 98 games with Minneapolis. He has 27 runs batted in, seven home runs and 11 stolen bases.

Green probably will be used as a utility infielder.

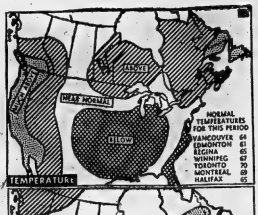
The Red Sox made room for him by selling veteran infielder Bobby Avila to Milwaukee Braves of the National League for an undisclosed amount of cash.

Minor Baseball

The Indians blanked the Braves 16-0 in a Bantam baseball game Monday night behind the airtight pitching of Bobby Boyle.

Boyle tossed a neat three-hitter and struck out 14 of the batters he faced in seven-inning route.

Stanley Woodcock was the loser, giving up 18 hits on the Brave hilltop.



The Indians scored seven runs in each of the third and sixth frames while piling two in the fourth.

Donnelle Tomaso and Jim Ron Ginnay had triples among the winners' hits.

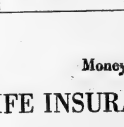
Now Antonelli Is Sorry He Said It

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Johnny Antonelli, San Francisco Giant southpaw, expressed regret Tuesday that his calling Seals Stadium "the worst ball park in America" got into print.

Antonelli, who lost a 3-2 decision to Los Angeles Dodgers Monday on wind-blown homers, said baseball writers heard him sounding off before he had a chance to cool off after a tough defeat.

"I said some unfair things," Antonelli declared in a radio interview.



"I thought I was talking low, but everything I said was heard from what I've seen in print today.

"Seals Stadium is a tough park to pitch in, but it was just as tough for Don Drysdale as it was for me. Drysdale did a good job in keeping the Giant batters hitting into the dirt."

In his Monday outburst, Johnny had said, "I've learn by bells and you get beat. The wind cost me a ball game. There's a 30-mile wind blowing. Any time you go out there."

The suit was filed in common pleas court on behalf of Miss Grace Brown.

At the stadium where the Indians were playing New York Yankees Tuesday night, Grant said:

"The engagement is definitely broken off. I had good reasons for doing such a thing. I never set a date to get married . . . I saw we could not get along together. After all, that is what an engagement is for."

Miss Brown said she and Grant were to be married July 13 and he bought her a diamond engagement ring and gold wedding band.

Facts on Electricity and Fish

As time goes on, more and more it is brought home to us that there are many more things that we do not know than there are about which we have come to some information. The more our scientific discoveries increase, the more tremendous becomes the task of research in the attempts to find solutions of problems which actually are considerations of those same discoveries.

Take, for example, what might be called "electric fishing", for want of a better name. This piece a problem which certainly is not going to be solved in a hurry.

Some years ago some German scientists (I believe) came up with an interesting phenomenon. They discovered, first, that there is a definite affinity between fish and a mild electric current. Then they found that fish, faced with an electrically charged net, move away from the negative pole toward the positive pole, where they concentrate.

Quite naturally, the commercial fishermen put this knowledge to good use. Using a net of wire mesh, they placed a fish trap at the positive end of the net. The fish, of their own accord, moved along the net, following the flow of electric current, and into the fish trap at the positive pole, from which they were transferred to the waiting boats.

ELECTRIC NETS

The creation of a power dam in a river stops fish migrations. Thus, the conservationists have been trying for years to design an efficient fish ladder which will enable migrating fish to pass these man-made barriers. Most of the fish ladders are just about useless. Now U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service is experimenting with electric nets which lead the migrants into the lower end of the fish ladder. While not yet perfected, the plan promises to have considerable merit.

Still another use of the discovery has put in its appearance. The fish commissions of some of the States as well as U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service have required what they call "electro-fishing units." Pennsylvania is one of the States which has one of these units.

Up in northwestern Pennsylvania is a large impoundment known as Pymatuning Reservoir. This area is a wildlife sanctuary and closed to public fishing. Most of the reservoir is quite shallow and three shallows contain so many stumps, brush piles, weed that fish cannot be net-

About the only way that fish can be removed from these waters is by hook and line.

There are a great many fish in the reservoir, many more than are needed for a healthy fish population. In past years, untold numbers of them have been going to waste, dying of old age and from other causes, rather than being made available to licensed fishermen in other waters.

With the electro-fishing unit it is now possible to collect many of these fish — bass, waterdog, bluegills, crappies and so on. These fish are picked up and transferred to other waters which are in need of stocking.

The method is interesting. The barge which transports the unit is moved from place to place by an outboard motor. In front is a steel net which supports the two positive poles which, as explained before, are the collection points. When the net is in place, the shocking device, powered by a 220-volt, 3,000 — watt direct current generator, is put to work. The fish are momentarily stunned and can be picked up by men using long-handled nets. They are placed in a live well on the barge and later transferred to a hatchery from which they can be distributed as desired.

NO ILL EFFECTS

An interesting commentary on the electric shocker is the way in which the fish recover. After being picked up in the nets and placed in the live well, within a matter of minutes they are swimming about, as lively as ever, with no mortality.

Another way in which this unit aids in fish management is in the determination of fish populations in lakes, large rivers and creeks where heretofore reasonably accurate fish counts were impossible. Now the biologists in the conservation commissions will be able to have new knowledge of populations and varieties which previously were impossible to come by. These things all make for better fishing in our waters which are becoming increasingly overcrowded as the years pass.

Time was when Mother Nature could take care of our fishing needs very well. Today, with the heavy demand on our fish populations being what it is, the old lady needs a helping hand. The electro-fishing unit promises to be a big help in supplying that assistance.

But here is a question for the scientists to consider while they are making use of this newly discovered phenomenon. Why do fish behave as they do when they come in contact with an electric current? The answer to that one may very well turn up more new techniques in fish management. As I say, there are a great many things we do not know.

Majors Pluck Prize Plums From Minors

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league teams have plucked prize plums from their minor league farms the last two months and some are paying handsome profits.

Outfielder Jim McAnany of Chicago White Sox and left-handed pitcher Marshall Bridges of St. Louis head the imposing list of players who are making good in baseball's big show.

McAnany was brought up from Indianapolis of the American Association four weeks ago after Johnny Callison, who the White Sox thought would provide the pennant spark, proved a .183 batting bust in 46 games. In 17 games with the Sox, McAnany has batted .340 with five doubles, two triples and 14 runs batted in.

Bridges has won four games and lost one for the Cardinals. He has defeated Philadelphia twice and Los Angeles and Milwaukee once each. He was recalled from Rochester of the International League in mid-June. His minor league record was 3-3.

New York Yankees apparently made a good move in bringing up Ed Carbe Richmond of the International League. So did Chicago Cubs, who plucked southpaw Art Ceccarelli from Fort Worth of the American Association. Carbe, at first, beat the White Sox 6-4 in his only start while Ceccarelli, who was only 6-7 with Fort Worth, has won two games for the Cubs, one a shutout over Cincinnati. He has yet to lose.

Aussie Davis Cup Skipper Won't Comment on His Team

By GEORGE FRAJKOR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — Harry Hopman, the cautious captain of Australia's Davis Cup team, refused to commit himself yet on his team's chances to beat Canada in the American zone semi-finals this weekend.

The Australians, perennial wonder boys of tennis, flew to Montreal Tuesday after squeezing out surprisingly difficult victories over Mexico at Mexico City.

"Under ordinary circumstances we'd be pretty strong favorites to beat Canada," Hopman said of his youthful players worked out on the grass courts of Mount Royal Tennis Club here. "But circumstances aren't ordinary," only two days of real practice for the matches, which start Friday.

The Australians beat the Mexicans on clay courts.

"Now we're here and we have to get used to grass again in two days," Hopman said.

Hopman, who has led Australia nine years, said he doesn't expect to pick his team until about the time of the draw Thursday. It was expected we would name the same men he used against Mexico — Neale Fraser, 25; Roy Emerson, 22; Rod Laver, 20, and Bob Mark, 21. Ken Fletcher, 19, and Marty Mulligan, 18, are other Australians with the team.

Canada's four - man team is composed of Bob Bedard, 27, of Sherbrooke, Que.; Don Fontana, 22, of Toronto; Francois Godbout, 21, of Waterloo, Que., and John Bassett, Jr., 20, of Toronto.

WINNER MEETS CUBA

Winner of this tie plays Cuba for the right to meet Europe's champion. Winner of that one plays the U.S., Davis Cup holders.

The competition will reveal the results of a new deal in Canadian tennis. A five-year junior development program and a new method of player selection resulted this year in Canada picking one of its youngest teams in many years.

Lorne Main, captain of the Canadian team, said Tuesday he couldn't be happier with the selection of rookies Godbout and Bassett to go with veterans Bedard and Fontana. He added:

"The United States last year gave up on its older players despite their rankings. They named a really young team and they won the Davis Cup. I think our youth movement will help Canadian tennis more than anything has before."

Main said the junior development program was started five years ago by Harry Margolis, then president of the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association.

FOURTH JUNIOR SQUADS

Current president Paul Hayes carried on with it, appointing former Davis Cup player Brendan Macken of Montreal to seek out promising juniors and to promote the big annual junior championships at Ottawa. Junior Davis Cup squads composed of players being groomed for international competition were formed in Quebec, Ontario and B.C.

The result was Canada's biggest change in procedure, Main said. This year, instead of picking Davis Cup players on ranking alone, regardless of age, the selection committee named Bedard and Fontana and nine players under 21 to a Davis Cup squad. The squad played informal round - robins on clay courts in Toronto and grass courts in Montreal to see which players on it would make the four-man team.

Machen Says He'll Flatten Reuben Vargas

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Eddie Machen of Portland, Ore., says he'll flatten Reuben Vargas at their heavyweight television fight here tonight.

Vargas was equally confident, saying he planned to win by a knockout and then get a shot at heavyweight champion Ingemar Johansson in Sweden in the fall.

Machen once fought Johansson briefly. He was knocked out by the Swede in the first round last fall. After his final workout Tuesday, Machen was asked whether the defeat had frayed his fighting ability.

"I'll show them all," Machen said. "I'm going out to flatten Vargas as soon as possible."

Vargas said he is confident of winning he plans to marry Mary Taborez, 22, of San Francisco here Wednesday.

"We'll honeymoon in Sweden, where I'm due to fight Ingemar Johansson next fall," Vargas added.

"Does just say old part of the ball's eye mean the same?"

"HERBIE HENN NIGHT"

August 5 has been set aside as "Herbie Henn Night" by the softball ladies. The Picton Anne Connelmen and the Belleville Bobcats will battle in the tilt that should be as good if not better, than some of the tingling battles during the season.

The Belleville Umpires' Association, which originated the idea of a "night" for the popular softball player, officially made the announcement yesterday through President Al Kelleher.

And here's another fine gesture. The South Hastings Baseball League will pick an all-star team to meet the Belleville Lloyd's Cleaners Juniors at a date to be announced. It, too, will be a "Herbie Henn" afternoon or night, with, as in the case of the softball boys, every cent collected handed donated to the Herbie Henn Fund, which was started yesterday.

Carmen Cook, former baseball and softball star with Batawa and Belleville teams, started the ball rolling and planted the "Fund" idea with his fine donation of five dollars. Since then more monies have come in. The fund now includes: Carmen Cook $5.00; Anonymous $5.00; Rhud Ekiner $4.00; Al Kelleher $3.00; Harold Bawden $2.00, and Jim Tebworth $2.00, or a total of $21.00.

Any one desirous of donating to the fund is requested to contact this department, or better yet, the fund treasurer, Herb Poitner at 18 Willard St. You could be helping a grand guy, a fellow who thought so much of his own has suddenly been confronted with terrific problems.

Tickets for the "Herbie Henn Night" game on August 5, which by the way, is being played at the CNRA Park starting 6.30 are now available and can be secured from any umpire and a lot of other persons. Incidentally, assistants are needed and those wanting to help this way can get in touch with Harold Bawden at 8-8123.

There was no hesitation on the part of officials or players of the Belleville Bobcats and Point Anne Cementmen when they were asked if they would play for a "Herbie Henn Night." Bob Temple and Phil Lott and Bill Shaw immediately agreed. "We are only too happy to help out a grand guy like the Ole Clocker," they said—and they meant every word of it.

The Umpires' Association, too, is doing a grand job of organizing the "Night." Every "mask-and-padder" in the organization is behind the scheme and putting his shoulder to the wheel. So let's get together and see what can be done to help one of the finest blokes that ever cussed a softball umpire in these parts.

WELL LOOKIT HERE!

The newly-born, or is it, Eastern Professional Hockey League will hold its second confab tomorrow night in Kingston—and it would seem the stage is all set for the new money-baby to start operations.

The latest word is that the Sudbury Wolves will be the pasture field and training grounds for young and veteran puck-chasers of the Boston Bruins and Toronto Maple Leafs. A Sudbury official is the source of this piece of new affiliation news.

Furthermore, he said, either Murph Chamberlain, who coached Windsor and Cornwall Senior "A" clubs last year, or Cal Gardner will coach the new edition of the Wolves. He said the Wolves prefer Chamberlain because the Wolves' executive prefers a coach of their own choice rather than one sent by the parent bodies.

The Wolves' official added that Ed Chadwick, last year's Leaf goalie, or Gerry MacNamara of Cleveland Barons, will be in goal for his new club.

SET SWIM MARK

TOKYO (AP) — The United States 400-metre freestyle relay team bettered the accepted world record 5/6 that event by nearly two seconds Tuesday in swimming over Japan by two lengths in 3:44.4.

The U.S. team of Elton Follett, New Haven, Conn.; Lance Larson, Los Angeles; Jeff Farrell, Yale, and Joseph Alkire, San Diego, Calif., surpassed the world mark of 3:46.3 set in 1958 by Australian team.

The victory brought the United States to within two points of Japan in the three-day international dual meet.

Cal McLish Keeps Tribe On Top; Braves Now In 4th

Wins Twelfth, Seven in Row With 5-1 Defeat of Yanks; Milwaukee Loses 7 Straight

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

If there was any hope at all for Cleveland Indians last spring the bet was it lay in their young pitchers. Kids like Gary Bell, 22, Mudcat Grant, 24, and Herb Score, 25.

But here it is late July, Indians have been out front in the American League for most of the season and who's been their ace? A guy named Cal McLish, at 33 a right-hander with a 12-5 record and the best percentage in the league. No one in the AL has won more.

He kept them in first by winning his seventh straight Tuesday night with a three - hit job that beat New York's perked-up Yankees 5-1. That left Cleveland's .602 percentage points ahead of Chicago's second - place White Sox, who beat Boston 5-4. It also put fourth - place Yankees 6½ games behind.

McLish hasn't lost since June 7, when he was given a questionable decision to Yankees. That's his only loss to the champs, and he's been the pitcher in four of Yankees this season.

DETROIT WINS ONE

Indians pulled 4½ games ahead of third-place Baltimore, beaten 6-4 at Kansas City, and opened an 8-1 victory over Washington.

All three hits off McLish were doubles, two by Elston Howard. Indians got to southpaw Bobby Shantz (4-6) in the sixth, scoring three.

White Sox broke a 3-3 tie in the seventh against Tom Brewer (7-7) when Jim Landis blooped a scoring single to right and checked swing.

Southpaw Bud Daley (10-4) blanked Orioles on four hits until the ninth, when Walt Dropo homered. The A's had put it away early against loser Milt Pappas (5-6).

Tigers, after losing seven of eight and 14 of their last 17, counted six runs on homers by Harvey Kuenn, Lou Berberet and Charlie Maxwell among their eight hits. Paul Foytack (6-6) was the winner while Bill Fischer (4-4) lost his first in a month.

Leafs Blanked By Columbus; Royals Win

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Frank Herrera of Buffalo Bisons and Foster Castleman of Miami Marlins have been the class hitting chores for their teams Tuesday night, as expected.

But it was Herrera who suddenly transformed the International League race into a battle for second place. The slugging first baseman hit a 400-foot home run in the top of the 11th inning to give the league-leaders a 3-2 victory over Havana Sugar Kings and move them six games ahead of second-place Miami. Only 9½ games separate the Marlins and last-place Columbus Jets.

Castleman, who had 4-for-5 in a doubleheader as Miami split with Rochester Red Wings, scored the first 3-0 and losing 3-1 in 10 innings. The loss was Miami's fifth in six games.

Montreal Royals, a half-game behind Miami in third, scored a 5-1 victory over Richmond Virginians while Columbus recorded its third straight shutout, 9-0 over Toronto Maple Leafs.

There was nothing for a triple crown, is third in league batting with .345 average and leads in homers with 28 and runs batted in with 80. He had three hits in five trips Tuesday, beating with Dick Coker who had a two-run homer, to help reliever Hank Mason (7-6) gain the verdict over Luis Arroyo (4-5), also in relief.

Castleman, two points ahead of Herrera with a .345 average, was 3-for-3 in the first game as George Zuverink (3-2) won his first starting assignment since 1956, Bob Bruce (9-11) lost.

HOMERS HELP WINGS

Rochester's Bobby Smith and Billy Harrell hit back-to-back homers in the 10th which gave Bob Keegan (11-6) the victory over Herb Moford (3-6). Jim Standland also homered for Rochester.

Bill Short (12-3) had his bid for victory No. 13 ruined by four Richmond errors in the sixth inning which led to three unearned runs. Clyde Parris hit his 19th homer for Montreal to help Canadian Billy Harris (9-6) win.

Joe Gibbon (9-7) gave Toronto only three hits, retiring the last 17 batters in order. He struck out nine men and walked two in beating Ron Negray (10-8).

Olympic Torch Goes Atomic

CHICAGO (AP)—The Olympic tradition of carrying a torch to launch sports games has gone atomic.

Demonstrated Tuesday at a preview of the Pan - American Games schedule which begins Aug. 27 and ends Sept. 7, the Olympic torch is the design of Dr. Frank E. Myers of the Argonne National Laboratory.

The modern version utilizes flashlight batteries to flash a blue beam 12 inches in diameter. At its top is a cap for radioactive pellets which will trigger a lighting mechanism for the flame that will burn for the dur- ation of the games at Soldier Field here.

The torch will be carried by 3,000 boy scouts to Chicago from the United States-Mexican border at Laredo, Tex., a distance of 1,464 miles.

The relay run begins Aug. 4 when the U.S. Scouts take over the torch from Mexican scouts, who will deliver the torch from Mexico City, site of the 1955 Pan-American Games.

Bobcats Clobbered by Cobourg 12-2 In Error-Packed Weird Exhibition

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Belleville Bobcats came up with their poorest showing of the season in Cobourg last night to take a 12-2 whipping at the hands of the Merchants. The setback leaves the Bobcats only one-half game ahead of Point Anne in the tight B. and D. Softball League pennant race. The clubs meet at the Point Thursday night when the 'Cats can clinch first or drop to second.

Cobourg took advantage of eight glaring Bobcat errors for their victory, keeping their chances alive for a second-place finish. They broke a 1-1 tie with three runs in the third, the only earned runs they had. Errors gave them another in the fifth, two in the sixth and five in the eighth.

Ironman Rolly Campbell took the Cobourg rubber once again and snapped his club's four-game losing streak. He pitched seven-hit ball, struck out nine and walked but one batter, relieving it by a row at one point.

Bobby Green started and lost for Temple's nine. He gave up seven runs off as many hits while fanning three and passing five in 2 1-3 innings. Lou Smrke was touched for three unearned runs and five more for the remainder. He whiffed one and walked one but, like Green, received little support.

The Merchants scored one in the first on Smrke's three-base error and Hart's infield out. The 'Cats tied it when Bert Faulkner hit the first pitch of the second frame for a home run. It was his fifth of the year, a top league mark.

Faulkner, who injured his knee while scoring the losers' second run, was one bright spot in the Bobcat lineup. He singled in the seventh, raced to second on a passed ball, to third on Goegan's fly to left and home on a fielder's choice play, hurting his ankle and forcing him out of the game on a slide at the plate. Earlier he had made several fine plays in centre field.

Cobourg had base hits from O'Brien, Hart, Turpin and Clancy in the third to take a 4-1 lead. A pair of errors then made it 5-1. Two walks, an infield safety by Campbell and Green's error chased him in favor of Smrke in the sixth.

Belleville threatened in the top of the eighth. Crawford singled but was called out at home in his tried to score from second on Smrke's base knock. An argument over the play resulted in Coach Temple being ejected from the game.

Bobcats' infield fell apart in the bottom of the inning with three errors, a walk, Turpin's long triple, Church's double and Hendry's single scoring five runs.

Dick Turpin sparked the win-ners' attack with a triple and two singles while Leo O'Brien singled twice and scored four runs. Al Church clubbed with one-baggers for Bryan Hart, Rolly Campbell, Burke Clancy and Boyd Hendry.

Bert Faulkner with a homer and single in three trips topped the Bobcats. Floyd Crawford singled twice while Lou Smrke, "Wiener" Brown and Flori Goegan shared the other base hits.

Temple brought up left-handed catcher 'Dick Clapp from the Juvenile Bobcats with Earl Cousins away on holidays. Clapp turned in a fine game behind the plate.

The top three positions are still undecided with but three games remaining to be played. Bobcats are at Point Anne Thursday and at Cobourg next Tuesday while Point Anne travels to Cobourg on Saturday night. It could all be settled by Saturday night.

Writers' Poll Sees Chisox Flag Winner

NEW YORK (AP) — U.S. baseball writers have changed their minds about the American League pennant winner.

New York Yankees, a landslide choice in the spring, now are picked for third place with Chicago tabbed as the pennant winner and Cleveland second.

Milwaukee, the spring pick in the National League, still is the writers' choice by a narrow margin over San Francisco Giants. Los Angeles Dodgers, who mowed within half a game of the lead Tuesday, are listed third.

The facts, as revealed in the major league standings halfway through this year of upsets, didn't support the pre-season forecasts of the Associated Press called for the second poll to see whether the writer had changed their minds.

Whites Shade "Rifle's Reds"

MONTREAL (CP) — Wes Gideon, new import quarterback from Trinity University in Texas, fired four long touchdown passes Tuesday night to spark Hal Patterson's White team to a 27-20 win over Sam Etcheverry's Reds in the Alouettes' intra-squad game.

Patterson snatched two of the passes for touchdowns and the other two went to Ivan Livingston.

Joel Wells and newcomers Dick Kercher and Bill Glosson scored the Reds' touchdowns. Two came on Etcheverry's passes.

The night game attracted a crowd of 9,000 in sweltering weather.

Ted Elsby, Canadian tackle, was injured and taken to hospital for examination of a damaged shoulder.

"Never Caught Finer Passes" Says Simpson

OTTAWA (CP)—Bobby Simpson, in charge of pace setters with Ottawa Rough Riders this year.

The Canadian workhorse, now in his 10th year with the Big Four football club, played more 60 minutes a game for Riders last year.

As the season drew to a close, Simpson was looking back on several years as an all-star defensive end and began spending more and more of his time as a centre linebacker, calling defensive signals.

Just last week he told reporters he got to like that job. While he admitted that he didn't care whether he played—as long as he played —Simpson indicated that the defensive chores were "more interesting."

But Monday night, in Riders' annual intra-squad game, Simpson got a workout in his old pass-catching role. With former Saskatchewan quarter Frank Tripucka throwing, Simpson snared six of seven aerials thrown his way.

"I've never caught finer passes," Simpson said after the game. "This is going to be all right."

RE-ELECT GOLF CAPTAIN

LONDON (AP) — Dai Rees, who led Britain's golfing professionals to their first victory over the United States in 24 years, Tuesday was re-elected captain for the Ryder Cup match at Palm Desert, Calif., Nov. 7-8. Britain defeated the heavily favored U.S. team 7 matches to 2 with one match halved at Llodrick, England, two years ago.

FIGHT POSTPONED — Light heavyweight champion Archie Moore talks to nurse Mrs. Moore was reported in satisfactory condition after surgery for a non-malignant mastoid tumor. (AP Wirephoto).

Durelle-Moore Title Fight Is Put Back to August 12th

MONTREAL (CP)—The Yvon Durelle-Archie Moore title fight has been postponed for a second time, but this time the Canadian challenger, still disappointed, isn't irked about it.

The bout was put back to August 12 because Archie's wife Joan underwent a serious mastoid operation in San Diego, Calif. Moore rushed—he only took a coat and hat — out of Montreal Monday night to be at his wife's side.

"It could have been my wife," said Durelle. "I don't blame Archie for going."

After a call to Moore in California, the fight was set back a second time. It originally was scheduled for July 15 but a back injury to Moore postponed it to July 28.

"We all feel pretty badly about Arch's trouble," said Durelle's manager Chris Shaban. "He's a great guy. We want Archie to know he has our sympathy."

ONLY THING TO DO

Promoter Eddie Quinn said "Archie was shocked by the sudden development in his wife's illness. He was mentally distraught and in no condition to discuss the fight. Nothing else could be done then postpone it."

New television arrangements were completed late Tuesday.

Moore was expected to remain in San Diego a week or 10 days at least.

Jack Kearns, the champ's manager, said Moore had rounded into fine shape when called home and "he was going to lay off training for a day or two anyway."

Durelle's training camp broke up temporarily. Yvon and Shaban were heading back to New Brunswick, trainer Charlie Goldman to New York.

WON'T HURT DURELLE

"I don't think this new delay will hurt Yvon very much," Shaban said, "but we must admit it's disappointing coming on top of the first postponement.

"Yvon is ready right now. Charlie has been doing wonders with him and in training today he was the best I've seen him. We have been keeping his weight around 178."

"All I want now," Shaban continued, "is more expense money. I was talking with Trueman Gibson (president of National Boxing Enterprises) when the postponement became necessary and he said he would send expense money."

Moore knocked out Durelle in the 11th round last December after the bulking fisherman had put the champ down four times, three times in the first round.

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)— Archie Moore, whose lightheavyweight title fight with Yvon Durelle has been postponed again, said Tuesday night he could make no plans "until I'm sure my wife is all right."

"I hate to delay the fight," Moore said. "But there's no choice. I'm not going back into training. I'm not going to leave Joan."

Al Dewsbury Is Suspended In Softball

TORONTO (CP) — Former National Hockey League defenceman Al Dewsbury has been suspended for two games in the Beaches Major Softball League for pushing an umpire in a game last week.

Dewsbury, who played last year for the amateur hockey champions, Belleville McFarlands, is an outfielder with Swiss Chalet. He was ejected from a game against Sherbina when he pushed plate umpire Bill Chris because he disagreed with the official's calls.

City Commercial Softball League

Bobcat Juveniles scored four runs in the bottom of the last inning to shade Texaco Chiefs 11-10 in a City Commercial Softball tilt last night.

The Juveniles, who trailed 10-3 at one point, netted their four seventh-frame runs on doubles by Ehler and Moreau, plus two costly Texaco errors.

Sunny Holloway, relieving Ken McLaren in the second frame, was the winning moundsman. They allowed seven hits between them with six strikeouts and 13 walks.

Don McLean went the route in defeat, giving up 13 hits, whiffing five and passing four.

Pete Weston with a two-run homer and a single led the winners at the plate. Buzzy Fisher and Doug Moreau cracked a double and single apiece, while Pug Keller and Holloway each had two singles. Jerry St. Denis and Don Duggan doubled and Gary Duggan singles.

Moe Benoit and McLean had a brace of singles for Texaco. Beare and Gray hit doubles and Bowes a single.

Sports Centre hammered Mead Sportsmen 14-1 last night to increase their first-place lead in the City Commercial Softball league.

Junior Day hurled six-hit ball over the distance for the victors, whiffing half a dozen and walking five.

"Bruno" McCurdy allowed 11 hits in defeat while his mates made seven errors behind him. He fanned four and passed seven.

The winners scored in every inning with two in the first and five in the fourth, leaving no doubt as to the outcome.

Leo St. Denis had a triple and two doubles and Doug Murray a triple and two doubles for Sports Centre. Frank "Shiner" Murray connected for singles with "Shaker" Baker doubling. Bob Brooks and Harry DeRushie singled.

Larry Lougheed had two of Sportsmen's seven hits. Maynes, Bill Muirhead and McCurdy had doubles and Al Gray a single.

Eskimos Clobber Stampeders In Western Exhibition Tilt

By GERRY MONZU
Canadian Press Staff Writer

EDMONTON (CP) — The Edmonton Eskimos of old?

They looked a bit like the spirited team that won three straight Grey Cups as they clobbered Calgary Stampeders 33-7 on Tuesday in a Western Interprovincial Football Union exhibition game before 7,500 fans. Edmonton also beat Stamps in an exhibition engagement last week, 15-10.

Eskimos took advantage of every break and to make sure of the result, added 218 yards passing.

TWO GOOD PASSERS

Quarterbacks Jackie Parker and Don Getty completed 17 of 28 pass attempts and had one pass intercepted.

A 42-yard pass-and - run play from Parker to halfback Jo-Jo Smith accounted for the first touchdown early in the second quarter. Getty tossed 21 yards to import end Burnie McQueen for the second touchdown.

Fullbacks Johnny Bright and newcomer Howie Schumm combined for touchdowns in the fourth quarter.

Chuck Cottrey, an import from West Texas State, kicked a field goal, a convert and two singles. End Vic Chapman booted a single and Parker kicked two converts.

The double-fullback formation using Bright and Jim Shipka—in place of Normie Kwong who has just signed—picked up 152 yards rushing.

WIREWORKEY ACCURATE

Veteran quarterback Nobby Wirkowski provided the only bright spot for Calgary in the third quarter. Passing accurately he set up a touchdown by plunging Pat Abbruzzi. Doug Brown kicked the convert. Ex-Alouette Abbruzzi made a good part of Calgary's 122 yards rushing.

Coach Otis Douglas of Calgary said several player cuts will be made before Stampeders play exhibitions in the East next month against Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen and Montreal Alouettes.

WIN LADIES' GOLF

WINDSOR (CP) — Mrs. John Hume Jr. of Windsor's Beach Grove Golf Club posted a three-over-par 81 for low gross honors Tuesday in the first Windsor district championship tournament for Canadian Ladies' Golf Union. Runner-up was Ann McKeough of Chatham's Maple City Golf Club, who carded an 89.

Trio of Performing Whales Latest Act of Show 'Biz'

By BOB THOMAS

PALOS VERDES, Calif. (AP) — Show business, which had seen about everything, now has a new kind of act—a trio of performing whales.

Who would ever think of teaching whales tricks? No one. Not until Marineland of the Pacific landed in a 14-foot, 1,700-pound black pilot whale and named her Bubbles. The see-life showplace would have been content merely to display Bubbles in one of its tanks.

But she learned tricks, too. She and her recent playmate, 10-foot Spirit, perform five times daily with stunts as shaking hands, waving, hitting bar bells, punching bags, wearing fancy hats and doing a ponderous fandango. A third artist, 114-ton Bimbo, already has learned to leap out of the water.

I caught the whales' act with Kenneth Norris, Marineland curator, and learned such things as:

You start training a whale by getting its confidence. You toss some squid into the water closer and closer to you until the whale will finally eat out of your hand. That's half the battle.

Whales have short memories. They might not recall a trick done 10 seconds before, so trainers blow whistles before the reward of food. It signifies a job well done, no fish, no whistle, no squid. Keep trying, whale.

Landmarks mean a great deal to whales. Marineland changed the rocks in the bottom of their tank and the whales got all confused in their act.

Whales sleep, just like the rest of us. They nestle on the surface close together for safety, keeping a few hours a night, with eyes closed.

Whales have nice personalities. They always seem cheery, with their mouths curving up in a smile. The only time whales get nasty is when they're bored. Bubbles started spouting water with her big head and tossing other fish out of the tank. But the general manager w'th a mackerel. Introduction of Squirt made her happy again.

Whales have bigger brains than we do, and well-convoluted. But no sense of smell. Who needs it out in the ocean?

Most other fish are tolerated by whales, but not sharks. Whales hate them and aim their heads at a shark's gills. Pow! End of shark.

Bubbles and Squirt are females and Bimbo is a male and they seem to like it that way. They've shown signs of mating. One sign is swimming straight at each other and cracking heads.

Labor Secretary Enters Steel Strike Picture

NEW YORK (AP)—Labor Secretary James P. Mitchell has entered the steel strike. He will act as fact-finder for President Eisenhower, who is reported reluctant to intervene in the process of collective bargaining.

Mitchell's move in the strike that began a week ago is without precedent. He said he knows of no other secretary of labor who has acted in a similar manner.

It is expected that the White House will use the information he provides as a basis for deciding whether to invoke the national emergency provisions of the Taft-Hartley Labor Act.

Under the act, the federal government could issue an 80-day anti-strike injunction if necessary. It is the fair this would accomplish little at this time.

FIRMLY ENTRENCHED

Both sides appear to be dug in for a long struggle. Eisenhower is reported to feel that the 80-day injunction period would not change their positions although he has not ruled out the possibility of invoking the emergency measure.

The United Steelworkers Union seeks a 13-cent hourly annual package increase, saying that the industry can afford it without raising the price of steel. The companies have refused, saying that any increase in labor cost would force a price increase and thus contribute to inflation. Pre-strike steel wages averaged $3.10 an hour.

In Pittsburgh Tuesday, strikes closed down their last full two-week pay checques.

Most steelworkers will have only five or four more days' pay coming in another two weeks. That's for the week they did up to the midnight strike deadline of July 15.

Mitchell's fact-finding will not interrupt the mediation that has been going on here in an effort to settle the strike of 500,000 workers. Federal mediators meet again with both sides today.

Lack of Sponsor May Finish Omnibus After Seven Years

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP) — Television runs on percentages. The higher the percentages of viewers, the greater the sponsor interest. And that largely determines what viewers see on the home screen.

Now A. C. Nielsen Audience Rating Company offers a comparative study of the sizes of audiences watching various types of night-time shows in February, 1958, and February, 1959. It reports:

The amount of general drama of 30 and 90 minutes offered in the comparative months remained the same while the audience fell off by 12 per cent. The amount of 60-minute variety shows was the same but the audience declined by 19 per cent.

In westerns the 30-minute shows increased by 37 per cent while the audience was up 40 per cent. The hour western had a 76-per-cent increase in exposure and the audience grew by 100 per cent.

LESS POPULAR

Audience interest declined in adventure series, situation comedies, quiz shows and suspense programs. Sponsors, keeping a closer eye on the estimated sizes of audiences, decreased these categories of programs proportionately.

Perhaps the most significant figure was a 100-per-cent increase in the audiences of information programs while information programs themselves increased by nearly 60 per cent in the two comparative months of the study.

Speaking of information shows, Omnibus has probably done more to bring a variety of information to the home screen than any program. Now, after seven years, with 130 telecasts of 400 features, the program is in serious danger of not being renewed by NBC-TV.

A network spokesman says that a sponsor has not been found and that the network can't afford to carry the program unsponsored. On the other hand, a program spokesman says that three potential sponsors are interested.

In any event, Omnibus is in serious difficulty despite the fact that last season its audience increased by an estimated 28 per cent and critics generally thought it had one of its best years.

Chinese Sailors To Take Case Before Consul

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—Fifteen Chinese sailors who walked off the British freighter Pine Hill here last week to back demands for overtime pay say they will work aboard the vessel until it reaches Montreal where they can present their case to the Chinese consul.

The men walked off the ship Friday after its captain refused to pay them overtime for working through the night to clean holds for grain loading. Officials of the Canadian International Union (CLC) here said they would do all they could to support the seamen, although they are not members of a union.

SIU officials said the seamen told them they must work at the rates established on the ship under threat of being deported to Communist China. They receive 200 Hong Kong dollars—equivalent to about 35 in Canadian money—a month.

Apple Crop Needs Rain Says Official

KITCHENER (CP)—More rain and cooler weather are needed if the Western Ontario apple crop is to yield well among early varities, Fred Bishop of the federal department of agriculture said Tuesday.

He said late varities are growing well in most orchards but apple farmers face the prospect of a 10-per-cent drop in production from last year.

Meagher said he expected to taper off this week if the weather remains hot and dry.

Mr. Johnston said vegetable growers are experiencing bumper

Science Now Shrinks Piles Without Pain Or Discomfort

Finds Healing Substance That Relieves Pain And Itching As It Shrinks Hemorrhoids

Toronto, Ont. (Special)—For the first time science has found a new healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids and to relieve pain and itching. Thousands have been relieved, with this liquid, ointment or suppository. In case after case, some without any discomfort or inconvenience.

In one hemorrhoid case after another, "real and lasting improvement" was reported and verified by doctors' examinations.

Pain was promptly relieved. And while gently relieving pain, actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And most amazing of all—this improvement was maintained in cases where doctors' treatments were continued over a period of many months!

In fact, results were so thorough that sufferers were able to make such statements as "Piles have ceased to be a problem!" And among these sufferers were a very wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions, some of even 10 to 20 years' standing.

All this, without the use of narcotics, anesthetics or surgery of any kind. The secret is a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne)—the discovery of a famous research institute. Already, Bio-Dyne is in use for over one hundred injured items on all parts of the body.

This new healing substance is offered in suppository or ointment form called Preparation H. Ask for individually sealed convenient Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H ointment in tubes with special applicator. Preparation H is sold at all drug stores. Money back guaranteed or money refunded.

Leaves Million To 'Plodders' Scholarships

TORONTO (CP) — A scholarship fund of approximately $1,000,000 for "plodders" in the University of Toronto's faculty of engineering was included in a will probated here Monday.

The provision for the fund is made in the will of J. Edgar McAllister, retired consulting engineer who died in May at Charlottesville, Va., at the age of 89.

In his will, Mr. McAllister said the intention of the fund is to assist students "who are not necessarily of scholarship material but who could be described as plodders who might not without such financial assistance be able to enter or complete graduate or post - graduate engineering studies."

Mr. McAllister's entire estate is estimated at $1,713,389. Legacies and requests total about $345,000.

Mr. McAllister directed in his will that the residuary estate be invested, with 75 per cent of the net income being used to found the "J. Edgar McAllister Foundation" at the university.

The remaining 25 per cent is to be left to the Michigan College of Mining and Technology, Houghton, Mich. "If and when it establishes in Canada a charitable foundation corporation or a charitable trust."

Four Die In Fire At New Hamburg, Question Boy, 12

Mother, Two Children, Second Woman Victims

NEW HAMBURG (CP) — Two women and two children died as a result of a $150,000 fire that swept a three-storey brick building in this town's main street Wednesday afternoon.

The fire was still smouldering early today and an official of the Ontario fire marshal's office was investigating.

Dead are Mrs. Fred Crabbe, two of her children, Linda, 2, and Robert, 4, and Mrs. Alice Matthews of Niagara Falls, Ont. They are believed to have died of suffocation in the Crabbe's second floor apartment at the rear of the building.

A third Crabbe child, Albert, 8, was taken to hospital where he was stopped by Pennsylvania State Police and told of the tragedy.

BOY QUESTIONED

A 12-year-old boy was questioned by police Wednesday night after he was seen running from the back door of the building where the fire was believed to have started. He was not placed under sedation.

Witnesses said the fire started from building screaming: "I didn't mean to do it, I didn't mean to do it."

New Hamburg firemen rescued Mrs. Crabbe's mother, Mrs. Newton Gingerich, from the burning building, while another neighbor, Mrs. Lorne Heuchn, were saved when employees of a nearby service station backed a truck up to a fire escape and helped them to safety.

Mrs. Crabbe, 28, was treated briefly for shock.

Mrs. Frieda Geister, Mrs. Crabbe's mother, operates a store at a nearby factory, ran to the scene of the fire and had to be restrained by police from attempting into the building. She was taken by police to hospital suffering from shock.

TOP FLOOR DESTROYED

The top floor of the building, which housed an Oddfellows Hall was destroyed, and the other parts of the building were heavily damaged by fire, smoke and water.

Fire departments from Wellesley, Baden and Kitchener helped the New Hamburg department fight the blaze, which was reported under control about two hours. New Hamburg is about 15 miles west of Kitchener.

Fire chief Kenneth Gingerich of Kitchener said Mrs. Crabbe telephoned for help and then apparently she died. Witnesses in New Hamburg said they saw flames appear at a window, and then they shouted at her to remain until firemen arrived, she disappeared.

WARSHIPS RETURN

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Two United States Navy destroyers ended a submarine hunt passage through the Welland Canal Wednesday downbound from Lake Erie. Three other warships were waiting their turn to enter the canal from the Welland River, returned from a Great Lakes naval display.

Board Declares TCA Should Pay More to Pilots

OTTAWA (CP)—A federal conciliation board says a proposal for extra pay for 730 pilots of Trans-Canada Air Lines is sound, reasonable and workable.

In a majority report made public Wednesday, two members of the three - man conciliation board agreed with the submission of the Canadian Air Lines Pilots Association regarding away-from-home pay for TCA pilots.

The majority report was written by Mr. Justice Edouard Tellier of the Quebec Superior Court and Senator Arthur Roebuck (Liberal-Ontario). A minority report by Montreal Lawyer T. R. Meighen rejected the association's proposal.

The undersigned," said the majority report, "feel that a pilot is away from his base for a period sufficient to have assured a reasonable amount of flying time. The association's submission is that a guarantee of six hours flying time should be given for every 24 hours away from home at the request of the company."

"The association admits that most pilots would not benefit financially from the introduction of the one-in-four clause. They submit that this introduction is good in principle, sound, reasonable and workable. The undersigned agree with that last submission."

The report is binding on neither party but the majority report must be understood in negotiations on the matter.

Mr. Meighen said in his minority report it was "apparent that its (the union's proposal) major object is to increase the pay."

Flat Denial Given Rumors Queen Pregnant

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP) — Rumors that the Queen is pregnant were denied Wednesday by Esmond Butler, Royal Tour press secretary.

He was asked for comment on an Agence France-Presse story in Europe saying the pregnancy of the Queen is pregnant have persisted for several days without official confirmation or denial.

"Categorical and flat denial," Mr. Butler said of the rumors.

Chemical Plant Blast Kills Man

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., (AP) — One man was killed and three men were injured Wednesday in explosions in two different chemical plants.

A fire in another plant caused an undetermined amount of damage to a laboratory building.

Killed was Edward M. Jaszek, 33, an electrician at the Hooker Chemical Corporation. He was hit by flying debris when an explosion and fire wrecked a 100-foot-long concrete block building.

Two other Hooker employees suffered minor injuries.

Robert Wilson Jr., 42, a foreman at the E. I. Dupont de Nemours plant, was injured slightly when an explosion ripped the lid off a solvent storage tank.

QUEEN ENJOYING VISIT TO CANADA DESPITE RIGORS

Has Not Over-Taxed Her Capacities

MOOSE JAW, Sask. (CP)—Queen Elizabeth is enjoying the Royal Visit to Canada despite its rigors, members of her staff say.

She feels it is the most interesting and varied of any Canadian tour and while its pace has been strenuous at times, it generally has not over-taxed her capacities.

These points were made Wednesday in interviews with members of the royal household and staff who said that the variety of the 45-day visit has given the Queen and Prince Philip a chance to get to know Canadians well.

From the pulp mill in Corner Brook, Nfld., to the Indian village in Manalmo, B.C., they have seen the variety of nationalities that make up Canada's population. The royal tourists met them as they would see them on any tour of a city.

NO POLITICS

The fact that the Queen was forced to curtail visits to Alberta and Northwest Territories because of illness, three sources said, should be construed into a tale of too heavy a program forced upon the Queen for political purposes.

The Queen is perhaps the most self-possessed of the royal tourists and she and her household have expressed a wonderment at why people cannot accept her decision.

Queen, Prince Spend 5 Hours In Regina

REGINA (CP) — The Queen topped off a warm afternoon of whistle-stop visits to Prairie communities Wednesday by having tea at the home of a Saskatchewan farmer.

She was to begin an 11-hour schedule today with a five-hour visit to the capital of this grain-growing province.

Regina, the city of 100,000 probably would be a little more prepared for the visit than the smaller cities, which took the Queen through Saskatoon, Moose Jaw and Swift Current on Wednesday.

The royal couple were to meet Premier Ross Douglas, government officials and members of the legislature. A luncheon and tour of the provincial museum and natural history were among other events scheduled.

The Queen was to leave at 3 p.m. aboard the royal train with Prince Philip and was scheduled on the way into Manitoba.

RED WELCOME

The Saskatchewan welcome Wednesday was the most enthusiastic of the Queen's Canadian visit, tour officials said.

At several of the smaller communities the Queen and Prince Philip made a point of talking to the children. Mr. Bailey the Queen walked unexpectedly across two large vegetable tracks to visit with children.

The tracks for afternoon tea were Mr. and Mrs. Carl Wells, who entertained the royal couple in their home. Mrs. Wells worked as a community 12 miles north of Moose Jaw.

Police, Family Suspect Foul Play In Case of Missing Social Beauty

SHORT HILLS, N.J. (CP)—The search for socialite Jacqueline Gay Hart, 31-year-old blue-eyed beauty last seen Tuesday night, spread to Canada today.

Police, already reaching across the United States, was extended to Canada by police who reported that the girl's married sister, Mrs. Robert Warmer, lives in Winnipeg.

Fear that Miss Hart may have met foul play mounted, meanwhile, by an official and a clergyman - spokesman for the family.

Her father, Ralph A. Hart, met today with police director Joseph F. Weldon of Newark, N.J., and other officials. Hart, executive vice-president of the Colgate Palmolive Company, then reported:

"We are doing all the ground again. We are trying everything. We have men trying in the world new. I wish there was. I wish to God there was."

Lieut. Joseph Lawless of the Newark airport today, Both sides declared Wednesday they had no intention of backing down on key issues involving their basic and completely contradictory aims in Germany.

U.S. State Secretary Christian Herter again rejected Gromyko's proposal that the German reunification question be handed over to an East-West German committee with an 18-month time limit to get results.

Western counter-proposals for calling Big Four talks on Germany were rejected by Gromyko because, he said, they sought to impose a unification dictate on the German people. He insisted the East and West Germans must work out reunification as equals.

The four foreign ministers scheduled another meeting this afternoon. But the debate here was overshadowed by the long-range diplomatic bombardment going on over their heads.

President Eisenhower, at his press conference Wednesday, said again that a summit conference must be justified by progress at Geneva that would preserve Western rights in Berlin.

Khrushchev, in the Warsaw communique, declared a summit meeting would "undoubtedly contribute to lessening of international tension." Polish Communist leader Wladyslaw Gomulka said they considered the holding of such a meeting "highly important."

Geneva Meet Under Pressure Of Khrushchev's New Threat

GENEVA (AP)—A new threat from Nikita Khrushchev of Communist action against West Berlin put pressure today on the foreign ministers meeting at Geneva.

The Soviet premier said in a joint Soviet-Polish communique at Warsaw that the Western stand at Geneva may lead to aggravation of a situation "pregnant with danger to the cause of peace in Europe."

The communique warned that if what it called the "abnormal situation" in Berlin is not liquidated, Russia and Poland "will support the German Democratic Republic also when they recognize as appropriate."

The Warsaw communique repeated Russia's original demands for peace treaties with the two Germanys and the transformation of West Berlin into a demilitarized "free city."

It repeated Khrushchev's threat to sign a peace treaty with East Germany if the Allies do not meet the Communist demands. That would give the East German control of supplies to the Allied garrisons in West Berlin, cutting the threat of a new Berlin blockade.

The Western foreign ministers and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko meanwhile were deadlocked in negotiations seeking to find a way out of the Berlin crisis. Both sides declared Wednesday they had no intention of backing down on key issues involving their basic and completely contradictory aims in Germany.

U.S. State Secretary Christian Herter again rejected Gromyko's proposal that the German reunification question be handed over to an East-West German committee with an 18-month time limit to get results.

Stabbed Hamilton Man Dies Before Eyes of 11-Year-Old

HAMILTON (CP) — Alcisio Michaels, about 36, staggered from his two-storey frame home in suburban Stoney Creek, stepped to call for help and then fell dead on the sidewalk from stab wounds in the throat.

The retired restaurant owner who lived alone died before the eyes of 11-year-old Chester Kaliniak who came to see a man run from the house and disappear up an alley. He said he saw the man throw away a knife.

Police found the bloody knife with a six-inch blade, and a wooden handle on the floor of the living room. It belonged to Michaels' apartment.

Police said the attack apparently took place inside the front door of the house near the foot of the stairs. Neighbors did not appear to be the motive since $256 in cash was found in the dead man's pockets.

Police began looking for a man described as 40, heavily built, brown haired, wearing brown or blue trousers and a white shirt.

Mrs. Margaret Blaschuck, who lives a block from the scene of the slaying, said she saw a man run through her backyard about the time of the stabbing.

Mrs. Joan Wright, a next-door neighbor of Michaels, said she saw him sitting on his front doorstep about 8 p.m. The stabbing is believed to have occurred about 30 minutes later.

Doors Closed At Whyteaven Due to Epidemics

BOWMANVILLE (CP) — The doors of Whyteaven Mission were closed for the first time in its 50-year history tonight as an outbreak of influenza and infectious hepatitis affected almost a quarter of the 140 homeless-children there.

Agatha (Mom) Wayte said the closing of her home was only a temporary measure and hopes the outbreak has ended the home will not accept any more needy children.

At least 32 of the children being cared for on the 50-acre mission farm have contracted influenza. Mission superintendent Sharon Rogerson said eight more children are suffering from hepatitis.

Two of the hepatitis cases are in a Toronto isolation hospital and the remainder are being cared for in the mission infirmary, which has been converted to an isolation ward.

Commit Youths For Trial for Murder of Two

HUNTSVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Two youths Wednesday were committed for trial next Nov. 2 after a preliminary hearing on charges they murdered taxi-drivers Bruce Solers, 26, and Francis Grosso, 29.

Scores of residents were turned away from the courthouse as Wayne Sluman, 16 and Mervyn McKee, 20, appeared before Magistrate Redmond Thomas.

The bodies of the two taxi-drivers were found in a gravel pit near Dwight, 17 miles east here, on June 28, 11 days after they disappeared.

The men were last seen alive when they left their homes to get a night call at Dwight.

McKee was picked up at Elk Lake, 35 miles southwest of Kirkland Lake, in the company of Annie Young, 18. Sluman was arrested in Huntsville.

Four Persons Die in Quebec

GRANDE CASCAPEDIA, Que. (CP)— Four persons were killed and three others seriously injured Wednesday night when two automobiles collided headon near this locality on Baie des Chaleurs.

Nixon Invites All Russians To Question Him

No Victors in New War He Says in Moscow Talk

MOSCOW (CP)—U.S. Vice-president Richard Nixon arrived by air today and invited all Russians to "speak freely" and ask him any questions they want during his 10-day visit.

He arrived in Moscow today at exactly 2 p.m. Moscow time (8 a.m. EDT) to open the U.S. exhibition in an atmosphere chilled by new Soviet-American misgivings.

Premier Nikita Khrushchev, who flew in an hour earlier from Warsaw, was unable to greet the American party because he was addressing a Polish-Soviet friendship meeting.

Nixon is the highest American official to visit Russia since President Roosevelt attended the Yalta conference in 1945.

In a speech at Vnukovo airport, Nixon told his hosts that "if there is another war, there will be no victors, only losers." He added:

"For the first time since the dawn of civilization we have reached the point where we must learn to live together or we will perish together."

Kozlov responded briefly and the interpreter made his speech brief. The interpreter said merely: "The message is peace."

STATUS SYMBOL

Nixon entered a Soviet limousine flying the U.S. flag and Soviet flag and was driven into the city and Spaso House, the residence of U.S. Ambassador Llewellyn Thompson. That will be his home in Moscow.

Police lined about 200 Soviet and foreign reporters present but only a small crowd of Russians at the airport itself.

As Nixon's car headed around the airport building he spotted a large group of travellers, mostly Russians, on the plaza of the administration building. He ordered the car stopped, jumped out and began shaking hands.

A small crowd then collected around Nixon and Thompson, beaming, shook hands with everyone. Then he got in his car and resumed the trip to the city.

It was anticipated he and President Eisenhower's brother, Dr. Milton Eisenhower, and other members of the party, would then closet themselves with Thompson and his aides to complete his briefing on problems that began weeks ago in Washington.

His arrival was announced immediately either by Moscow radio or Tass. Correspondents were using their facilities to cover a friendship rally for Poland then being addressed by Khrushchev.

The proclamation of this week as Captive Nations Week in the United States had hit a raw nerve here.

Nixon's pooling of the efforts of the working class, of the working people inside every country as well as on an international scale, nothing but far-reaching international contacts of working class all lands can rid the working people of the danger of war."

"We are as one in recognizing the need for making every effort to thwart the preparations for a third world war in which the main role is being played by the West German revenge-seekers, militarists and monopolists at their head. Gone are the days when the forces of militarism and aggression could do their foul work unobstructed."

The Soviet premier called the Captive Nations Week part of direct interference in U.S.S.R. affairs.

Khrushchev argued that the week was proclaimed at a time when there was evidence of progress in the relations between the Soviet Union and the United States.

This, he said, indicates "that there is not reason but fear of the growing forces of the world which that guides some quarters."

Khrushchev said such an is hysterical campaign in the United States against the Soviet Union. He described it as reflecting the fear of panic-stricken militarists.

It was protocol for Kozlov, Soviet first deputy premier, to meet Nixon at the airport. Nixon was in New York when Kozlov opened the Soviet exhibit there.

Accompanying Nixon and his wife, Pat, on the 5,000-mile jetliner flight from Washington was an official party of 35. Preceding the party by a few hours was about 70 U.S. newspaper, radio and television representatives assigned to cover the vice-president's Soviet tour.

CAN STEEL FIRMS STOP WAGE-PRICE U.S. INFLATION?

Chairman Dubious 'But Worth a Try'

NEW YORK (AP) — Can the steel industry stop wage-price inflation in the United States?

Roger Blough, the industry's leader as board chairman of United States Steel Corporation, is dubious. But he says it's worth a real attempt.

"You never know until you try," Blough said in an interview with The Associated Press. "We think some good will come of it."

Intermediate federal mediators Wednesday set up fresh peace talks in the U.S. steel strike for next Monday—the first since the walkout began eight days ago.

No special significance should be attached," said Joseph S. Fitzgerald, head of the federal mediation service, announcing the development. He repeated his statement of a week ago that he foresaw no early or easy solution to the dispute that has made idle more than 500,000 workers.

Blough relaxed easily as he discussed issues in the steel strike with a reporter at his corporation's skyscraper offices.

He noted that other industries have been granting wage increases this year, but he voiced a hope that "depending upon the circumstances" he announced the development. He repeated his statement of a week ago that he foresaw no early or easy solution to the dispute that has made idle more than 500,000 workers.

UNLESS COSTS PARED

The bargaining stalemate that has left steel strike is rooted in the industry's position that it won't give up any new wage and fringe benefit demands unless the Steelworkers Union unless are offsetting labor cost savings.

Asked whether the steel industry is going to maintain that stand, Blough said "that certainly is our purpose."

Blough said it wasn't a matter of freezing wages throughout the economy. "What we mainly stopped, he said, is the constant increase in labor costs—the industry's total labor bill.

"How about a steel price cut if steel labor costs are stabilized?

"We're not considering any such matter," Blough said.

Mayor Calls Special Meeting Of Council for Monday Eve To Receive Report on Audit

Monday evening a special meeting of the City Council will consider the special audit on the city's financial affairs.

Mayor Gerald Hyde announced this at noon today, after conferring with Hon. W. K. Warrender, Ontario Minister of Municipal Affairs.

Mayor Hyde had been called to Toronto to confer with Mr. Warrender, Ontario Minister of Municipal Affairs had received the special audit from Acting City Treasurer Gerard Miner on Tuesday.

Yesterday Mr. Warrender telephoned Mayor Hyde and told him he had considered the auditor's report and that he, Warrender, would like to discuss it with the mayor and council. The mayor went to Toronto this morning. He telephoned the Intelligencer at noon to announce the results of his meeting with Mr. Warrender.

Mayor Hyde made no comment on his interview with Mr. Warrender but stated that he was calling a special meeting of council for Monday evening at 7.30 p.m., at which the audit will be presented to members of council and at which Mayor Hyde will ask the council to formally request the Minister of Municipal Affairs to order a full inquiry into the city's financial affairs. Such a request was made to the minister some time ago, but apparently the minister desires a formal motion from council to that effect.

Monday's meeting will be open to the public but representations will be permitted at this meeting from ratepayers, since the purpose of the meeting will be solely to present the audit to council and to formally request a public inquiry. It will be at the inquiry, it is anticipated, that the ratepayers may present their views.

The meeting might have been held earlier, but the absence from the city of several members of council led to the decision to fix the date for next day. This will give absent members a chance to return to the city for this important meeting.

Nazis Made Belleville Man Print Forged British Notes Now Found in Austrian Lake

A Reuters despatch from Vienna, Austria, tells of the discovery of counterfeit British five pound notes in the Toplitz lake, an Austrian lake today brought back a flood of vivid memories of terrible days for Sam Tuchmayer, 17 Humewood Drive.

Reuters describes the case-full of forged banknotes as "the relics of Hitler's last, desperate plot to destroy the British and the Allied countries ranged against him.

"The British notes were believed to have been forged by a team of security counterfeiters drawn from concentration camps and supervised by SS Colonel Bernhard Heinrich Himmler," says Reuters. Tuchmayer knows that Reuters is right. He helped print the notes.

Not that Tuchmayer was a counterfeiter, but he worked with counterfeiters. He was chosen for the job because he was a printer.

Tuchmayer resided at Oberschleisen, in the Polish-German border, at the outbreak of the war. He was in Germany only before the First Great War, then became Polish territory after the war.

A Polish Jew, Tuchmayer was arrested and sent to Auschwitz concentration camp in 1942. There he had a number 135321, tattooed on his left forearm. It is still there, plain for all to see. His occupation was also noted.

As time passed, Tuchmayer was forced to work for the "good job" in the kitchen. There, fore when he and fellow workers were called before a high Gestapo official and queried about their knowledge of printing, he pretended he had forgotten his trade. He did not want to have his "good job". He tried to bribe the camp secretary with cigarets and potatoes to offer his name on the list. But the secretary said he dare not — orders came from Berlin.

Some time later Tuchmayer and fourteen others were taken to Sachsenhausen, kept in quarantine there for two weeks and then taken to Oranienburg concentration camp 30 miles north of Berlin. Here, with other printers they were placed in a separate barracks, with special Gestapo guards, and told they would be shot immediately if they ever told of the work in which they were to be engaged. For two years they and additional prisoners slaved away, printing counterfeit British bank notes, five pound notes. Then, suddenly, in later U.S. dollars. Forged passports were also produced.

In April, 1945, the Russians reached Frankfurt-on-Oder in their drive to Berlin. Oranienburg became alarmed and evacuated the printers by special train, sixteen cars, taking them to Matthausen in Austria. They were later sent to a small camp. At first there were evidently, a few days of relaxation, operation, as work began on the bases for the presses. Later, however, Tuchmayer thinks, the others were divided into groups of two as they were taken out to turn the money in Austrian fields. The presses disappeared.

"We got it to operate," says Tuchmayer. "No money, no presses, that means they didn't need us any more."

Thus, when one day in May half the group of 140 men were taken away by truck, the remainder knew that it was a trip to escape. But they could not. The trucks returned and took half of the remainder. Finally the last 35 were taken. But instead of being killed as they feared, they were taken to a camp where they found the first person to leave. Later the other 35 joined them. The counterfeiting group received a reasonable amount of food. But in the big camp people were dying by the hundreds. On May 8, the inmates were told they were free.

Tuchmayer came to Canada in 1951. After six weeks in Montreal he came to Belleville, where he has since been employed as a compositor in the advertising department of the Ontario Intelligencer.

65 Wards of C.A.S. Enjoy Vacation at Consecon Lake

Sixty-five wards of the Children's Aid Society are enjoying a ten-day vacation at Lake Consecon, Brace Kerr, local director of the society, told the Ontario Intelligencer this morning. The camp, which opened last Friday, is under the direction of J. C. Miller, assisted by Walter Hallsall as program director, with Miss Enid Swerdiger, Mrs. Jarold Soulter and Miss Bonnie Watson, all of the society's staff. In addition, Miss Pauline McN. Rae Dolmage, Harold MacDonald and Al Rickard, all of Belleville, are acting as counselors. Miss Joyce While of the city is in charge of the waterfront program.

These children have attended various church-sponsored camps in the past," Mr. Kerr said, "but this year it was decided to sponsor our own camp program. We also think the children like the idea too. Many are members of family groups and it is important for them and sisters to get together again. It also relieves the staff of one child care department an opportunity to really "get to know" the children. From a staff point of this is of the greatest importance because most of them they are all in the ten to fifteen year age group) will remain with us for two weeks.

Some people feel that it is wrong to bring together a group of children in this fashion — that we are segregating our children whereas we should be making an effort to integrate them into the community. In reply to this, we might also say that these children live the year round with their parents, attend local schools and participate in church and family activities. They are already integrated into the life of the community and we do not feel that ten days in camp will be either detrimental or damaging.

As all parents who send children to camp know only too well", Mr. Kerr continued, "it is a relatively costly experience and we are frequently asked how the Children's Aid can afford a project of this magnitude. Actually, the children pay for the holiday with their own funds. When a child comes into our care, at law, we are entitled to his family allowance. This is held as a trust fund to be spent in such manner as is directed by the Department of National Health and Welfare. Attendance at a summer camp is a permissible charge against this fund and, each child's fee is paid from his family allowance in trust. Family allowance is not a blessing to children". Mr. Kerr concluded, "they enable us to provide them with many things which would be otherwise unobtainable".

Suggests Change In Collection of Meter Money

TRENTON — Town clerk-treasurer O. W. Larry told town council he thinks it is time for a review of the whole operation of parking meters in the town. He told the council that the counting of coins collected from parking meters was becoming a problem and that the sealing and counting of the money contained was taking about half the time and was becoming tedious.

He said that when one of the girls in the town office is put on the coin-counting machine her time is charged against the parking meter account and that time it takes to seal and unseal containers is cutting deep into the revenue from the meters.

He suggested obtaining new containers that could be put in a cart with a long neck on it to deposit the coins when they are removed from the parking meter. This would eliminate the containers and make it much easier and faster to count the money when brought to the town-office.

The carts are similar to the ones now in use by the Belleville Police Department for the collection of the meter money.

Councillor Lloyd Worrall urged the council to get the opinion of the town auditors before any changes were made in the collection system and on the opinion of the traffic committee.

It was also suggested by Mr. Larry that the parking meter company collect and the maintenance service be looked into further.

The matter was left in abeyance until this further information and recommendations could be gathered.

Will Order New Bulldozer

TRENTON — Town workers will soon have a new bulldozer to work with. It was decided at a recent meeting of the Sanitation and Waste committee with the chairmanship of Councillor William Bradshaw.

The machine, a TD6, will be purchased for $8,325 plus the town's old machine. Repairs on the old machine will amount to cost in the vicinity of $5,000 and the committee felt it would be advisable to purchase the new one after they had made a trip to see it in operation.

The machine is smaller than the one now in use by the town. Trenton but it will be little more efficient the council was told. A smaller machine will be side-in would cost about $14,000.

Also in attendance at the Public Works Committee and the Sanitation and Waste Removal Committee were instructions to get together and find out where they could dump their garbage now with their own budgets and when they had decided they were to report to the treasurer. O. W. Larry know for recording purposes.

Firemen Douse Garbage Fires

TRENTON — Firemen answered two calls within the space of two hours of this morning to the town dump where garbage was reported burning.

The firemen did not lay any hose and apparently extinguished the blaze with water from the booster tank on the Bickle. It is the first time the firemen have been called to the dump for several months and the cause of the two fires is unknown. There was no damage and no buildings were reported to have been in danger.

Last night at 7.30 p.m. the firemen all turned out for practice with the new life saving net recently delivered to the fire hall. It is one piece equipment purchased with the serial ladder truck.

The firemen took turns holding and jumping into the net to test the feel of it and to get a good knowledge of it should there ever be a need to use it at a fire.

Tonight the firemen's ball team will turn out for another ball practice in preparation for the big game on August 19 when they will meet a team from the Belleville Department.

Will Build Compound for Impounded Cars

TRENTON — A new compound for the storing of cars impounded by the police department will be erected on the town property near the town sheds at the corner of Dundas and Ontario Streets.

Councillor Lloyd Wease said his committee, the Public Works Committee, has been looking over the town yards for a place to build such a place and they believe they can do it without very much cost.

He said they have the trees which are taken down from the property sold next to the Armouries and that they could be used to make an enclosure for the cars. The compound would be about 24 by 40 feet and would be just north of the buildings. Entrance would be erected on top of one of the sheds and the whole would be kept illuminated all night.

He stated the men and the equipment are available and it will be done as soon as possible but that the vehicles are being seized and are now outside the police station will be put in behind the sheds.

The town council had discussed the matter at their regular council meetings after complaints had been received from the farmers who have had to have now taken up by the old cars in the marketing on Saturday mornings.

Councillor Wease said the police department will be ordered to make storage charges and to be placed in the fee to be paid by the owners of the cars.

Order Clean-up Of Restaurants

TRENTON — Unsanitary conditions behind one of the restaurants in Trenton has been drawn to the attention of the town council and resulted in the issuing of a general clean-up by all eating establishments.

Photographs of the conditions behind the one restaurant were shown to the council and all councillors agreed it was a deplorable condition and should be eliminated at once. They instructed the town's health inspector, H. H. Pane, to inspect restaurants and if found in an unsanitary condition they were to be ordered to clean up. If they did not the inspector was to have to lay charges against them and he would receive the backing of the town council.

The pictures showed the rear of the restaurant in question to be piled high with old boxes, crates and cans of rubbish which could also be combustible a fire hazard. Councillors were also told that there was discarded a large number of flies, dogs and cats and was generally scattered all over the place.

Find Constable Has Broken Rib

TRENTON — A Trenton policeman and a member of the Trenton voluntary fire department were taken to the Trenton Memorial Hospital here yesterday.

Constable Gary Davis, who was suffering pains in his chest, was taken to have x-rays taken. It was found he is suffering from a broken rib. It is not known if the constable broke the rib but he had apparently been suffering pains for some time and did not know what it was. It was reported that the broken rib is not causing him any pain at present until the doctor approves his leaving.

Volunteer Fireman Robert Mitts was taken to the hospital suffering from an attack of appendicitis. It is expected he will undergo surgery.

NEWSPRINT USE LEAPS

NEW-YORK (AP)—The newsprint information committee said Wednesday that newsprint consumption in the United States is likely to set a high this year. Consumption figures at midyear indicated more than 7,000,000- tons will be used in 1959 if the present level of business activity continues.

Ask Council To Dedication

TRENTON — Members of the town council were invited to attend the special ceremonies of the Trenton I.O.O.F. on August 9th at the Evergreen Cemetery.

It, will be Memorial Day for the lodge group and on that day they will dedicate the new entrance to the cemetery.

In a letter to the council by W. T. Wilson the recording secretary of the group the council was informed that the lodge has beautified the entrance with flowers, shrubs and grass edged with a curbing. They also have erected a statue of Christ with outstretched arms and a cairn listing the names of the different members of the I.O.O.F. who have been laid to rest there.

The councillors instructed the town clerk to write a letter to the group informing them they would name the councillors who will be attending at a later date.

'Pied Piper' Suggested for Skunk Control

TRENTON — Apparently skunks in Trenton will be quite safe as long as they stay on private property and the owner is not available to give consent to the town employees.

A letter from Burtons Sanitation, pest control firm informed the town council that they cannot go on private property to exterminate skunks unless they have the owners consent — and skunks don't very often stay in one place too long.

It was disclosed that the skunks on the east side of the river and the south section of are centred around a barn owned by Charlie Hilton, a former councillor.

When this was disclosed Councillor Lloyd Worrall asked, "Is there anything around Hilton's place attracting them?" "I guess they have a good home there," answered the town engineer.

Councillor Lloyd Wease, with a smile suggested he be turned loose on the cats. And Councillor Vaga Lange added, "What we need is the Pied Piper."

However the council was informed that the company would either get the skunks or gas them but there was still the problem of the odor from the decomposing bodies once the skunks took the poison.

"It's a big thing to get into," suggested one councillor and no decision has been taken at the council meeting.

CAN STEEL FIRMS

"We're concentrating now on negotiations and making negotiations result that won't result in employment and increases."

The interviewer was curious how Blough could go along with a 1956 contract when, as he said, "you're in negotiations in 1956—the last negotiations—yet is talking at anything similar now.

"I think the steel industry as it was a very expensive contract", he said.

Blough figures the 1956 contract meant an ultimate 82-cent-an-hour labor cost increase, or a raise of about $1,600 for each steelworker over a three-year period. The union has taken the cost at much less and has offered in vain to settle again on the 1956 increase basis.

WANTS LEEWAY

The U.S. Steel chief said his industry also needs greater leeway to cut costs to end what he described as wasteful manpower and production practices. The union has resisted this on the ground it would result in hardships for individual workers.

Extensive Highway Work Underway in Kingston Area

Good weather during the past few weeks has allowed the Department of Highways of Ontario to push ahead with the projects it now has underway, some of which are nearing completion in the Kingston area.

Biggest job in the Kingston district is the 10-mile stretch of Highway 401 from the Joyceville sideroad to Gananoque. Half the project is now complete, with the Joyceville sideroad to the Leeds County Line, and the other half will be finished soon. Paving has been finished for a few days and the finishing touches are all that remain.

The Harvey Construction Co. Ltd. of Kingston, has been working from the sideroad to the county line and the H. J. McFarland Construction Company Limited, of Picton, is working from the county line to Gananoque. The eastern end of the new section was let later than the Harvey job.

From Gananoque east, the Harvey Construction Company is rebuilding the south lane of Highway 401 to Brockport and the Glen Lawrence Construction Company, Limited, Picton, is working on the south lane from Brockport to Long Beach, near Brockville, where a bridge is being built over Highway 401 on Highway 29.

From Long Beach, work is in progress on the bridge carrying it north of Brockville to Edward Street in Prescott.

Recently, a crew from the Peacock-McQuigge Limited, of Toronto, was engaged by the department for grading, culverts and bridges on a new section of Highway 401 from Highway 38 about three miles west of Kingston, to Colborne, a distance of about eight miles. Two bridges are included in the contract, one over Collins Creek and one over Milhaven Creek.

When the Highway 38-Odessan section and the new sections east of Kingston are completed, a clear run of nearly 70 miles of highway 401 will have been completed in the Kingston district, in addition to the section from Marysville to Brighton finished a year ago.

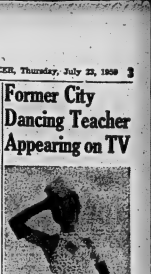
WILL OPEN THIS YEAR

Work is now going on on the stretch from Brighton to the eastern end of Highway 401 by the Newmanville and Newcastle, and the section from Newcastle to Port Hope will be open this year.

Work is also in progress this summer on Highway 2 from Kingston to Napanee, widening the ditches and shoulders in an effort to reduce the danger of collision on that heavily-travelled portion of the road.

From Napanee to the main Canadian National Railway tracks on Highway 502, work is under way by the Gerald Company Limited, of Bancroft. O'Shaughnessy Construction The firm is rebuilding nearly a mile of the highway. It is anticipated that work will be finished this fall.

The H. J. McFarland firm has been awarded a contract for reconstruction of parts of Highway 2 east of Kingston. The contract includes improvement of the junction of Highways 15 and 2 at Barriefield and through Barriefield camp; extension of the culvert under Highway 2 at Eastview, about reconstruction and straightening 12 miles east of Kingston, and ing of the highway from the Gananoque gravel east nearly two miles to Gander Creek.



Other work, mainly by Peacock-McQuigge Limited, of Toronto, was grading for the department for grading, culverts and bridges on a new section of Highway 401 from Highway 38 about three miles west of Kingston, to Colborne, a distance of about eight miles. Two bridges are included in the contract, one over Collins Creek and one over Milhaven Creek.

When the Highway 38-Odessan section and the new sections east of Kingston are completed, a clear run of nearly 70 miles of highway 401 will have been completed in the Kingston district, in addition to the section from Marysville to Brighton finished a year ago.

Work is now going on on the stretch from Brighton to the eastern end of Highway 401 by the Newmanville and Newcastle, and the section from

— A STRANGE ATTITUDE

We don't know anything about Dr. Robert Asher, except that he resides in London, England, and as far as we are concerned we hope that he continues to make his home there.

In our book, he got the week-long annual meeting of the Canadian and British Medical Association away to a rocky start when he delivered a paper in the course of which he contended that the public should not be permitted to learn from any source about new treatments for diseases. Dr. Asher contended that the public thinks that any new treatment reported in newspapers and magazines is bound to be effective, just because human, there must be some cases in which it is in the patient's best interest that he lose confidence in his physician.

As for Dr. Asher's contention that, it being impossible to achieve the ideal of keeping all information from the public, what information is given should be confined to "helpful and cheering" news, we do not trust ourselves to comment.

That misleading newspaper reports of treatments or, more often, unduly optimistic interpretations of these reports by readers frequently cause serious considerable trouble, we do not for one moment doubt. On the other hand, we do not think that the outlook for a real improvement in public health measures would be very bright unless the general public had some conception of the problems which confront health officials.

There are numerous organizations, including among their sponsors eminent members of the medical profession, which have been formed for no other purpose than to disseminate the facts, gloomy as well as cheering, about some particular disease and to enlist the help of the general public in fighting it. Dr. Asher's outlook on the role of information in the realm of health problems seems to us woefully outdated.

DOCTOR, DID YOU FORGET YOUR HAT?

The statement by Dr. H. B. Hilton, associate secretary of the Canadian Medical Protective Association, that during the last few years Canadian surgeons have left no fewer than 76 articles inside patient's bodies after operations will shock most Canadians, all of whom have either been patients or are potential patients in surgical operations.

To place the statement in the proper perspective, we should accept Dr. Hilton's observation that the number of cases where articles were lost was small in comparison with the number of operations performed.

There remain, however, several questions which need to be asked and to which the public is entitled to answers.

One or two cases in which sponges or other articles were left inside a patient's body have received wide publicity, as the result of lawsuits. What happened in the other six-dozen cases?

Were 76 different surgeons involved? Or were there "repeaters" and if there were "repeaters" what if anything, did the Canadian Medical Association do about it?

Did any surgeon mislay more than one article in one operation?

Since hospital staffs play a major role in assisting the surgeon to keep track of sponges and instruments, were the 76 articles mislaid in 76 different hospitals, or were there "repeaters" among the hospitals and, if so, were the same staff members in the operating room?

Finally, how about some statistics showing the number of articles left in patients' bodies in operations in other countries? Is there any great difference in the incidence of this type of accident in different countries? If so, and if the incidence is higher in Canadian hospitals, why is this so? And what, in any event, can be done to make the number of such oversights smaller?

YOUR BEST

By EDGAR A. GUEST

If you have done your level best
You need not fear to look behind.
At night, in peace, you'll sink to rest;
Untroubled then will be your mind.
It will not matter then to you
Whether you've lost your fight or won,
If looking back you do not view
A lot of things you might have done.

If you have done your level best
Your yesterdays will all be sweet.
Your thoughts will never be distressed.
You will not whimper at defeat.

There is no shame in failure when You've nobly fought and nobly tried.
Your yesterdays are splendid then
You need not view them with regret.

If you can look back where you've trod
And see no reason for regret,
Then forward you may bravely
plod;
Your past is not a present
debt.
You need not fear your yesterdays
When you're sure time of test;
The world will speak of you with praise
If you have done your level best.

They Love Their Work

Montreal Gazette

Would you go on working if you didn't have to?

It is an interesting question. The Harvard Business Review conducted a survey with this question, among executives in the United States, it received a remarkable answer. Ninety per cent of those replied that they would go on working. More than this, a big majority (78 per cent) of those who said they would not even wish to change to another job. They would go on working at the jobs they have, even if they had no longer any financial need to do so.

The result of this survey is of interest in itself. But it may indicate something else. The very fact that these executives would go on working, even if they no longer needed the money, would seem to indicate why they became executives.

They take pleasure in their work for its own sake. They even, as more than three-quarters of them say, have much satisfaction in their jobs that they would not change.

No doubt a main reason for success and achievement is the pleasure that is found in the job. A pleasure. These men, who rose to be good executives, accomplished it's are not clinging to them simply because they fear loss of income. They would prefer to go on working, any way.

It might seem that some of the figures given in another part of the Harvard Business Review's survey are contradictory. For while 90 per cent of executives would stay with their jobs, even if they no longer had to, 78 per cent would like to have more time for non-business activities.

But there is really no contradiction here. A person who has found his work to be play is the very person who wishes that there were more hours in the day for play. He finds that play the very reverse of the bored attitude toward play of the man weary with his work, and would probably make a bored and dissatisfied boss at golf.

It was also found that the desires of executives were theoretical, rather than real. The trend for shorter hours has tended to cause disservice in general. Most executives were found to be putting in long hours, even though they often had authority to shorten their hours, if they wished.

The survey puts this contrast. The Harvard Review says:

"The main reason why the executive works long hours is not because of his office politics no clear-cut distinctions between work and leisure. As we have seen, the executive enjoys his work. What he may not realize clearly himself is the degree to which his work is psychologically a game which we would ordinarily associate with voluntary, carefree, and leisurely pursuits."

The Harvard Business Review also suggests that the immediate emphasis being placed on leisure by the western world will in time, change executive attitudes also. Yet the influence may not be great.

For one thing, automation, the great giver of modern leisure, can scarcely have much effect upon the type of work the executive does. On the contrary, the increasing complexity of modern life may bring greater pressure on executive level.

More than this, an executive is not made by his preference for leisure, but by his pleasure in work. The primary need in a good executive is to make, to weigh and to distinguish between work and play.

In an earlier survey made by the Harvard Business Review, one of the executive executives in American replied: "My job's my game, and I'm happiest when I'm at it."

It is not likely that this attitude will change, or even undergo change. The executives may use different words, but they will think the same thing about their work.

As one in this most recent survey says: "My real fun is in actually doing a job and finishing it." Or as another (the president of an Iowa manufacturing firm) says: "Working is fun, and the main part, of living. If it is the main reason for living . . . Real living means to build, to create, to solve problems.

These executives would like to have leisure, too. But they would like to have it in addition to their work, not as a substitute for it. This, perhaps, is the highest tribute that can be paid to executives from a job habit-done. They are not in the market for trading their work a-day for leisure. They feel that in that kind of bargaining, they would be the losers. For they would be losing the very thing that has given them their greatest satisfaction.

Strictly Personal

It Is Best To Tolerate Small Mistakes

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Purely Personal Prejudices: Mistakes cannot be made in good publicity so that they can build up a supply of "reputation credit" in order to do evil privately.

One of the paradoxes of education is that it is often easier to live within a smaller income than on a larger one; once developed, a taste for luxuries tends to overwhelm the means of securities.

Any man, given enough time and experience, can do anything but one; a genius can write nonsense that will live.

An executive who cannot tolerate small mistakes in his subordinates will never progress to any great achievements; employees who are afraid of little lapses never participate in the imagination

One of the few wise things Lord Chesterfield said is that otherwise trivial letters to his son always began: "When you have found out the prevailing passion of any man, remember never trust him where that passion is concerned."

Why are we "upbraided" but never "downbraided"?

When a funny remark lingers in the mind for a long time, examine it for a hidden truth; the "funniest" are truly incisive pierces to the core of human reality.

One of the most important lesson of all is the one it is impossible to put across or even to suggest, because that the way into trouble is ridiculously easy, and the way out is inconceivably hard.

If we wait until all the facts are in, we shall never make an effective decision; like that brilliant historian, Lord Acton, who left an entire lifetime collecting material for his "History of Human Liberty," and died without writing it.

When an idea cannot be expressed in a simple statement, it is usually a bad idea, or not an idea at all — usually a feeling.

Nobody is less capable of telling his own story than the great artistic writer; consider Carlyle, who wrote 37 lengthy volumes of prose to tell the story of his life.

Some persons are so insecure that they hate and fear their friends who are inferior to them in order to bolster their own fatuous ego.

Debt shortens a life, psychologically as well as physically; for, when in debt, the months fly by like weeks.

One of Obstacles

Ottawa Citizen

According to Correspondent Charles Kuyk, Jr., Chicago, Prince Philip had to leave the Montreal civic ball during the dancing because spectators crowded too close and didn't give the prince a chance to enjoy her own party. Until we grow up a bit, this is going to be one of the obstacles to the popular goal of having the Queen "meet the people."

"The amount is unimportant - - - I just like to borrow money."

HEYBURN, SASK.

This city got the fastest start of any settlement in the west. On April 7, 1929, J. A. Mitchell, Hon. Minister of Railways, arrived and promptly opened proceedings. A blacksmith shop and Fred Smith a carpenter shop. The next day P. E. Heyburn arrived and opened a general store. Two days later J. A. Knowling opened a lumber yard.

Tradition says the origin of the city's name was "Wee Burn." But it was actually named for a man and not a stream, brother-in-law of the contractor who graded the CPR Soo line.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

ARTHRITIS IN RARE INSTANCES, ATTACKS THE VERY YOUNG

"Dear Dr. Molner: Have you ever heard of arthritis in a child 5 years old? The doctors first thought my young son might have rheumatic fever but after three weeks in a hospital they called it chronic arthritis. Now he will have his tonsils removed but our pediatrician feels this won't help. He thinks the condition would be looked into further after the tonsils are removed.

"Of course this has us quite upset. The doctor says don't worry just be concerned. He feels we are taking it too seriously. — Mrs. T. D. M."

First, arthritis in a child of 5 is scarcer than frostbite in July — but it can happen. Somewhere, and under the proper (or unhappily improper) conditions.

By this remark I don't mean that you've done anything wrong, or that you haven't taken care of this little fellow properly. We don't know enough about arthritis to say what causes it and I have no doubt at all that some cases are the result of causes just as unavoidable. Focal infection, or chemia, for example, strikes a few children but does not touch most of them.

Yes, arthritis, in rare instances, attacks the very young — rheumatoid arthritis or Still's Disease.

I can see very clearly why your doctor first suspected rheumatic fever. Under the circumstances, I would have suspected the same thing, because, in many cases, the aching joints would predominate as symptoms.

Rheumatoid arthritis has an acute or severe period, then leaves an aftermath which varies in degree, it sometimes lasts for life.

The tonsils are usually infected in this case, may or may not be at fault — but since they are infected they should be removed, as the doctor has done, as they are a source of infection.

Your pediatrician obviously is a wise and careful man. He knows better than to be too hopeful that the tonsils are the cause, or are the sole cause, of the trouble — then bad tonsils could be named for the "cause and contributing evils." Yet plenty of bad tonsils do not cause it. Follow me?

As to the boy himself, don't worry, just be concerned". I can see some sense in his "taking it" matter how much, won't help you or the child one bit.

Yes, be concerned", meaning that you care, and will do what needs to be done, as the need becomes apparent, is very important.

Care? Yes! Of course! But worry? No! Have I helped you at all? I do hope I have.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I need information on arthritis and to get a drug store to cure a spreading fungus infection on my leg. — L. D."

You'll perhaps think I'm being unfair, but I can really not. The only thing I can suggest that you can get at a drug store for this is the name of a reliable dermatologist "skin specialist," and let him do the treating for you. Yes, you have a financial problem; but you "also live in the same city with one of the finest medical schools in this country.

I'd suggest that you get in touch with the head of the dermatology section and see if there isn't some clinic to which you can go for the care you need.

Afflicted with arthritis? You may find relief if you follow the advice given in my pamphlet, "Don't Quit Because of Arthritis". Bog Farming In Stormont

Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

The Moose Creek area in Stormont, Stormont county appears to be in for unprecedented expansion and prosperity because of the purchase of Mr. Gregory Javitch are realized. Mr. Javitch, a Russian Mennonite farmer with similar projects to his credit at Alfred, Ont., and Hespeler, Ont. Ottawa, currently is developing a large area of bad land in which the Moose Creek will be the most productive tract of soil between the Montreal province and Winnipeg. The land is situated about four miles long and 1,000 feet wide and currently is in the initial phases of a two-year program which will see some 5,000 acres devoted to vegetable and pasture farming.

Next year, plans call for about 300 to be employed on the tract of land on which the latest methods of scientific farming will be applied with a high measure of success. According to Mr. Javitch, there will be an increase to 1,200 when the hitherto useless bog land has been fully developed and exploited. At that time, it is expected that many more specialty plants will be established to handle the flow of produces.

As to the bog land, Javitch is getting under way is estimated to be the largest in Canada, and will be comparable to the famous Holland Marsh in Ontario regarding extent and fertility. In connection with the Moose Creek bog project Javitch is being assisted by agricultural experts whose findings and work to date support his contention that the Moose Creek bog land can be developed into a highly productive vegetable growing area. Experimental plantings to date have shown excellent results, a fact which augurs well for the high hopes Mr. Javitch has for the success of his newest large-scale vegetable growing venture.

Backbreaking, made possible by the amazing accomplishments of scientific farming, holds great possibilities for the Moose Creek area in particular and Stormont and Dundas in general. If the anticipated results are realized, this section of Stormont county should grow and develop in leaps and bounds. The possibilities are indeed exciting for all concerned.

ODD CHARACTERS

Odd people are usually annoying. We find it so when we encounter them socially or in family relationships. Humanity has as a rule always been annoyed by oddities and has frequently given them rough treatment.

Yet, these oddities very often give us our most precious truths. The World's teachers were regarded by many as two idiots trying to do something which, if successful, they would not see was impossible. I, personally, have found years ago that Albert Einstein with his theory of relativity was largely looked upon as a madman. Fifty years before that Pasteur had set off a roar of laughter in medical circles by claiming that disease was caused by particles too small to be seen, but known as germs. He was warned that if he tried his antiseptic methods he would be hanged as a murderer.

There will always be oddities in the human race. Some of them need to be sent to insane asylums. Others need to be dismissed with a smile. But there are some who are God's great carriers of profound and eternal truth.

Be careful in your judgments.

St. Thomas Times-Journal

Nowadays anybody who is relaxed has a right to be nervous

SCRAP THREE CANALLERS

PORT WELLER (CP)—Three canallers formerly attached to the fleet of Upper Lakes Shipping are to be scrapped at Port Weller Dry Docks. The Greenlake, Parkdale and Skelton Weed are to be brought here from Toronto and put to the torch by employees of A. Newman and Company, St. Catharines.

ANOTHER ALBINO

WELLAND (CP)—For the second successive year, a pure white albino fawn has been born in the deer herd at the chemical plant enclosure near here. Since albinos are usually shunned by other deer and are not as strong, the white fawn has been adopted by Roy Arbuthnot of St. Catharines.

Fully-equipped patrol boats such as this one are used by the RCMP's special unit, which enforces the small vessels regulations of the Canada Shipping Act. The boat is towed behind a squad car with a trailer, enabling the unit to move rapidly from one lake to another, checking up on the pleasure craft in the area.

Here a local pleasure craft is stopped in Belleville harbor as a spot check is made on the safety equipment and registration of the boat by the RCMP unit, which visited the area yesterday. Owners and operators of unlicensed boats or inadequately equipped boats are liable to prosecution under the provisions of the Canada Shipping Act.

RCMP Mobile Unit Checking Watercraft in Quinte Area

A special Royal Canadian Mounted Police unit was in the Bay of Quinte area yesterday checking watercraft to see if they were properly licensed and equipped as provided for under the small vessel regulations of the Canada Shipping Act. The unit provides for certain craft to be adequately equipped with life jackets, ballers, oars or paddles, and fire extinguishers.

The owner and the operator of any watercraft which does not meet the safety regulations may be charged under the act. Most people operating boats today are aware of the regulations in effect according to one of the RCMP constables in the two - man unit. Charges are still fairly frequent, however, as people fail to meet the regulations.

The RCMP unit, of which there are seven operating in Ontario, consists of two constables, a car, a boat trailer, a boat and motor. This portable unit goes from one boating area to another, checking up on the watercraft in the district. Besides these units the regular RCMP detachments also handle the same work locally.

Every outboard motorboat must carry the following equipment if it is under 18 feet in length: an approved standard lifejacket or lifesaving cushion for every person on board; two oars and rowlocks or two paddles, one bailer or manual pump; a Class B1 fire extinguisher; if equipped with an inboard engine, built-in fuel tanks, or a cooking or heating appliance which uses liquid or gaseous fuel. The same regulations apply to craft between 18 feet and 26 feet in length with the exception that an anchor with not less than 50 feet of cable, rope, or chain may be carried as an alternative to oars or paddles.

A pleasure craft between 26 and 49 feet in length must be equipped with: an approved small vessel life jacket for each person on board; one approved 30-inch diameter lifebuoy or two approved 20 to 24-inch diameter lifebuoys; one buoyant heaving line at least 50 feet in length; one bailer plus one manual or power - driven bilge pump; twelve red flares in a watertight compartment; one anchor with at least fifty feet of rope, cable, or chain; one Class B1 fire extinguisher; and sufficient lights and sound signalling apparatus to comply with the regulations set out by the department. This information and many other useful facts concerning the proper operation of watercraft are contained in a booklet "Safety Afloat" which is available from the local RCMP office or the Canadian Customs office, where boats are registered.

Any craft over 16 feet in length must be registered or, if it is powered by a 10-horsepower or larger outboard motor the length of the boat does not matter — registration is automatically required. This may be done, free of charge, at the local Canada Customs office.

Hasty-Pees Still Seeking Radio Outfit

The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment is still searching for a trace of a portable two-way radio set which disappeared from the Armouries during a recent Civil Defence exercise. No response has come from an advertisement offering $50 for either its return or information leading to the recovery of the piece of equipment.

One call was received from an anonymous source just prior to the recent advertising.

It was indicated that the set would be found in a ditch on the south side of Station Street leading to the CNR roundhouse. A thorough four-hour search was made of the area without any sign of the radio being found.

The set is small, 16 inches long by seven inches wide by six inches deep, and is covered with an olive drab canvas case with a microphone, an earpiece and a collapsible antenna contained in pockets on the case. It weighs about four pounds and is known as a No. 38 wireless set.

The set is useless by itself having a range of only 1½ miles and being powered by batteries which are especially made only for the government.

Lt.-Col. Angus Duffy, commanding officer of the regiment, has stated that he would like to make contact with the anonymous caller and double check as to the area in which the set was supposed to be. No charges will be laid said Lt. Col. Duffy, who feels that the set's disappearance may be attributed to children taking it off to play with it.

Fur to Feature New Coats, Tough on Hubbies, Animals

By STEWART MacLEOD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Another of the Queen's dress makers is going to lead the ladies back to fur-trimmed, fur-lined and all-fur coats next winter.

Hardy Amies made the first move in this direction Tuesday, and Wednesday Norman Hartnell had five of his ninty models show off the greatest collection of fur-trimming since the war.

Now that these two big names in British fashions have committed themselves to furs it's almost certain to be a rough season on animals and husbands.

Unlike Amies, who went in for a tighter-fitting, full-length overcoats, Hartnell has brought back ¾-length coats, with most of them hanging straight down from the shoulders. In all cases, the neck is wide with emphasis on ball-up shoulders.

Hartnell's skirts come down two inches below the knee—slightly longer than Amies'.

Jackets by Hartnell are exceptionally long—sometimes reaching below the hipbone. The waist is back in its rightful position.

Apart from the return of fur, fashion experts in London say this is a good year for low-budget dressing. Apparently many of the new designs can be worked into existing clothes with a bit of remodelling.

Furs favored are mink, beaver, ocelot and bright fur called cherry red fox.

Anyone Can Bake A Fresh Berry Pie

by Mary Moore

Would-be pie makers will bless me today, although the credit should go to the research home economist.

Dinner Menus

by Mary Moore

THURSDAY: (Tuesia)

Baked Picnic Shoulder with Spiced Peaches; Escalloped Potatoes and Mint Onions; Baby Limas; Cabbage and Pineapple Slaw; Angel Icebox Dessert (see Monday—reduce amounts by ½ or 1/3); Coffee.

SUNDAY

Roast Beef; Horseradish Cream; Brown Gravy; Corn Fritters (see Tuesday); Shredded Green Beans with Almonds; Cucumber Angle with Tomato Garnish; Continental Mint Ice Cream (see Friday); Chocolate Wafers; Coffee.

So many young cooks, early in the game, are squeamish about getting their hands into dough or other food mixes. If you have two eyes and two hands to push a rolling pin you can make a berry pie to compete with the best, without even getting flour on your hands.

FRESH BERRY PIE

I used blueberries — but this recipe may be used for strawberries and raspberries too, except strawberry pie is baked at 425 deg. Fahr. for 40 minutes.

Minute magic pastry (see below); 4 cups fresh berries; 3 tablespoons corn starch; 7/8 to 1 cup granulated sugar; 6 shakes salt; 1/2 teaspoon grated lemon rind; 2 teaspoons lemon juice.

MINUTE MAGIC PASTRY

for a double-crust pie —

2 1/3 cups once-sifted pastry flour; 1 teaspoon salt; 1/2 cup corn oil; 1/4 cup water.

Combine sifted pastry flour and salt in mixing bowl. Combine exactly level measurements of corn oil and water; add to dry ingredients all at once. Stir briskly with a fork until pie paste will cling to fork and come away from sides of bowl. Halve paste. Place one half on a sheet of waxed paper which has been sealed to working surface by dampening table lightly, this prevents paper from slipping during the rolling process. Cover with a second sheet of waxed paper and roll out pastry. Peel off top sheet of waxed paper. Invert pie plate over pastry; turn and fit pastry into pie plate. Peel off second sheet of waxed paper. Trim edges.

FILLING

Pick over, wash, drain and slice, if necessary, sufficient berries of your choice to yield 4 cups. Sprinkle with corn starch, granulated sugar, salt, lemon rind and lemon juice; combine well. Turn fruit mixture into prepared pie plate and cover with second half of rolled-out pie paste. Trim, turn under and crimp edges to make a firm seal. Deeply prick top of pie to allow steam to escape. Bake all fruit pies except strawberry in a hot oven (425 deg. Fahr.) 10 minutes, then reduce to 375 deg. Fahr. and continue to bake until filling is cooked and pastry golden — about 40 minutes longer.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Leonard R. — If I can pay for the gas I should be allowed to use the car.

Mr. G. R. — Are we to put the car at his girl's disposal?

Leonard R. — I am 17 and have dated a girl a year younger for the past seven months. My father now wants to break this up because he says she demands too much time.

I have a summer job and I'm earning good money. I feel I have a right to go out and enjoy myself on my own money after a hard day's work. My girl, Julie, also has a summer job and wants to go out as often as possible.

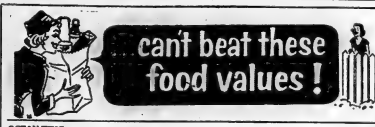
I think that as long as I can pay for the gas I should be allowed to use the car. My parents have priority of course, but they hardly ever use it anyway. My father would rather see the car rot than let me use it.

Mr. G. R. — Our arguments have been very bitter and my wife says she feels caught between us, not knowing whose side to take.

I simply don't think that earning his own salary entitles a boy to every privilege. The fact that he is able to earn enough money to put himself through a yearly state college has given him a swelled head. But fresh as he is with us, his girl can step all over him. I know for a fact that he has often been too tired to work but she'll take him into camp time.

Are we supposed to put our car at this girl's disposal? I don't want to be unfair — but there are limits!

The Council: The car frequently becomes the focal point of family battles with far deeper implications. All too often the car is the last stronghold of the parents' authority. The adolescent may bitterly resent this remaining symbol of his dependence on his parents.



It would be far better for parents to shift the argument to the real issues. Apparently Leonard understands that his parents do not really begrudge him the use of the car. They are concerned about his relationship with his girl friend. They are fearful of this girl's growing power over him.

Perhaps it would help Leonard and his parents to realize that his problem is typical and is of growing concern to psychologists and educators. Young men hardly have the opportunity to get out of their swaddling clothes before they are eagerly embraced by a forceful young lady with a clear - cut picture of what she wants out of life. One of the things she wants is a reliable husband. This may be all to her credit, but it is hard on the young men who must become reliable husbands before they have attained full status as men.

It is doubtful whether it is right or possible to run down any of these young ladies in the eyes of their admirers. Perhaps it would be better to try to direct the young man's eyes to the many possibilities the world holds for him if he is willing to be a purposeful human being who knows his own mind. Leonard should be aware that girls will not shun him if he refuses to accommodate himself to their demands. On the contrary, they will respect him more.

We believe that if Leonard thinks about it seriously he will find that there are many things he would like to do with his hard-earned money and his precious time. We're all for plenty of social activities for young people, but not at the sacrifice of every other interest.

Hardy Amies Wants Women To Look Glamorous Again

By STEWART MacLEOD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — In blistering 85-degree temperatures, four chic models strapped themselves in furs Tuesday and showed how Hardy Amies wants women to dress next winter.

The girls, walking with starched smiles under the hot glow of television lights, gave 112 women and four perspiring men a glimpse of the dressmaker's desire for a return to furs, dark colors and clean, clear lines.

Amies says: "It's time women looked fabulous and glamorous again after the lean years."

First of all, he puts the waist back exactly where nature intended. And, as he says himself, there is "more shaping, especially in front."

DARK COLORS

With these innovations, he dresses his models in dark overcoats of black and brown. Most collars are trimmed with fur, some with velvet. There is a definite tendency toward wider, sloping shoulders.

Many overcoats have matching suits or dresses that featured long sleeves, low collars, and loose but shapely waists.

Skirts, described as shortish are about an inch below the knees.

Practically every hat worn with the creations are pillbox style.

In many respects Amies has developed his styles along the lines that Italian creators brought out earlier.

Other London designers will show their stuff later this week and then Paris will have its turn.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

IMPORTANT HOW YOU SAY YOUR VACATION "HOW DO YOU DO"

You are on your vacation. You are being introduced. The way you acknowledge an introduction is the very first manners-impression you will make on the person to whom you are being introduced. And, naturally, that first impression is extremely important. It is the telltale of your social quality, of your manners know-how.

It's easy to remember . . . and you must remember . . . that the always correct acknowledgement of an introduction is "How do you do." It's a comfort to know that you never need to make an effort to "think up" any other reply. Just accept those four little words and make up your mind to say them with all possible grace of manner, charm of voice.

If you wish to be considered a charming person, then vacation-time, when you are meeting new people, is a good time, an excellent opportunity, to observe how charming people say "How do you do." Notice the grace with which they say the words. Notice the pleasant tone of voice, the friendly warmth that seems to make those pedestrian words walk joyously on tiptoe.

To give your "How do you do" an added attraction, get the habit of listening alertly to catch the name of the person being introduced, and add it to your "How do you do." Remember how pleased and proud you yourself are, when a person has the grace to remember your name and to use it with grace.

Meet the wonderful challenge of that first impression . . . say your "How do you do" with such delightful manner that the next-to-come-in-your-life will think, "Here's a charming person indeed . . . here's someone I'd very much like to know!" To make that fine first impression is an important step on the pathway to friendship . . . perhaps, who knows, on the shining pathway to romance!

There can be magic in those four little words . . . "How do you do."

SPECIAL FORM OF NAME FOR DIVORCEE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Very soon I will be receiving my final divorce papers, and, like several divorcees I know, I'm puzzled about what form of name I should use, or correctly may use, after the divorce. Several divorcees I know use the form "Mrs. Margaret Smith." But this form I just refuse to use, because to me it looks and sounds hick.

My problem is that for several special reasons, I should like to indicate my first name while also using my maiden surname and my ex-husband's surname. Have you any suggestion as to how this could possibly, and correctly, be done? — Divorcee-to-be

Yes. It is permissible, correct, for a divorcee who, like you, wishes to suggest her first name, but doesn't wish to use the first name in full, to use the initial of her first name. Like this: Mrs. M. Blake Smith. For example, you would correctly sign a business or professional letter, or a letter to someone who must be informed of your formal name to use in replying to the letter, like this:

Sincerely yours,
Margaret Blake Smith
(Mrs. M. Blake Smith)

SIGNS FOR LEADING ROLE — Rae Shagory, 20-year-old Edmonton girl, is to play a leading role in the 20th Century-Fox film "Cleopatra." Miss Shagory, whose stage name is Desiree Sumarra, spent most of her childhood in northern Canadian outposts and had no formal training in drama before she went to Hollywood. She was discovered in Montreal last winter and has appeared on Broadway and on television. (CP Photo) (Goertz Studio).

Edmonton Girl Signed For Role in Cleopatra

EDMONTON (CP)—Rae Shagory, 20, an Edmonton girl who had no formal drama training before she went to Hollywood, has been signed to play a leading role in the 20th Century Fox film Cleopatra.

Miss Shagory, whose stage name is Desiree Sumarra, holidaying at her home here, said she was excited and thrilled when she first reached Hollywood. "But," she added, "I am beginning to feel more at home there now."

Having had no formal training in drama, she has a busy schedule. Her daily activities include a drama class, a dance class, auditions, interviews.

Miss Shagory, a green - eyed brunette, spent most of her childhood in isolated northern Canadian outposts, and was named after Fort Rae in the Northwest Territories where her father managed a trading post for 30 years.

She and her parents—Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Shagory—moved to Edmonton when Rae was 10. She attended school here before getting into show business as a singer and dancer.

She was discovered while dancing in Montreal last winter by Henry Wilson, her present manager. He asked her to take a screen test for 20th Century Fox.

Since being "discovered," Miss Shagory appeared on several television shows in New York. In the spring she appeared in the Broadway show World of Suzie Wong.

Embroidery For Churches Her Hobby

VANCOUVER (CP) — A Vancouver woman has an interesting hobby—church embroidery.

Mrs. Margaret Guthrie studied this ancient and rare art at the Churchwomen's Arts and Crafts School in Kensington, London.

"I was trained to earn a living at it," she said. "Since I married and came to Canada to live I have made it a hobby."

Included in the articles she has embroidered are vestments in use at St. James' Anglican church here.

Church embroidery is different from other kinds because regular ecclesiastical designs, all of which have specific meaning, must be followed.

"There are also specific colors for the different seasons and occasions," she said.

A special type of frame is used for church embroidery. Sometimes when a special design is needed, it is worked separately and then mounted.

Huge Alberta Power Project Will Start Ten Years Early So as to Meet Water Needs

EDMONTON (CP) — Construction of the Brazeau River hydro development is being pushed ahead 10 years to attract industry along the North Saskatchewan River and to reduce downstream pollution, the province's chief electrical engineer said.

Calgary Power Limited and Alberta government officials have announced that work on the project will begin immediately. The site of the dam and powerhouse will be on the Brazeau River about 100 miles southwest of here.

The Brazeau flows into the North Saskatchewan. It represents about 25 per cent of the flow of the North Saskatchewan at Edmonton, and the Brazeau development has been found to be one of the best ways of coping with the need for a larger water supply for industry and the pollution problem associated with low water levels during winter.

A. W. Howard, general manager of the province, said the company — chief producer of power in the province—had not intended "to develop the Brazeau site until the demand for power had grown sufficiently to justify its initial high cost," about 1970. PLANS EXPLAINED

The company is going ahead with the project now because the provincial government considers that a reservoir to catch spring and summer run-off would assist industry and relieve the pollution problem on the North Saskatchewan, he said.

D. A. Hansen, the company's general sales manager, said more industries and communities will be able to establish themselves along the banks of the North Saskatchewan "if backed by an adequate water supply once a spidly developing market area."

Work on the project will take about four years. The plant's first unit will provide some peak capacity in late autumn of 1963. "There would be only a limited amount of water available to increase the flow of the North Saskatchewan during the winter of 1963-64 because the reservoir will not be filled completely.

A full reservoir, however, would be available the following winter.

The power from the plant would be for peak loads which occur in the winter months, the company said. The water stored in the reservoir would be used for the generation of power and simultaneously "to augment approximately five times the natural winter flow of the North Saskatchewan through Edmonton and downstream of the site."

TO BUILD ROAD

Agriculture Minister A. C. Halmrast said the government has agreed to build an access road to the dam-site. It will run about 20 miles west of Lodgepole, in the Pembina oil field south-west of Edmonton.

Company engineers have carried out investigations of the site for the last two years. Their investigations included stream flow studies, topographical surveys, drilling and soil testing.

Except for tracked vehicles, access to the site during the summer is impossible because of the muskeg. Helicopters have been used extensively. In winter standard wheeled vehicles are used. WINTER WORK

Initial development and construction will include a 40,000-cubic-yard earth fill dam two miles long, a reservoir in the Brazeau River valley 30 miles long, 200 acre - feet of usable water storage with an area of 20 square miles.

A 12-mile canal below the dam will divert water to the power house about six miles west of the Brazeau-Nordegg road in Clearwater. The power house will contain initially 200,000 - kilowatt power generating unit.

The company, whose Alberta system now supplies 485,000 horsepower, will be able to expand its capacity at the Brazeau site by at least four times, at a cost of $10,000,000 for each additional 100,000 horsepower unit, including transmission lines.

A section of steel rail protrudes from roof of a CNR passenger train that was derailed near Bronte, Ont., Tuesday. The twisted rail pierced the floor and roof of a coach on the 11-car train, fatally injuring one passenger. Another passenger died of a heart attack and a third was critically injured. Police, photographers and rescue workers are in foreground. The train was bound for Chicago from Toronto. (CP Wirephoto).

Jazz Festival Almost Blew People Out

TORONTO (CP)—Jazz came to Toronto Wednesday night and its first hot breath almost blew more than 5,000 people out of their seats at the Canadian National Exhibition grandstand.

It was the opening concert of the First Canadian Jazz Festival, to continue with afternoon and evening performances for the next three days and bring before the CNE grandstand more than 200 jazz musicians.

Leading off was the Count Basie Orchestra, a comparatively small band with a huge sound.

Following Basie were representatives of almost every school and era of jazz: Gene Krupa, the great drummer of the 1930s, and his trio, trumpeter Dizzy Gillespie the eccentric giant of the be-bop era, with his quintet, Oscar Peterson, a quartet of modern musicians who sing Jazz.

North American Air Defence To Depend on Interceptors Far Into Future - Partridge

OTTAWA (CP) — Gen. Earle Partridge said Wednesday that North American air defence against manned bombers will have to be continued with interceptor planes "as far into the future as I can see."

"You can't send up a missile to see whether an intruder is hostile," he said a press conference. Asked whether he considered the forseeable future as five or 10 years, he replied that it is "much more" than that.

A major task now facing NORAD was to continue its defence against the manned bomber — the Canada-U.S. organization could "give a good account of itself" in this regard—and superimpose on this a warning and defence against missiles, the United States ballistic missile.

The American general, 59-year-old retiring NORAD commander, was here on a farewell visit before turning over his command to Gen. Laurence S. Kuter of the US.

He met with Prime Minister Diefenbaker, Defence Minister Pearkes and Canadian service chiefs. Today he flew to the Canadian air defence command headquarters at St. Hubert, near Montreal.

At one point in his press conference, Gen. Partridge was asked to suggest what role Canada should follow in NORAD when its present CF-100 interceptors—four squadrons of them—become obsolete. He declined.

The United States has ordered supersonic American - designed Lockheed F-104C Starfighters to replace Canada's eight squadrons of Sabre jets, which are older than the CF-100.

The decision, announced several weeks ago, was severely criticized in the Commons by Paul Hellyer, former Liberal associate defence minister. However, Gen. Partridge told reporters Wednesday that the Starfighter is a fine plane for the purpose intended.

Small Homes Mortgage Loans Are Renewed

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has announced renewal as of Sept. 1 of its small-homes mortgage loan program, aimed at popping up housing industry, especially in the winter months.

It evidently has decided to take no chances on winter unemployment in the housing industry, despite this week's encouraging employment figures. But it plans to provide a maximum of 15 loans per builder instead of 25 each as for last year.

In announcing the government decision Wednesday, Prime Minister Diefenbaker said:

"Similar action by the government in 1958 proved an effective weapon in combatting the customary decline in employment which faced the construction industry in the off-season period.

"As a result of the steps taken last year, work was proceeding on the construction of nearly 90,000 houses at the end of 1958 as compared with 72,000 units at the close of the previous year."

Under the renewed program, Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation will begin accepting applications from builders next Monday—for direct government mortgage loans. Up to 15 mortgages, worth a maximum of $12,800 each, will be available to each builder.

The government hopes it will result in 10,000 additional homes.

The Canadian Construction Association welcomed the fact the government announced its plans for early action rather than waiting until September as it did last year.

But President Hugh Mackenzie of Montreal said in a statement issued here that the government's decision to provide only 15 instead of 25 mortgages per builder might well result in "a reduction in housing being built and less wintertime employment being provided than in previous winters.

Auditor-General of Canada, Watson Sellar, Retires Soon

OTTAWA (CP)—Watson Sellar, schooled in printing and law but never in accounting, retires next month as auditor-general of Canada.

In 19 years in that post, answerable only to Parliament and not to any cabinet minister, he has minced no words in criticizing the way in which government departments spent public money.

It was Mr. Sellar who last year touched off a rowdy Commons inquiry by reporting that the Liberal administration had allowed the national printing bureau in suburban Hull to be built in a virtual waterhole, increasing costs to "diseconcerting degree" and $16,000,000.

And it was Mr. Sellar who, just a few months ago, recommended the award of a $964-a-year life pension to a healthy, 50-year-old officer forcibly retired from the RCAF to promote more force economy or efficiency.

Since 1940, when he moved up from comptroller of the treasury to auditor-general, Mr. Sellar has been the watchdog over all expenditures by the government of Canada and has often criticized as he saw fit.

Four years ago he estimated that about 95 per cent of his findings are acted on, 15 per cent ignored, and the remaining 10 per cent are thrown out "because they're wrong."

Next Aug. 6 is Mr. Sellar's 65th birthday, and then he must take his leave. He told reporters Wednesday that after a short holiday, he has no final something to do; "I'm not going to live in retirement."

There has been no word on who will succeed Mr. Sellar in the auditor-general's job. His background experience necessary for the task, it may be, is as assistant auditor - general M. I. Stevenson, one government official said.

Ontario Polio Situation Same As Last Year

TORONTO (CP) — Despite a serious outbreak in the United States, polio is almost at a standstill in Ontario, Dr. F. H. Hardman, provincial epidemiologist, said Wednesday.

Eight cases have been reported in the province, four adults and four children. Two are paralytic.

Dr. Hardman said the situation is "almost the same as last year." In 1958 there were 20 cases reported for the entire year.

Queen and Prince Philip Pay Visit To Saskatchewan Farmer and Wife

TUXFORD, Sask. (CP) — "If you'd just come this way, folks."

It was farmer Carl Wells talking, to the Queen and Prince Philip Wednesday as he conducted them around the barnyard of his 640-acre mixed farm near this small village 70 miles north of Moose Jaw.

Later, in the white farmhouse — it was last painted five years ago—the Queen and Philip had buttered scones, breads, fancy cookies and China tea with Mr. and Mrs. Wells.

"The four of us sat in the front room and we talked with them like we do with all our friends and seemed to enjoy her tea.

who drop in for tea," Mrs. Wells later told reporters.

Farming and children were discussed, she also said, but declined to elaborate, explaining:

"I don't like to repeat what my friends say to me."

Mr. Wells said the Queen and Philip were surprisingly knowledgeable about livestock.

The Wells' three children—Joyce, 22, Stanley, 20, and Kenneth, 8—accompanied their parents and the royal couple around the barnyard.

Mrs. Wells, who bought a new print dress for the occasion, said the Queen didn't seem at all tired

Canadian, American Defence Industries Having Troubles

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canadian defence industries are reported having a little trouble getting a peek behind the United States Navy production curtain.

And some American firms apparently feel they aren't getting a fair shake in competing against Canadian manufacturers in bids for Canadian defence contracts.

American sources said these were some of the problems aired Wednesday at Canada-U.S. defence production talks held here Wednesday. There was no announcement of what went on or what conclusions were reached.

Canadian Embassy officials said the meeting was part of a periodic review of how production — sharing arrangements between the two countries were progressing. In the Canadian team was Dave Golden, deputy minister of defence production.

BREAK FOR CANADA

Three months ago, the U.S. exempted Canadian firms from certain restrictions on the buy-American act. This move put Canadian firms on an equal footing with American companies in bidding on contracts arising from the expenditure of mutual interest to the two countries.

Preliminary American figures showed that in the first nine months of the last fiscal year in the period July, 1958, to March, 1959, American defence orders placed in Canada totalled $41,690,000, compared with the total of $34,630,000 for all the year previous.

Canadian defence orders placed in the U.S. were estimated at $8,000,000 from $29,770,000 in the year previous.

To bid for American orders Canadian defence industries had to know what the American services were buying, and Canada found the American army and air force showed greater willingness than the navy to relax security for Canadian industry inspection teams.

CRASH KILLS THREE

MOUNT MORRIS N.Y. — (AP) — Three persons were killed Wednesday when a helicopter hit high - tension power lines and crashed into the 200 - foot-deep Genesee River gorge. They were searching for an 8-year-old girl reported missing from the home of Dr. Walter H. Biror of Rochester, was found about three hours later.

Family Doctor Is Best Bet For Majority of Patients Medical Convention Is Told

EDINBURGH (CP)—A Saskatchewan general practitioner told British and Canadian doctors today that 90 per cent of patients' illnesses can be treated by the family doctor.

Discussing the Prairie practitioner's viewpoint, Dr. Ian Houston of Yorkton said that a good general practitioner can give better services and get better or equal results than if treatment and diagnostic services are separated.

The Prairie physician put it this way:

Canadian doctors carry out a much wider variety of medical procedures than do their counterparts in the United Kingdom. The whole of the Prairie practitioners is concentrated largely in a hospital and their office. Little time is wasted.

DISEASES FOLIO SHOTS

Wednesday, R. J. Wilson, University of Toronto professor, said Canada's tuberculosis control program still has not reached an adequate number of the country's adults.

He told a preventive medicine session of the joint meeting of the British and Canadian Medical Associations that only 10 to 35 per cent of adults are estimated to have received three doses of antipolio vaccine by last June 30—four years after the start of the immunization program.

Wilson also said the Canadian program for controlling communicable diseases is extremely successful. The emphasis for the last three decades had been on preventive immunization, particularly of infants and children.

In a panel discussion on tuberculosis, professor John Crofton of Edinburgh said an increasing number of elderly men have been afflicted by the disease in the last few years. Dr. H. T. McLintock of Toronto said Canadian doctors are finding the same situation.

McLintock also said Canada had a high mortality among young women but this situation has been reversed and now the mortality is highest among old men. Thirty per cent of the patients admitted for surgery are over 60, he added.

Heard 'Frightened Cries' Coming From Model's Home

OTTAWA (CP)—A neighbor of Joan de Marcy told Wednesday night of hearing anguished, lowpitched cries coming from the home of the 20-year-old model the morning she lost her baby.

Alfred Morrison, the neighbor, said he also heard the sound of a struggle inside and saw a hand briefly extended in a room at the front of the house.

He could not tell a coroner's jury whether the voice belonged to that of a man or that of a woman; neither could he say whether the hand belonged to a man or a woman.

However, his wife testified "I will always say" that the voice she and her husband heard was that of a woman.

Sixteen witnesses were called to the inquest into the pretty brunette's death opened in No. 1 police station here. Then the hearing was adjourned to 2:30 p.m. when seven or eight more witnesses, a priest and a Mrs. de Marcy's French-born husband, are scheduled to testify.

The 5-foot-7 actress, about 35, who called police the morning of March 3 and told them that she had found her wife's body on the floor of their home in Gloucester, a suburban middle-class, south central Globe district.

A plastic bag had been pulled down over her head.

The coroner's jury ruled that it was a suicide. However, on the urging of the girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benson Kincaid of Scarborough, Ont., the Ontario attorney-general's department ordered an inquest.

Mrs. Morrison said he and his wife were awakened at about 2 a.m. June 19 by a "pounding." They seemed to come from the de Marcy residence. He went to the back window and saw the other house "all lit up."

Standing at the window, he heard the pounding again, then came the sound of breaking glass.

"The third thing I heard was the word 'no' pronounced three times in a distressed, frightened voice."

The girl's father, Bensen Kincaid, said he "will never believe" she committed suicide. Tears in his eyes, he read a letter which Joan sent to her parents June 18 from Kingston, Ont., where she was to interview prospective new students for her modelling and "self - improvement" course.

In the letter Joan said she was "in a real mood to paint" in Kingston, was "tickled pink" at having met her classes, and looked forward to visiting her parents that weekend, for father's day.

Careful Drivers in Bracebridge Get Lower Insurance Rates

MONTREAL (CP)—The Canadian Underwriters Association has announced a move to reduce automobile insurance rates for drivers least likely to become involved in accidents.

The CUA, representing a segment of the Canadian insurance industry, said Wednesday that a new insurance classification—class 1A Select—is to be established Sept. 1 by its member companies.

The classification calls for a 35-per-cent reduction off the insurance rates the motorist normally would pay. The reduction would be in addition to the discounts of up to 35 per cent of standard rates now being granted drivers with three years of accident-free driving.

The additional discount will be given to drivers who have:

1. Have been driving for five years without an accident;

2. Drive their cars not more than 10,000 miles a year;

3. Do not use their cars for business, or for driving to and from work;

4. Have no male driver under 25 in the household; and not more than two cars in the vehicle.

The announcement said motorists eligible will move into the new classification as their car insurance comes up for normal renewal on or after Sept. 1.

Nikita Assails U.S. Prayers For Captive Folk

LONDON (Reuters) — Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev said Wednesday that it did not make sense for the United States government to organize an annual prayer for the enslaved peoples.

Khrushchev, who was addressing a meeting during him back from a 10-day visit to Poland as Nixon arrived, was referring to the United States call to pray for the liberation of Communist peoples.

REJECT CITY OFFER

KITCHENER (CP) — Kitchener Civic Employees Workers Union has rejected the city's final offer for a new contract and applied for conciliation services. Wage offers have been worked out but several other issues could not be agreed upon.

Archbishop Muffs Lines At Wedding

LONDON (Reuters) — Dr. Geoffrey Fisher, the retired bishop of Canterbury, was reported today to have "muffed his lines" at his son's wedding.

Instead of saying "a woman should be loving" in one part of the marriage service, he said: "a woman should be lovely."

Then, The Daily Mirror adds, he corrected himself hurriedly while the small congregation in Lambeth Palace smiled.

The archbishop was marrying his 36-year-old fourth son, Humphrey Fisher, to Diana Davis, 27.

The Daily Mirror quotes the archbishop's wife as saying: "Yes, my husband did get it a little wrong. But I thought the bride's wife line was rather sweet.

"I'm not sure whether he gets enough practice at weddings. Or perhaps he didn't have his reading glasses on."

FIRST OF TYPE

SARNIA (CP) — The Princess Irene, first passenger - carrying foreign vessel to dock here arrived Wednesday night with some 80 passengers. The Netherland based flagship of the Fjell-Oranje Lines was to load products of the Polymer Corporation today before her departure for overseas ports.

Woman, Age 72, Chooses Jail For Speeding

CHICAGO (AP) — Maintaining it was the principle of the thing, an elderly woman defied the authority of traffic court in the 1958 city boxing tournament rather than pay a $20 speeding fine.

Wednesday Miss Zora Squier, now 72, returned to Municipal Court to take her medicine.

"I'm positive I wasn't speeding," she insisted before Judge Thomas Eiger.

Eiger upheld the decision, however, and sentenced with the little lady to pay the fine.

"I'm a woman of principle," he answered. "My conscience won't let me."

"I'm sorry you have been since your last appearance?" the judge asked.

"I've covered Scandinavia, France, Austria and Russia—twice," the retired school teacher replied.

Miss Squier had kept in touch by writing letters of her journeys to a Chicago newspaper.

Then no encore. The judge sentenced the woman to 8½ days in county jail.

"Don't push me. Nothing irritates me more than being pushed around."

Nickel Mine Gets Firm Bid From Japanese

VANCOUVER (CP) — Giant Mascot Mines has received a firm bid from a Japanese company to buy Sheritt-Gordon's Fetida nickel mine at Hope, B.C., on a long-term basis, it was disclosed Wednesday.

Volume exports of British Columbia nickel ore concentrates to begin moving to Japan early next year.

Henry Hill, consulting engineer with Giant Mascot, said the offer was Sumitomo Shoji Fetida Ltd. will involve the first Canadian nickel shipments to Japan. He said the tonnage is "considerable."

The mine, in the Fraser Valley, mills about 1,000 tons of ore a day and is filling a contract which ends in December of 5,000,000 tons of ore grading 1.8 per cent nickel.

Heavier Taxes Mark Overhaul Spain Economy

MADRID, Spain (Reuters) — Heavier taxes, currency reforms and steps to curb monopolistic practices were announced here Wednesday following measures made public last weekend for a drastic overhaul of Spain's economic structure.

The measures, following Spain's entry into the Organization for European Economic Cooperation Monday, are part of a program to free the country's economy on a par with other western nations.

The peseta already has been devalued from 42 to the U.S. dollar to 60 and the move issued Wednesday by Gen. Francisco Franco and state economic minister Commerce Minister Alberto Ullastres to establish the convertibility of the pesta.

It also empowers the government to apply taxes and established a progressive liberalization of imports and internal trade.

Increased levies are expected to be imposed on tobacco, sugar, gasoline and telephone calls.

Spaniards who have been holding foreign currency are given six months to declare the funds without incurring the stiff penalties necessary for use of undeclared holdings of foreign currencies.

One of the most unexpected moves was a statement that the government intends to seek an anti-monopoly law.

This ties in with the government's efforts to prevent an expected increase of six per cent in the cost of living following devaluation.

Canada, Australia to Name Cup Singles Players Today

By GEORGE FRAJKOR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada and Australia were to name their Davis Cup singles players today.

Captains of both tennis teams were tight until the last minute about which players they would pick for the two operating matches Friday of the American zone semi-finals.

Harry Hopman, captain of the favored Australian team, had a real choice. Neale Fraser, 25, Roy Emerson, 22, and Rod Laver, 20, were all considered good bets for a singles berth.

For Lorne Main, Canadian captain, there really wasn't any choice. His team consists of experienced Davis Cup players Bob Bedard, 27, of Sherbrooke, Que., and Don Fontana, 28, of Toronto along with rookies John Bassett, Jr., 20, of Toronto, and Francois Godbout, 21, of Waterloo, who have never played a Davis Cup match.

There was almost no doubt Bedard and Fontana would be picked, barring sudden injuries or unforeseen circumstances.

Australia, which has won the Davis Cup seven of the last nine times, is fighting its way back to the challenge round this year after losing the cup to the United States in 1958.

The Aussies knocked off Mexico 4-1 last weekend and if they get past Canada are to play Cuba here next weekend. Four singles matches and one doubles are held in each Davis Cup tie.

Main said he thought Bedard could win two singles matches and it would only take one break — another singles to settle the issue.

"The Aussies have all the advantage of recent experience," Main said. "They've been playing all over the world in tournaments like Wimbledon, and they have one good tough series under their belts. Our players haven't had any international competition at all.

"But they only need to be a little off and a little up."

SCHEDULE A WORRY

Hopman said he was worried about his team's tough schedule.

"We have been playing consistently with not much rest," he said. "Last weekend we were in Mexico City playing on clay and at high altitude. Within two days we have to adapt to playing on grass at normal altitude."

Fraser, the Aussie's number one player who suffered an attack of mild appendicitis in Mexico and had to be rested, is ready to play again, Hopman said.

Emerson and Laver appeared to have adapted well, he added.

Main said Bedard had played a close four-set match against Fraser two years ago at Forest Hills, N.Y., and had beaten Emerson in England.

"Bob hasn't played any international tournaments but he's in top shape," Main said. "He has the fine edge and is really eager for this."

Casey Calls Club Confab, Discusses Strange Switches

CLEVELAND (AP) — Casey Stengel, New York Yankees' master juggler, is considering more moves. They may cause some raised eyebrows.

Several of the team's key players are crippled by injuries and the Yanks still are in fourth place in the American League race, 6½ games behind the league - leading Chicago White Sox. Before Wednesday night's 8-5 victory that toppled Cleveland Indians from first place, Stengel called a clubhouse meeting to discuss the injury situation and count noses.

He told reporters not to be surprised if centerfielder Mickey Mantle shows up at shortstop and catcher Yogi Berra at second base.

"Might have to use 'em there," Stengel said. "Way things have been going, I might have to use anybody anyplace.

"Mantle played shortstop his first two years in pro ball and Berra played about 20 games at second base his first year. It's not in the records, but I know he did.

"You saw that (pitcher Don) Larsen hit. I've been thinking about him in the outfield. And that fella (John Blanchard says he'd rather play base than catch.

"Or even use (pitcher Bobby) Shantz in the infield. He's fine at it and he can probably play the infield better lefthanded than some of them righthanders do."

Stengel is pondering these strange moves because he has three regulars on the sideline — Bill Skowron, Tony Kubek and Gil McDougald.

Skowron, the slugging first baseman, is suffering from an injured back. McDougald is weak from bursitis. Kubek has a sore shoulder.

BIG DOUBLE

CHICAGO (AP)—The largest daily double of the Arlington Park season — $1,875.80 — was paid Wednesday on the winning combination of Step Device and Biblocorn in the first two races.

Step Stevie paid $87.80, $33.60, and $17.60. Biblocorn paid $11.80, $6.40 and $4.80.

Jets Defeat Toronto 12-9 In Wild Game

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The lustre that made Columbus Jets' pitching staff shine lately is a bit smeared today but not enough to dull the sparkling performances of late.

Columbus won the fourth straight International League game Wednesday night with a wild 12-9 victory over Toronto Maple Leafs that put both teams into a tie for seventh place. The Leafs did have the satisfaction of breaking the Jets' pitchers string of 29 consecutive scoreless innings when they scored three runs in the third inning.

In other games, Havana dropped the league-leading Buffalo Bisons 4-3, second - place Miami defeated Rochester 2-0 and Richmond won over Montreal 3-1.

Toronto's three, third-inning runs tied the score 3-3 and the lead changed hands three more times before Columbus came from behind with three in the seventh on Joe Christopher's double and singles by Bill Hall and Tom Burgess. They added another in the eighth.

Reliever Fred Green (3-5) won his first game since May 30 as the fourth Columbus pitcher while Pat Scantlebury (8-2) lost, also in relief. Dick Lines, the Jets' second relief pitcher, homered and Joe Amalfitano hit one for Toronto.

Tony Gonzales's two-run homer in the eighth inning off lefty Hank Mason (7-3) gave Havana's Ted Wieand (10-8) the victory. Mason also won Tuesday night. Frank Herrera and Bobby Morrow homered for the Bisons.

Art Kay slowed Rochester only two hits and Foster Castleman hit a two-run homer for Miami's victory. Kay is 6-3 and loser Cal Browning 11-8. Kay struck out four, walked only one and gave only singles to Luke Easter and Billy Harrell, pitching hitless ball until the fifth.

Zack Monroe (5-6) hurled four-hit ball and was helped by two triples and a double by Deron Johnson in giving Richmond its victory over Tom LaSorda (9-7). The Vees scored single runs in the first, sixth and eighth innings.

Stan Leonard Gives Notice To Canadian Pro Tourney

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

RIVERMEAD GOLF CLUB, Ont. (CP)—Stan Leonard took Rivermead's well-trimmed acres apart Wednesday with some pulling as hot as the weather and strengthened his position as favorite in the 47th Canadian Professional Golfers Association championship which opened its three-day run today.

The Vancouver player, who hadn't touched a club since a Michigan tournament two weeks ago, served notice to the record field of 106 that he can win his seventh championship when he fired a practice-round 64—eight under par 72 for the 6,500-yard course and two under the club record.

STARTS AT NOON

Tee-off time was noon EDT with the main contenders scheduled to get into action about 2½ hours later. They included Henry Martell of Edmonton, defending champion, and Al Balding, the tall Markham, Ont., golfer who got his first look at Rivermead Wednesday.

Leonard suggested that the sultry,36 more than the previous best, is the toughest as well as the biggest yet and predictions of the winning 54-hole total ranged from 204 to 210.

Another scorcher was predicted for today with highs of 88 and light winds over Rivermead, which stretches along the Ottawa River across from Ottawa itself.

Balding, fresh from the United States circuit had four birdies on his first 11 holes of practice and finished with a 69.

EIGHT BIRDIES

Leonard blazed away to recoup a two-over-par start by going 10 under after the fifth. He had eight birdies and eagled the par-five eighth. He credited his putting—"wonderful, territ."

Bill Mawhinney from Burlington, who also had a 69 in practice, said he figures 206 might take it all although Leonard held out for 208 and home pro Sam Dempster has called 210.

Balding, who with Leonard and Martell had split up the last six championships evenly, holds the 54-hole CPGA championship record of 204.

Off at noon in the first group were Henry Allerd of Parry Sound, and Ray Hurd, one of the golfing Hoots from Port Alfred, Que.

The consensus seemed to be that the first six holes will tell the tale and that continued dry weather will see the course take something of a beating.

Latta Shades Cannifton 9-8

Latta plated one run in the top of the eighth inning to edge Cannifton 9-8 in a South Hastings baseball contest played last night. The win kept Latta in a second place tie with Read, just one point back of first place Belleville.

Garry Gow, Garfield Hall in the fourth and Stan Reid in the eighth, pitching to one batter, handel the Latta mound duties. They gave up eight hits, fanned four and walked three.

Veteran Gord Oliver went the route for Cannifton, allowing ten safeties. He whiffed five and passed one less.

The clubs battled on even terms all night with neither team able to pull ahead. Latta scored the winner in the eighth and the game was halted because of darkness at the end of the inning.

Frank Ray led the victors with a triple and single while Gary Gow and Doug Rollins had a brace of singles each. Cam Bushard, O. Glass, Wayne Gow and Don Harris had one-baggers.

Don Forsythe tripled and singled in a losing cause. The other hits were divided among Ricky Locke, Harvey, Cole, Clapp, Oliver and O'Connor.

Eddie Machen Eyes Champ After Disposing of Vargas

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—Heavyweight Eddie Machen, once the No. 1 challenger, neatly stopped Reuben Vargas Wednesday night and then said he wants to fight champion Ingemar Johansson again.

Bob Machen and his manager, Sid Flaherty, said he has regained the fighting form he had prior to being knocked out in the first round by Johansson last Sept. 14.

Prie to that bout, Machen was the top contender for then champion Floyd Patterson's crown.

The fight Wednesday night was the second meeting between Machen, now No. 3 contender, and Vargas, who fights out of the San Francisco area.

Last May 30 at San Francisco, Machen won a unanimous decision.

ALMOST HELPLESS

Vargas had no defence for Machen's jolting left jabs and powerful rights Wednesday night and seemed ready to go down in the third round.

Less than a minute had elapsed in the sixth round when Machen threw a left that sent Vargas into the ropes and then dropped Vargas with a right.

Vargas lurched to his feet at the count of nine, blood running from his mouth. Vargas tried to clinch but Machen knocked him into the ropes and belted him repeatedly until referee Ralph Crumen stopped the bout.

Machen went into the ring at 197, Vargas 185. Machen now has a 28-1-1 record. Vargas is 18-8.

Harness Racing

TORONTO (CP)—The base of harness racing, a favorite who breaks stride, moved into Old Woodbine Park's feature race Wednesday night the $2,000 Woodbine trot in which Darn Tooting, a five-year-old gelding owned by Mrs. D. Kingston of Port Elgin, went to the post a 7-to-5 choice.

But right after the start, Darn Tooting went into a break and before driver Gordon Kingston could get the trotter back on stride he was far behind the field.

Darn Tooting made a gallant try to recover ground and finished third to Phyllis P. Prologue, a seven-year - old mare owned by Pastime Stables of Smiths Falls.

Says "Birdie" Will Replace Fred Haney

CINCINNATI (AP)—Lou Smith, sports editor of the Cincinati Enquirer, predicts that Birdie Tebbetts will succeed Fred Haney as manager of Milwaukee Braves at the end of the season.

Smith, writing from Milwaukee where Cincinnati Reds are playing the Braves, writes: .

"The former Reds' field general, now a vice - president in charge of handing out votes of confidence to Haney, reportedly is convinced the front office is not all that it is cracked up to be, especially from a monetary standpoint."

Tebbetts quit as manager of the Reds last season. He then was named executive vice - president of the Braves.

RARE, MEDIUM, WELL-DONE

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Friday night there will be one of the greatest round-ups of wrestling livestock on the hoof that ever jarred the rafters of Memorial Arena. Over half a ton of unhampered hamburg will enter the ring in one of the rowdiest muscle-gouging rodeos ever witnessed by the "rassling" faithful.

Yukon Eric, the popular lumberjack, will quarterback the team of himself and hulking Don Leo Jonathan, the 300-pound Mormon, while crafty Dick Hutton will brainstorm the duo of the three-H Boys, the other being that hunker of all mankind, Hardbelled Haggerty.

A lot of veteran wrestling fans here will recall that several years ago one of the toughest hombres to come down the mat pike was a rugged individual who was as good a wrestler as they come. He always entered the ring wearing a heavy dark beard and a stovepipe hat. He wrestled under the name of Brother Jonathan. He was a Mormon, and all Mormons are called "Brother" down Utah way.

Perhaps you haven't guessed it but that tough gentleman who seldom smiled but met and defeated the best of that era, including big Earl McCready, John Kalan, Sunny Dunlop and more of that school, is none other than the father of Don Leo of the same name. In fact the father and son team worked together and won a tag-team title once. And Brother Jonathan gave his son one of the worst defeats he has suffered to date in the ring.

But Friday night the hand some young Mormon, one of most-feared men in the ring today, along with partner Yukon Eric, will have their hands full. For in Hutton and Hardbelled Haggerty clash the most ruthless pair of tag-team thugs far along together. They'll stoop to everything and anything for victory. They're rough, tough and nasty and what happens just has to be seen to be believed.

SOFTBALL

Point Anne Cementmen will likely go up against Kingston in the OASA playoffs for "A" playdowns, according to a late association bulletin. Ottawa and Peterborough are the two other teams in the zone with some 19 other clubs taking part in the provincial action.

The Senior "A" series is a knock-out this year with Windsor, perennial champions, drawing a bye while Hamilton and Beamsville battle it out.

Cobourg hasn't picked any cinch either although they are the only club representing Zone Four. There are 13 other clubs taking part in intermediate "B" but the lakeshore squad might have to sit around on their haunches waiting for opposition.

Strangely enough, the OASA report lists only Peterborough in Zone Four of the intermediate "AA" grouping. We understood the Belleville Bobcats had affiliated under this classification, while Trenton had those of Asbury likewise. Also, the story goes, the Belleville Sports Centre of the Commercial League, has intentions of joining in the playdown fun.

If this is correct, it means the Bobcats will take on the Sports Centre then meet Trenton. And they shouldn't forget what happened on a couple of occasions when they went up against the town from the east. If the Bobcats can sweep their way through past Peterborough they'll go plumb into the semifinals. Only other clubs listed at the moment are Brampton and Lakeshore in Zone Three and Stratford and Owen Sound in Zone One.

In the lower brackets Frankford, Collins Bay, Odessa and Port Perry are listed in the Zone Four junior "C" series. Only other clubs entered thus far are Tavistock and the WOAA winners.

Four ancient rivals clash in Zone Four juvenile "A." Belleville will likely draw Kingston with Oshawa taking on Peterborough. Seven other entries are listed.

Hastings and Stirling will likely battle it up in the juvenile "C" series. Belleville, Frenchmen's Bay, Oshawa and Peterborough are listed in Zone Four Bantam series. There are twelve other clubs entered in the province.

Casey's Cavalry Moves Again; Braves Snap String

Topple Indians From Perch As Chisox Verdict Boston; Avila Toast of Milwaukee

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

Bobby Avila, the American League transient, has found a home with Milwaukee Braves.

At 33, the little infielder found himself shifted off to Baltimore by Cleveland last winter. The Orioles used him here and there, even in the outfield, then packed him off to Boston. Then, after the better part of 11 seasons in the AL,he was peddled to the Braves Tuesday.

At the moment, the only question about that deal in Milwaukee minds is why they didn't make it sooner. It was Avila who finally put an end to the Braves' losing string at seven Wednesday night with his first National League nine-run two-run homer in the ninth that beat Cincinnati 5-4.

GIANTS FULL AWAY

The home run not only snipped the Braves' longest slump in six years, but also helped them back into third place, 3½ games behind the San Francisco Giants, who padded their skimpy lead with a 6-1 victory over St. Louis. Second-place Los Angeles gained 1½ games back-in a 7-2 pasting by the Chicago Cubs.

Last-place Philadelphia skidded Pittsburgh to fourth, 11-4.

Ryne Duren, who was following a walk, ruined rookie Jim O'Toole's first complete game and gave southpaw Warren Spahn (12-10) his 258th major league victory. Spahn hit a home run for the Braves' first run and scored their second after singling, but was tagged for a pair of two-run homers by Willie Jones and Wally Post.

FIVE-GAME STREAK

Mike McCormick (9-7) won his fifth in a row and ended the Giants' slump at three with a six-hitter against the Cards. He had the Cards blanked on four hits until the ninth, when Alex Grammas singled and Bill Smith tripled. Jim Davenport and Willie Kirkland each drove in two runs for San Francisco, Davenport with a double and single and Kirkland with a triple and home run.

Earl Averill's second grand-slam homer of the season touched off a seven-run second inning for the Cubs, making it a breeze for rookie Bob Anderson (6-7) who toured a five-hitter.

The Phillies smacked 19 hits and had a 7-2 lead within four innings at Pittsburgh, scoring two on Ed Bouchee's homer. You can say what you want about that American League pennant race, but as far as Milwaukee and Indiana are concerned, New York Yankees still are the team to beat.

The still struggling champs, on a day after five in a row, knocked Indians out of first place for the third time this season and the second time in a week with an 8-2 victory at Cleveland Wednesday night.

That punished Indians a full game behind Chicago White Sox, who climbed back on top with a 5-4 decision over Boston.

Detroit regained fifth place from Washington by beating Senators 6-2. Kansas City edged within a half-game of sixth-place Nats with a 6-3 victory over Baltimore's last-place Orioles.

Fourth-place Yankees bobbed above .500 once again while moving within a game of third place. They trail White Sox by 6½.

Bob Turley became the champs' shut out on three hits until the ninth, when Herbie Score and two-run, two o.ut homer. They chased the young lefty while taking a 5-4 lead in the seventh.

DUREN SAVED IT

Ryne Duren bagged his 12th save by relieving Turley, giving up a run on two hits while nailing it down for Yanks' 63rd.

Score, winless since July 3, now has lost three in a row and has lost his last seven decisions for a 9-8 record.

Both Gene Green and Nellie Fox each had three of White Sox' 13 hits. Fox's ninth single that brought Fox home with the winner in the ninth is best Red Sox pitcher Leo Kiely (3-3). Turk Lown (6-2) won it with a one-hit, two-inning shutout mopup in relief of Early Wynn.

Right-hander Ray Herbert won his 10th and 2nd in relief beating Orioles with a six-hitter for a 3-2 record. Jerry Walker got lost in it.

Frank Lary (11-7), whose first pitch triggered a winning, three-run seventh inning for Detroit, allowed only three hits, but needed Ray Narleski's hitless relief after Roy Sievers' 14th home run broke up his one-hit shutout in the eighth. Pete Ramos (10-11) got lost.

Gene Conley (8-6) had no trouble at all, although giving up 10 hits, all singles.

City Juniors Whip Foxboro 10-3 With Errors Playing Major Role

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Belleville Lloyd Cleaners Juniors scored 10-3 victory over Foxboro at CNRA Park last evening in an error-riddled South Hastings baseball league fixture.

Foxboro kicked the ball around for ten errors, playing perfect ball in the first frame only, the lone inning that Belleville did not score. The visitors too were unsteady in the field at times, committing five miscues.

It was a close game for a while, Foxboro scoring single runs in the first, fourth and seventh frames. Belleville got singletons in the second, third, fourth and fifth but did not wrap it up until the sixth frame when a triple crossed the plate for the final 10-3 score.

Cannifton will be the visitors in another SHL tilt here Saturday night at CNRA Park. Game time is 8:45 p.m.

Larry Soden sweated the issue for the Juniors. He gave up seven hits while striking out half a dozen and walking four. He fanned the side to end the first frame when Foxboro threatened. Slugger Jay Mottle and Chumbley plus an error had scored one and put runners on second and third.

Gordie "Soup" Campbell accepted the defeat in 5-2-3 innings. He gave up eight runs on seven hits, whiffing two and passing five. Moe Chumbley finished up, touched for two runs out as many safeties in his 1-3 of an inning. He neither struck out nor walked a batter.

Four errors helped Belleville on to their big six-run inning. Larry Lavery, Glen Clarke and "Red" Kellar drove in a run each with singles while Follwell and Hunter Moe crashed singles in the sixth.

Two bobbles and Elliott's hit scored the Juniors' initial marker. Two errors and a couple stolen bases by Reid Elliott got another. Kellar's perfect bunt and Gary Goyer's base knock helped bring Reid Elliott netted their third. Moore's infield single, another bobble and a misfired fielder's choice play sent their fourth run across the plate.

A couple of back-to-back walks and an infield single sent to left kept Foxboro in the game in the fourth. A single by Belanger and two runs netted another in the seventh and final frame.

The Belleville club, which did not start to hit well until the sixth, got a couple of base knocks from "Red" Kellar. The others were divided among Gary Goyer, Duffy Follwell, Moe Hunter, Glen Clarke, Bill Moore, Jack Elliott and Larry Mavety.

John Robinson collected two of the Foxboro hits. The others went to Moe Mollns, Jerry Mann, Moe Chumbley, Reilly Belanger and Gord Campbell.

NO SWEDISH FIGHT

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Ingemar Johansson said there was no chance he would defend his heavyweight boxing title in Sweden unless a way was discovered to televise it in the United States at the same time.

The television question decides big events of this kind, Johansson said after a conference with Irving Kahn of New York, head of the closed TV outfit which handled the theatrecast of the June 26 Johansson-Floyd Patterson bout.

Tentatively, the second bout is set for Sept. 22 in New York's Yankee Stadium.

Archie Moore May Train In San Diego

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Archie Moore, appearing dilatorily and tired after awaiting news on the condition of his wife, hinted Wednesday night he may continue training at his rural Rancho Cama for his light-heavyweight title defense against Yvon Durelle in Montreal next month.

Moore talked with reporters after he saw his wife in a hospital and was told by her doctor that she was out of danger. Mrs. Moore is recovering from an operation for removal of a non-malignant mastoid tumor.

The champion said his plans were definite but he was thinking of training with some Los Angeles fighters here for 10 days.

"I won't leave until my wife's condition improves," he said. "The doctor told me things are fine but I want to stay as long as I can."

Ontario Athletes Look Good For Pan-American Swim Test

BRANTFORD (CP)—Three Ontario athletes, two divers and a swimmer, are expected to attract most of the attention during the swimming and diving trials for the Canadian Pan - American Games team which get under way here today.

Irene MacDonald, 25-year-old Hamilton girl who captured the National Amateur Athletic Union outdoor one - metre and three-metre diving championships in California last week, is expected to win the three-metre event. Miss MacDonald won the title competition for lower diving held Monday in Detroit because there are no facilities for high diving in Western Ontario.

KITCHENER FAVORED

Ernie Meissner of Kitchener, the Canadian three-metre titleholder, took the men's tower diving and will be favored to make the grade in the men's one and three-metre. Meissner, 19, won the tower title last year for Kitchener.

Sara Barber, 15-year-old local girl and a veteran of international competition, rates as enthusiastic favorite to head Ontario's team for the games to be held in Chicago Aug. 27-Sept. 6.

Miss Barber was the individual Canadian star of the Canadian championships held here recently as she won the 110 and 220-yard backstroke events. She broke her own Canadian record in the 220 with a time of 2:46.2 to put herself among the top 10 women in the world in this event.

STRONG COMPETITION

The three will face some strong competition in their fight for places on Canada's 24-member team. The 12 women and 12 men who make it up will be chosen at the end of the trials.

Lois Wood of Toronto, the Canadian three-metre champion, will be unsuccessfully making comeback. Miss MacDonald did not compete in the two years Canadian championships but easily defeated the Toronto girl in the Times were 2.16 and 2.15.

A strong Vancouver team led by 15-year-old Margaret Iwasaki, 16, will probably provide the strongest opposition for Miss Barber. Also a veteran of international competition she leads a 10-member Vancouver group which includes Susan Sangster, Helen Stewart and Bob Wheston.

Two 10-event divers are expected to take part.

A'S MANAGER ILL

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The illness of manager Harry Craft of Kansas City Athletics was reported Wednesday to be fatigue rather than a minor heart ailment. A physician said Tuesday the 44-year-old Craft had suffered a minor coronary spasm. But Wednesday John H. Bullard, downtown hospital administrator, said it was simply a case of fatigue.

Top Coaches Head Legion Track Clinic

OTTAWA, Ont. — Two well known coaches from the United States will direct the Legion's national track and field clinic this summer, Don Canham, University of Michigan, and Dave Rankin of Purdue have been named to head the Toronto clinic starting on August 24.

Teams and coaches from every province in Canada will attend the clinic. On August 22nd they will compete in the Canada-British Track and Field championships at Waterloo, Ontario.

Then following the 7 - day clinic the 165 athletes will compete in the Interprovincial championships at the Canadian National Exhibition.

This is the third year that the Legion has sponsored the $20,000 a year clinic. Its purpose is two fold: to provide top-notch training for younger athletes as well as coaches and potential coaches.

During the past three years there has been a noticeable increase in track and field activities in various provinces of the country. Legion branches and district track and field committees meets in most provinces in cooperation with the Canadian Amateur Athletic Union.

Coach at last year's Canadian Legion track and field clinic was Frank Stampfl, the man who coached Roger Bannister and John Chataway to the four minute mile. Stampfl had high praise for the clinic venture. But he warned that results would be long in shewing themselves, and that much more assistance in track and field was needed if Canada is to produce world champions.

SIGN NEW SCOUT

NEW YORK (AP) — Hugh E. Wise, Talker of former major league infielder Casey Wise, was signed as a scout by the New York Yankees Wednesday. He resigned recently from the Milwaukee Braves organization after 16 years at about the time the Braves released his son.

Cat Quarters Looked Good In Club Game

HAMILTON (CP)—If Hamilton Tiger-Cats have any problems, it isn't in the quarterbacking department.

To the proven ability of Bernie Faloney, add the aerial acrobatics of Tom Dublinski, who piloted the Blacks to a 27-12 win over the Argos in the Big Four club's annual Intra-squad game Wednesday night and did it mostly on passing.

Faloney's Whites were kept on the run most of the time and failed to crack the scoring column until the last quarter.

About 13,000 saw the game at Civic Stadium in steaming, 80-degree weather.

Dublinski, once the inspiration of Toronto Argonauts before he injured a knee in an exhibition game two years ago, fired two touchdown strikes to end Paul Dekker. The third came on a pass to Don Richards after the Rubber paraded downfield through the air. Reliable Steve Oneschuk kicked two placements and a pair of converts and a soaring punt by Cam Fraser netted a single.

Faloney lobbed a pitchout to Tommy Grant after a 60-yard forward for one touchdown and passed to Tommy Bell for another from 12 yards out.

Dublinski accounted for 270 yards on his 20 completions out of 35 tries. Faloney gained 252 yards on 16 passes of 27 attempts and Grant 107 on 11 completions. Southern grad who replaced Faloney for the third quarter and part of the fourth, had four completions in nine tries.

Lacrosse

LONG BRANCH (CP) — Long Branch Castrols, paced by the three-goal efforts of Flory Tomlinson and Lou Rose, defeated Brampton Excelsiors 12-8 Wednesday night in an Ontario Lacrosse Association senior game.

Brian Aherne scored twice and Morley Kells, Ray Shipway, Ross Kelly and Leo Testero got a goal each as Long Branch came from behind a 5-2 first-period deficit.

Gord Thompson had two goals for Brampton. John Ford, Jack Madgett, Ken Richardson, Clark Milford, Bill Chaplin and Ken Bennett scored singles.

Video Beauties Up-in-Arms Over 'Just Looks' Comments

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—"What a soft job. All they have to do is stand on camera, look cute and be admired."

This is a comment that is beginning to burn four pretty girls at NBC-TV who are "show-offs" on the network. Sandra Wirth, Marian Stafford, June Ferguson and Tini Wallace have a total of 14 major beauty titles among them.

The girls, who show products and prizes while helping announcers and emcees on NBC-TV quiz and audience participation programs, issue this general warning to this year's crop of beauty contest winners:

"Beauty is fine. But a girl must have talent to-end work at it."

Besides "standing around" each Monday through Friday for the visual enjoyment of millions, the four spend about 50 hours a week in rehearsals, sponsor, meetings, demonstrations of products and long sessions with hair and wardrobe men and beauticians. Each, by the way, is a southern belle.

Miss Wirth, from Florida, is the tall, tanned blonde who reigns as Miss County Fair on the show of that name.

Miss Stafford, from Texas, is the blonde "pinata girl" on Jan Murray's Treasure Hunt.

Miss Ferguson, from West Virginia, and Miss Wallace, from Florida, are models and prize exhibitors on the daytime and nighttime versions of The Price Is Right.

Summarizing their careers, which look so easy when viewed on the home screen, Miss Wirth says:

"The world is full of beautiful girls. But in show business there's no such thing as a beautiful lazy girl . . ."

Critics' Opinions Divided On Musical Porgy and Bess

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Notes and comment on the Hollywood scene.

It passed unnoticed in a Hollywood that pays more attention to the more trivial events of marital unions. But it should be recorded that this month marks the 30th wedding anniversary of Irene Dunne and Dr. Francis Griffin. The pair are so publicity-shy on the event and Miss Dunne declined to expound on how to make a marriage last three decades in Hollywood. "I might break the spell," she laughed. . . .

Preston Foster is rounding out his first year as host-greeter at the New Frontier Hotel in Las Vegas. You might think his fine acting talent should be put to better use, but he says he's enjoying the life.

"And I'm talking about doing a TV series here in Nevada, an anthology that would tap the great wealth of history of this state," he said. His Waterfront series is still playing all over. . . .

Harry Belafonte finished out a smash engagement that saw the 4,000-seat Greek Theatre filled to the brim for three weeks. He leaves for some more concert dates in the west, then plans to play Russia. . . .

PORGY AND BESS

Seldom has there been divergent opinion on a film as has met Porgy and Bess. The critics have either embraced the movie or picked it to pieces.

I side with the pros. There are faults in the film. Some numbers, principally the wake scenes, are poorly staged. And I wish there had been more outdoor shots instead of sticking to the catfish Bow indoor set.

AT THE PARK — Jerry Lewis starring with Dean Martin and Jerry's Paramount co-star Shirley MacLaine in the hilarious new comedy, "The Sheepman," playing at the air conditioned Park Theatre. On the same program with Bowery Boys with Leo Gorcey Huntz Hall and Adele Jergens in "Home Rustlers".

AT THE BELLE — Glenn Ford and Diane Brewster are the romantic couple of "Torpedo Run," which opens today at the Belle Theatre for four days. Ernest Borgnine co-stars in the Cinemascope and color film.

AT THE PARK — A scene from the Bowery Boys comedy "Home Rustlers" in which Leo Gorcey, Huntz Hall and Adele Jergens opening tonight at the air conditioned Park Theatre on the same program Martin and Lewis star in "At War With the Army".

Mother Gets Help for Unhappy Child

Children's emotic upsets are often the result of conditions that may seem trivial to adults but are very real to children. Take, for example, the case of Tommy's Mom. Tommy's birthday party was spoiled by a broken bicycle and constant crying. Mom's sympathy, however, was not enough to bring happy relief to the situation. Get Children's Aspirin. Its pleasant, fruit-flavored liquid starts relief in minutes. Contains no opiates. Recommended by doctors for over 30 years. Ask your druggist for Children's Aspirin.

QUEEN ENJOYING

sions in this connection.

She would be the first to make changes if she felt changes were necessary," one said.

The Queen and Prince Philip were upset that her two-day flight from Fiji to Auckland, had been given such wide prominence and was interpreted in some segments of the British press as being serious.

The illness was described officially as a stomach upset caused by some food she had eaten and aggravated by the strain of three hectic days in Vancouver and Victoria.

SHOWED NO ALARM

But none of the official royal party — including the Queen of Edinburgh himself—ever hinted that the illness might be serious. The duke, in fact, went fishing for two hours on the evening of the day the Queen took ill.

Esmond Butler, the Queen's press secretary, said the pace of the tour has been strenuous but the Queen and her husband had not expected it to be easy.

He said both have said that they came to Canada to work and to see people and that is what they are not to have a holiday."

However, the Auckland members said that when extras were added into the four pro-gram, it becomes tiring for the Queen.

CATCHES DRAGGED

Several of these came Wednesday during the Saskatchewan stop. At the capital of Saskatchewan in Saskatoon unscheduled stops dragged out the program and at Griffith Stadium a group of Queen's scouts were crowded as an extra.

In Moose Jaw, another dozen Queen's scouts were presented where tour planners had expected only a couple.

In Victoria, after a strenuous day, a garden party at Government House with 1,000 guests sprung on the royal visitors.

They enjoyed it, but it was an extra strain.

Reporters following the tour have found the Queen quite often looks bored with formalities such as tape cutting, presentations of bouquets and the like to keen eyed reporters.

TIMES TO REMEMBER

But there have been many functions—some of them formal, too — which the Queen and Prince Philip have told household members they will always remember.

For instance, their visit to the park in Corner Brook, and the presentation of colors to the Royal 22nd Regiment in Quebec, a ceremony they said so well it became a tour highlight.

Then there was the west chuck-wagon races and informal outdoor barbeque; the Banff school of fine arts; Rosanne's Indian village where the royal couple saw something of what it once was among the Indian popula-tion; Winnipeg and Wednesday visit to the Saskatoon Pion-Era where ancient farm machinery belched forth memories all the way about the parade ground are items that the Queen and Prince Philip have mentioned with enthusiasm.

Unless Western Lands Keep Costs Down Red Competition Will Cut Living Standards

TORONTO (CP)—Unless West- niques and all of us—not only the ers countries keep their costs of workers — must be prepared to production, down, a reduced work harder and, if necessary, do standard of living will be forced so for lesser rewards.

upon them by the growing industrial might of the Communist bloc.

This is the conclusion—following a recent 3½ weeks's visit to China — of James S. Duncan, Canadian industrialist of long experience in international business, now chairman of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario.

"Our lack of knowledge of what is taking place in China, and China's lack of understanding of the Western point of view, are aggravating an already explosive situation," he says.

"Until recently the high - cost economies of the West could compete with the low-cost economies of the more backward nations because their industrial equipment, technologies and mass productive offset the more primitive efforts of the low-paid workers of the have - not countries.

SITUATION CHANGED

"Today all this is changed. Soviet Russia and China already possess or are in the process of building plants and employing manufacturing techniques which compare in every way with those of the West. The combination of cheap labor and raw materials and comparable manufacturing equipment and practices will be hard to meet."

The solution, says Mr. Duncan, perhaps Canada's most-travelled industrialist, is not in keeping out competition but in meeting it.

"To do this we must maintain our somewhat precarious lead in scientific developments, research and manufacturing tech- than the triumphant emergence of mainland China under the able, single-minded and ruthless dictatorship of Chairman Mao Tse-Tung, a statesman of undisputed genius and the architect of modern China."

"Conditions, distressing as they may be, are measurably better than 10 years ago when the Communists gained power."

"The government of Mao Tse-tung has brought to the people peace, unity, a sense of national accomplishment, hope for the future and sufficient food so that the spectre of starvation no longer haunts them."

"Situations cannot be judged by Western standards. The great masses of the Chinese people have never known life as we enjoy it—have never known freedom as we understand it."

PROUD OF FAITH

"They wear their faith like a badge of honor and proclaim it more vigorously than the Russians."

"We saw no evidence whatsoever of weakening of Sino-Soviet ties. The people's enthusiasm for Russia is, I believe, genuine, but this is less important because their reaction always follows the party line. If at any time the government reversed its views on Russia, the people would do so also."

"The spectacular growth of China's infant industry has only been made possible by the massive aid of Russia."

"One is impressed by the friendliness of the Chinese people. They are often tired looking but do not give the impression of being unhappy."

Mr. Duncan, active in many international organizations, says he does not think the United States should reverse her policy in regard to Formosa and China and he doesn't think Canada should undertake recognition of China without the United States.

For the immediate future, Mr. Duncan says, he sees Canada's trade with China decreasing rather than increasing but he believes the Chinese market has long-range potentialities and that Canada should continue to try to develop a trade relationship.

He doubts that anyone who has visited China can still believe "in the fiction of the successful subjugation of mainland China by Chiang Kai-shek and the Kuomintang."

However, if the United States were to abandon Formosa it would be acclaimed by Communists throughout the world as a victory of unparalleled proportions, and would weaken the position of Asiatic countries resisting Communist infiltration.

Many Asian nations, Mr. Duncan commented, although allergic to what they often refer to as Western imperialism, are in reality more concerned over the potential imperialism of Red China.

He suggested that the West greatly enlarge its economic aid to non-Communist Asiatic countries, "not with any view of drawing them into the Western orbit, but to help them become strong, sovereign nations, capable of maintaining their own territorial and ideological integrity." He added:

"By prompt action in Korea the United States showed leadership in discouraging Chinese expansion. It is absolutely essential she continue her policy of containment."

"Operating from this position of strength, the United States should then embark upon a policy of rapprochement. China could be given to understand that the broadest possible exchange of visitors on a reciprocal basis would be welcomed.

URGES MORE EXPORTS

"The American embargo on exports to China should be reduced to an absolute minimum. These restrictions, which are treated with ridicule in China, have not seriously hindered her development. They have, however, driven her closer to Russia.

"Mutual exchange of trade delegations, and display of goods at trade fairs should be encouraged.

"Those who are guiding China's affairs are subtle and far-sighted men and it might well be that present attitudes notwithstanding they would welcome a gradual rapprochement with the United States and correspondingly less her dependence upon Russia."

Mr. Duncan, born 63 years ago in Paris of Scottish parents, said the day will inevitably come when China will be given full recognition and a seat in the United Nations. However, she must realize that this status cannot be achieved by threat or force.

Rapid and spectacular as her progress has been, she is in no position to challenge openly the United States as long as she knows that by doing so war will result. China's leaders realize, Mr. Duncan continued, that a gradual improvement in the living-standard of their peasant people is essential to the government's survival.

Mr. Duncan said that as far as Canada is concerned, recognition alone would not be acceptable to China. It would also involve withdrawal of diplomatic recognition of the Nationalist government on Formosa and support of China's inclusion in the United Nations.

"Such action by Canada would not bring any substantial advantage," Mr. Duncan stated. "It would, however, seriously weaken the position of the United States vis-a-vis China, and profoundly affect a traditional relationship of friendship and confidence."

Canada should, however, urge upon the United States greater tolerance, flexibility and understanding.

On the formation of communes in China, Mr. Duncan writes that in three months—July 15 to Oct. 15, 1958 — 120,000,000 peasant households, representing 530,000,000 people organized themselves into 26,000 communes.

"It could be safely stated," Mr. Duncan comments, "that never before in human history had such a change in the lives of so many people taken place so rapidly."

"The commune is organized for collective living and has numerous communal dining halls, nurseries, kindergartens, hospitals, schools, homes for the aged and public baths. The long-term objective is to abolish individual cottages, mostly built of clay with no running water or sanitary facilities, and replace them by large apartment blocks. Peasants in these areas and their families will live together, usually five people to a room, under conditions which are starkly and distressingly utilitarian.

"From my observations many of the stories about segregation of the sexes, cruelty and forceful separation of children from their parents are vastly exaggerated, if not a complete distortion of the truth.

"That many peasants have been over - worked, that living conditions are drab and austere, is a matter of common knowledge and the truth about the communes is grim enough and needs no inaccurate embellishments."

French Launch Crucial Assault In Algerian War

All Available Reserves Are Thrown Into Battle

ALGIERS (AP) — The French Army is waging a crucial offensive in the Algerian war. All available reserves have been thrown into the forest-covered Grande Kabylie mountains east of Algiers, the strongest bastion of the Moslem nationalist rebellion.

French troops began the assault Wednesday, striking simultaneously from the ground, air and seas. Gen. Maurice Challe, supreme commander in Algeria, is commanding the operation personally.

So far there has been no word on how the operation is going. But staff officers say the action will continue for many weeks, if not months.

The general staff believes the future of the Algerian war depends largely on the results of the Kabylie offensive.

The attack comes less than two months before the fall session of the United Nations, which is likely to discuss the Algerian problem. The source is said France will make a major effort to smash or considerably cut rebel military resistance before the debate starts.

An estimated 6,000 armed nationalists are entrenched in the Grande Kabylie, an irregular range starting less than 50 miles east of Algiers and continuing for about 150 miles parallel to the coast.

First French efforts to smash resistance in the area failed. Rebels killed were quickly replaced by conscripts from the impoverished villages clinging to the mountainsides.

QUEEN WILL NEED PORT HOPE REST AFTER HEAVY DAY

Will Fly to Trenton After Winnipeg Visit

WINNIPEG (CP) — If the Queen gets through today's Royal Tour program, she'll probably be able to finish the Canadian visit without further illness.

On the last full day of her Western tour she faced a 12½-hour schedule, most strenuous since her Vancouver visit ended, officials have said, contributed to the fatigue which partially caused her two-day illness at Whitehorse, Y.T., last weekend.

However, the Queen herself has decided against any change in the program. She looked well and healthy today.

The Queen flies today from Winnipeg to Sudbury, and then to Trenton, for a weekend rest at the Port Hope home of Governor General Massey. She will fly to Fredericton Tuesday to begin her tour of the Maritimes and will leave for home by air from Halifax August 1.

MRS. REDICK CROWNED

The Queen made six official calls Thursday in Saskatchewan and Manitoba, the longest day of the five-hour visit to Regina there nearly the entire population of 100,000 turned out to greet her.

The royal train made whistle stops at Indian Head, Broadview and Moosomin in eastern Saskatchewan and at Virden, Man. The day concluded with a 46-minute stop at Brandon, Man., before the train put in at a siding at Chater, Man., for the night.

The Queen was scheduled to visit Portage la Prairie for 10 minutes this morning before going on to Winnipeg for a tour of a hospital and park, an official luncheon, state dinner and some ballet. The official day is not scheduled to end until 1:30 a.m.

At Regina, the Queen shook more than 100 hands at six functions. Police estimated that more than 60,000 persons lined the streets while 30,000 more were on hand for the Queen's arrival at the Legislative building, provincial Museum of Natural History, Taylor Field and Exhibition Park.

The tour returned to relaxed informality as the train whistle-stopped across the prairies.

TALKS TO PIONEER

In Moosomin, where more than 6,000 persons crammed against rope barriers, the Queen stopped across the prairies, with Miss Hart, a 92-year-old pioneer.

Mrs. Hart told the Queen that her father had been shot at Balmoral and for emphasis she tapped the Queen on the arm and shoulder as she spoke.

The train to Indian Head, Broadview and Moosomin was among the warmest of any on the tour. More than 3,000 turned out in Indian Head and Broadview, communities with a total population about one-ninth that.

Rabid Raccoon Contacts Many In Boys' Camp

TORONTO (CP)—Twenty-seven boys are being given anti-rabies shots today and several others, unaware they may be in danger, are being sought for treatment because they have been in contact with an animal believed to have been rabid.

All handled an apparently friendly raccoon when it invaded the YMCA's Camp Kitchener camp Thursday. The animal's body was sent to Toronto for rabies and a preliminary report showed that it was "probably rabid." Hal F. Fuller, 1 a.y.r.t. in East York YMCA programs secretary said.

Police in Ontario and Michigan have been asked to help locate the boys and yet given anti-rabies shots, including the 10 shedders, travelling with his parents between Toronto and Sault Ste. Marie; Jim Segil, with his mother in the Lindsay area; Chris Spence probably at Lake Chandos near Apsley, and Fergus Fergilbee whereabouts is unknown.

State troopers are stopping all motorists north in Maine in search of 13-year-old Larry Puckneal travelling with his mother, Mrs. Mildred Ford, and his stepfather.

The raccoon was killed by camp officials after it took two flis.

Lightning Storms Rip West Ontario, Fire Barns, Smash Cars, Ruin Trees

LONDON, Ont. (CP) —Lightning storms struck several Western Ontario communities Thursday, setting three barns on fire, disrupting telephone service, uprooting trees, and smashing two cars.

The severe electrical storm destroyed two barns in the Exeter area and another at Nile, a village northwest of Exeter. Damage was estimated at $14,-000.

A small twister ripped the roof off a farm home and barn and flattened sheds on the farm of Edgar Kirkpatrick near Mount Forest.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick and a son Allan took refuge in the cellar of their home when the twister struck, blowing out all the windows. Mr. Kirkpatrick and another son, Murray, were in the stable at the time but were uninjured.

On the nearby farm of Wilbert McLellan one shed was flattened and the roof was blown off another.

A car was demolished and telephone service disrupted at Grand Bend.

A tree, damaged by lightning, crashed down on an unoccupied car owned by Mrs. Ruth Carter, a Windsor school teacher, near Port Franks.

Lightning struck a pile of coal dust in the CPR yards here, setting it alight and causing a fire hazard for a time.

At Kitchener a television set at Central fire station was blown apart when lightning struck the station aerial during a torrential rainstorm. No one was injured.

Several low-lying sections of Kitchener were flooded as 1.12 inches of rain fell.

Had Faith, Took Hope And Charity

LONDON (AP) — Bob Hope sleepily signed a blank cheque held out by an autograph-seeker as he waited for a plane to Brussels today.

"The guy dashed off with the cheque, calling back that he wanted to have some fun with his friends," the American comedian told a reporter at London Airport. "I hope he doesn't have too much fun.

"However, I didn't use my bank signature, and if the cheque should be presented, my bank wouldn't honor it," he said.

Hope was en route to the Belgian capital to keep a golfing date with King Baudouin, whom he met during the king's recent U.S. tour.

"I understand he's a pretty good golfer," said Hope.

OIL RIGHTS SALE

EDMONTON (CP) — Oil companies paid the Alberta government $19,855,296 Thursday in a sale of oil and gas rights in various fields and wildcat areas in the province. The rapidly-growing Swan Hills area, 15 miles northwest of Edmonton, brought more than $9,000,000.

Boy, 12, Faces Arson Charge After Fire Takes 3 Lives

KITCHENER (CP)—A juvenile court heard a 12-year-old boy on arson charges in the family's cupola Thursday to await a Sept. 25 appearance on a charge of arson.

The fire he is alleged to have set in a three-storey building at nearby New Hamburg on Wednesday claimed the lives of two women and four children and did $250,000 damage.

A move to have the youngster made a ward of the Children's Aid Society was refused by Magistrate J. R. H. Kirkpatrick.

Victims of the flames which suddenly engulfed the frame building were Mrs. Fred Crabbe, building.

Steel Strike Will Not End Until Profits Shared -- USWA

NEW YORK (AP)—The U.S. steel strike, says the man directing the walkout, won't end until companies agree to a fair split of increased profits with their 500,000 workers.

David J. McDonald, president of the United Steelworkers of America, thumbed pages of a newspaper to a short inside article saying a small steel firm had netted almost as much profit in six months this year as the company's highest full-year earnings record.

"It's fantastic," said McDonald. "Wait until the big steel companies file their profits reports next week. You'll see. They're going to have to share that money with us."

McDonald's views were as fixed and unyielding on the union side as were those expressed for the industry earlier to the same interviewer by chairman Roger Blough of the United States Steel Corporation.

Talks with the two men, equally firm in their stands in the labor-management clash that has shut down most of the U.S. steel industry, pinpointed the issues.

The industry is dead set against any new net labor-cost increase. The union says the workers deserve—and are going to get—higher pay and company benefits.

McDonald said the industry is trying to cut its work force, whereas steel employment should be increasing to meet the expanding metal needs of America and countries abroad.

"We are being pictured—by the industry as opposing progress and efficiency," McDonald said. "I repeat what I've said: The

Britain's Lloyd Endeavoring To Salvage Summit Parley

GENEVA (AP)—Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd of Britain fought today to salvage a summit meeting from the Big Four foreign ministers conference.

Gromyko was willing to at least talk about Berlin problems apart from East Germany. The Big Four accordingly scheduled another secret luncheon session today to seek progress on issues directly involved in a Berlin truce.

With the conference's eighth week nearing an end, Lloyd Thursday took a far more positive view of achievements to date than U.S. State Secretary Christian Herter and French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville.

MONTREAL COURT HEARS U.S. AGENT ON DRUG DEALS

Tells of Purchases From Two Accused

MONTREAL (CP)—An American Treasury's testimony of furtive dealings with suspected narcotics pedlars kept a Montreal court spellbound Thursday.

It also sent Giuseppe (Pepi) Cotroni, 54, restaurant owner, and waiter Andre Robert, 31, to voluntary statement on charges of narcotics trafficking and conspiracy.

No date was set for voluntary statements, a stage in Quebec legal procedure at which the defence may present evidence before trial.

Patrick J. Blaze, treasury agent for the bureau of narcotics told of a series of meetings with the two men, of narcotics deliveries and finally of the arrest.

Blaze, 35, said he was introduced to Cotroni April 29 under the name Dave Costa. Cotroni came to his motel next day. Edward L. Smith, another treasury agent, and Blaze told Cotroni they were interested in buying heroin.

LENGTHY QUIZ

"He asked why we came to see him and Smith told him: 'We knew you're interested in big packets and thought you might help us out.' Cotroni interrupted at length, I told him I had sold packets of narcotics and hop (opium)."

Cotroni appeared satisfied, Blaze continued, and said he could supply "any amount of narcotics you want to buy; he also said he had hop."

Blaze said he told Cotroni he was interested in buying two kilos, to his knowledge the largest amount ever purchased by government agent on first sale.

Cotroni said it was a small amount and that he would have to charge $7,000 a kilo."

Next day, Blaze and Smith met Cotroni and Robert in an east end motel.

After a two-week wait while Cotroni "checked things out," the two men were called to New York June 7, on a pre-arranged signal and returned to Montreal. Blaze said he was told "the stuff is ready."

HEROIN DELIVERY

In Montreal, the two kilos were handed over in two paper parcels in a "fixed attached to the rear of the building" ignited with matches. The flames enveloped the wooden shed and swept through the rest of the building.

Firemen said the blaze apparently started when rats and waste paper in a "fixed attached to the rear of the building" ignited with matches. The flames enveloped the wooden shed and swept through the rest of the building.

Drugs May Provide Cure For Epilepsy

By DAVID OANCIA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

EDINBURGH (CP) — Drugs may one day provide a cure for epilepsy.

Francis L. McNaughton, professor of neurology at McGill University, predicts that one-half of the patients consulting physicians because of epilepsy may achieve complete control of the attacks by using anti-epileptic drugs now available.

Another 30 to 30 per cent may attain moderate control, he said in a paper prepared for the joint meeting of the British and Canadian medical associations.

"This compares well with the results of therapy and other long-term illnesses," McNaughton said.

He reviewed the results of treatment of 200 patients attending Montreal's Neurosurgical Institute recently. Half of these now were doing full-time work or attending regular school classes. Another 20 per cent were doing part-time work or had made specific plans or arrangements.

"From our experience, I see no reason to doubt Lord Cohen's statement last year that 50 per cent of epileptics can, with appropriate care, and encouragement, lead a normal life."

But, he said, there still was no basis for complacency about the present methods of treatment.

BRITAIN'S LLOYD

ers, Lloyd told Gromyko, have already succeeded in laying down the broad outlines of a Berlin agreement, covering such matters as the limitation of forces and armaments in West Berlin with a pledge of no Communist action against the city for a fixed period of time, the Soviet offer being 18 months.

"I believe that it should be possible here or at some other meeting—perhaps that of the summit), to get final acceptance of this interim agreement," Lloyd said.

In London, Prime Minister Macmillan also said he still thought the foreign ministers conference might be successful and that the ministers then would arrange a summit meeting.

City's 18 Playgrounds Busy With 3,377 Kiddies Enjoy Them

A total of 3,377 children have registered at the city's 18 playgrounds during the first three weeks of operation, the Belleville Recreation office reported today.

This is an increase of over 1,000 for the same period last year.

Recreation Director L. G. Dorland explained the reason for the "tremendous rise in registration" is the addition of five new playgrounds in the annexed area. Additional playgrounds are at Hillcrest, Bayview Public School, Prince of Wales School, Parkdale and Ontario School for the Deaf.

A total of 21 playground leaders have been employed by the Recreation committee to supervise the city's numerous playareas.

The daily attendance at the playgrounds averages 1,251. This is surprisingly high since many families are away on holidays at this time of year.

Normal daily program consists of "quiet periods" which include singsongs, dramas, quiet games, arts and crafts, during the hotter part of the day, and more active activities such as last games and sports during the cooler part of the day, particularly in the morning.

Once a week, however, the program is varied with a "special event" such as a pet show, indian day, and cowboy day.

For example one playground held a pet show recently which included not only the usual assortment of dogs and cats, but also Guinea pigs, Hamsters, turtles, ants, snails, worms and one lone flea. Approximately 400 children and adults attended and prizes were awarded for the best costumed pet, the pet performing the cleverest trick, the most unusual pet, and the longest pet from tip of nose to end of tail.

Entrants were paraded by their young owners and judged by a committee composed of parents and supervisors. First, second and third place ribbons attached to all-day suckers were awarded the winners, although all participants were given a small prize.

Plans are currently being finalized for Playground Week which will be held August 4 to August 7. Special activities will be held at each playground and will include a mother-and-daughter tea, a father-son baseball game, and a "neighborhood night" when a small-fry "beauty contest" will be held to select a "Miss Playground."

Entrants must be between the ages of three and six, and the winner will be decided by votes cast by spectators.

The culmination of Playground Week activities will be a Field Day Carnival which will be held at the East Hill Playground, Saturday 8th, from 2 to 5:30 p.m. All playgrounds will participate, and many will provide a booth.

During the carnival a "Miss Penny Carnival" will be chosen by a panel of judges from the 18 cuties selected as "Miss Playgrounds."

The playgrounds are open daily from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. and are in operation from July 3rd 'til August 28th inclusive. Children of all ages are welcome to register for eight weeks of supervised summer fun.

At the plane she will be greeted by Mayor and Mrs. Ross Burtt of Trenton and the two commanding officers of the RCAF Station and their wives.

She will then be taken to her waiting car and at 6.32 p.m. the Queen and Prince Philip and proceed at 30 m.p.h. to Highway 2 which points the royal vehicle will allow to speed of 8 m.p.h. and travel at 30 m.p.h. when Sidney and Lorne Avenue on the west side of the city is reached. The speed will then be increased to 30 m.p.h. and continue on towards Brighton.

Westbound traffic will be restricted on Dundas-Trenton (near Bayside) north to the 401 Highway. The detour of the westbound traffic will be started at 5.30 p.m. and the route will then be re-opened at 7.00 p.m.

Bowmanville Escapees Caught After Chase

TRENTON — Two juvenile escapees from Bowmanville were captured by the OPP in Brighton early Tuesday morning after a chase at high speeds from Colbourne to the 401 Highway.

Constable A. Cruikshank on patrol duties was sitting in his cruiser in Colbourne when a car shot by him at a high rate of speed. He immediately chased it, taking it no more than a normal speeding case.

He pulled behind the speeding car and when given a signal went to come abreast of the car and stop it. As he did so the driver car swerved and all but ditched the cruiser. This was done three times and then the fast-moving car refused to obey the cruiser and stop or to let it by.

Constable Graham, took a shot at the speeding car's rear tire and hit it, causing it to go flat. But even this failed to stop the car and it kept going even with a flat tire.

This occurred on No. 2 highway between Colbourne and Brighton.

The cars sped through the town of Brighton and Constable Graham radioed ahead to the Belleville OPP cruiser and they set up a road block near where the 401 highway and Wooler Road meet. The car was forced to a stop here and the juveniles apprehended. It was then they were recognized as the escapees and it was also found the car they were driving had been stolen.

She Forgot To Mention Small Detail

MONTREAL (CP) — A woman phoned police radio headquarters and asked for a constable to rescue her cat, which was stuck up a telegraph pole. She was told the department didn't want to risk injuring a policeman in rescue a cat, which could climb down itself.

The woman hung up.

A few minutes later she was back on the line.

"By the way," she said, "my little boy is stuck up there too. He's got the cat in his arms."

She got a constable.

Pickle, Pilfer Puts Pair In Pokey

A man and his wife will be separated for a twenty-four hour period at least, under sentences handed down by Magistrate R. V. Wills during Magistrate's Court this morning. Mr. and Mrs. William Russell Bell, of Hamilton both appeared in court on separate charges Mrs. Bell whose case was heard first, was charged with being drunk in a public place. Entering a plea of guilty she was given the option of 13.00 or six days. She had no money.

A bit later in the docket, her husband appeared on a charge of shoplifting. He was charged with acquisition of three pairs of silk stockings from the F. W. Woolworth store. On a plea of guilty he was sentenced to five days in the common jail. The stores lawyer said he shall still be waiting on his wife when he is released.

John Casey, confronted on a charge of assault, entered a plea of not guilty before Magistrate Wills this morning. Upon hearing evidence of the complainant, a Mr. D. Bell, and two witnesses as well as that of the defendant Magistrate Wills found him guilty of the charge and pronounced a suspended sentence of six months plus court costs of $13.00 and restitution to the complainant for hospital and doctor bills.

Earl King, whose case concerning a charge of theft under $50 was salarged to this date, was sentenced to seven days. The charge arose out of a car accident in which the accused was involved.

In Magistrate's Court this morning Joseph Edward Payette of Trenton appeared with Earl King the scene of an accident and driving charges involved. Finally, was released on cash bail of $200.00. His case will be tried before Magistrate Wills on Tuesday, August 11th.

Congress let such a block cut rein across the road?"

Russian workmen crowded in front of the TV cameras erected across the road, applauding and cheering Khrushchev's arguments.

Nixon said "Your remarks are in the tradition of what we have been hearing—sweeping and extemporary."

He added: "After all, you don't have everything."

Khrushchev replied "If I don't have everything, you don't have anything about communism, except fear of it."

TO DO GOOD

Nixon said: "This competition is to do good on behalf of both our peoples that's must be a free exchange of ideas.

"Tensions are some instances in which you are ahead of us, for example in rockets. There are some instances where we are ahead of you—in color television for instance."

Khrushchev: "No, we are up with you on that too."

Nixon: "Let us compete in this area. We should have more people on TV. We should have more of us on your TV."

In the exchange at the exhibition grounds, Khrushchev said the Soviet had liquidated their foreign bases and have reduced its armies in the quest for peace.

"We have taken the path of peace with Germany and eliminate the point of friction in Berlin," he said.

Nixon stood for a to-face with Khrushchev, cutting back his arguments one by one. At the end Nixon apologized for being "a poor host" in the discussion and allowing a ceremonial visit to Khrushchev's model kitchen and discussions.

"My main point is that in this day's world," Nixon said, "it is immaterial which of these two great systems of government at any moment has an advantage. Any advantage in the next war is illusory."

President Klemenit Voroshilov, deputy premier Anastas Mikoyan and Frol R. Kozlov stood by Khrushchev during the debate on the visit to the exhibition.

When the debate got really heated, Nixon said:

"I trust the premier has understood that I am speaking frankly. What I mean is that the moment a place either one of these powerful nations becomes the ultimum in a position where they have no choice but accept dictation or fight, then you are playing with the most destructive power in the world.

"And this is very important in the present world situation. When you sit down at the conference table it cannot be all one way."

Khrushchev replied: "I agree. Looking sternly at Nixon he said "Who is dictating to whom?"

Nixon tried to shift the argument saying that the two men should discuss the issues calmly at another time.

Khrushchev replied, obviously irritated, would not stop.

"Do you realize it while people are listening to you now?" he demanded. "We know something about capitalism, too."

Khrushchev group applauded as he ordered to be waved his right finger a few inches from Nixon's face and went on in stern tones.

"You talk about an ultimatum. Our government has spoken on the ultimatum. What do you mean?"

Nixon replied: "I'll be very direct. I am talking about it in the international scene."

Khrushchev replied:

"It sounds like a great threat. We too are giants. If you want to measure us, we can measure you with threat."

Nixon: "That my point," Nixon said. "Who wants to threaten? I am not threatening. I'll never engage in that."

Khrushchev replied:

"OURS ARE BETTER."

Khrushchev added:

Various other cases involving minor traffic offences and offences under the Liquor Control Act were also dealt with.

Quebec Licence For Bar Sought By Ontario Ship

TORONTO (CP)—The pleasure boat SS Cayuga, forced to suspend sailings last Tuesday following financial difficulties, may sail again if a plan taking advantage of the St. Lawrence Seaway can be worked out.

The proposal plan is to register the Cayuga with the Irvin Navigation Co. of Montreal and obtain a licence for a bar from the Quebec Liquor Board of Quebec.

The Cayuga would winter in Montreal and make trips up and down the St. Lawrence River and between her Toronto to Queenston trips on Lake Ontario during the tourist season.

The plan was called "unprecedented" by Hugh Brown, registrar of the Ontario Liquor Licence Board which in 1956 refused to grant the Cayuga a bar licence.

Alan Howard, managing director of the Cayuga Navigation Company, said: "If we get the go-ahead for it we could pay off all the Cayuga's creditors and make a sound profit within a couple of years."

If the Cayuga can not be put on a profit financial basis by Nov. 28, she will be broken up for scrap.

Sets Aside Suspensions of Eye Specialists

VANCOUVER (CP) — The suspension of 11 eye specialists by the College of Physicians and Surgeons last July was set aside Thursday by Mr. Justice N. W. Whittaker in British Columbia Supreme Court.

The college suspended 14 B.C. doctors after deciding they were guilty of "unprofessional" conduct in accepting commissions for the sale of glasses by Prescription Optical Company.

Since then, two of the doctors have resigned and three another has retired from medical practice.

Their licence to practise was lifted for three months but the suspension was held up pending the outcome of the appeal filed July 11 of the ruling.

The suspension followed a board of inquiry which conducted a sitting last year. The appeal board that the doctors were guilty of no $200,000 profit received for the sale of their shares in the optical company. The doctors said the money was paid them in 10 annual instalments which they contended was capital gain.

Lawyer Wanted For 14-Million Fraud Located

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—Brazilian police today announced they have found Lyle O. Welch, wanted in New York on a $14,000,000 fraud indictment.

Police said the 52-year-old lawyer was picked up in the fashionable Ipanema district area.

Frank S. Hogan, New York district attorney, announced in New York Thursday that Birrell has been found in Rio. Until today Brazilian officials and members of the U.S. Embassy staff in Brazil knew nothing about the matter.

The financier had been missing since 1957, when a warrant was issued for his arrest. Two weeks ago a federal grand jury in Brooklyn returned an indictment with engineering a $14,000,000 fraud on stock-holders of two companies.

CAN'T BE EXTRADITED

Brazil has no extradition treaty with the United States, so Birrell's deportation is being sought by the state department. Hogan said he may have a fraudulent passport.

Once in control of 40 companies, Birrell is charged with theft from Research Oil Corporation and Doeskin Products stockholders.

Hogan said Birrell's manipulations caused Doeskin to drop to a share from $10. It now is about $2.

Police sources said Birrell was found on an FBI tip delivered to the ministry of justice by the U.S. Embassy.

200 Stars Dance, Party Until Dawn

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (AP)—The curtains came down shortly before dawn on the London's most starstudded theatrical production of the year.

Beginning at midnight, it was a fantastic show.

Sir John Gielgud with Dame Edith Evans.

Sir Michael Redgrave did a polka with Dame Peggy Ashcroft.

Bob Hope kissed Sir Laurence Olivier, sort of.

It was billed as the Night of 200 Stars, show business was guilty of an understatement. It was more like a morning of 200 stars.

Audrey Hepburn played a role in a night club scene. Beatrice Lillie minced a delicious course through a kitchen dinner to the strains of a cracked rendition of Schubert's Serenade. Sarah Churchill, Winston's daughter and Phyllis Calvert kicked high in the chorus line.

SING SOLOS

At 2 a.m. Paul Robeson and Eddie Fisher sang solos. Elizabeth Taylor made big eyes at the audience.

The show started as late because many of the actors and actresses are playing in current hits.

Tickets cost £20 each. All the money went to the Actor's Orphanage, a London institution supported entirely by show people.

There were only a few mishaps.

Beautiful Margaret Leighton slid charleston-ze vigorously with husband Laurence Harvey but her skimpy dress slipped off just as Harvey began a romantic clinch. "I'm in a medicine cup," British papers have shown sign of alarm.

TWISTS ANKLE

Richard Greene, TV's Robin Hood twisted his ankle.

Dulcie Grey, who fell at rehearsal and broke her arm, went on with it in a sling.

Hope closed the show lying full length on the chaise lounge saying:

"My doctors say it's O.K. to chase girls—if I forget what I'm chasing them for."

Canadian Trade Record Forecast

WINNIPEG (CP) — Canada's export trade this year should reach an all-time record high of $5,000,000,000, Trade Minister Churchill predicted Thursday.

In an interview, he said: "Canadian trade is doing well. It is picking up, especially in the second half of the year. We expect this latter part to be good indeed."

Queen's Agenda Is Overloaded Says Telegraph

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — The latest view on the Royal Tour is that the Queen's health should rescue the Queen from her own high energy.

In effect, The Daily Telegraph argues:

When the Queen goes on tour, the communities she is to visit inevitably tend to "overload" the agenda.

When she is visiting Manchester or Liverpool, Buckingham Palace can intervene and tactfully suggest that the program should be lighter.

When she goes to Canada, there is greater reluctance by the palace to act as buffer between the country and the Queen.

As for the visit to Montreal, The Daily Telegraph says, "she has a right expect that her obligations to the new Commonwealth, and her expressed determination to fulfill them, will be taken for gainsay."

The paper says this is a logical development flowing from constitutional developments within the Commonwealth and the abstinent of it, as now is seen in London, "is the Queen's personal affair."

It needs to do about it? "the whole question of royal visits to the Commonwealth will almost certainly be discussed at the next meeting of Commonwealth prime ministers."

The paper's comment arises from the Queen's indisposition which, though brief, could not have been described in Canada as anything but a storm in a medicine cup," British papers have shown sign of alarm.

Find Nyasaland Massacre Plot Charge Untrue

LONDON — An official finding that there was no plot against the British colonial administration in Nyasaland for the way it handled African unrest there.

The investigating commission, appointed by the British government, rejected the claim that the African National Congress plotted an orchestrated campaign of terror in the Central African protectorate.

The four-man commission, led by Judge Sir Patrick Devlin, said in its report published today that "there was talk of beating up Europeans but not of cold-blooded premeditation or massacre."

The alleged "massacre plot" was given as one of the main reasons for declaration of a state of emergency and the arrest of hundreds of Africans in Nyasaland, March 3.

The British Government backed the commission's finding on the grounds "a massacre" was being planned.

The commission charged that unnecessary, illegal force was used during the roundup of congress leaders. It described Nyasaland as a police state —"a police state in action."

The Nyasaland Government overreacted to the situation in which the idea of violence had penetrated the Congress organization, the report said.

The commission concluded that Congress leaders failed to adopt emergency powers "in the situation that existed March 3, which was a massacre."

Publicity given to the "massacre plot" caused the resignation from the real strength of the government's case against the Congress, the report said.

Nyasaland Governor Sir Robert Armitage issued a statement simultaneously with the report defending both the plot charges and his actions in dealing with the trouble.

The decision to be drawn between taking lack of beating and killing Europeans and talk of cold-blooded assassination or murder," he said.

Price for Land Not in Same Type As Rest of Offer

TORONTO (CP) — Judge Joseph Sweet Thursday ordered a search for additional copies of an offer to purchase township land of the late Sir Henry Pellatt to be introduced at the York Township inquiry into a figure typed on a different machine.

Judge Sweet, presiding at the inquiry into Township land sales and financial deals, issued this instruction after Reeve Raymond of Vincent Volpatti who bought two pieces of land for $181-000, Monday, March 2, 1953.

Questioned by Judge Sweet and by Frank Regan, counsel for the inquiry, Mr. Volpatti said he did not know where the figure was put in.

When asked by the judge if it was not on the agreement when he signed it, Mr. Volpatti replied: "I really don't remember."

Mr. Creighton produced documents showing Mr. Volpatti had sold four of the 10 lots about 21 months after he bought them. The remaining six lots he built houses worth $60,000.

James Chesar, treasurer of York Township, is to be recalled when the inquiry into the way that his testimony may clear up the question of how land bids were changed.

Engineer Averts Serious Crash At Open Switch

ALEXANDRIA, Ont. (CP)—A quick-thinking engineer slammed on the brakes of the CNR's crack Montreal-Toronto Limited as it roared through here Thursday, averting a serious accident.

Joseph Lalonde, engineer of Montreal saw an open switch at the last moment and managed to reduce speed as the two powerful diesel engines pulling 12 passenger-laden cars up to the station.

The engines plowed into five freight cars, knocking them from the rail, and slammed a coal gondola into a parking yard between steel pipe that had been piled on the rails. No one was seriously injured.

Officials here said if the Vancouver-Montreal train been doing its usual 80 miles an hour through this town about 20 miles north of Cornwall, a crash could have been considerable loss of life.

Milk Probe Is Adjourned

GUELPH (CP)—An inquiry by the milk industry board of Ontario to investigate prices, trade practices, management policies and other matters relating to the marketing of milk in the Guelph market was held here Thursday and after eight days of hearing has been heard was adjourned indefinitely.

Judge A. R. Currey presided.

Statements showing that they had been paid milk prices as said down in the agreement were produced by witnesses, but some said that they had to go back to the dairy a considerable amount of money. The statements of payments were ordered filed as exhibits.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP)—A 60-year-old Italian immigrant lost his life Thursday when a 10-inch steel pipe fell from a pile and struck him on the head. Antonio Vescovini was killed while working on a contract job at the west end of Manesmann tube mill, when the mishap occurred.

Prince Thought Chiropractors Foot Specialists

BRANDON, Man. (CP) — D. C. E. Webb, a chiropractor at Brandon alderman, learned Thursday night that Prince Philip had never heard of his profession.

Then the alderman was presented to the prince, he was asked: "You're a doctor—a doctor of what?"

"A doctor of chiropractry," said the alderman.

"Chiropractry? What's that?" asked Philip.

"I didn't take time to explain it to the prince," Dr. Webb said later.

The prince was heard asking Mrs. James Coughlin, wife of Brandon's mayor: "Chiropractor — that is foot specialist."

A chiropodist treats foot ailments. A chiropractor is one who practices manipulation of the spinal column as a method of curing disease.

PROSPECTS FOR CONFERENCE SEEM DIM

Not until the Geneva conference is over and the diplomats have returned home would it be safe to say that these talks will not produce a formula for a summit conference. Right now, though, the prospects for such a result appear dim. Yet, whether or not a last-minute agreement is reached, the Russians are likely to be in a position to reap some propaganda benefits, so skilfully have they manoeuvred.

If the conference brings an agreement, it will have to be as the result of a last-minute Russian concession. That the need for such a Russian concession before an accord has been made essential by an earlier unyielding Russian insistence on which the Soviet Union knew would be unacceptable to the West will probably escape the notice of many. It will be the Russians who will be able to pose as eager to negotiate a peaceful settlement.

On the other hand, if the conference ends in failure, it will be simple for the Reds to blame this failure on the West's refusal to agree to direct negotiations between West Germany and East Germany on the reunification of Germany. This does not place the West in an enviable position. There can be few among even the most deluded people who regard East Germany as an independent power, but on the other hand there are almost certainly many who mistakenly believe that West Germany is just as much a satellite of the West as East Germany is of the East. Even among those who do not share this erroneous belief there will be many who would regard recognition of the equality of the East and West German regimes as a small price to pay for even the slimmest hope of a European settlement. The very fact that West German rulers are Germans, while East Germany's real rulers are not Germans, does little to increase the popularity of the former regime with some of the peoples of Europe.

SO WHO CARES WHAT HE THINKS?

Dr. Willard Libby, former member of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, does not think much of Canada's atomic energy program. "A pretty small effort," he says. "I think they could have done a better job."

This brought Hon. C. D. Howe, former Trade Minister, out of retirement long enough to deliver a blast and he has been joined by Hon. Gordon Churchill, present Trade Minister, who says he thinks Canada is doing "pretty well."

There is some reason to doubt whether Dr. Libby knows what he is talking about, since he never toured the Canadian atomic plant at Chalk River.

Somehow, though, we cannot escape the conviction that all this is beside the point.

Why the heck should we Canadians care what Dr. Libby, or any other official of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, thinks of our atomic energy program? Whether it is big or small is our business. Whether it is a good job or not will be proven in time.

A HOLIDAY TRIP, PERHAPS?

Queen Elizabeth will fly straight home at the end of her tour of Canada, instead of sailing on the royal yacht Britannia.

Edmond Butler, the Queen's press secretary, has stated that the decision to fly had nothing to do with the Queen's indisposition during her Yukon visit.

In London, a Buckingham Palace spokesman said it should think she (the Queen) would like to get things arranged for her summer holiday."

Wonder what the Queen would say if Prince Philip should suggest "My dear, why don't we take a trip this summer vacation?"

Ontario Highways Minister Cass got lost while trying to find his way to the official opening of a new bridge on Highway 90 southwest of Barrie. He could not find the signs for the cutoff from Highway 400. Apparently this difficulty is not uncommon for motorists.

When he asked the way of a service station attendant, the man replied "That's what they all ask." Said Mr. Cass: "I wouldn't be surprised to see some signs up here very soon indeed." Neither will we. Some highway department officials will discover that one cannot be casual about a casualty when it is a Cassualty.

BASEBALL MEMORY

By EDGAR A. GUEST

Beside him in the stand I sat,
The home team scored;
And then, for joy he smashed his hat
And shouted and roared.

He stamped his feet upon the floor
And struck my corn;
And when we made another score
My shirt was torn.

Then from the stand I quickly ran
And quit the lot;
Strange though it be, this baseball fan
Had made me hot!

Strictly Personal

A Compliment Often Food For Thought

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

An attractive young woman was sitting next to me at a party, when a friend of hers came over and barbed, "Your hair looks just lovely tonight — and I've never, ever noticed it before!"

When the woman next to me had accomplished the feat, her friend had sidled away, she turned to me and exclaimed: "I always feel odd when I get a compliment like that — it's supposed to make me feel good, but it doesn't."

"Why not?" I asked, as a curious male who doesn't receive two compliments a decade.

"Well," she said, "most people compliment you in a way that's more insulting than gratifying. For instance, when I took off 10 pounds, all my friends commented on how lovely and svelte I looked. It immediately occurred to me that I must have looked like a fat slob before I trimmed down — and I never realized it."

"That's carrying self-criticism through self-confidence," I put in.

"Maybe you're right," she reflected "but then I don't think most women have a lot of self-confidence when it comes to personal appearance. And I also think that people are more interested in each other, she is also in some subtle way turning the knife in her heart.

"How do you mean?" I asked.

"Well, it often seems to me the implication of a compliment about a new hairdo or a nice suntan or a new dress is often a way of suggesting that in the past your hair was a frightful mess, your tan was sickly sallow and your clothes bagged where they should bulge.

"But I haven't you pleased that you've corrected those unfortunate flaws."

"Yes and no", she answered. "It makes me wonder, too, what else there is wrong about me that I don't know about. Maybe two years from now, someone will come up with a compliment on my new flattering makeup and I'll be stricken with the thought that all these years I've worn colors that looked ghastly on me, and no woman friend would tell me."

I hastily caught the bartender's eye and bade him bring liquid sustenance for this lovely creature. Then I addressed myself. "I have to go to the powder room", I said, "to mess up my hair and pimple my face. I couldn't bear it if someone complimented me tonight."

Wrong People Got Reward

Cape Breton Post

In Paris, recently, the officially designated 13 cleanest children in France were rewarded with their weight of soap and water, according to the Education Ministry. This, apparently, was to encourage them in cleanliness of the mouth behind their ears, but one might suppose that the 13 cleanest children in France were more in need of all that soap.

The soap distributed children were chosen in a school competition by the teachers who computed that a young person weighing 115 pounds was worth 240 cakes of soap. All right, but worth far more than that.

Who dreamed up this soapy competition? The soap manufacturers of France — you can depend upon it. It takes a combination of enterprise and lively imagination to make people pause, look, and listen to what you have to sell. In this instance the soapy Germ and makes a bubbly picture.

Bevin's Dream Half True

B.B.C. London Letter

Ernest Bevin, Labor's Foreign Secretary from 1945 to 1951, once said that he wanted to see a world in which he could "get down to Victoria Station, get a railway ticket, and go where the hell I like without a passport or anything."

This dream, many thought last week, was coming true. The news came that tourists from many European countries (in fact the 16 members of the Organization for European Economic Cooperation) would soon be able to visit Britain without a passport. But Bevin's dream suddenly reminded that the same would not apply to them in these European countries. The reason is that since most European countries demand that their citizens carry identity cards, a passport is a duplication. Britons were freed of their identity cards in 1951, so that a passport is the only identity document they carry — and of course it has become an internationally accepted document.

But the announcement does represent a general trend in Europe to revert to the original aims of the post-war years. Those originally came into existence in the 1930s mainly as a result of requests of citizens for an official document to facilitate their travel, as well as from officials who the traveller was and his nationality. This certainly many countries have used this original need of the citizen for State interests. They have either deprived the citizen of the right to a passport, or have employed the passport as a means of controlling his exit from and entry into the country. Johnol.

Some Perils Of Vacations

Pembroke Observer

Family vacations sometimes turn into a week of misery because edible wildlife, flying, or at least from the suffocating confines of school clothing, resort to a lobster red in one instance they under a burning sun. Sleepless nights then follow painful days until, along about the last morning, the tingling burns on the unspeared, they turn tender skins into raw, festering, itching epidermis.

Early in the season woodticks and chiggers are the worst. Later, sandburs in the blueberry patches and thorns on the branch that parts the purple bangs, inflict wounds.

Wind scarred lips and water takes the natural oil from hands. Living is uncomfortable. Mosquitoes recognize indirectness like too many hours on the water and too many bottles of soda water.

Blisters appear on heels not accustomed to long hikes in canvas sneakers. Oars rub palms raw and blow blisters on hands. An overdose of diving and swimming leaves the stripling's eyes feeling as though they were rolling in pockets of sand. It waters and gets red and he can't even bear the dinner bell.

In fact, those weeks in the country are the ones in which beautiful lake are "fraught with more aggravations than can be found on city streets. But, they need not be.

Children cannot be expected to be discreet, especially in a strange environment. They do not know when to say no to one of the beautiful sun. In their wild excitement some of the best times quitoes until it is too late. They do not even feel the discomfort of the stone under-off at night.

So it is up to ma and it is up to pa. All things in moderation, especially during the first few days, when we're in the ultimate stripdrags to most of the dangers of a vacation.

Just as an emergency measure, be sure to have the first aid kit along. Insist on sunglasses and a hat. Bathe in the lake where which have some arch support. Remember to take salt tablets and shut at the bottom keep out the chiggers, woodticks are a most and mosquitoes are a must on the water. Swimming should be limited. The danger is that the point of a fishhook should be explained.

Even the dog will bear watching. Porcupines have no favorites.

Yet, with all precautions observed, there should be hand lotion to make stripdrag hands soft and comfortable at bedtime. There should be a chapstick for lips burned lips, soothing creams for sunburned backs, cough medicines for a headache, insect repellents and an eye wash.

And, lest we forget, aspirin tablets for ma and pa!

CHARLOTTETOWN, P.E.I.

Prince Edward Island was called St. John's Island after it was taken over by the British in 1763. Its principal settlement was named Charlotte-Town, after Charlotte, wife of George III. In later years the hyphen was dropped and the two words joined.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In the hotel dining room I was having breakfast with a local surgeon who had already performed his operation and was taking a break. These surgeons seem to prefer to operate as early in the day as possible.

Into the dining room came two very important looking specimens. They were dressed in what you might call superlative suits. They were groomed like princes. Collars, ties, shoes and handkerchief were left at any of the other breakfasters, indeed, as though the whole dining room were unworthy of a glance, they signalled to the waiter where they wished to sit and proceeded to take a table. Standing, they had a brief colloquy with the head waiter who signalled a bus boy. The bus boy obediently vanished out the door. The gentlemen sat down. The bus boy returned with some telegram forms and stationery for which he had obviously been sent.

Then the waitresses approached, the tycoons, without raising their heads, waved them away. They wrote telegrams, both of them. After a few minutes, the larger more elegant of the two raised a finger and summoned the head waiter. The head waiter, bowing, summoned a waitress. Breakfast was ordered, without reference to the menu which the waitress proffered.

"There's a couple of visiting moguls," I mentioned to the surgeon.

"No, no," he said, glancing at them. "They're a couple of local real estate men."

"Their putting on quite an act to impress an audience," I submitted.

"No, to impress themselves."

"Each other?" I asked.

"No, each one is trying to impress himself," said the surgeon.

To Your Good Health

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

ITCHING EYELIDS MAY BE THE RESULT OF AN ALLERGY

"Dear Dr. Molner: Could you give me any information about itching eyelids that become swollen and form crusts, scales and places? This happens at different times during the year.— Mrs. F. H."

"Dear Doctor: What could cause an incessant itching in the eyebrows? Scales form above the lids and come off in flakes. This does not spread but it has gone on for years. — Mrs. R. M."

These letters come from readers (both women) in different states, both eastern states but hundreds of miles apart.

The first thing we should think of in such cases is allergy. The causes are many, but the commonest are cosmetics; face powder, eye make-up, hair dye.

The first suspect is what we might call environmental irritants; pollen, dust, smog, fumes, detergents and (not uncommonly) some particular bath soap or shampoo.

Mrs. P. H.'s letter suggests something of the sort because of the way the itching comes and goes. Something we may logically suspect happens to get into her eyes, and it is something that she comes in contact with periodically.

Always remember, with allergies that the most unusual substance may be the guilty one — for you. Individuals who are sensitive to certain foods may react to the most healthful foods, such as eggs, meat, citrus fruits, or indeed almost anything, can be good for roast of us but bad for some itchy individuals.

PLANTS OR BEAUTY PARLOR

Can Mrs. P. H. or Mrs. R. M. connect these periods of irritation with any particular weather, or season? Certain plants can be possibly be guilty. Or perhaps their trouble starts right after she has been to a beauty parlor which uses some soap, or hair dye, or cosmetic that irritates her.

Does she visit someone, or have a visit from someone with, perhaps, a pet animal? Animal danders sometimes are guilty.

If she is observant and lucky, she can solve this distressing nuisance substance. If not, she may want to consult an allergist who can test her for sensitivity to various substances.

Mrs. E. M. R. case suggests something else because of the long duration of trouble. One possibility is seborrheic eczema or dermatitis (skin condition) affecting the eyebrows.

She happens to be from the east central part of the country, and the possibility of ringworm must be considered. It prevails best in certain European, Asiatic and Mediterranean countries, and is not unknown in some parts of the U.S. It can, I warn you, be stubborn and resistant to treatment, and it is contagious.

There are other types of chronic inflammation, too, and perhaps much easier to treat than trachoma. And we should add, likewise, that deficient diet and lack of vitamins can cause granulation and irritation of the eye-lids. This is not too unusual among older folk who may be careless about following a well balanced diet. So, you see, there are plenty of possible causes. Except that finding out a particular allergy may require a lot of observation. It should not be too difficult to pin down the type of trouble, and after that the treatment presents no great problem.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I would appreciate a few words about gradually losing weight. I am 64 and getting quite concerned. — M. B."

I can't go into detail on the various causes of this in limited space but I do say solemnly: gradual loss of the voice in nothing to view lightly. Some change is taking place in your vocal cords, and you should see a throat specialist promptly.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Is there any way of bleaching hair on the upper lip? — A. S.

Yes, that's a job for a beauty parlor, not for me, however. I've been suggested a new thing from time to time as a good solution for excess hair. Bleached it is known as a bleach.

Great Boon To Homeless

St. Louis Post-Dispatch

In this age of nuclear physics and electronic marvels too complex for most of us to comprehend or understand, it is a pleasure to come upon a modern device of such a simple and practical significance that is, at the same time, as incomprehensible as a horseshoe. This device is a metal press costing about $130 which makes it possible for two persons working together to produce cement building blocks in five to eight days to build a three-room house, using as materials the local soil, water and a small amount of lime or cement.

Such a tool as this type can mean in the underdeveloped and poverty-stricken areas of the world can best be appreciated, perhaps, by those who have had first-hand the urgent need for shelter. The press was developed by the Pan American Union and already is in use in Mexico, Colombia, Haiti, Honduras and other countries. The several private and public organizations promoting the wide distribution of the machine are to be congratulated for developing a truly basic tool of the underdeveloped areas.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

WASTE TIME

We cannot waste time. We only waste ourselves. Time is wasted ourselves by wondering where Time goes, anyway. Time is a detached being that is a precious thing. We hear it said "Time marches on," as a popular magazine long ago announced. The time of life keeps ticking. No time for sidewalk dreamers. Plenty of time for all anyway. "All time is Borrowed Need," writes Robert Updegraff, so Ben Hur Lampman once in air's first Happy Living.

How happy most are, said this: "The only wealth, ourselves. Then we waste ourselves by wondering where Time goes, anyway. This is a detached being that is a precious thing. We hear it said "Time marches on," as a popular magazine long ago announced. The time of life keeps ticking. No time for sidewalk dreamers. Plenty of time for all anyway. "All time is Borrowed Need," writes Robert Updegraff, so Ben Hur Lampman once in air's first Happy Living.

What is that it takes all your time?

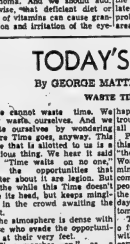
Perhaps we need to learn that this Time of ours actually IS "the Greatest Gift in the World." If so, then why not put mind and heart to work in a determined effort to wake up people to the fact? We have all the time we need if we only make it worth the waste of valuable time for tomorrow.

The tomorrows can take care o themselves. Today is the day with which we are most concerned. We never have enough Time to give away to those who need it. To those whom we love.

We need Time in which to adjust ourselves — to forgive, to comfort and to learn the secret of Happy Living.

Strength for The Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS



CAN THIS BE TRUE?

It is amazing the extent to which Christian workers and particularly workers among young people, maintain that there is a "tremendous amount of blasphemy going the rounds these days. This is something more than profane swearing. It is profane swearing of that lurid variety which makes even the most worldly people wince. It is an attitude toward divine realities characterized by disdain, ridicule, and hatred.

Is it true that we are having a resurgence of this sort of thing today? Christian workers seem to think it is. They say that there are any number of people with whom they come in contact who go out of their way to be as offensive and degrading as they can when they refer to divine things.

If this is true, then it is quite alarming. For while swearing — which is bad enough — involves carelessness and a disregard of sacred things, blasphemy is a positive attack against all that is holy. It denotes a definite revolt to the weak and careless, most of us would perish morally. But what must be the attitude of God toward those who, because of the divine spirit in the lives of men. This is blasphemy.

If it is at prevalent as some people say it is, then we may well be alarmed.

Crowe Authority Reforestation Board to Meet

MARMORA — Mr. James H. Sprackett, reeve of Tudor and Cashel townships and chairman of The Crowe Valley Conservation Authority's reforestation advisory board, has announced he will be calling a meeting of the board shortly. Members of the board are Mr. W. Peacock, Faraday township, and Mr. James Barnes, Belmont and Methuen townships, who, like Mr. Sprackett, are municipal representatives on the authority, plus Mr. Issac Anderson and Mr. Carl McCoy, who are appointed in an advisory capacity by the authority itself.

Nearly all the twenty-six conservation authorities in Ontario are conducting reforestation programs and appoint advisory boards to direct the work. The Crowe Valley Conservation Authority decided to commence its reforestation program in this, its first year of operation, by setting aside $1,000 in its budget for land purchases. The plan is to buy poor quality farm lands that are no longer of use for agricultural purposes, or rough lands that have been lumbered off in the past, then reforest and manage them to form a permanent forest in public ownership. The prime objective is to improve summer flow in streams and rivers at the same time reduce the risk of floods in the future. Forest lands act like a giant sponge holding back rainfall and releasing moisture slowly over a long period. Snow melting is also slower under forest shade, extending freshet flows over a longer period. Secondary effects of a realistic reforestation program are numerous. The restoration of idle land to useful production and the regular payment of taxes are two benefits that all municipalities are glad to see. Then the managed forests also provide employment on an increasing scale as the trees are planted, thinned, pruned, protected and harvested and the wood-using industries are assured of a sustained supply of raw materials. By evening out the flow in streams and rivers, fishing is improved and plantations interspersed with swamp-land and woodlots provide a better habitat for game.

'LAY COPY MOIRA PLAN

The Moira River Conservation Authority which controls the 1,056 square mile watershed on the east side of the Crowe Valley, started its reforestation program in 1951. To date, some 8,500 acres of marginal and wooded lands have been purchased by that authority and much of the land has been successfully planted.

The Crowe Authority's Reforestation Advisory Board will have to decide whether or not it will recommend to the authority that a similar policy be followed in acquiring lands. The usual procedure is for options to be taken on suitable lands offered at a reasonable price and then the board meet and look at a number of such options properties in one district in the area. In this way board members have a chance to compare the various lands offered and select those for purchase which are best suited to the needs of the authority. In order that all persons wishing to sell may be given equal consideration, Mr. Sprackett has authorized the placing of advertisements in local newspapers and requests would-be vendors to get in touch with him or any municipal representatives on the authority or the chairman of the authority, Granville Meikle-john.

The progress of Mr. Sprackett's board will be watched with interest by all watershed residents since reforestation is perhaps the most important long-term project the Crowe Valley Conservation Authority will undertake. Steady progress with its plan can mean a brighter economic and recreational future for residents and visitors alike.

SASKATOON BERRIES — The Queen seems amused as Mayor Sid Buckwold presents her with a gift jar of the berries after which Saskatoon, a city of 80,000, was named. Mayor Buckwold was careful to stress that the berries are spelled with a capital S. (CP Wirephoto).

INFORMAL CHAT — Prince Philip had an unexpected chat with a group of youngsters who climbed the balustrade of the legislative building steps in Regina Thursday. The Royal couple were signing a guest book near by when the children shouted "Hi, Prince," and the Prince went over to talk. (CP Wirephoto).

STEEL STRIKE

...ilm is as phony as a $7 bill."

The union, said McDonald, never has opposed automation or technical progress.

"Reasonable adjustments in working conditions are made each year by joint agreement in local collective bargaining," McDonald said.

"What the industry desires, however, is to eliminate free collective bargaining in making these adjustments and to substitute unilateral management imposition of its will."

McDonald stressed that the steel industry's labor bill is some eight per cent less, for each ton of finished steel, than a decade ago.

"And there are thousands upon thousands fewer steelworkers in the mills today producing more steel and better steel than ever before," he said. "Does that look like featherbedding?"

Arrest Indian As Madawaska's Phantom Firebug

OTTAWA (CP) — The Ontario fire marshal's office here said Thursday a man has been arrested in the search for a "phantom arsonist" who has plagued the Madawaska district 70 miles west of Pembroke for three years.

Inspector Ray Simmonds said Lorea Francois, 24, an Indian resident of Madawaska, was arrested Wednesday night and charged with setting a fire. He said a third charge was pending. The first count involves the destruction May 1 of the dwelling of Mrs. Margaret Simard of Madawaska. The other was a forest fire in Algonquin Park early this summer.

Penner is wanted in connection with the holdup of a Royal Bank branch Monday which netted two men $1,135. Makes Trip Around World On $500 Budget

LOS ANGELES (AP)—How much do you think it would cost to travel 27,000 miles around the world? A few thousand dollars?

Don Ahlstrom, 25, says he did it on a budget of only $500 — and has $6 left.

He arrived aboard a Japanese tanker in Los Angeles harbor Wednesday after completing a tour of 18 countries, mostly aboard a motor scooter.

Ahlstrom says he financed the trip by working at odd jobs since the trek began in October, 1957.

Where to next? Ahlstrom is looking for a part-time job in southern California. He wants to save enough money to return home, to Nankato, Minn.

WEDDINGS

MOTT — WATSON

Calvary Temple was the setting on Saturday, July 4, at 2:00 p.m. for a very pretty summer wedding when Shirley Joan Watson, of Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Watson, was united in marriage to Jack James Mott, of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Mott. The Rev. Hope M. Smith and the Rev. Laurie Price, pastors of the Temple, officiated before a background of pink and white carnations and ivy.

The wedding music was provided by the Temple organist, Mr. Mervyn Saunders, who accompanied the soloist, the Rev. Hope Smith, in his rendition of "The Wedding Prayer," during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in white chiffon over taffeta, fashioned in three-quarter length ,with fitted bodice having a boat-shaped neckline and set sleeves. She wore a finger-tip veil of tulle illusion, rhinestone and seed pearl headdress, matching long gloves and carried a cascade bouquet of pink rosebuds encircled by white lilies, with white satin streamers and trailing ivy.

Her maid of honor, Miss Lorraine Watson, sister of the bride, attired in pink chiffon over taffeta, with pink tiara encrusted with seed pearls. Her accessories were white , and she carried a bouquet of blue and white carnations.

Miss Marabeth Lowery, of Belleville, attended the bride. She wore blue chiffon over taffeta, with blue tiara encrusted with seed pearls, white accessories, and a bouquet of pink and white carnations, matching her ensemble.

Gregory Reid, of Toronto, attended the bridegroom, while Messrs. Vernon Stoughton, of Belleville, and Victor Playford, of Toronto, ushered the guests.

The reception was held at the Kiwanis Centre, Belleville, where the guests were received by the bride's mother, wearing a pale blue chiffon with darker blue flowers, white accessories, and corsage of white 'mums and pink rosebuds. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was gowned in white, blue-flowered chiffon with white accessories and corsage of white 'mums and pink rosebuds.

The bride's table, beneath cascading pink and white streamers and white wedding bell, was appointed with white damask, centered with a three-tier wedding cake topped by a cluster of pink and white rosebuds and misted about the base with pale-pink tulle. Tall, pink and white candles in crystal holders, flanked by pink, blue and white bachelor buttons, completed the table setting.

For travelling to Toronto, and other western points, the bride donned a white, blue-flowered chiffon with white accessories and corsage of blue and white carnations.

Guests attended from Toronto; Hamilton; Colborne; Brighton; Belleville, and Orillawa.

The bride was entertained, previous to her marriage, at a miscellaneous shower given by her many friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Mott are residing at 267 Victoria Avenue, Belleville.

WOODS — LUNN

Mary Bernice Lunn, daughter of Mrs. Laurence Lunn, and the late Mr. Lunn, became the bride of James Woods, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Woods of Hamilton, in a double-ring ceremony in Orono United Church, which was beautifully decorated with pale-pink rosebuds, on July 11. The Rev. Basil Long officiated.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Perce Lunn, the bride wore a gown of imported silk organza applqued with Swiss medallions over lustrous satin finished with fitted bodice, short puffed sleeves, and a Chapel train, caught at the back with a peplum designed by her mother. Her shoulder length veil fell from a coronet of lily-of-the-valley. She carried a basket of snowdrift 'mums, pink carnations and stephanotis which she later presented to her maternal grandmother, Mrs. Robert McCaw of Coe Hill.

The attendants, Miss Shirley Vagg, maid of honor, and Miss Phyllis Jackson of Kendal, bridesmaid, were waltz-length turquoise silk sheaths with full over-skirts of silk organza, crowns of yellow lily-of-the-valley and pink cascades of yellow daisy chrysanthemums.

Mr. Robert Woods, brother of the bridegroom from Hamilton was best man. The ushers were Messrs. Marvin Lunn, brother of the bride, and Stanley Fisher of Oshawa.

Mrs. W. E. C. Workman played the traditional wedding music and accompanied the soloist, Mr. Frank Hamilton, Montreal, who sang "Because", "I Love You Truly" and "The Lord's Prayer" during the signing of the register.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the Orono hall.

Receiving with the bride's parents were Mrs. Lunn, wearing a gown of Dior blue silk with yellow accessories and corsage of yellow roses, and Mrs. Woods wore a gown of flowered chiffon with beige accessories and corsage of Talisman roses. The bride's table was laid with a white cut-embroidered lunch cloth centred with the tiered wedding cake, cookies, tea and pink Sweetheart roses and stephanotis flanked by tall pink tapers. Delicious plates of cold meats and salads were followed with ice cream, the traditional wedding cake, cookies, tea and punch, were served by members of Heather Reukkah lodge.

For their honeymoon to Ottawa, Montreal and the Laurentians, the bride chose an original white glazed cotton with navy and red accessories and a corsage of red carnations.

Upon their return they will reside in their new home in Lakeview Heights, Oshawa, where the bridegroom is an engineer with the Bell Telephone Company and the bride will teach in the Dr. Gannon school. Guests were present from Coe Hill, Toronto, Peterborough, Kitchener, Hamilton, Cobourg, Oshawa, Bowmanville, Belleville and Newcastle.

W.C.T.U. Discusses Role Beverages Play in Today's Life

A special meeting in the form of a "Parlor Meeting" under the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, was held at the home of Mrs. Grant Coulter on July 21st.

There were 25 ladies present, some members and some invited guests, all interested in Temperance and representative of the churches of Belleville, who conferred together to plan future work for the Union.

The genial hostess welcomed the ladies and expressed pleasure at the good attendance.

Miss Barnum acted as chairman and also gave words of greeting and the opening prayer.

The hymn "Where Cross the Crowded Way of Life" was sung with Mrs. T. Franklin at the piano.

The devotional was taken by Miss Clazie reading Psalm 146, known as the "Crusade Psalm," she divided it into two parts; the key note, the call to worship; the rallying cry; the plan of work; and the secret of victory. It was a challenging call for workers.

A message on the early work of the WCTU leading up to this present time, was given by Mrs. Farnsworth, who told of earnest Christian women, alarmed at the ravages of strong drink in their homes, forming a "Crusade" Prayer and setting out to the saloons and kneeling in the sawdust on the floor, the saloon keeper out of his business and many emptied their liquor in the ditches. They could not resist these earnest prayers.

This was 80 years ago and still God is using prayin' women to carry on His work. It is said "the women held the key to the cure of the drink evil."

A party was Mrs. Lunn, wearing a gown of Dior blue silk with yellow accessories and corsage of yellow roses, and Mrs. Woods wore a gown of flowered chiffon with beige accessories and corsage of Talisman roses. The bride's table was laid with a white cut-embroidered lunch cloth centred with the tiered wedding cake, cookies, tea and pink Sweetheart roses and stephanotis flanked by tall pink tapers. Delicious plates of cold meats and salads were followed with ice cream, the traditional wedding cake, cookies, tea and punch, were served by members of Heather Reukkah lodge.

For their honeymoon to Ottawa, Montreal and the Laurentians, the bride chose an original white glazed cotton with navy and red accessories and a corsage of red carnations.

Upon their return they will reside in their new home in Lakeview Heights, Oshawa, where the bridegroom is an engineer with the Bell Telephone Company and the bride will teach in the Dr. Gannon school.

SET LIFE'S STANDARDS

Women set the standards of life more than men, when women widely disapprove of anything, it soons disappears from the midst.

The Watchword of the Law Enforcement Department of the National Council of Women is the prophesy of Matthew Arnold: "If ever the world sees a time when women come together, purely and simply for the benefit and good of mankind, it will be a power such as the world has never known."

"Since the use of alcoholic beverages has become an integral part of American society, public education must include an interpretation of the role these beverages play in the lives of today's citizens."

A period of discussion followed and dainty refreshments were served.

Adams Family Enjoys Reunion Picnic at Park

The Adams family held its annual reunion with a picnic at Colbourne Park on July 19.

About 50 attended,—several from Toronto, Oshawa, Colborne, Kingston, Belleville and Belleville R.R. 1, Frankford, Hillier, Dorion, Quebec, Miami, Fla., and Consecon.

A big dinner started the day's fun with all at one long table, where they did justice to a big meal and finished off with ice cream.

The children and some of the adults went to the beach for swimming while the older ones sat around and visited.

Later races were run for the children and all won prizes.

A peanut and candy scramble was held, which the children enjoyed.

The officers for the coming year are: Douglas Adams of Toronto, president; Harry Adams, R.R. 1, Belleville, secretary.

At 5 o'clock another good meal —and then home, tired but happy after a wonderful day.

Donna Fleming, Sheila Weese.

Following the races, a peanut scramble and also scramble were enjoyed by all.

The younger crowd jumped aboard a large wagon about 3 p.m. and the rest drove cars to Moira Church where a film entitled "Song Time," was shown.

Mr. Cecil Geen, president thanked all who took part in any way to make the picnic a success.

Everyone was treated to ice cream throughout the day and soft drinks were sold.

Successful DVBS Held at Alliance Church

"Living For Christ In The Space Age", was the theme of the Alliance Bible School held in the Alliance Tabernacle, W. Molra and Coleman Sts. from July 6 to 17. Silver rockets, suspended at each side of the platform, space hats worn by the boys and "get into orbit" pins worn by the girls, all stressed the timely theme of the school.

The Rev. Sackville Palmer, pastor of the church, gave the words of welcome at the closing exercises when a large number of parents and friends came to enjoy the program put on by the children. Every class was featured on the program from the nursery to the teenagers and the adults were thrilled by the presentation of the class numbers. Individual numbers were also featured. The rhythm band, a much-loved feature of the vacation school, was participated in by the younger members of the group and they played well to the enjoyment of all present.

151 ENROLMENT

Mrs. Sackville Palmer, director of the school, stated that there had been an enrolment of 151 during the two weeks the school had been in progress with an average nightly attendance of 96. The highlight of the school was that two of the Junior girls made decisions for Christ.

Fifty-eight pupils received diplomas for perfect attendance, and 40 received memory work awards. Prizes for bringing the most visitors to the school were awarded as follows: 1st prize, Eleanor Millard; 2nd prize, Eric Lane (boys) and Connie Vardy (girls); 3rd prize, Sharon Drummond (girls) and Douglas Leonard (boys).

An attractive display of handwork done during the school was viewed at the back of the church and this display included woodwork, felt-mat leather work, small articles of sewing and paper work. Handbooks from each department of the school were also on the display table.

The director and staff felt that this was one of the most successful vacation schools that had been held in the church.

GOOD MANNERS

By Mrs. Beeckman

APPRECIATION . . . A HEART-WARMING WORD

Appreciation . . . to Gratitude . . . to Happiness Three wonderful steps to a way-of-living. William Lyon Phelps, in his famous and inspiring little book on "Appreciation," says, "Appreciation begets gratitude and gratitude begets happiness. You cannot store or save gratitude; economy there is fatal. If one tries to save gratitude, one may find it grow; but the more gratitude one gives, the more one has left."

Good words, these, important words to remember and to live by.

TIPPING AT SMALL SUMMER RESORT HOTEL

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My cousin and I are going to spend our 3-weeks vacation in a small resort hotel. We have decided on the amounts of the tips we are to give to the waitress, chambermaid, etc. But will you please tell us if we should give these tips at the end of our stay?

— C. and K.

Customarily, in a small resort hotel, the tips are given at the end of each week. This seems to work out as the thoughtful and practical way to do, and I am quite sure that those who serve you will prefer it this way.

A FREQUENT AND AWKWARD SITUATION

I've always wondered what is the really proper thing to do in the following circumstance, which so frequently happens. The hostess is chattering with two or three (or even more) friends in the living-room. The telephone rings in the room where they are talking. The hostess answers the telephone.

Should the guests stop talking while the hostess carries on the telephone conversation, no matter how brief? If they do, it seems to give the unfortunate impression that they are "listening in," however unintentionally, on her conversation. If they don't stop talking, their talking may somewhat distract her, prevent her from hearing what is being said by the person calling. What is the best solution to this, Mrs. Beeckman? — Ursula H.

These moments can indeed be awkward for both hostess and guests. I think the solution of this quandry is for the guests to make an effort to continue the conversation as naturally as possible, but in tones very, very soft, just above a whisper. This seems to ease the situation.

ADDRESS, BUT NOT NAME, PRINTED ON ENVELOPES

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. My husband and I have just moved into our new house, and I want to order as soon as possible a supply of generalsize single sheet letter-paper printed with my name and address on the paper. I had always taken it for granted that I would also order my name and address printed on the flaps of the envelopes, as I thought I had always remembered it was done this way. But now two or three friends of mine have told me that the newest idea is to have only the address (street-address, city, and state) printed on the envelopes, not the name. Is this so? If so, what is the reason?

2. Our telephone has just been installed. Is it proper to have our new telephone number printed on the sheets, with the name and address?

1. It is true that many people do prefer not to have their name made "public" on their envelopes, and if they live in a house (as you now do), it usually is considered not really necessary to include the name with the address. When for some reason it is important or convenient to have the name also on the envelope, it is simple to write or type the name above the address. (Today, apartment-dwellers sometimes have the number of the apartment, instead of the name, printed above the address.)

2. Yes, it is entirely proper, practical, and quite customary to have the telephone number printed on the sheets of paper, with the name and address. I should think this would be particularly useful in your case, to inform about your new telephone number.

THE FAMILY COUNCIL

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Family Council consists of a judge, a psychiatrist, three clergymen, a newspaper editor, a women's editor and two writers. Each article is a summary of an actual case history. The Council reports on problems that have been dealt with by responsible agencies and counsellors.

Adele E. — I want to patch things up with my fiance.

Mrs. L. E. — She was right to give back the ring.

Adele E. — I am awfully mixed up about what to do about my broken engagement. I want to patch things up with Henry but my parents are against it.

I threw his ring back at him in a fit of temper after he slapped me. We had been engaged six weeks and had been going together for a year before that. I feel that we really love one another, that's why we make each other jealous and squabble so much. We're both 23 and have dated many others so we ought to know what we're doing.

Mrs. L. E. — My husband and I have been married 26 years and have never exchanged a harsh word — much less struck one another. Maybe we're just old-fashioned, but we don't see how a man who loves and respects a woman can strike her, no matter what the provocation.

Before this were pleased with Adele's engagement. Henry seemed like a fine man from a very good family. Some people think Adele acted foolishly and hastily in giving back the ring, but we think she was right.

The Council: Adele may have acted hastily in "throwing back" the ring, but we may have been so foolish. In any case there is no need for haste again in patching things up.

Lovers' quarrels are sometimes bitter, but not especially harmful. For some people it may be a way of coming to terms with various facets of another's personality. Also, one must make some allowances for tensions that may build up during the engagement period.

But when a supposedly loving swain no loses control of himself as to hit his fiancee, there is an indication of serious personality difficulties. Since Adele is thinking of patching things up, we gather that Henry has satisfied her on the score of his regret and shame about this action. Probably he is a well-intentioned youth, but he may be rather immature and feel inadequate to deal with Adele in an emotionally grown-up way.

Adele too, may be aware that she has somehow provoked this behavior. Quarrels are always a two-way street. Perhaps she feels a little uneasy about this engagement and tried to create a situation in which she could not be blamed for the break-up.

In any case, it appears that this relationship needs a lot more shaking down before it may be considered a healthy beginning for a marriage. Probably both of these young people have a good deal more growing up to do before they are ready for this stage. Age and dating experience are the best partial criteria for preparedness. Much more important is the ability to come through a disagreement a little matured by a wider and deeper knowledge of another individual.

Reader-Requested Refrigerated Ice Cream

by Mary Moore

Mrs. E. B. of Ottawa requested recipes for homemade ice cream . . . "I have a lot of fresh cream but no ice cream mixer. I have a freezer in my frig. but wondered how to go about freezing it and keeping it from having too many crystals".

I have been anxious to give you three recipes for the best ice cream I ever tasted but space was short. Now I must give them because they are wanted — and believe me I want to — they are excellent.

White pique is deftly used in this dress, dreamed up for midsummer dancing dates. Its youthful charm is expressed in the artless young neckline, flagging the figure to the waist, the dress then bells out, underlined with stiffening to keep its rounded line. The Experts Say

Don't Make Your Home Fussy Because You Want It Formal

By EDNA BLAKELY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — A home doesn't have to be fussy to be formal. Interior decorator Margaret Damp proved it by decorating a five-room house for a large living room ball.

A formal but comfortable effect was achieved with approximately $7,000 worth of furniture and decorations.

A powder room with wallpaper that can be scrubbed is among the many innovations of the home. Miss Damp said it would take a knife to score the wallpaper which is stronger than washable paper designed some years ago.

The formal living-room furniture is set in informal groups. Settees and chairs are used instead of a large chesterfield.

In the kitchen, shuttered doors allow ventilation in cupboards for wet towels.

"In modern homes, even with washers and driers, we must have a place to hang wet tea towels," Miss Damp explained.

The colors in the entire house are co-ordinated.

The home economics service of the Ontario department of agriculture reports that drip-dry labels are now improved. Factual information is starting to appear on the labels.

Wash-and-wear fabrics should retain pleats and creases with only light touch-ups with the iron. Linings or interlinings should wash without shrinking or puckering. Trim or braid should wash equally as well without fading or running.

Up to 65 or 70 per cent of synthetic fibre must be used to make material crease resistant. A fine finish for cotton fibre makes it more wrinkle resistant.

Here are a few rules to follow: Check the garment you are buying to make sure the seams are not puckered since they are almost impossible to press out. Follow washing directions given on the label. Be careful not to press wrinkles into the article. Once a crease is pressed into the material, it is difficult to remove.

Ontario potatoes are later this year, but for a good reason. New regulations requiring increased maturity of early potatoes has delayed digging. The result, however, will produce improved quality and appearance. . . . When making pancakes heat the griddle slowly; then when you think it's hot enough, sprinkle the pan with a few drops of water. If the drops roll around for a moment before evaporating, the temperature is just right. If the drops sputter and disappear almost immediately, the pan is too hot.

POSTPONE X-15 TEST

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—The first flight of the X-15 rocket ship has been set back until Thursday, case it flight under the wing of a B-52 bomber was postponed Tuesday for technical reasons.

By GERRY McNEIL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

YORT SMITH, N.W.T. (CP)—Fishing for cod-sized trout is the big outlet for sportsmen in this Northwest Territories centre.

Big game hunting is limited to Indians and the few with general hunting licences, Upland birds provide the only shooting for most residents.

But the deep, clear lakes and fast rivers on the rim of the Precambrian Shield east of here are open to any who want to charter a flight to them.

Burnt Lake, 30 miles east of this territorial administrative town of 1,200, is popular with Fort Smith anglers. It costs $80 for a party of six to charter a flight to the unmapped lake, one of the Schaeffer chain.

WEEKEND TRIP

Ernie Walsh, 31, of Estevan, Sask., tasted the enthusiasm that northern fishing sparks when he joined five others on a weekend trip to Burnt Lake in late June.

The float-equipped Beaver that carried them to the lake took off from the Fort Smith mooring on the Slave River for the 20-minute flight.

Bud Parfait, 25, of Edmonton had arranged the trip, and Jim Whelly, 26, of Dartmouth, N.S., a northern affairs department employee, went along. Both are avid anglers.

Wayne McNeil, a 16-year-old Metis, met the plane as it taxied to a stop very late in the evening. Four other fishermen with their catch—eight trout, a heap of Arctic (pike) and some pickerel —waited on shore to take the return trip to Fort Smith.

"You'll get trout on the other side of that peninsula," advised Wayne, who with his father guides parties to the best spots. Eight slabs of granite looked into deep water from the spot where Bud made the first cast. Three pounds of sunfish looked grabbed.

Walsh and Jim had mixed luck as did the others trolling from an outboard in mid-lake: Plenty of fight but only a few to troul. The juggling of artificial lures began.

ALMOST LOST ROD

Ernie was casting halfheartedly four hours later when a hard tug almost took the rod from his hand.

"It's a big one," shouted the young teacher. The trout broke surface and it was big — nine pounds when weighed on shore.

Ernie hadn't removed the hook when there was a whoop from the boat and a battle began with another speedy fish. It was a 15-pounder.

A dull roar sounded from across the two-mile lake and moments later ripples were visible on the far water.

Only the sudden storms that move out of the mountains and across Great Slave Lake, 100 miles north, was building up.

Pilot Pat Carey, a weather-wise veteran of the north, arrived just before the rain for the return flight to Fort Smith.

Way of Minority Is Hard

By ROY L. SMITH

In every generation, and among all peoples, the way of the minority has been hard.

The Jews who found themselves in exile in Babylon had much to be thankful for. The land was lush and livings were relatively easy. Culture was convenient, and all libraries and shrines were open to them. They were at liberty to engage in any business that might attract their fancy, and some of them became immensely wealthy.

But nothing could blind them to the fact that they were refugees, DPs, and aliens. The land upon which they walked was not their own the speech that struck their ears was an alien tongue; the standards of life which prevailed all about them were not their own.

THEY WERE MINORITY

It has been the fate of the Jews from the beginning that they have been doomed to live as members of a minority race. From the days of Abraham to this day, with the exception of no more than 100 years, they have lived under rulers who were not of their blood, they have had to obey laws that other men have written for them, they have been under the necessity of conforming to customs and traditions not of their own making.

And the way of every minority is hard. It is always the minority that has to adjust, make allowances, conform and comply. Quite unfortunately, there have always been Jews who have had to live under tyrants and totalitarians. The massacre of Jews under Hitler is but one in a long succession of tragedies to which this unfortunate people has been subjected. Every generation since the last 2,000 years has witnessed their sufferings, and the end is not yet in sight.

TORY OF ESTHER

The Book of Esther is a story of the origins of one of the great Jewish festivals which is observed to this day. As a piece of history it may be subject to some question, for nowhere do we find the names of the princes in any of the authentic historical records of the time. But the aim of the little book is not to recite history, but to arouse thankfulness.

The Uniform Sunday School Lesson for July 26: "COURAGE IN CRISIS," Book of Esther.

But there came a time, says the story, when the liberty of all Jews depended upon the courage and integrity of one Jew, and she was a woman. As she was faithful to her trust, and as she put the cause of the nation ahead of her personal fortune, she saved the people and she also saved herself.

It is upon such a base that the type of the nation rested. There are times when whole nations are at the mercy of the courage and integrity of individuals. If it were Esther in one situation, might be another girl by another name at another time. This means that all girls must be prepared to conduct themselves with equal courage at all times.

The greatness of a nation does not rest with an occasional bit of dramatic courage on the part of an exceptional person. Instead, it consists of the daily, everyday manifestation of courage on the part of the average man or woman. And each of us either raises or lowers the average.

NOT ALWAYS GOLDEN

There is an old proverb to the effect that "silence is golden," but there are times when it is nothing better than sheer cowardice. Esther could have held her tongue and watched the slaughter of her countrymen. Instead, she elected to speak at the risk of her life and there-after she saw their salvation.

In a certain midwestern city a very atrocious situation had developed involving every man in that town who was engaged in a certain line of business. In the entire community a committee representing the laity visited with a minister, saying, "You are the only man in this town who can speak a word in our defense. If you enjoy a certain prestige, you are respected by the businessmen of the town, and you have a good salary at stake in this controversy except your sense of right and wrong."

When the preacher consulted one of the leading laymen, that one said, "Preacher, you'd better keep out of this. Silence is golden, you know." But fortunately, a higher voice prevailed, the preacher spoke out, a wrong was righted, and innocent victims were defended.

Silence is never golden when a Christian holds his tongue in order to avoid trouble.

Agreement Ends Blocking of Cornwall Roads

CORNWALL (CP)—Agreement was reached Wednesday between Mohawk Indians of the Six Nations Confederacy on Cornwall Island and the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority, ending a blockage of the island's east-west road.

The Indians had blocked roads and stopped movement of seaway building equipment to back up their claim that land rental payments had not been paid by the authority since March.

The settlement included undisclosed monetary clauses and a provision that the Seaway Authority would negate any damage to the Indian land.

The dispute centred around the land of Mrs. Annie Thompson and of the Seymour and Sharrow families. A blockade of the island's east-west road was established Tuesday at Mrs. Thompson's home, stopping most island traffic.

EASTERN PROFESSIONAL LEAGUE

As Kitchener's Len Taylor has so aptly dubbed it, the "Canadiens' House League" was formed yesterday in Montreal. And the host boys were the very notable about things. After all that hairybroo, etc., that emanated from various Limestone city outlets they threw in their hand, temporarily, they said, when chairman Kenny Reardon, one of Frank Selke's chief henchmen, called for the final showdown.

Yup, Kingston asked for a delay of execution until August first which left five teams forming the Eastern Professional League ready to launch the proposed six-team league into a cocked hat for the moment. Tsk, tsk, tsk and after those Canadiens' henchmen went to the trouble to coax the Soo Greyhounds into the loop to facilitate travel problems.

With the Soo are the Sudbury Wolves, Three Rivers, Montreal Royals and Hull-Ottawa. That gives the Montreal Canadiens two trumps with Kingston a third, if it enters. The meeting was graced by National Hockey League president Clarence Campbell and representatives of five NHL squads.

You didn't read or hear anything about it but the Quebec Aces had been mooted by league organizers to be the sixth team in the league. They would have had no part of Sudbury or the Soo if the Aces and another eastern team would have entered.

Bob Martineau, business manager of the Aces, stated last week to a Montreal writer that "we're not going in a league where one organization has their thumb directly in two or more clubs. The Forum (Canadian Arena Company) will own Royals, Hull and Kingston and that's three teams out of five. We're not interested in a situation like that."

The pro boys at the meeting clapped the locks on their various club purses. "Money, no sirree. We won't subsidize you, but we'll give you player help."

And Kenny Reardon gave out with a wonderful piece of news, with an eye probably cocked at Kingston directors. "There will be no league pool," he announced. "Each club will retain what it makes." He might have added, "and pays all its own travelling expenses."

The reason Kingston stalled for time to "consider their needs" might possibly be found in a news story from that city Wednesday. It stated that Kingston's entry in the new pro league depended at a meeting of the club directors and the Community Centre's Board of Trustees.

It seems the two boards could not get together on a settlement of arrea rental. The arena boys had considered a club brass proposal and murmured a politely negative "Hm .. Ho. We have an alternate proposition."

"Walton," the story said, "revealed the terms suggested by the club and indicated if the alternate proposition isn't very close we won't be able to accept."

"Our entry," Walton said, "is based on a budget that has been prepared. If our rental figure was to be substantially changed it would then make an entry in the league too much of a gamble."

The Kingston club asked of the arena commission a flat rate gross of $20,000 for all scheduled games, playoff games and five exhibition games—the program rights —and get a limit of this—radio and television rights besides distribution of complimentary tickets.

Now coincidentally the newly-formed Ontario senior "A" hockey league has a meeting for tonight in Toronto, where final entries will be considered. It might be possible and not too surprising to see Kingston representation there.

One thing is certain. A Kingston representative won't breathe a word about entry until some $2,200 back pool money is laid on the meeting table. A rather dynamic gentleman named Wren Blair will see to that— and he won't lack for backing.

It could be that hockey in Kingston has committed suicide—well, for a year, at least.

And by the way our old pal of former hockey days, Vip Radley, has resigned from the Kingston hockey club's board of directors. It seems that Vip got tired of carrying around that $1,800 back pool money sports editor Scotter alleged he had in his pocket the night of the senior "A" league meeting in Belleville, could it?

Minoso's Grand-Slam Triggers Bomb Under Bombers

Sixth-Inning 7-Run Blast Explodes for Tribe 8-5 Win; Braves Lose Game, Mathews

By ED WILKS
Associated Press Staff Writer

If there's to be a turning point in the tight fight for the National League pennant, it may be at hand—not in the woo-lost records or batting average, but in the injury lists.

While righthander Jack Sanford proved himself sound again by pitching the first-place San Francisco Giants to a 5-1 victory over St. Louis Cardinals Thursday, Milwaukee's third - place Braves found they'll have to do without slugging Ed Mathews indefinitely. The second-place Los Angeles Dodgers lost Gil Hodges for at least a week.

Hodges, the man with the big bat in the Dodgers' comeback, pulled a hip muscle after his 18th home run had touched off a 3-3 victory over Chicago Cubs that kept Los Angeles within two games of the Giants.

Mathews, the league's home run leader with 29, was kept out of the lineup because of a bruised hip, suffered Wednesday, as the Braves slipped 4½ games behind with a 6-5 defeat by Cincinnati Redlegs. Only the two league games remained scheduled and they left Milwaukee one percentage point ahead of fourth-place Pittsburgh.

Hodges, who has driven in 61 runs, one more than team leader Don Demeter, and has clubbed nine home runs in the last month to top the Dodgers, broke up a 0-0 tie with a two-run homer in the fourth inning, then was injured sliding in the sixth. The big first baseman is batting .283.

Willy Mays also homered for the Dodgers, his seventh, and formed another run with a bases-loaded walk in a two-run seventh that nailed it for Larry Sherry 1-2.

The young righthander singled home the eighth run in the seventh for his first major-league victory, but needed Don Drysdale's saving relief job after Ernie Banks singled home two runs in the eighth. Drysdale, 7-6, was tagged with the loser.

Sanford, winless since June 7 after being struck on the hand by a pitch, gained an 8-9 record on the Giants. Wally Shannon's two out single in the ninth broke up his shutout.

The Giants won it in the first inning on Ken Boyer's two-run error after Willie Mays and Orlando Cepeda singled with two out and then pulled off a double steal. Wilmer Mizell (11-5) lost it.

Willie Jones' grand - slam homer beat the Braves in the eighth inning after a two - out error by second baseman Bobby Avila, who had ended Milwaukee's leadoff hit streak with a two-run, ninth - inning homer the night before.

Lefter Joey Jay (3-7) had shut out the Reds on four hits for 7 2-3 innings before singles by Frank Robinson and Jerry Lynch and the error set up Jones' eighth homer. Brooks Lawrence (5-8) was the winner in relief, pairing with starter Bob Purkey to check the Braves on three hits.

Whoever said New York Yankees still were the team Cleveland Indians had the best luck have been joking. The Indians left the Yanks battered.

The Yankees tumbled the Indians out of the American League's first place a week ago, then dumped them to second place Wednesday night, when Cleveland blew a 4-0 lead.

But Thursday night the Indians had gone the pennant contenders again. They edged within a half-game of the first-place Chicago White Sox as Minnie Minoso'sgrand - slam homer triggered a seven-run sixth inning that overhauled a 4-0 Yankee lead and beat Camilo Pas 8-5.

It was Minoso's 15th homer of the season and his first against his former Yankee mates in three years.

KANSAS CITY MOVES UP

Kansas City Athletics swept a three - game series from Baltimore Orioles with a 9-3 romp and moved within sixth place as Washington skidded to seventh with an 11-2 pasting by Detroit. Chicago and Boston were rained out.

The Indians got to Yankee starter Ralph Terry in the sixth inning with two runs on three hits and a walk. Then Early Wynn coiled it up against reliever Eli Grba 1-1.

Jim Perry (5-2) won it, blanking the Yankees for four innings before he was relieved by Gerry Staley. Smith, who had given up four runs in the first two innings. Elston Howard's two-run homer in the three-run first for the Yankees.

Harry Chiti, Dick Williams and Roger Maris homered for the Athletics, who scored the clincher on Wayne Terwilliger's two-run single in the third for a 5-2 lead against loser Hec Brown (6-6). Ned Garver (8-9) won it with a seven - hitter, one Billy Klaus home run.

Maris was 3-for-5 and regained the runnerup spot in the league batting race.

Harvey Kuenn, the league's leading hitter at .347, and Al Kaline, No. 3 at .340, each had four hits for the Tigers and drove in three runs between them in support of a four-hitter by Jim Bunning (9-6). The Jim righthander walked the Nats on one hit after the first inning when Bob Allison got his 26th home run in the ninth. Hal Woodeshick (0-2) lost it.

CRAFT HOLDING OWN

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Harry Craft, manager of the Kansas City Athletics, was reported in satisfactory condition Thursday after a restful night at hospital. A hospital spokesman reported Craft was suffering from fatigue.

They'll Do It Every Time — By Jimmy Hatlo

BC Crew's Coach Confident His Oarsmen Tops in Class

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — "If over six minutes, A six minute anyone beats us, they'll be good enough to win at the pan-American games."

That's the word from coach Dave Helliwell, "It's going to take some rowing to beat us."

And most observers who have watched UBC working out on the Henley course here—they arrived by air Wednesday—have to agree.

The university boys, rowing out of the Vancouver Rowing Club, have an eight and a coxswain four here while 21-year-old Tom Grey will represent the Vancouver Club in the singles event.

RECORD TIMES

The UBC eight had been clicking off the 2,000 metres in just time for that distance in rowing is comparable to a four-minute mile in track.

UBC will be facing St. Catharines and Hamilton Leander crews in both the eight and coxless four. Both eastern outfits are junior squads.

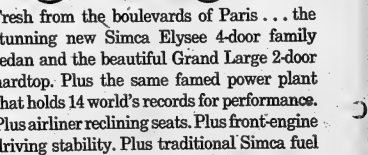
In fact, the St. Catharines crews are made up, exception of one man, of high school oarsmen.

In the singles race, Tony Sincnicki of Ottawa is favored to repeat his 1958 British Empire Games track victory. The 28-year-old machinist is one of five entries.

GUEST WILL JUDGE

Wining Saturday's events won't necessarily guarantee any of the entries an automatic trip to Chicago. Diamond Sculls winner Jack Guest, Sr. of Toronto, will view each in the light of international competition.

Others on the committee, which will follow each race, are Russ Wood of St. Catharines, manager of the 1954 British Empire rowing team: Claude Saunder of Hamilton, past president of the Canadian Association of Amateur oarsmen and Nils Spacey of Vancouver, rowing representative of the Canadian Pan - Am Games committee.



Saturday's trials get under way at 2.30 p.m. at the famed Henley course here at half-hour intervals. All four are over the mile, 550-yard Henley distance.

The Pan-Am rowing regatta is scheduled for Sept. 2 - 5 on the Cal-Sac Canal 2,000 metre course just outside Chicago.

Eighth-Inning Five-Run Explosion Gives Point 7-1 Win Over Bobcats

By GARRY ALEXANDER

Point Anne exploded with a five-run eighth inning and a 7-1 victory to overtake the Bobcats for first place in the Belleville and District softball league at Victoria Park last night in a hard-fought fixture that produced more thrills than the score would indicate.

The Cementmen who have been clambering steadily are now one-half game ahead of Temple's Bobcats. They have won 11 and lost six while the Cats have ten wins, six losses and one tie.

Both clubs have one game remaining in the schedule and both are against the Merchants in Cobourg. Bobcats must win while Point Anne losses in order to regain the top spot which they had held since early in the season.

Last night's fixture had just about everything in the book including fine pitching, great fielding plays and clutch hitting.

The Cementmen field a 2-1 lead until the eighth inning when they broke up a tight pitching duel between the winners' Al Gardner and Bobcats' Bobby Green.

Green had mastered the Ox-Point hitters with only one error until the big explosion although he still retired the side in order. Catcher in the meantime stopped Belleville on four three safeties for a well-deserved win.

Point Anne took a 1-0 lead in the third frame, Green walked two batters and Jerry Goyer rapped a two-out single to open the game scoring. Catcher protected the slim margin, with strong defensive help from his mates, until the top of the seventh. Denny Hayden evened the score with a terrific home run blast to the fence in right field.

The homesters regained their one-run margin without the aid of a hit in the bottom of that frame. Elliott Jr. and Soule walked and advanced on a wild pitch. Elliott raced home on Catcher's grounder and jarred the ball loose from Earl Cousins on a slam-bang play at the plate.

Point Anne exploded in the eighth with five consecutive hits. Hull and Batchelor banged sharp singles and Pete Green scored both with a long double. Jackie Elliott's base knock made it 5-1 and sent Green to the showers in favor of Gord Smrke. Soule beat out a perfect bunt and an error put another on base. A wild pitch and a free pass to Carr brought home the sixth run.

Bobcats had their chances earlier. Hughes' leadoff double in the seventh was wasted when the next up too soon and was called out on Crawford's fly ball. An error, Cousins' single and a walk loaded the sacks in the fifth but all three runners were stranded.

In the second frame Elliott Jr. and Soule pulled off a double steal to score on a throwing error. He was called out by plate umpire Kelleher for missing the plate after colliding with Cousins. Point Anne coach Phil Carr was ejected in the hassel that followed at the plate.

Half an inning earlier left-fielder Gary Goyer had robbed Fleri Goegan of an extra-base blow with a sensational diving catch of his sinking drive, the game's fielding gem.

Carkner fanned a pair and walked the same for the winners. Green fired four strikeouts and six walks and Smrke one free ticket.

Pete Green with a double, Gary Goyer single, Ernest Jr. Elliott, Johnny Batchelor and Doug Hull each had the range. Only Sandy Hayden homered, Jackie Hughes doubled and Earl Cousins singled for the losers.

Lions Strut in Hometown Lair Lick Riders, Crowd Not There

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Columbia Lions trounced Saskatchewan Roughriders 30-14 in an exhibition football game Thursday night before a disappointing crowd of 18,915.

More than 32,000 fans had been expected to see rookie coach Wes Robinson unveil his club in Western Interprovincial Football Union team.

All-Canadian Randy Duncan of Iowa, veteran Al Dorow, formerly of Edmonton Eskimos, and Mitch Ogiego, also of Iowa, sent Lions into a 30-0 lead in the first three quarters. Riders came to life in the late stages and managed two touchdowns.

Willie Fleming, a teammate of Duncan's, paced Lions with two touchdowns. Third-year veteran Rick Kaser and 19-year-old Vancouver Johnny George Young each added one. Canadian Ted Hunt converted all four touchdowns and added two singles.

WORDEN BATTERS LINE

Import Neil Worden, from Notre Dame and on the Eagles, twice cracked the B.C. lines from two yards out to score the Rider touchdowns. Reg Whitehouse converted both.

Duncan, 22-year - old import star, showed spots of smooth faking and clicked on seven of 11 pass attempts. But H was Dorow, traded here last season by Saskatchewan for George Herring, who held the passing spotlight. He completed six of 11 pass attempts for 156 yards and two touchdowns.

Herring, Al Jacks of Penn State and Canadian Ron Adam handled the Saskatchewan club. None was particularly effective, although Herring was able to get the team rolling in the final quarter.

Frank Fraser, a halfback who went to Riders from Ottawa in the Frank Tripucka deal, injured his right leg. Extent of his injury was not immediately known.

Looks Like Six Have Spots On Swim Team

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

BRANTFORD (CP) — It shouldn't take much figuring to select Canada's 24-member swimming team for the Aug. 29-Sept. 7 Pan-American games in Chicago, if opening night trials are indication of things to come. The future of an expense-paid trip to the American city has the boys and girls swimming faster than they've ever done before.

Five finals were held and the winning times in three brought new provincials in the record book. Another mark was equaled and with two more nights to go other marks are likely to be washed out.

FOUR FROM WEST

From Thursday night's performances, observers would have to say that at least six have clinched places on the team—four from Western Canada. They are: Sara Barber of Brantford, possibly the greatest all - round swimmer Canada has developed since the Second World War; Steve Radinovitch, a cocky 16-year-old from Montreal; Janice Shepp of Winnipeg; Bob Wheaton of Victoria; and two Vancouver swimmers, Margaret Iwasaki and Ed Casalet.

The 19-year-old, five-foot seven-inch Miss Barber stood out above all others. A specialist in the back stroke, she proved her versatility by winning the women's 220-yard freestyle in 2:30.3 to break both the Canadian open and native records.

REGAINS RECORD

She'd lost her Canadian open mark of 2:32.0 to 16-year - old Marilyn Ramenofsky of Philadelphia in the recent Canadian championships.

Miss Iwasaki, who last week passed up the Canadian championships also broke Miss Barber's mark with 2:31.0.

Miss Shepp turned in a time of 1:35.2 in the women's 110-yard backstroke, 1.1 seconds off the 1953 Canadian native record established by Bonnie Jackson of Toronto last year. Miss Benson was third in 1:37.4.

Radinovitch broke his own native record of 1:15.8 in the 110-yard breast stroke, by touching in 1:15.1.

Wheaton, third - place bronze medal winner at the British Empire Games in Cardiff, in the men's 110 - yard backstroke, equalled his 1:05.6 best Canadian time set in 1958.

Casalet won the 440-yard freestyle in easy fashion.

Trials continue tonight.

Leafs' Coach Draws $50 Fine Plus Suspension

MONTREAL (CP) — President Frank Shaughnessy of the International League announced Thursday he has fined coach Lou Kahn of Toronto Maple Leafs $50, plus a three-day suspension, for "unsportsmanlike" argument in Wednesday night's game in Colgate.

Shaughnessy said Kahn launched a verbal assault at umpire Jim Mooney when the umpire, on the first play of the game, called out Toronto shortstop Larry Raines on a close play at first base.

The Leaf coach was ejected from the game but, said Shaughnessy, persisted in pursuing the rhubarb argument for many minutes.

It was Kahn's second fine of the season and his fifth during the last two years.

Quinte Tennis

Quinte shaded Point Anne 3-2 in a Bay of Quinte senior tennis league match the other evening while the Bay of Quinte the night deciding the winners.

Leonard Fires 5-Under-Par To Lead Canadian Pro Pack

By MILT MacDIARL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

HULL, Que. (CP)—Stan Leonard, who plays a "relaxed game" is proving to perform since why he's rated the best in the 47th Canadian Professional Golfers' Association championship.

The 45-year-old Vancouver pro shooting to break his own record of six PGA titles, carried a one-stroke lead into today's second round of the 54-hole tournament after firing a five-under-par 66 in Thursday's opening round—two under the competitive course record at Rivermead.

Hot on Leonard's heels at 68 were a couple of dark horses—Ernie Wakelam, 61-year-old pro at the nearby Royal Ottawa Club in Hull, and Cec Dowling, 31, of Charlottetown, the only Maritime golfer in the record field of 108.

18 BEAT PAR

Three players were at 69. They were Bob Cunningham, Jr., Toronto, Larry Edwards, Lakeview, and Frank Wyer, Markham.

Fourteen players cracked par 72 on the 6,500-yard layout which was baked under a burning sun. Eleven others equalled par.

Four strokes off the pace at 71 were Hal Butler of Oshawa and Bill Balding, another pro-tournament favorite from Markham.

Among the long list at 72 was Bill Hyndman of Niagara Falls, who shot 36-36.

MARTELL OFF PACE

Defending champion Henry Martell of Edmonton was deadlocked with nine other players at 72.

Leonard, who has won nearly $10,000 on the U.S. tournament trail this year, had a 36-32 including seven birdies. He had only one bad hole, when he took a two-over-par six on the 12th.

"I had bad drives on the 4th and 18th when my tee shots hit high trees and bounced into the fairway, I was fortunate to get down in par on both holes," he said.

Ray Judd's No-Hitter 2nd in Week

PETERBOROUGH (CP)—Ray Judd pitched a 7-0 no-hit game in Peterborough men's City Softball League Thursday night as Lakefield Chartists blanked Orchard Park 2-0.

Judd retired 27 men in a row, striking out 20 as he ran his season total to 203 in 47 games. The no-hitter was Judd's second this week.

Two Golfers Had Ace in Same Hole

BRACEBRIDGE (CP)— Two Toronto vacationers staying at a lodge near here both rank holes-in-one only 15 minutes apart Thursday.

Tom Anstey sank the first on the 90-yard fifth hole, then a second came from John Smith's club on the same hole, three foursomes later.

Lions, Eskys Hassle Over Normie Kwong

EDMONTON (CP) — A hassle between Calgary Colonists Lions and Edmonton Eskimos has developed over fullback Normie Kwong.

The China Clipper, angling for trade to Vancouver, since he cried of last season, has refused to report to Eskimos' training camp and has hinted he would rather retire from the Western Interprovincial Football Union than play for Edmonton in 1959. His home is in Vancouver and he has business interests there.

Kwong, 29, is bound to Edmonton by contract for 1959.

However, Eskimo officials have said about given up hope of him showing here.

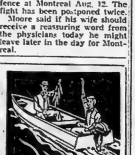
Negotiations, under cover for the last three months, came into the open Thursday when Lions' Jack Jenkins said they haven't been able to work out a deal for Kwong.

TALKS GO ON

But secretary - manager Keith Ecklund of Eskimos said negotiations will continue today.

Eskimos want fullback, quarterback or one Canadian player and cash in return for Kwong. The club also wants a back they would be considered void if the players traded fail to report. Kwong is training on his own in a Vancouver park, declined to comment.

The Calgary-born Kwong became an integral part of Edmonton's Grey Cup championship team after joining the club in 1951. He also played fourth in league rushing last season, running for 1,035 yards.



Moore Will Stay at Wife's Side

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Archie Moore, world light-heavyweight boxing champion, said Thursday night he has decided to remain by his wife's bedside until he is certain she is fully recovered.

"I'll have to start training all over again when I return to camp", Moore said at the hospital where his wife underwent an operation Monday to correct a mastoid infection.

The champion is scheduled to meet Yvonne Durelle of Saint Ste. Anne, N.B., in a title defence at Montreal Aug. 12. The fight has been postponed twice.

Moore said if his wife should receive an reassurance word from the physicians today he might leave later in the day for Montreal.

Als Desperate For Strength In Backfield

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Alouettes appear to be running short on speed and depth in their efforts to secure some additional backfield strength.

The word around town was that the Als are particularly anxious to grab a backfielder before the Calgary game here next Tuesday.

In the Stampeders' backfield will be Pat Abbruzzi, traded by Montreal in the off season. Alouettes haven't yet found anyone to replace him.

It was thought Montreal would try for backfielders cut by Toronto, who probably will hang on to Dick Shatto, Dave Mann and Cookie Gilchrist.

Frank Pinn, a fullback tryout from Notre Dame was cut Thursday by the Als.

Murray Tucker New Pro Prexy

RIVERMEAD GOLF CLUB, Que. (CP)—The Canadian Professional Golfers Association Thursday decided on the prize-money split for the five-day championship and named Murray Tucker, 38, of Toronto Rosedale as new president.

Total prize money is $8,725 with the winner drawing $1,000 and the runner-up $700. The take falls off by $100 for each spot from there to seventh place—good for $206.

Davis Cup

Australia Heavily Favored Over Canada in Zone Play

By GEORGE FRAZIOR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — Australia was heavily favored today to beat Canada in the Americas zone Davis Cup semi-finals, but the Canadians hoped to spring at least a couple of upsets.

The singles draw put Aussie Roy Emerson against 28-year-old Don Fontana of Toronto in the first of today's opening matches, and Rod Laver against Bob Bedard of Sherbrooke, Que., in the second.

Canadian captain Lorne Main was hopeful that Bedard, a 27-year-old veteran of seven Canadian Davis Cup teams, could win two singles matches.

YOUTH A FACTOR

Fontana and Bedard have the advantage of youth and experience —Fontana has six—on Davis Cup teams, but it is hard to see how the Australians can lose.

They are younger—Emerson 23, Laver 20 — have undergone typically Australian intensive year - round training, and have had more immediate experience this year.

With teammates Neale Fraser, 25, and Bob Mark, they have swept Europe and Australia to be part in all major championships. It is certainly going to be difficult for Canada's doubles team, without ever playing any big tournaments before," Fontana said.

Bedard, he said, appears to be able to reach peak form without tournaments.

DRAW IS PLEASING

Both said the draw suits them. "I wanted to play Laver on the opening day," Bedard said.

Laver and Bedard have never met before. Emerson beat Fontana five years ago in a three-set match in England and Bedard beat Emerson in two sets two years ago.

Hopman's failure to name Fraser, considered the number one man on the Australian team, surprised tennis observers.

Laver and Emerson have adapted faster to the grass courts, Hopman said, and Fraser has had recent mild attacks of appendicitis.

Sport Snapshots

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A little item from Hamilton the other day mentioned that Ralph Toohy had retired. Big Four fans may not realize it, but Terrible Toohy was the last of the game's color guys in the Eastern Canada league, and possibly in Canadian football.

He has been the hatchet man of the Big Four since he entered the league with Montreal Alouettes 12 years ago. Someone was likely to get a case — usually when he jogged on to the field, and fans, particularly those in Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto, fervently hoped it would be Toohy.

Montreal fans loved him when he was with the Als. But he was a monster to Montreal folks when he was traded to the Tiger-Cats in 1952. Heckling and name-calling didn't bother him.

NEW TWIST TO MOTTO

He was a terror on the football field who lived by the motto: "It's better to give than to receive." He explained it by saying: "I get them before they get me."

Football officials — of other clubs, naturally—have demanded at times that Tooby be banned from football. He shrugged off abusive male fans with the remark: "I guess I could handle any of those loud mouths." Female fans, who cringed at his tough play, loved him.

"I guess the women think I haven't a mother," he once told Jim Hunt of the Toronto Star. "Sometimes I bring mom along to a game just to show them I'm no different from anyone else."

Tooby hasn't had much opportunity to indulge in his favorite pastime of belting players around the head. But Four fans may not realize it, but Terrible Ticcia used the six - foot 200-pounder mainly as an end on punts and it was a delight to Hamilton fans to watch the man in sweater No. 77 barrel down field after the punt receiver.

GOT HIS MAN

Size and reputation didn't mean a thing to Ticcia. He simply was in his way he tried to bowl him over and invariably when game officials untangled the heap of players, Tooby was the second man to get up. The ball-carrier was on the bottom.

Big Four teams have assigned three and four men to stalk Tooby. Yet, with all the rough stuff over a 12-year career, he has remarkably few scars.

He has had his nose broken a couple of times. He's missing a few teeth, has had a few shoulder stitchings and once had four broken ribs. All of this is par for the course.

The 32-year-old Tooby leaves the game with a fair share of honors. He is two-time Grey Cup-winning teams—Montreal in 1949 and Tiger-Cats in 1953 and 1954.

He is a successful Hamilton truck salesman, the father of five and a record of never getting into any kind of trouble away from football field. He won't be lost to the game. A Hamilton radio station (CHML) has hired him for the half-time commentary and interviews in all Tiger-Cat home and away games this season.

Famous Coach Jim Tatum Dies at 46

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—Jim Tatum, 46-year-old North Carolina football coach who rose from a gridiot player to the pinnacle of the coaching profession, died Thursday night. He succumbed to a highly contagious virus that ravaged his bulky form.

Feverish and delirious, his body covered with a red rash, Tatum fought his last bouts virtually alone. Only his doctors were permitted at his bedside.

His wife Edna lay ill at home suffering from the same malady. She is confined to bed.

Tatum was visiting in Canada with his friends, coaches Peahead Walker of Montreal Alouettes of the Big Four football union and Frank Howard of Clemson State, when he was called home after the death of a sister last week.

Tatum went to hospital last Saturday. Doctors said the virus "overwhelmed" Tatum, affecting such vital organs as his liver and kidneys.

RISK FEAR IN PROSPECT

Tatum returned to his alma mater here four years ago. He wanted to rebuild the school into a national football power. He figured this would be his big year.

At the University of Maryland he had formed a football dynasty in nine years.

"Organization," was Tatum's reply to those who asked him his secret of success. He starred as a recruiter and was a top administrator and organizer.

Tatum became embroiled in a controversy with North Carolina State's student newspaper over professionalism in football. Winding up the argument, he said:

"It is a sad occasion when academic leaders won't have a sufficient education in athletics to realize the benefits athletes receive from the field of sport.

"They don't think that the only way for a coach to do a good job is to do a poor job and get many victories.

"I don't think using is the most important thing—I think it's the only thing."

Wings "Pills" Snatch Birds Out of Slump

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Miami Skeeters probably never knew what hit them Thursday night. They took a 13-3 thumping from Rochester Red Wings, but didn't see the Wings "ultimate" weapon.

It didn't have a place in the lineup either. All the Rochester players have vitamin B-12 before the International League game and found so much health-giving energy that they came out of a batting slump with 13 hits.

The victory moved the Wings into a third place tie with Montreal Royals, idle Thursday. Richmond moved into a tie with Havana for fifth place as the Cougar Kings downed league-leading Buffalo 2-1. Columbus and Toronto, tied for seventh place, played a 4-4 tie, called after seven innings because of rain.

The Marlins were behind 7-0 before they batted in the first inning. Rochester used five hits, including two singles and Charlie Hansel's double, to beat Jim Archer's (8-6) first four pitches, and three walks to do the trick of the damage. Howie Nunn (3-5) went the route for the Wings, giving Steve Korcheck a two - run homer.

Harness Racing

TORONTO (CP)—A Canadian thoroughbred expert who won fame and fortune in the United States says Old Woodbine Raceway could rank with Roosevelt and Yonkers raceways if harness racing were allowed at night.

Morley MacDonald, a native of Strathroy, said in an interview:

"If the government were to allow night racing the mutuel handle would average $200,000 within two years. It would need that much time to catch on with the public but this is a big city and it would come."

He said he isn't sure local thoroughbred enthusiasts would like the competition of night harness racing.

MacDonald flew here from New York to drive his horse Mighty Tred in the sixth race at Old Woodbine Wednesday night. The horse won.

MacDonald gained countryside fame in 1954 when he won the Little Brown Jug pace with world's champion Adios Hanoy.

YONKERS, N.Y. (AP)—Trader Hare, to represent the United States in the International Trot Aug. 1 at Roosevelt Raceway, easily won the $30,000 National Championship Trot at Yonkers Raceway Thursday night.

The seven-year - old finished 1½ lengths in front of Something Special. Mr. Answers was third at 4 Silver Song fourth.

Practically Worthless

Owner of this car wanted to buy a new one — trouble was he didn't have enough money. Added at the car — practically unmarketable — because it's so worn out. But we did see the cars taken of the car made eloquently of the owner's character.

So we lent him money to buy a new one!

In other words, you don't have to make a show of money to get a loan — we value the character of our client more than we value his wares.

ART BRINGS FAME TO RANCHER — Wilfred Garstrang-Hodgson works on a piece of juniper root in his ranch home at Dorothy in the Alberta badlands. His style of carving, dictated by his mood and the original shape of the wood, has brought him fame. Mr. Hodgson, a native Englishman, began carving at 40 and his unique figurines have been purchased by many eminent people. (CP Photo).

Angel or Beautiful Woman? Depends on Shape of Wood And Rancher-Artist's Mood

By BORIS MISKEW
Canadian Press Staff Writer

DOROTHY, Alta. (CP)—Wilfred Garstang-Hodgson lit his pipe and reached for a piece of juniper wood beside his work table. He studied it carefully from all angles, picked up a carving tool and went to work.

In time, depending upon the wood and upon the mood of Mr. Hodgson, as he is known professionally, the juniper will be cut into the form of a shy young maiden or a beautiful woman heading into the wind. Or the statuette may resemble an angel.

"It all depends on the original shape of the wood, and how I feel," says the rancher - artist whose wood sculpture has brought him fame in many parts of the world. "No two figurines even look the same, nor can replicas be made—because two similar pieces of wood cannot be found."

Mr. Hodgson believes that in his statuettes, varying from one to two feet in height, he has struck on a new form of art.

"People have been carving wood for thousands of years," he said. "But not many have succeeded in giving what I give to my figurines. My work represents something more than just a mere figure; it creates feeling, an impression."

He draws his inspiration from the countryside, the picturesque B-lands of Alberta where he settled in 1912. His work captures the spirit of the sandy banks and coulees that frame the Red Deer Valley in the Dorothy region, 80 miles northeast of Calgary.

The juniper Mr. Hodgson uses is reddish - brown, with white strains. It actually is the twisted, weather-beaten root of the juniper shrub which grows along the ground.

"I have a hard time finding good pieces," he said, adding that he had picked up all the juniper that can be used for sculpture for miles around the 2,600-acre ranch he and his two sons operate. His wife died in 1946.

NO JUNIPER LEFT

"There isn't a bit of juniper left here. The only place in Alberta where juniper suitable for carving can be found is in the Medicine Hat district," about 125 miles to the southeast.

Among eminent people who have purchased the figurines are Princess Alice and Lady Tweedsmuir, novelist Somerset Maugham, film star Greer Garson and photographer Yousuf Karsh.

For a time the Alfred Dunhill firm of London — which has offices in Toronto and New York — took every figurine that I could make," said the six - foot - tall Englishman who came to Canada at 15 from his home on the Scottish border and took up wood carving at 40. That was 35 years ago.

It wasn't always like that.

"During the depression when I first took up the art I used to give the figurines away for nothing." Mr. Hodgson said. "Of course, they weren't as good as the ones I make today, and they were mostly carved of cottonwood logs."

MAKES OWN TOOLS

That was before he discovered the superior qualities of juniper for his type of carving. The tough juniper required unique tools, and these the sculptor procured in the ranch smithy.

Mr. Hodgson does not display his works at exhibitions. His living room, with figurines lining two walls, draws many art lovers. One Sunday afternoon about 30 visitors arrived at his home, travelling two miles from here along a winding, single-lane, dirt trail.

The sculptor lives with a bachelor son and looks after the cooking and laundry. The other son, married, lives with his family two miles away.

Mr. Hodgson was asked why he does not move to the city where more people could see his work. He replied:

"I will never leave the Badlands; they sort of grow on you. And I think I could not work in the city."

'Flying Saucer' Skims Across English Channel

Speeds Foot Above Sea Carrying Four-Man Crew

DOVER, England (AP)—Britain's revolutionary "flying saucer" that skims on a self-made air cushion over land and sea made a successful crossing of the English Channel today.

Ship sirens in the harbor wailed a welcome as the hovercraft neared to shore, skimming a foot above the waves.

The hovercraft, reported to have made the 23-mile crossing from Calais to Dover in two hours, 13 minutes, had four men aboard — Peter Lamb, 29, the pilot, Christopher Cockerell, 45, inventor who rode in the strange craft's cabin, and two other men who rode, outside as ballast.

The four-ton craft is powered with a 450-horsepower engine which drives a single tandem fan. This provides air pressure which is blown through ducts beneath the hoverage and cushions the craft as it flits above the waves.

Cockerell said his next step will be to build a 30-ton version—a prototype for larger models which he hopes eventually will make Channel trips commercially.

The hovercraft, for five years a subject of guarded interest even in British science, made its maiden trip June 8.

Heiress Admits Her Kidnapping Story a Hoax

CHICAGO (AP) — A socially prominent New Jersey heiress has admitted her story of being kidnapped by two men, driven to Chicago and then released is a myth.

Toronto-born Jacqueline Gay Hart, 21, broke down Friday under the gentle questioning of her father, Ralph A. Hart, executive vice-president of the Colgate-Palmolive Company, and an FBI agent. After telling the truth, Miss Hart said she did not remember what had happened since she watched from New Jersey's Newark airport Tuesday night.

The FBI said it then ended all phases of Miss Hart's story which unfolded after she reappeared, screaming and crying, beside a police cruiser in downtown Great Falls early Friday.

POLICE DOUBTED TALE

At the outset, the FBI and police were skeptical of the girl's story of being seized, blindfolded and gagged, forced to wear a blanket and driven by two abductors to Chicago and then released in the Great Falls area.

Police said Miss Hart's grey tweed dress, white sweater, black shoes and sheer stockings failed to show any of the wear and tear which an ordeal such as she described would have inflicted. Her one brassiere left was missing, not tally with her account of being struck in the mouth by one of her captors after he locked her in the bathroom of an unidentified house in the Chicago area.

IN DOCTOR'S CAR

Hart said his daughter is suffering from nervous exhaustion and is under a physician's care somewhere in Chicago. He said he did not know when they would return to their Short Hills, N.J., home with the girl's sister Margaret, Stanley Gaines, 25, who lives in New Jersey and a friend.

How Miss Hart, who is to marry Gaines Aug. 29, came to Chicago and whether she came alone remained a mystery.

Hart said his daughter had suffered extreme fatigue "to the extent which occurred when she was thrown from a car while visiting Galena, then a University of Virginia student.

Nuclear Tests Ban Proposals Run Into Snag

GENEVA (Reuters) — The East-West conference on banning nuclear weapons tests suffered a major setback Friday. The Soviet Union refused to go to the United States and Britain that day unless they accept their proposal that one-third of the technical and scientific staff manning the detecting control posts should come from nations without nuclear weapons.

Sources at the three-nation conference on a test-ban treaty said the Soviet stand in effect put the talks back at the starting point on the issue of staffing control posts.

INVITE INSPECTION

BRUSSELS, Belgium (Reuters) — The Canadian government has invited European atomic industrialists to visit Canada to study the construction of heavy water reactors, it was revealed Friday.

MONTREAL THUGS GET $50,000 IN SIX ROBBERIES

Two Banks Held Up, Fruit Firm Robbed

MONTREAL (CP) — Loot totalled more than $50,000 in an outbreak of daylight armed robberies in this area Friday.

Provincial police said an estimated $20,000 was taken from a branch of the Provincial Bank of Canada in suburban Varennes by three armed men.

Two armed men escaped with about $17,000 in payroll money and receipts from the cashier's cage at the Crelinsten Fruit Co. in suburban Lachine, one of 15 employees against the wall at gunpoint.

ESCAPE PLAN FAULTY

Two other armed men fled a branch of the Royal Bank of Canada in suburban Mount Royal with $7,000 but were captured within the hour after a farcical escape attempt.

The bandits forced the male employees into a vault and locked the women into the vault.

They got out after "only left the bank," said accountant Joseph Fortier, "and saw them get into an old jalopy parked in front.

"They couldn't get started so I grabbed a gun and ran after them."

Fortier suspects fled on foot, and a passing motorcycle policeman fired at the fleeing bandits. The suspects were captured a few minutes later.

Two bandits men snatched a 11,900 payroll from Mrs. Anne Ecto, 50, at the entrance of the Ecto Fur Company, as she crossed at an intersection in mid city.

An armed man hit S. Latella, 45, in a downtown druggist, while the man's unarmed partner scooped $500 from the cash register.

But an employee of the Canadian Delaspre and Supply plumbing company turned the bandits on two unarmed holdup men. He forced the pair to hand over $371 they had just stolen from the company.

Oshawa Students Complain Quebec Visitors Ignored

OSHAWA (CP)—Students and parents here who have French-speaking students from Quebec province staying with them as part of a cultural exchange program complain the visiting students are being ignored.

The Quebec students are being given little in the way of organized activities either in Oshawa or elsewhere in Ontario, say parents who have been in touch in contact with others billeting French Canadians in Peterborough, St. Catharines, Hamilton and Windsor.

President Robert Dewland of the Oshawa Junior Chamber of Commerce, sponsors of the "Learn your this thing got out of hand and he was felt the idea of sending here there was too much entertainment."

The two-week exchange is arranged by the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews and Visites Interprovinciales. Ontario students stay with French-speaking families in Quebec province.

Oshawa students Larry Berg, 18, and his brother Gordon, 17, said they were taken to various centres in Quebec province on their visit and the only time students were laid on for them. Here, the French students are only being taken on one hour-long tour after seven days.

The Berg boys' three French-speaking students staying with them.

Mr. Dewland said he did not see why the Oshawa students should complain of the entertaining themselves.

HEARING ADJOURNED

LITTLE CURRENT (CP)—Preliminary hearing of a murder charge against William Pegasastag, 43, of the Wikwemikong reserve, scheduled to be held here Friday was adjourned one week. Pegasastag is charged with the July 5 shotgun death of Joseph Neganiwina, 36, of Shegwaning.

Teamster Boss James Hoffa Plans Libel Suit Over Jack Paar Show

WASHINGTON (AP) — James R. Hoffa, Teamsters Union president, is planning libel action based on an interview Robert F. Kennedy, Democratic committee counsel, gave on the Jack Paar television show. A union spokesman said Friday night.

Kennedy on the NBC show hurled a barrage of charges against Hoffa and the union. Among other things, Kennedy said Hoffa and some of his associates "feel they are above the law, that they can fix judges, fix juries, and even pressures of the legislatures."

A spokesman for the union said Hoffa has sent the following tele- gram to Robert Sarnoff, NBC board chairman:

"I have today instructed my attorney to prepare libel action against NBC, Robert Kennedy, Jack Parr and all others responsible for the defamation and with the shameful abuse of national television time on Wednesday night. Any repetition of such performance will be met with an application to revoke your license to permitting the telecast of criminal libel."

Kennedy, advised of the telegram, said:

"We welcome this suit so that the matter of whether Mr. Hoffa has betrayed the union membership can be proven in a court of law."

U.S. May Seek Long Recess For Conference at Geneva

GENEVA (AP) — The United States may propose next week a long recess of the Big Four conference, unless Russia softens her terms for easing the Berlin crisis.

But as the foreign ministers conference went into its ninth week, the Allies were reported divided over whether their talks with the Soviet Union are progressing. And Russia's Andrei Gromyko has been talking about the need to keep seeking a Berlin settlement now.

The talks were in recess today with only the Soviet foreign minister scheduled to [illegible] through the weekend.

Christian Herter of the United States was expected to return here tonight after a flying good-will visit to West Berlin. Britain's Selwyn Lloyd went to London for consultation while Maurice Couve de Murville of France was on a trip to Brussels and Paris.

The next meeting is set for late Monday, a secret session at Lloyd's residence. Herter was reported hoping to get some information at that time whether there is any chance that Gromyko will give way on the key issue—his proposal for creation of a committee of East and West Germans to negotiate on a German peace settlement.

The West repeatedly has rejected this demand. Gromyko has been insistent in demanding agreement in principle on the Soviet plan to set up a demilitarized free city of West Berlin.

Herter is regarded as the pessimistic about breaking the deadlock. Couve de Murville is said to be more optimistic. Lloyd has been more optimistic.

Fashion Model From Tokyo Named World Beauty Queen

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — The pearl crown of Miss Universe has placed Friday night on the pretty head of a statuesque fashion model from Japan, the first Oriental beauty ever crowned beauty pageant.

Announcement that leggy Akiko Kojima, 22, had won the crown brought a roar of applause from 7,000 spectators.

"I didn't think I would win," said the Tokyo beauty, who stands five-feet, six inches and measures 37-23-38.

"I am so very happy," she said in her faltering English and then tears glistened in the corners of her almond eyes.

The runners-up, in order of finish:

Miss Norway, Jorunn Krisbergsen, 18, who stands five-feet, eight inches and measures 35-24-35.

Miss United States, Terry Lynn Huntington, 19, of Mount Shasta, Calif., five-feet, 6½ inches and 35-23-36.

Miss England, Pamela Anne Barratt, 21, willowy five-feet, seven-inches, 36-24-36.

Miss Brazil, Vera Ribeiro, 19, leggy brunette with curly, blonde Ellzee Botter, 25, of Ancaster, Ont. said she is homesick and will be glad to get back to her job as a receptionist. The Canadian was eliminated Thursday night in the preliminaries.

The new Miss Universe said she has had a movie offer and plans to make a test next week in Hollywood.

Miss Kojima succeeds Colombia's Luz Marina Zuluaga.

Warm, Dry Weather Brings Forest Rangers Much Grief

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Warm, dry weather over most of Canada may brighten vacation days, but it means only grief for forest firefighters.

Expanses of blackened forests in at least two provinces today marked last week's lightning threat and the need for heavy rain.

One of the hardest hit areas is in Labrador, where the community of Port Hope Simpson was believed to have been consumed by a fire that rampaged through thousands of acres of timberland.

Rain was forecast for the district today. It would be the first relief in two weeks for firefighters.

It was not known whether the community was destroyed, because its residents evacuated the area. Port Hope Simpson is normally populated by 150 people.

Another fire was burning out of control near Charlottetown, a community on the southeastern coast of Newfoundland. Four separate fires were blazing. At one time they were believed to have burned themselves out, but 50-mile-an-hour winds whipped them back into life.

Forestmen place the loss at 500 square miles of valuable woodland, mostly black spruce.

The Vancouver area district which includes Vancouver Island, reported 34 new fires this week. Alberta had 36-fires burning. Forest-area roads may be closed if dry weather continues.

The fire threat was on the increase in Saskatchewan where work into menial-deficiency of children was underway at Weyburn, Lisbarr of London, Ont., and Dr. C. P. Ford of London, England. They are studying the relationship in the number of chromosomes in cells of the body may be the cause.

A New York pediatrician said brain damage can be detected in babies by the sound of their cries. Dr. Stanley Kaczmak studied them after recording and studying the cries of 3,500 babies he can correctly pick out abnormal babies 15 out of 16 times. Although no specific types of brain damage can be diagnosed, the cries sound a warning that abnormality exists.

Dr. Bela Schick, discoverer of the Schick test for diphtheria susceptibility, said the results are important thing in rearing children with abnormalities.

Dr. R. M. Silberstein, a New York pediatrician, said he has a certain amount of thumb-sucking, bed-wetting, head-knocking and nail-biting in all children. They should not be taken as signs of nervousness or that the child is neurotic. These habits are the child's way of dealing with anxiety, he said.

The congress wound up by saying that the World Health Organization, all governments and doctors and researchers to take immediate steps to combat the child-accident problem by creating new preventative measures.

NIXON 'TOUCHED' BY WARM WAY HE'S RECEIVED

Khrushchev Joust Does Not Worry Him

MOSCOW (AP)—Richard Nixon called at the Kremlin today and told First Deputy Premier Frol Kozlov that he and his wife have been "very touched at our warm reception."

The American vice - president seemed unshaken by his verbal jousts Friday with Premier Nikita Khrushchev although at times their words had reached a heated pitch.

"Not only officially but unofficially we have been welcomed at our reception by people in all walks of life," Nixon told Kozlov Kozlov returned recently from a tour of the United States. He opened the Soviet exhibition in New York June 28.

SEES MIKOYAN

Nixon's first call this morning was to see First Deputy Premier Anastas Mikoyan to talk trade.

The two officials had an hour before when Mikoyan toured the United States early this year and planned more trade.

Nixon was accompanied on his visit to Kozlov by Vice-Admiral Hyman G. Rickover, head of the atomic submarine expert.

Kozlov and Nixon had a two tracked barbed jests when the Soviet official visited the U.S. but today it was exchanged warm greetings.

The American admiral handed Kozlov an envelope containing some pictures taken of him when he visited the atomic power plant at Shippingport, Pa.

EXCHANGE FLATTERY

"Your wife is photogenic," he said. "Handsome enough to be a movie star."

"And you could make another Hollywood star," Kozlov replied.

Today's exchanges were mild on the vast Canadian Northwest granted to the Hudson's Bay Company in 1670 as Rupertsland.

The reni—two elk heads and two black bear skins—was formally presented by W. J. Keswick, company governor.

The Queen looked closely at the elk heads and fingered the fur. She asked Mr. Keswick about the color of the fur.

"I thought it would be brown," she said. "It's just exquisite."

A $100,000 trust fund to provide bursaries for Canadian students was why presented to the Queen as the official gift of the Manitoba government.

BUFFET DINNER

At a black-tie affair at Government House at night a buffet dinner was served and the Queen, wearing dress of jade green and turquoise blue flowed taffeta, was cold him at a candlelit table in the drawing room.

Jack Grant, captain of the Blue Bombers, was among the guests presented.

After dinner, the Queen attended a command performance of the Winnipeg Symphony Orchestra and Royal Winnipeg Ballet.

Sentence Fine For Goldfine Are Suspended

WASHINGTON (AP)—Bernard Goldfine Friday received a suspended sentence of a year in jail and a $5,000 fine for contempt of Congress.

The fine as well as the jail term was suspended.

In lieu of paying the fine and serving the jail term, Goldfine, a gift - giving Boston industrialist, and friend of former presidential assistant Sherman Adams, was placed on probation for two years.

Judge James W. Morris also directed that Goldfine, if given the opportunity, answer the 18 questions he refused to answer before House Commerce subcommittee legislative oversight a year ago.

Man Tortures Buffalo Woman

BUFFALO (AP) — A 21-year-old mother, the upper part of her body partially burned, burst from a house Friday and related a story of four days of torture.

Mrs. Renate Helbling accused a man with whom she had been living of beating her with his fists and burning her body with a cigar. He also burned her daughters, aged 1 and 2, she said, and forced her to watch.

The man, Joseph Noah, 39, was arrested.

The torture began, the woman said, after Noah accused her of having an affair with another man.

She escaped through a rear door.

Plane Attack Draws Protest From Americans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has lodged a strong protest at Communist China and Soviet Russia for a June 16 attack by MIG jets on a U.S. Navy patrol plane.

The state department termed the incident "attempted murder by the high seas."

The government demanded that the Communists act immediately to prevent similar attacks. It asked that those responsible be punished for the attack over the Sea of Japan.

The protest was handed through the United Nations armistice machinery in Korea.

The state department said it still does not know whether the red-starred fighters were North Korean or Soviet.

Trenton-Bound Queen Finishes Her Tour Of West

Half Winnipeg Turns Out To Cap Prairie Visit

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Queen has been a bigger smash in the West than Winnipeg Blue Bombers when they won the Grey Cup last fall.

Perhaps because of the Queen's two-day illness in the Yukon last weekend but more likely because of the camaraderie of the West, the welcome given her grew like a prairie fire as she crossed the Manitoba-Ontario line.

Nearly half the 440,000 population of Winnipeg lined downtown streets and filled parks Friday to see the Queen, who looked as fresh as at any time during the tour which began June 18.

TODAY'S SCHEDULE

The Queen and Prince Philip were to fly to Sudbury today for a 36-hour call and then continue by air to the RCAF station at Trenton. From there they were to drive to Port Hope for a long weekend with Governor-General Massey at Harrowood House, his summer home.

The Queen is to fly Tuesday to Fredericton to begin a four-day visit to the Maritimes.

Winnipeg's Assiniboine Park Friday some 10,000 spectators left the Queen's car to crowd and they thronged around the royal limousine.

At the park, the Queen, a lenient landlord, collected for only the second time during her tour when on the vast Canadian Northwest granted to the Hudson's Bay Company in 1670 as Rupertsland.

The reni—two elk heads and two black bear skins—was formally presented by W. J. Keswick, company governor.

The Queen looked closely at the elk heads and fingered the fur. She asked Mr. Keswick about the color of the fur.

"I thought it would be brown," she said. "It's just exquisite."

A $100,000 trust fund to provide bursaries for Canadian students was why presented to the Queen as the official gift of the Manitoba government.

BUFFET DINNER

At a black-tie affair at Government House at night a buffet dinner was served and the Queen, wearing dress of jade green and turquoise blue flowed taffeta, was cold him at a candlelit table in the drawing room.

Jack Grant, captain of the Blue Bombers, was among the guests presented.

After dinner, the Queen attended a command performance of the Winnipeg Symphony Orchestra and Royal Winnipeg Ballet.

Scouts Finding Climate Problem In Philippines

MANILA (Reuters)—The chief of the Canadian boy scout contingent at the World Scout Jamboree says Canadian scouts are having a hard time adjusting to the climate.

Dr. Ele Boyaner of New Brunswick said Friday the heat "paralyzes our boys with fever for a few days of the Jamboree.

Boyaner said scout morale was "a bit low" at the start, "what with their bedding getting soaked when it rains at night."

But he said Filipino scouts were a great help. "These boys provided us with bamboo flooring for our tents so that now we can sleep comfortably and stay dry."

"I can say this will be an experience our boys will never forget," he added.

Earlier Gen. D. C. Spry of Canada, director of the Boy Scout International Bureau, said there was no cause for alarm about the health and safety of the scouts.

He said good progress was made despite shortage, sanitary conditions and security measures tended to critics without adequate investigation.

Avro and Orenda Reach Agreement With Machinists

TORONTO (CP) — Avro Aircraft Canada and Orenda Engines Limited have reached a tentative agreement on a new contract with the International Association of Machinists (CLC), it was announced Friday.

Union membership will meet Monday and Wednesday nights to vote on ratification of the agreement. If it is approved it will mean the way of Avro to halt the defence production contract for the Canadair-developed Starfighters to be built in Canada.

Avro and Orenda are wholly owned subsidiaries of the A. V. Roe Canada Limited. Their existing contracts with the union expires Oct. 8 but new contract negotiations began early because the defence production contract is to be awarded Aug. 14.

Avro had originally sought a wage cut to give it a more favorable competitive position with its direct rivals, Canadair Limited in Montreal, and de Havilland Aircraft of Canada Limited here.

Details of the new agreement were withheld pending ratification by union members.

The union had resisted any wage cut on the ground that rates at both de Havilland and Canadair are lower than Avro.

Three Ducked When Boat Capsizes in Bay

Three local teenagers who have been taking sailing instruction from the peoples of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club had a chance to put into use their capsizing safety drill yesterday afternoon when the small sailing boat they were in was caught in a heavy gust of wind and capsized near the government dock. The three young people, Bill Sprague, Sara McCullough and John Tooth experienced nothing more serious than a ducking. A power boat was on the scene very shortly and towed the capsized craft and its crew to the yacht club dock.

All sailing trainees are required to be safe within 100 yards and must wear life-jackets whilst sailing before they are permitted out in a boat. No damage was sustained by the boat, which is owned by Bob McCullough. Observers called the Emergency Unit of the Belleville Fire Department to the scene of the incident but the boat was already safely in shore before the short time it took the local firemen to arrive at the government dock.

Moira Resident Faces Charge

Mr. Frost, who was only forty years of age, was born in Sidney Township, a son of Mrs. Bessie M. Frost and the late Gordon C. Frost.

Besides his mother, of Sidney township, he leaves to mourn his loss his wife, the former Mary Burger, and one daughter, Mrs. Lloyd (Mildred) Wright, brothers of Belleville, and three sisters, Mrs. James (Lena) Hoyle of Trenton, Mrs. Ernest (Phyllis) Pope of Belleville and Mrs. Ronald (Jean) Hogarth of Shannonville.

Mr. Frost had been employed by Direct-Winters Transport, in the office and as a driver, for the past twelve months. He was a member of Wesley United Church.

Resting at the John R. Bush Funeral Home, the funeral arrangements appear elsewhere in this issue.

"Leaving Scene"

An accident occurred on Canniffon Road yesterday evening which resulted in several guard rails and a tree being badly damaged, and a charge of leaving the scene of an accident being laid against Melville C. Thompson of Moira. Apparently the vehicle driven by Mr. Thompson went out of control, travelled across the road and, striking the rails and pole and then proceeding on its way.

To date has been shown, local police laid a number of charges for various traffic offences and liquor violations. One drunk driving charge was also laid. No accidents of consequence have been reported by the Provincial Police during the past few days.

Coal, Grain, Ore Ships to Get Canal Priority

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) Vessels carrying coal, grain and iron ore will be given priority through the Welland Canal until downbound traffic eases, canal officials said Friday night.

Thirty vessels were anchored at L. Port Colborne entrance to the canal in Lake Erie Friday night, waiting for their journey through the 27½-mile waterway.

The spokesman said under the priority system every second ship through the locks would be a bulk carrier, chosen in order of its arrival.

The situation at the Lake Ontario entrance was also tight was normal with no delays.

An official said the lineup at Port Colborne likely would "straighten itself out in two or three days—it always does."

Revenues Rise But Govt. Still In Red in June

OTTAWA (CP)— Federal tax revenues last month were up nearly $80,000,000 from June 1958 but this wasn't enough to keep the government out of the red.

Finance Minister Fleming reported Friday night that June's budgetary operations ended with a $56,100,000 deficit.

However, there remains a surplus of $370,000,000 after the first three months of the 1959-60 fiscal year, second to April 1. In the first quarter of last fiscal year there was a treasury deficit of $64,300,000.

Mr. Fleming has forecast a $343,000,000 deficit for the current year, compared with one of $617,000,000 for 1958-59.

DEBT CHARGES AHEAD

June spending rose by $36,400,000 to $480,300,000. Of this increase, $33,400,000 was from debt charges which climbed to $90,000,000 for the month.

June tax returns were up by $79,700,000 to $372,600,000 as several governments revenues rose to $404,300,000 from $315,300,000 a year earlier.

For this fiscal year's first quarter, revenues stood at $1,175,900,000 compared with $1,001,500,000 in the corresponding period of 1958-59.

Included in this increase was a rise of $73,400,000 in personal income taxes — a rise that occurred even before higher personal rates took effect July 1.

Mr. Fleming's statement also revealed a decline of $2,500,000 in June of the old age security fund, from which the $55-a-month old age pensions are paid. The fund operates outside the regular budget accounts.

Okay, Doc! Some Die Being 'Tired'

NEW YORK (AP)—"Feeling beat, mother?

"Sick get you down? Feel irritable, rundown — just not as well as you used to be?

Well, relax. You're probably not sick. You're what tired.

Most young mothers are reports Dr. Leonard L. Lovshin of the Cleveland Clinic Foundation.

Writing in the July issue of Postgraduate Medicine, Dr. Lovshin says:

"Tired mother is not necessarily maladjusted — she is spent; not hardened with unwarranted anxiety and fatigue; and, most important of all, she is not sick—just tired.

"We physicians, in our desire to be of service, often forget that a woman has long list of medications we prescribe to be taken—and/or injected for relief of fatigue."

"WHEN PAIN GROWS SHARP AND SICKNESS RAGES"
(Ancient Hebrew Proverb)
Pain is an indication of sickness. Persistent recurring pain is nature's warning signal that something should be done soon to correct the condition or serious danger may result.
No one but a physician has the knowledge to determine if a pain is the result of a minor or serious condition. Pain is just one of many other symptoms to be studied if a cure is to result. Do not wait 'til pain grows sharp and sickness rages. Consult your physician immediately to prevent other pain-filled days and possible serious sickness.

Around Town With Al

TRENTON—Is my face red? In one of my stories in last Thurs. day's paper I had the town crews building a compound for the storage of salt in the town yards on the corner of Ontario and Elgin Streets. This should have been Ontario and Mayers Street. It wasn't a serious error, though, if my friends won't let me forget it. After all I was only out by a railway siding, a strip of land with boat houses, the Trent River and a municipal parking lot.

QUEEN TO ARRIVE

Today is the big day for Trenton. Her Royal Highness arrives and this morning many merchants with stores along the main highway have put finishing touches to their decorations. The Queen and Prince arrive at the end of... tion at 6.20 p.m. and will drive slowly through town from Bridge Street on the east side of the Trent River to Lorne Ave. on the west side of the river.

Thousands are expected to be on hand to get a "look-see" at the Royal couple and many of them will be out-of-towners coming in by car. All side streets along the route have been made available for parking but there will be absolutely no parking on the road to be used by the royal visitors.

Trenton Police Chief Taylor and inspector C. H. Campbell, will be in charge of pedestrian and traffic control, both urge motorists to keep it easy while the royal couple have gone by. There will be a lot of cars wanting to get home and if everyone wants to leave at the same time it will be a big tie-up. There will be policemen on each intersection to direct traffic and they will keep it moving steadily, so motorists are asked to be patient and await their turn.

Four Youths Charged With Entry, Theft

TRENTON — Four teenagers, one of them a juvenile, were charged with breaking, entry and theft after they were caught allegedly in the act at 5.45 a.m. Friday morning in Trenton.

The four Constables George French and Roy Miller were patrolling Front Street and discovered a part of a service station operated by J. Yarmola were noticed at the door of the building was open.

They stopped to investigate and one of them saw a youth run from the front. They immediately gave chase and the youth ran for the bushes along the Trent River and then cut back into the town, apprehended by the policeman on Bondhead St. He identified himself as Garnet Juby, 19, of R.R. 2, Frankford. The officers then returned to the service station and started to found Bob Dainard, 18, also of R.R. 2, Frankford, hiding underneath a pile of tires.

The policemen then began a search for the fourth. Acting on a car one of the officers had seen in the vicinity earlier, and a few minutes later they found it and arrested the two youths in it. They were Peter Leach, 17, R.R. 2, Frankford, and the juvenile.

The boys were taken back to the police station and booked.

Further investigation showed that a small sum of money had been taken from the till of the service station.

The three teenagers will appear in Magistrate's court next Tuesday in Trenton and the juvenile will appear in the next court for juveniles.

Reynolds Joins Firms Rejecting Wage Increase

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Reynolds Metals Company, the second largest aluminum producer in the United States, lined up with the steel industry Friday in rejecting a United Steelworkers' demand for a wage increase.

The position of Reynolds was the same as the Aluminum Company of America and Kaiser Aluminum and Chemical Corporation. They turned down the union's proposal Thursday.

Unless an agreement can be reached with the union, the deadline gives every indication that plants producing 50 per cent of the aluminum in the U.S. will be closed with the expiration of contracts.

A total of 30,000 aluminum workers are represented by the CIO Steelworkers. Most of the aluminum workers are covered by other unions.

Already 500,000 steelworkers are on strike with an estimated 18,000 laid off in related fields, including 59,000 railroad workers.

The 10-day-old strike has already cost the steelworkers $100,000,000 in pay. Daily production losses are estimated at nearly 840,000,000.

Mom Whyte Asks Premier Frost For Assistance

BOWMANVILLE (CP)— Mrs. Bertha (Mom) Whyte who has lived 140 children at Whyte Haven Mission, the foster home she began operating in 1947, said the day night she has called on Premier Frost for assistance.

Mrs. Whyte said in an interview with the premier another four months ago he told her that if she ever needed help to call him. With the mission short of staff and the spring vip, she has decided to take him up on his offer.

Mrs. Whyte said she was unable to contact Mr. Frost Friday but had spoken with W. A. McIntyre, secretary of the provincial cabinet, and W. E. Smith, director of field services for the Ontario welfare department.

Mr. Smith said the health department would send us a nurse Monday, she said.

Twenty-five children have been stricken with influenza and Mrs. Whyte said she was "getting along fine." Eleven other children are suffering from infectious hepatitis.

It was understood the staff now numbers about 10 as several have left recently.

Mrs. Whyte said she is launching an appeal for nursing sisters and for help with the "enormous amount of laundry" which has to be done every day."

Polish Priest Died Before Seeing Friends

HAMILTON (CP)—For 16 years Rev. Joseph Fryz, 56-year-Roman Catholic priest in Kolbuszowa, Poland, dreamed of taking a holiday in North America.

He wanted to visit former parishioners now living in Canada and the United States.

Father Fryz planned to talk to them and return home with news for their relatives and friends still living in Poland.

Finally he obtained permission from his bishop at Tarnow to make the journey. He arrived in Toronto two weeks ago.

This week he came to Hamilton to visit 50 Polish Canadians who had emigrated from Kolbuszowa and district.

But Father Fryz never saw them.

Within a few hours of his arrival in his city the priest collapsed. He was taken to hospital where he died Thursday of a ruptured ulcer combined with diabetes and jaundice.

HOMES WANTED

The Children's Aid Society is anxious to obtain foster homes for a number of teen-age girls who will be entering upon a secondary school course in September. For a number of reasons it is essential that they be located within the City of Belleville or in the immediate vicinity of Belleville.

Many compensations arise from being a foster parent to a child in this age group. These are:

—the companionship of a young adult.

—assistance with the normal routine of the home.

—help with the supervision of younger children.

—allow for some maintenance. The foster child is responsible for clothing, medical and dental care, hospitalization, personal expenses and the like.

—the opportunity to discuss the child's adjustment in your home with an experienced and skilled caseworker, who in turn receives professional supervision.

—the satisfaction that comes from knowing you are sharing with a person in need.

If you are married, in good health, between the ages of 25 and 45, and would like to know more about what is involved in foster parenthood, please call or write to Miss Mary Pierce, Director of Child Welfare, at the Children's Aid Society, 199 Bridge Street East, Belleville. She will be pleased to tell you of some of the many wonderful experiences of foster parents presently caring for foster children.

NEW YORK (AP)—American television audiences were to see Richard Nixon's verbal exchange with Nikita S. Khrushchev on their TV screens today.

The exchange between the U.S. vice-president and the Soviet premier took place in a color television station at the American Exhibition in Moscow. Cameras recorded it.

CBS said it has tentatively scheduled the film for 12 noon today. NBC scheduled it for 2 p.m. today and 7 p.m. Sunday.

Child Killed

TORONTO (CP)—One-year-old Susan Anderson was killed Friday and her father severely injured when their car was in collision with a truck in east-end Toronto. Alfred Anderson suffered a fractured skull, fractured ribs and severe lacerations.

Woman Finds Women Here Eye-Catching

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Colonel Guiseppe Forlenza, of Rome, thinks Canadian women are more eyecatching than any he has seen in his native Italy.

"I have never seen so many beautiful women as those walking in the park here," he said. "I'm sure they could run neck and neck with our Gina Lollobrigida any day."

Colonel Forlenza came here to visit a sister, Mrs. M. Farini, whom he had not seen for 32 years.

Cousins Fight For Political Power in Jamaica

PORT OF SPAIN, Trinidad (Reuters)—Another round in the battle for power between two cousins will be fought out when Jamaica elects a new government Tuesday.

The fight is between the People's National party of Jamaica, led by 66-year-old Prime Minister Norman Manley, and Sir Alexander Bustamante's Jamaica Labor party.

The two statesmen have struggled against each other since 1942 and in the last election in 1955 Bustamante, who had governed the country for 10 years, was swept from power by his party.

The present Parliament is made up of 18 people's National party members, 13 Labor party men and one Independent member.

GREATER INFLUENCE

But whichever of the two parties is successful, political sources here expect attempts will be made to give Jamaica greater influence in the British Commonwealth Parliament.

Manley believes Bustamante, who at 75 is also head of the Democratic Labor party of the West Indies (the opposition party in the federal Parliament), would like to see the federation "turned back seat in Jamaica."

This elderly statesman was quoted in the Trinidad press as saying that because of Jamaica's relatively large population—over half that of the federation—it must either call the tune or leave the federation.

WANTS MORE SEATS

In its election manifesto, the Labor party said Jamaica would be withdrawn from the federation if it were not given an increased number of seats in the 45-member federal Parliament.

At present, Jamaica has 17 seats, Trinidad 10, Barbados five and the other seven those of the eastern Caribbean two each, except Montserrat Island which has one.

But even if Bustamante's party is defeated, political sources here say Manley has been forced to take up at home Bustamante's attitude to the federation—never popular with the Jamaican electorate—so as to keep pace with Labor in the election campaign.

Whichever party forms a new Jamaican government, demands for more federal seats are expected to be put forward at a conference to be held in Port of Spain in September to consider changes in the federal constitution and a further conference on the colonial office in London, probably in January, 1960.

Public Smoking Ban Urged to Curb Fag Use

By DAVID GAMZA
Canadian Press Staff Writer

EDINBURGH, Scotland (CP) A British authority Friday called for a ban on smoking in public places and other drastic measures to curb the use of cigarets as part of the battle against lung cancer.

Dr. C. R. Lowe of Birmingham University said no longer is there any doubt that there is an association in the statistical sense between smoking and lung cancer. One. In eight heavy smokers can expect to die from lung cancer compared with one in 300 non-smokers.

Lowe, speaking at the final session of a joint meeting of the British and Canadian Medical Associations, expressed the feeling that the public has not been given the facts.

"The public allowed the wool to be pulled over his eyes," he said.

GOVERNMENT CRITICIZED

Earlier at a press briefing reviewing the biggest joint conference, the Canadian government came under fire for non-contribution of funds for cancer research.

Dr. Norman Gosse, associate professor of surgery at Dalhousie University, Halifax, and former chairman of the general council of the CMA, said "the government does not contribute for cancer research."

"Our research is done entirely with funds contributed by individuals."

Lowe told a chest diseases session that soil only did mortality increase in relation to the amount smoked but increased in each where people gave up smoking according to the number of years they abstained.

Lowe said he does not see any possibility of tobacco prohibition as this would possibly bring down any government introducing it. He called for abolition of tobacco advertising.

"The temptation should not be thrown at us from billboards, glossy magazines and television."

He said the sale of tobacco to juveniles should be stopped.

Lowe stressed it is up to the people to decide whether they wanted to smoke themselves to death or not—"it's a free country."

Dancers Beat 3 Policemen

TORONTO (CP)—Three police men were attacked and beaten with clubs by "rock 'n' roll" dancers during a brawl at a weekend dance hall. One policeman had two teeth kicked out and another suffered a broken nose.

Three persons were arrested on charges of assault.

Witnesses said the incident began when the manager asked a police officer to eject a youth who was causing a disturbance.

As the constable led the youth out he was attacked and thrown to the floor by several men. Two fellow officers came to his aid and were jumped on. Witnesses said all three officers were kicked as they lay on the floor.

At one point about 500 dancers were crowded around the fight scene. Sgt. Charles Fox lost his wallet containing $45 when it fell from his pocket.

Sgt. Fox and Constables Bruce Snider and Jor... Floyd were rushed to hospital for treatment after other police arrived to break up the fight.

Killed by Train

OWEN SOUND (CP) — John Inglis, about 75, was killed Friday when struck by a Toronto-bound CPR daylight at a level crossing here.

Hurricane Debra Causing Damage In Texas

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP) Hurricane Debra moved inland early today about 25 miles west and northwest of Galveston and appeared headed for an industrial area between this island resort city and Houston, Tex.

The weather bureau at New Orleans said at 4 a.m. CST 6 a.m. EDT that winds at the centre were 90 miles an hour and gales extended 50 miles to the northwest and 100 miles to the southeast of the centre.

The movement toward the north was expected to continue at five to eight m.p.h. with heavy rain and high winds spreading northward. Winds of 75 to 80 miles raged into Galveston.

SLIGHT DAMAGE REPORTED

No major damage was reported caused by Debra, which turned suddenly from a weak sister into a vicious storm with winds ranging up to 96 miles an hour.

Minor but widespread damage was reported at the shifting and industrial centre of Freeport, 40 miles to the southwest.

Galveston, where a hurricane took 8,000 lives in 1900, is protected by a sturdy system of seawalls.

Possibly 15 inches of rain was forecast in a extreme southeast Texas and southwest Louisiana. Police Chief Barney Priest of Freeport assigned details to prevent looting in the downtown district where store windows were smashed.

Phone Circuit Is Disrupted

OTTAWA (CP) — Long distance telephone calls from Ottawa to cities and towns in Eastern Ontario and western Quebec had to be rerouted Friday when a Bell Telephone circuit was snapped during a construction project here.

Among the cities affected by the break were Cornwall, Kingston, Brockville and Montreal.

Cause of the break was attributed to a construction firm that was digging a ditch at the corner of Slater Street and Bronside Drive in the southeastern section of the city.

ANAF Opposes Change in Vets' Preference Rule

OTTAWA (CP) — Ontario command of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans in Canada doesn't want any tampering with the system of absolute preference for overseas veterans in filling government jobs.

A Civil Service Commission recommendation that the preference be modified in favour of home service vets' came under fire in a resolution passed by the association's provin c i a l convention here Friday.

The resolution says the advantage given overseas veterans is "just compensation for the great sacrifice borne by this class of Canadian citizen."

Polio Cases Up 50 Per Cent

WASHINGTON (AP)—Paralytic polio cases increased by 50 per cent last week to a 1959 weekly high of 166. They ran more than three times the number listed for the comparable 1958 week.

The public health service said Friday the states reported a total of 257 polio cases during the week ended July 18.

This compares with a revised total of 178 polio cases for the week ended July 11 and 110 of them paralytic.

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister Monteith said today the latest paralytic polio figures—62 cases so far this year compared with 41 by this time last year—demonstrate the need for wholehearted public co-operation in the country's immunization program.

Says Auto Firms Should Meet Safety Standard

MONTREAL (CP) — A Montreal neurosurgeon said Friday that automobile makers should be required to meet safety standards just as meat packers and drug manufacturers meet them.

Dr. Harold Elliott, director of neurosurgery at Montreal General Hospital, said that doctors, faced by wards filled with traffic accident victims, are increasingly interested, in traffic safety.

The steering wheel is still too capable of impaling drivers, he told the West End Traffic Safety Council. Dashboards should be padded and seat belts provided.

Dr. Elliott said: "It is sometimes said that the industry cannot afford these items. But one company announced recently that it made one billion dollars profit in a year."

U.S. Will Stand By Berlin Says Herter

BERLIN (CP) State Secretary Christian Herter said today that the United States would never sign an agreement in Geneva that was not compatible with Western Allies' determination toward the free people of Berlin.

Herter also promised that Allied troops would remain in West Berlin to maintain its freedom.

The secretary of state spoke at a city hall ceremony during a six-hour visit here to dedicate a street named after his predecessor, the late John Foster Dulles.

Herter flew here from Big Four foreign ministers talks in Geneva and received a tremendous welcome from the people of West Berlin. Thousands stood three-deep along his route to city hall.

Western rights in Berlin, he said, "are clear and cannot be terminated by the unilateral action of any other power.

"We do not negotiated and will not accept any deadline on them."

RECOVER THOR CAMERA

'Wac' Bennett's Bond-Burning Plan Assailed

By H. L. JONES
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VICTORIA, B.C. — Premier Bennett's plan to touch a match to more than $70,000,000 of cancelled bonds at Kelowna Aug. 8 and proclaim the resulting pyre as signalling the end of British Columbia's direct debt.

He claims his government, in the seven years since it was first elected in 1952, has wiped out $191,000,000 in public debt made by previous governments since 1874 and adds proudly:

"This is a record never equalled anywhere that we know of."

But his opposition critics claim he has done it by "juggling the books" by transferring what previously had been classed as direct debt into the self-liquidating "contingent liability" columns of the public accounts.

They have uttered some bitter words about the claims of the premier, who is also finance minister, and his showmanship in staging a bond-cremation ceremony on the seventh anniversary of his government.

Social Credit Opposition Leader Strachan recently: "The Kelowna bonfire will be the funeral pyre of the Social Credit government and its ashes will be a symbol of its intellectual dishonesty, its political immorality and decadence."

Kelowna, the premier's home town, is preparing for a real show.

There will be parades, bands, displays by short-skirted majorettes, a squeaseade and swimming races on Okanagan Lake—home of the mythical serpent—opposed to fireworks, square dancing and a come-one-come-all garden party given by the premier himself at his home in Kelowna where he still has a hardware business.

Queen Orders Moccasins From Indian Woman

PETERBOROUGH (CP) An Indian woman from the nearby Curve Lake reserve is making two pairs of buckskin moccasins which the Queen will present to the captain of the royal yacht Britannia as a present for his children.

Mrs. Leslie Bonaparte received the royal order through the federal department of Indian Affairs here. She lives alone on Lovesick Lake, 20 miles north of here.

She cut them out Tuesday evening and began to embroider the low toggings with colored beads and sequins, making up the pattern as she went along.

Both pairs will be finished tonight, as promised.

"Oh, yes, it is a thrill," she told an interviewer.

'Jest a Second'

"It's the Browns. They want to know what we're doing tonight."

Queen's Name Used in U.S. Stock Fraud

NEW YORK (AP) — Investors have been mulcted of $500,000 in stock frauds involving a fictitious Canadian race track, Attorney-General Louis J. Lefkowitz said Friday.

Lefkowitz said the promoters used the name of Queen Elizabeth to push their operations.

The attorney-general obtained a Supreme Court order directing 16 firms and individuals to appear for examination in what he called "one of the most ruthless high-pressure boiler room and bucketeering operations in recent years."

The order prohibits dissipation of funds of Jack Kissel, Hempstead, N.Y.; the Medan Company, Garden City, N.Y.; the Garden City Security Corporation, Garden City; and Kissel's wife.

Lefkowitz said Kissel and the Medan company promoted sale of stock in "Victoria Raceway, Winnipeg, Canada," a non-existent track, with the claim that the Canadian government guaranteed the stock and that the track would be opened officially by the Queen.

Buyers allegedly were told that races at the track were to be fixed to assure huge profits for backers.

MACHINE NOT SO SMART

The South African Press Service starts its latest release with an extract from the Johannesburg Star reporting that "an amazing noughts-and-crosses machine that cannot be beaten -- unless the inventor throws a special switch -- has been built by a young Bloemfontein mathematician, Colin Marquard."

Marquard, we are told, is 20 years old and "is studying for an honors degree in mathematics at the University of Cape Town. He hopes to continue his studies overseas next year. He built the machine from scrap materials -- part of an old radio set, surplus post office equipment, yards of wire and hundreds of screws. Altogether it cost less than ten pounds."

Most people consider noughts-and-crosses a children's game, but we are told that "there are almost 1,000 possible combinations of play" in filling the nine squares. Perhaps there are.

But is the machine so amazing? As a demonstration of mechanical ingenuity in its construction, perhaps. But the machine can do nothing that a six-year-old cannot do if he follows two simple rules.

The usual beginning of a game of noughts and crosses is for the first player to put a nought in the centre square. If the second player then places a cross in a corner square, ordinary care will enable him to frustrate the first player's every effort to win.

A more subtle beginning is for the first player to place a nought in a corner square. To avoid defeat the second player must put a cross in the centre square. Then comes the trick -- the first player puts a nought in the corner square opposite the one he first filled, apparently a wasted move since this diagonal is already blocked by a cross in the centre. But if the second player, unwarily, puts a cross in a corner square he is trapped. The other corner square is filled with a nought, blocking the second player's bid for three crosses in a row and at the same time leaving two winning threats for the noughts, both of which cannot be blocked. Avoiding this trap is simple. All the second player need do to avoid defeat is to fill in any one of the four "outside middle" squares. The first player is then put on the defensive and a drawn game is the best he can achieve.

So much for this South African brain-child!

WORLD'S LARGEST ROOKERY

How many Canadians know what a rookery is? It is not a place where one is rooked of his life savings by crooked dice or marked cards, but a bird city. The rook, a big, black bird resembling a crow, is common in England and on the European continent. He is gregarious, a habit which seems to be partially shared by crows on this continent, which frequently gather in large flocks, especially in the fall. The English crow, though, seems to like his own company best and whenever more than a couple of his birds are found together one can almost be certain that they are rooks.

What distinguishes the gregarious habits of the European rook from those of the American crow is the rook's taste for city life all the year around. The rooks build their nests close together.

The Englishman, though, apparently knows only the rook hamlets. The big cities are located elsewhere. Recently James Fisher, organizer for an official rook investigation in Britain, spoke on the BBC. "English rookeries," he said, "only rarely have more than a hundred nests, and only very rarely have more than five hundred, such as far as I know, was a thousand. Yet in Scotland there are many rookeries with over a thousand, and even two thousand nests, and the Crow Wood near Turiff in Aberdeenshire had just over six thousand nests in 1945, and this one, with the possible exception of some rookeries in Germany and Hungary, is the largest rookery in the world."

Next a field day a coo would have on a Scottish holiday!

BROUGHT BACK BY AIR

There was a time when travel by airliner was considered in the luxury class.

If any rock'oo were needed that those days are passed, it should have been provided by the arrival of two alleged bank robbers in Ottawa -- by plane.

They hardly rock'oo were needed that those days are passed, it should have been provided by the arrival of two alleged bank robbers in Ottawa -- by plane.

The decision of police to use this method of travel in bringing the suspects back from San Diego, Calif., probably makes good sense, when one takes into consideration the fact that the duration of the trip was greatly shortened and that, for the greater part of this abbreviated travel period, there was no danger that they would suddenly contrive to escape from the conveyance bearing them towards their trial.

Nevertheless, when prisoners travel by air we get confirmation of the changed attitude towards air travel which the past decade or so has wrought.

American TV vs. CBC

By J. Herman Smith in The Ottawa Journal

I'm not sure the great danger of this age is the hydrogen bomb. It may be the way we watch the brushes. Our armies of the pendulum are lusty and powerful. So, politics, fads, fashions, in most anything.

That why the fuss about CBC on The Hill and elsewhere makes one anxious lest the pendulum be ready to take the bathwater. A lot of people seem to have forgotten that the CBC was designed, at public expense, to give us a good broadcasting system. That they sought an expensive broadcasting system which all manner of writers may have gone into the American method of letting the sponsors pay the piper and call the tunes.
